Candidates wind up Michigan campaigns

By STATE NEWS and Wire Services President Ford, Jimmy Carter and a host of Michigan candidates wound up their campaigns in the state Monday, with last-ditch efforts aimed at attaining elected offices.

It was homecoming in Grand Rapids for the President, who was greeted by an early evening downtown rally billed as "the greatest celebration Grand Rapids has ever seen."

After spending the night at the historic Pantlind Hotel, Ford and his wife Betty planned on voting early this morning before returning to Washington to await election returns.

Meanwhile, in his final appeal to America's voters, Ford said Monday night that if elected to the White House he will push for lower taxes at home and continued peace abroad.

"Not a single young American is fighting or dying on a foreign soil tonight and I will keep it that way for the next four years," Ford said in an election eve broadcast aired by ABC, CBS and NBC.

Carter, at the same time, was winding up his campaign in Flint, Michigan's 21 electoral votes suddenly became tantalizing enough to draw Carter and running mate Walter Mondale back to the state for the final stop of his 22-month stump for the presidency.

More drama was added to the scene Sunday when Detroit News poll showed that Ford's lead over Carter, in Michigan once as large as eight points, has now dwindled to just two, 42 to 40 percent, with a whopping 16 per cent undecided.

Carter still led in electoral votes in a final state-by-state survey by The Associated Press but neither man was certain of enough votes for victory. And in many cases the margin for Carter or for his opponent was thin and uncertain.

Twenty-four states with 237 electoral votes were rated as tossups in the survey. Carter was seen as leading in 15 states and the District of Columbia for 210 electoral votes, and Ford was ahead in 11 states with 91 electoral votes.

The winner needs 270 electoral votes. In the U.S. Senate race, latest polls depicting him as the underdog, Republican Marvin Esch made one last campaign swing through Michigan Monday, declaring that today's election "is still up for grabs."

The Ann Arbor Congressman acknowledged he was trailing Democrat Donald Riegler, but said he was closing the gap "very, very fast."

"I have a strong feeling there is a large number of undecided voters," Esch told an airport news conference in Lansing, his second step on a four-city campaign blitz. "The election is still up for grabs."

A Detroit News poll Monday showed Riegler ahead by seven points, 45-38 with 16 per cent of the electorate still undecided. An earlier poll just last week had given Riegler a lead of just one point and called the race a tossup.

The change was significant in that it indicates the adverse publicity generated against the Flint Democrat over a 1969 extramarital affair with an unpaid Congressional staff aide does not pose as big a threat to his election hopes as initially feared.

Riegler's press secretary, Dennis Herrick, said the candidate was "very encouraged" by the News poll.

"It shows tremendous holding power," Herrick said. "It shows a certain inner strength there, that despite all this stuff we've been able to hold onto our support."

In terms of their political futures, the race is a "must win" proposition for the two Congressmen. Both probably would have won re-election to the House, had they not opted to try for the Senate, so their political careers are on the line today.

If Esch wins, it will be the first time in over two decades that Republicans hold both U.S. Senate seats. Losing Sen. Philip Hart's seat to the GOP would be a severe blow to the Democrats.

In the state high court race, Chief Justice Thomas G. Kavanagh's lead in his bid for re-election to the Supreme Court has been cut nearly in half in just a week and the other two court races are too close to call, a Detroit News poll showed Sunday.

The poll showed Kavanagh with a 13-point edge, 39-26, over Roman S. Gribbs, nominated by the Democrats as an alternative to Kavanagh. Republican Joseph S. Swallow carried 4 per cent of the vote and 31 per cent were undecided.

Justices are elected on a nonpartisan ballot.

Voter rise not as large as expected

Voter registration increased in East Lansing this year, but did not reach the anticipated total.

City Clerk Beverly Colizzi said the 34,700 registered voters — an 8.8 per cent increase over last November's total — did not represent that much of an increase.

"We anticipated 37,000 people would register to vote this year," she said. "The reason the figure is down is that we had so many cancellations come through from neighboring communities."

Voters' names are kept on the registration lists for the city until they, or the communities they move into, notify East Lansing about their change in address.

Anyone who has moved within East Lansing but did not change his address with the city clerk's office can still vote at his old polling place.

People with questions about where they are registered or where they vote should contact the East Lansing city clerk's office.

Kathy Watts, director of ASMSU Legislative Relations, said she was very pleased with their voter registration drive, both on and off campus.

Voter registration on campus increased slightly this year, with 57 per cent of all students in residence halls registering to vote in East Lansing.

Because there are 600 less students in residence halls this year than last, the percentage increase actually represents a slight drop in the actual number of students registered.

Carr, Taylor shoot-out scripted to end 6th district race in style

By ED SCHREIBER State News Staff Writer The sun sets and smoke clears on the campaign 76, 6th district voters assured that the final moments of the hottest Congressional race in true Carr-Taylor fashion.

D-East Lansing, have reached a compromise agreement — of sorts. On Saturday the Detroit-based American Arbitration Assn. (AAA) cleared both candidates of alleged violations of the Fair Campaign Practices Committee (FCPC) code. The FCPC is a private nonpartisan corporation that serves as the moral pacesetter for most political campaigns waged in the United States.

The Taylor campaign immediately got busy printing and distributing 80,000 flyers, in addition to numerous radio ads, professing that "The Fair Campaign Practices Tribunal Upholds Honesty of Taylor Campaign." As could be expected, the Carr campaign immediately cried "foul."

Claiming that the use of such ads could be misconstrued, Carr asked the FCPC to clear the air. The FCPC responded by telegram, asking each campaign to refrain from using its name in connection with the AAA decision, or in any public statement issued by either candidate. In addition, the committee sent a similar telegram to 10 radio and TV stations in the 6th district which may have used or intended to use the ads.

But wait, said Taylor. No mention of the FCPC was made in the announcement. Only the Fair Campaign Practices Tribunal, referring to the three-member panel of arbitrators — a title used by the AAA themselves was mentioned.

Consequently, the Carr campaign hit the airwaves with a series of ads quoting the FCPC telegrams sent to each campaign committee. In addition, the ads stated that the Carr campaign would abide by the FCPC request and refrain from further mention of that committee, while the Taylor campaign apparently would not.

Now the twister. Was the Carr campaign in its public acceptance of the request, simultaneously violating that request by mention of the FCPC? Taylor thought so.

As the hours ticked by and election day neared an agreement was reached to the satisfaction of all concerned.

In a joint statement by all four parties (the AAA, FCPC, Carr and Taylor) the candidates agreed to "refrain from further public comment, paid or unpaid, concerning their recent arbitration of their respective complaints" — though not until 7 p.m. Monday.

Complaint to be filed against faculty group

By ED LION State News Staff Writer MSU student plans to file a complaint with the University provost against a political organization, Faculty for Carr, for "improperly using University personnel" to distribute literature.

Ed Gossman, a senior, said that faculty members campaigning on behalf of Bob Carr had taken advantage of taxpayers' dollars by giving campaign letters to faculty members to University-paid department secretaries to distribute in member mailboxes.

"I will file a complaint because they used my tuition money and my tax dollars for these measures," he said.

Gossman learned about the mailings from a professor. Jim Anderson, asst. professor of humanities and a spokesperson for Faculty for Carr, denied that University personnel had been used improperly. The organization made it clear to all secretaries if they would rather have organization members put the literature in the boxes, Anderson said.

By 20 secretaries from the 60 departments that received literature filed the letters in their mailboxes, while the rest let organization members put the mailings in the boxes, Gossman said.

About 2,200 faculty members received literature in the first ten days of October for their contributions and support on behalf of Carr. Faculty for Carr is composed of 12 members.

University officials were unaware of any laws prohibiting department secretaries from using University or partisan mail in professor's boxes. There are laws, however, prohibiting the University mailing system from distributing non-University business.

Gossman said initially he had thought that the literature had gone through the mail, a violation of the University regulations. But after checking with a University mail official, he found that the Faculty for Carr had not used the mails.

"They clearly violated the spirit of the law," Gossman said, "even though they may not have violated any specific measures. It was a slip-stick measure of getting around it. Those who are paid by our tuition so why should they have to spend time distributing literature?"

Anderson said he saw nothing wrong with secretaries distributing any mailing material if it was intended to faculty members' boxes. "Is the student also taking the position that we can't distribute first-class mail received at the department office to faculty members?" he asked.

Another development concerning partisan mailings, Gary North, director of residence programs, gave permission to Students for Proposal C to distribute unaddressed Proposal C literature in residence hall mailboxes. North said he authorized the students to give both sides of the picture.

Last week ASMSU was granted permission to distribute anti-'C' mail without addresses in student mailboxes. Anderson said that by North, all literature must have names and addresses of students to be distributed in student mailboxes.

Blacks not successful in church entry attempt

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — A controversial minister and three other blacks tried unsuccessfully to attend the all-white Plains Baptist Church Sunday in a move Jimmy Carter's supporters say was politically motivated.

The church in which the Democratic presidential nominee teaches Sunday School had been closed earlier and the pastor, the Rev. Bruce Edwards, told the blacks no services would be held Sunday.

Church deacons held an emergency meeting Sunday night and the Atlanta Constitution reported they voted to fire Edwards, who had recommended that a 1965 ban of blacks be lifted. Carter has backed the pastor on the issue. Edwards was not available for comment late Sunday night.

State Sen. Hugh Carter, a church deacon and cousin of Jimmy Carter, refused to say what action took place at the deacon meeting, adding there would be no comment until after a prayer meeting Wednesday night involving the congregation.

Edwards said the appearance of the Rev. Clennon King of Albany, Ga., 48 hours before the election was an attempt to embarrass Carter.

Carter said in Texas that "My own deep belief is that anyone who lives in our community and who wants to be a member of our church, regardless of race, ought to be admitted."

Court blocks move against paper

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A Delhi court intervened again Monday in the ongoing feud between Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's government and the Indian Express, this time to block public sale of the newspaper's water pumps and air conditioning plant.

"This is so fantastic and so revolting," Express lawyer V.K. Tarkunde told the two-man tribunal hearing what the Express claimed was the latest instance of government harassment against one of India's last independent press voices.

The Express contended that the government-controlled Delhi Municipal Corp. had tried "to overawe and terrorize" the paper by hastily arranging a public auction to sell some of its machinery for alleged nonpayment of property taxes.

UNESCO votes down proposal

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — A Soviet move to bring a controversial press issue before the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) general conference for an early vote was overwhelmingly defeated Monday.

The Soviets had demanded that committee discussion over possible amending of the draft declaration on "fundamental principles governing the use of mass media" be limited to two or three days after which the proposal would automatically go before the full conference.

Western nations believe the declaration would muzzle world press freedom and place the press in many countries under state control.

Especially repugnant to Western nations and press organizations is a Soviet-inspired provision saying that "states are responsible for the activities in the international sphere of all mass media under their jurisdiction."

Iraqi troops seen moving away

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Hundreds of Iraqi troops have been seen moving eastward away from the border with Syria, travelers from Baghdad reported Sunday.

They said the troops, along with armored personnel carriers and tanks, were sighted moving toward Baghdad.

Iraq had deployed two brigades of troops along the Syrian border following Syria's intervention in Lebanon in June. Baghdad opposed the intervention.

Neither Baghdad Radio nor the official Iraqi news agency made any reference to the troop movements.

U. S. gives 'copters to Thailand

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The United States has given Thailand five helicopters to use in the pursuit of narcotics traffickers, a U.S. Embassy spokesman said Sunday.

They will probably be used to track down opium caravans and locate crops and heroin factories in the inaccessible Golden Triangle area, where much of the world's illegal drug traffic originates. The Bell helicopters, unarmed civilian versions of the "Huey" used extensively in the Vietnam War, are now being assembled in Thailand for the Thai police, the spokesman said.

"Although Thailand isn't the worst opium-producing country, we are a main trading center for narcotics," Prime Minister Tanin Kraivixien said. "We are trying to tackle this problem with full force."

Bomb destroys American's cars

COROZAL, C.Z. (AP) — Bombs destroyed three cars in the Panama Canal Zone Sunday, including one that belonged to the American union official who is suing to block the negotiations for a new canal treaty.

A spokesman for the canal company said William R. Drummond's car was parked outside his home when a bomb went off beneath it at 1:30 a.m. Drummond's house and a car parked nearby received some damage.

Officials reported that late Sunday explosives destroyed two cars and damaged five others in the Coco Solo hospital parking lot.

Drummond is a Canal Zone policeman who is legislative chairperson of the Canal Zone Central Labor Union, AFL-CIO. He said he received several threats after he began organizing Americans in the Canal Zone who oppose revision of the canal treaty to give Panama control of the canal and the zone at some future date.

Eskimos return on Halloween

GJOA HAVEN, Canada (AP) — An Eskimo hunting party stranded for weeks in an ice-bound boat in the Canadian Arctic returned home to this Northwest Territories village to find a Halloween party in progress.

"They just came in and we welcomed them," George Porter, settlement manager at Gjoa Haven, said Sunday.

"They were pretty tired."

Porter said reaction to the snowmobile rescue operation was low-key in this village of 400 on Queen Maud Gulf, 1,200 miles north of Winnipeg.

There were 16 Eskimos in the party that left in mid-September for a two-week trip. Eight were children, two of them under 2 years old.

Maddox expects Ford to win

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Minor party presidential candidate Lester Maddox predicted Monday that President Ford will defeat Democrat Jimmy Carter in Tuesday's election.

Maddox, the American Independent party nominee, told a news conference here that he expected Ford to lead Carter by 1 per cent to 4 per cent in the popular vote and 10 per cent to 30 per cent in electoral votes.

Houdini fails to appear in Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — People gathered in small groups to see if Harry Houdini would keep a deathbed vow to send a signal from the spiritual world. He didn't.

One group of followers of the World's Greatest Magician met Sunday night for a memorial service in a room in Detroit's Grace Hospital, where Houdini died 50 years ago — Halloween 1926.

Houdini promised before his death he would try to get some kind of message back from the other world.

While he was alive, Houdini ridiculed seances and spiritualists. But because of his deathbed promise, people have gathered almost every Halloween in the past 50 years to try and contact him.

TO DECIDE CONTENT OF CLOSING ARGUMENTS

Court to review fair trial case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court agreed Monday to decide what prosecutors can and cannot say during closing arguments of trials in which the defendant faces a possible death sentence. The Court said it will review the murder conviction of a Florida man sentenced to death who claims "inflammatory" remarks by the trial prosecutor deprived him of a fair trial.

Willie Jasper Darden was convicted of the Sept. 8, 1973, shooting death of Lakeland, Fla. furniture store owner Carl Turman. Darden, on a weekend furlough from state prison, was identified by two witnesses as the holdup man who shot Turman.

Darden's appeal labeled the prosecutor's closing statements "a calculated effort to arouse the jurors' passion and to distract them from the proper performance of their task."

He said the prosecutor deprived him of fair consideration by the jury when referring to the defendant as an animal who belongs "at the other end of a leash." He said the prosecutor told jurors he wished Darden had "blown his (own) face off."

Still inundated with death penalty appeals, the court dispensed of a handful of other capital punishment cases in keeping with its ruling of last July.

The justices have upheld the death penalty laws of Florida, Georgia and Texas, while striking down those in North Carolina, Louisiana and Oklahoma.

In other decisions Monday, the court:

• Agreed to hear arguments by United Airlines that it doesn't have to restore seniority privilege of stewardess Carolyn J. Evans, who involuntarily quit her job in 1968 to be married. United later that year discontinued its policy of requiring stewardesses to be single, and Evans was rehired as a new employee.

• Agreed to decide whether New York can withhold state financial aid from alien students who decline to apply for U.S. citizenship. Jean-Marie Mandat, a French citizen living in New York since 1969 and a graduate student at the State University at Buffalo, was denied aid because he couldn't prove he had applied for citizenship.

• Refused to consider an appeal by an organization asking itself the Human Rights Amendment Group to seek Supreme Court order preventing withdrawal of life-supporting equipment for a patient, Quinlan, in a coma since 1975.

Diplomat hopes for Rhodesian meeting

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Britain has called on black and white Rhodesian leaders to meet informally today to discuss fixing a target date for black majority rule and legal independence for the breakaway British colony.

"I hope that the meeting will be held tomorrow (Tuesday) afternoon," said British diplomat Ivor Richard, chairperson of the five-day-old Rhodesian settlement conference.

Through the weekend and Monday, Richard had been pressed by each of the four black nationalist leaders to set a 1977 target date. This would be sooner than the two-year target to which Prime Minister Ian Smith said he agreed during U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's southern African shuttle in September.

Smith, spokesperson for Rhodesia's 277,000 whites, was asked to call on Richard after the diplomat's meetings with the representatives of 6.2 million Rhodesian blacks.

As Smith left the 90-minute private session, a reporter asked what he felt about the reported black demand for a 1977 target date. "I've given no thought to that," replied Smith. "It's a new one on me."

Earlier the Rhodesian white leader let it be known he means to fly home Wednesday because he is tired of "twiddling his thumbs" in Geneva and has important work awaiting him in Salisbury, the capital.

One of his main preoccupations is bound to be the escalation of guerilla warfare along Rhodesia's 800-mile frontier with Mozambique where Soviet and Cuban specialists have been reported training black Rhodesian "freedom fighters." The casualty toll among Rhodesian security forces rose to 84 in October, the highest in almost four years of fighting.

Rhodesian commandos raided across the border into Mozambique over the weekend and Monday in retaliation for killings of several whites more than 300 miles away in western Rhodesia. Informed sources said the Rhodesians destroyed a camp believed to be the base for 100 guerillas.

THOUSANDS ATTEND FUNERAL Chief of IRA mourned

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — An estimated 10,000 persons turned out in icy rain Monday for the funeral of Maire Drumm, a political leader of the Irish Republican Army who was assassinated in a hospital after undergoing eye surgery. Protestant gunmen have been blamed for the slaying last Thursday. The 56-year-old Drumm, called "Grandma Venom" by British troops because of her fiery anti-British speeches, was buried amid mounting fears of a new surge of fighting between Roman Catholic and Protestant extremists. It was one of the biggest IRA funerals in Belfast since fighting broke out more than seven years ago.

Security forces kept out of sight during the ceremony for fear of provoking a confrontation with the IRA, a mainly Catholic movement fighting to end British rule in Protestant-dominated Northern Ireland.

Job applicants crowd Detroit Cadillac plant

DETROIT (UPI) — More than 5,000 persons tried to jam their way into the personnel offices at the Cadillac auto plant Monday looking for jobs that were not advertised and are not available.

The out-of-work Detroiters heard through the grapevine that job applications were being taken. The only notice was on bulletin boards in the auto plant.

They began lining up before 4 a.m. at the plant on the southwest side of the city whose unemployment rate — at nearly 10 per cent — is among the highest in the nation.

By mid-morning many applicants, learning that Cadillac was taking ap-lications for future openings only, began pushing and shoving. Police were called to handle die traffic and the throng. At that point Cadillac officials decided to suspend handing out the employment forms. Cadillac spokespersons said they had not even advertised that jobs might be open up at the plant that had been working heavy overtime to meet record demand for the luxury automobiles.

United Auto Workers Vice President Douglas Fraser, who is directing contract talks with Chrysler Corp., said the incident at Cadillac was good example of Ford Administration policies working.

Math 108 charged with practicing fraud

SUZIE ROLLINS
News Staff Writer
MSU Math 108 sequence is charged with practicing fraud upon the students in the course.

the students pass," he said. "The kids pay almost $100 to take the course and they are taught by graduate assistants."

There are eight lecture sections taught by eight faculty members and 56 recitation sections which are taught primarily by graduate assistants. There are also two undergraduates instructing recitations, Roger Nelson, math instructor, said.

Karson said that the students are taking Math 108 under false pretenses and that the course lacks a fair learning-teaching situation. He contends that the graduate assistants have had little or no teaching experience and are not given instruction or close supervision in teaching.

Joseph Adney, chairperson of the Math Dept., argues that Karson's allegations are false. "Unfortunately, I don't understand where Prof. Karson got his information," Adney said. "Graduate assistants are supervised on a regular basis by their lecture professors."

This issue has surfaced a difference of opinion within the department involving the scheduled lecturer/graduate assistant conferences. "We're only supposed to meet with our professor if we have questions, otherwise we follow the book, Daniel Gawarecki, Math 108 graduate assistant, said."

majority of professors. "Take Win Schuler figures out logarithms? Of course not, he has an accountant to do his books. Math 108 is used in these type of instances as a screening device."

"If a college requires math, and the student uses it, it isn't screening," Adney said. "If there is no use for it, then that would be screening."

Work-study aid reported down

ANNE E. STUART
News Staff Writer
Federal funding for the Basic Education Opportunity Grant (BEOG) and the Guaranteed Student Loan programs were boosted substantially while the assistance, according to officials.

National Direct Student Loan program continues to operate at approximately the same level as last year. But funds for the work-study program have been reduced by 20 per cent since last year, said

Ronald Roderick, associate director of the financial aids office. Roderick said that the reduction in work-study funds is due mainly to the fact that a $600,000 Congressional appropriation received by MSU last year has not been repeated for this year.

Thomas Scarlett, asst. director of loans in the financial aids office, said that a $100,000 increase in short-term loans was visible this term in comparison to fall term 1975. In spite of the fact that administrators have made a conscious effort to decrease overall enrollment by one per cent this year, the number of students applying for financial assistance is expected to keep rising.

"The number of students entering school here may be down, but the costs of higher education are constantly rising everywhere," Roderick said. "More and more students are turning to the financial aids office for help because they can't meet the costs of college," he said.

Financial assistance at MSU is granted according to the circumstances surrounding the individual, and not just on a straight income scale, Roderick said. "There are a number of variables we use in determining need," he said. "We take into account the number of children in the family, their ages, how many are in college and how many assets the family has. Income is only one of the factors."

The Dept. of Audiology and Speech Sciences (ASC) requires Math 108 as a prerequisite for Physics 237. Leo Deal, dean of the department, said the purpose of math is to handle the math need of the department which involves math and its application to physics.

"The private instruction is great," the student said. "It is important for me to maintain a 3.0 average, and I would never have been able to do it taking Math 108."

Faculty associates make salary increases main issue

BRIE SCATTERDAY
News Staff Writer
Job security has become a major issue in collective bargaining between college and faculty unions.

not have unionization that would provide a contract to include such protection for faculty, Korth said. The MSU Faculty Associates have been making moves since last spring that would bring unionization to the campus and allow for collective bargaining rights.

where the budget cut will affect their lives," Korth said. "The budget cut is a personal anxiety that everyone has to deal with individually."

The amount of money appropriated for BEOG awards is expected to exceed $3.7 million this year, as compared to $2 million last year, according to Terry Harris, asst. director of scholarships in the financial aids office.

Though official statistics will not be available until the end of the school year in June 1977 it is estimated that about 4,500 MSU students will receive BEOG awards this year, as opposed to 2,620 last year.

Bunka, Jondahl windup 'low-key' campaigning

Collective bargaining would include provisions that would list specific procedures for handling layoffs, Korth said. There also would be provisions for retraining, recall and reassignment of faculty members, he said.

Korth said that successful unionization is a possibility in the near future on this campus. The faculty associates are in a position to secure cards for an election and expect to hold one some time this year.

Exact figures on the Guaranteed Student Loan and National Direct Student Loan programs will not be available until later this week, but a significant Republican Donald Bunka and Democratic incumbent Lynn Jondahl, candidates vying for the 59th district legislative seat, are winding up their campaigns in ways characteristic of the race up to this point — in a low-key manner.

Bunka, a 48-year-old Okemos businessman making his first stab at politics, was out pounding on doors Monday "just like he's always been," Steve Linder, East Lansing coordinator for the Bunka campaign, said.

spent the weekend out canvassing, spent a lot of time in the headquarters taking care of last-minute organizing.

Along with other area Republicans like 6th district U.S. representative candidate Cliff Taylor, Bunka will spend tonight at Long's Banquet Center in Lansing to await returns and to celebrate "the victory party," Linder said.

Jondahl, 40, campaigned Monday at area elementary schools and called people to answer questions they had raised to Jondahl's canvassers. Jondahl, who was first elected to the seat in 1972, also canvassed door-to-door in East Lansing Monday.

LETTERS To the Editor

McCarthy

I'm tired of hearing that McCarthy has no chance of winning. I'm tired of hearing that a vote for McCarthy is a half-vote for Ford. I'm tired of hearing comparisons between the McCarthy campaign and protest votes of yesteryear. Let's explode the myths.

MYTH #1 McCarthy will not win. More than one candidate will lose, so the logical course is to vote for the man who represents your ideological position most accurately. McCarthy will not win IF those people who agree with his positions fail to support him. But this holds true for all candidates, not just independent candidates.

MYTH #2 A McCarthy vote is a half-vote for Ford. Not all supporters of Eugene McCarthy are potential or misguided Carter supporters. Some would actually vote for Ford if McCarthy were not running. Furthermore, many McCarthy people would not exercise their right to vote if it was not for his candidacy.

MYTH #3 A McCarthy vote is a protest vote. McCarthy is an electable figure. He has a position, he has experience, he has an observable constituency. In no way does his candidacy resemble those of Dick Gregory or Pat Paulsen; McCarthy is serious.

The way many people speak of this campaign, one would think that the two-party system was heaven sent or that it was at least embodied in our constitution. The major parties want you to believe this. There is a courageous man, close to your political sentiments, running for the office of president. I urge you to look at the facts, not the myths.

Carr

Congressman Bob Carr has been a fighter for good government. Especially he has been supportive to those who most need a helping hand.

Bob Carr more than anyone else is responsible for the federal grant received by Michigan State University for the new program established in the College of Education to aid the handicapped.

We need to keep Bob Carr in Congress. Vote for him on Nov. 2.

Frane

Since 1972, I have served as your county commissioner. I was elected on the Democratic ticket.

Since I have decided not to seek re-election again, I feel it is my duty to make you aware of the candidate that I endorse, that I believe is the best possible candidate to serve as your new county commissioner. That candidate is Marian Frane.

Marian Frane is a 23-year-old MSU graduate. She is currently employed by the East Lansing Food Co-op. Frane's policies best reflect my own.

Frane is a Human Rights Party candidate. Her name is on the ballot, slot 130.

even more devastating source of this information has been a letter distributed to the entire MSU faculty and staff by the so-called Faculty for Carr Committee, over the signatures of three MSU faculty members.

The total falsehood of these charges was substantiated by a Fair Campaign Practices Tribunal this past Saturday. The tribunal found that this campaign has not received a single cent from either Joseph Coors or the Coors Beer Employees Political Action Committee.

Since federal campaign laws require the disclosure of all contributions over $100 and our campaign has adopted the policy of total disclosure of all contributions, the signers of this fund-raising letter could easily have verified this allegation if they had any interest in doing so. Obviously they did not.

True, this campaign has received contributions from the Carr Committee for the Survival of a Free Congress which have been reported as required by law. This committee has over 69,000 contributors and regardless of what its detractors would have you believe, does nothing more than take the opposite ideological view of the Committee for an Effective Congress.

VIEWPOINT: SUPREME COURT

Moody: a man with experience

By PAUL KLEMPNOW

Of all the Michigan political contests taking place Tuesday, probably none will have more far-reaching effects on each of us in our daily living than the races for the Michigan Supreme Court. The powers of Justice, Supreme Court are different from and more encompassing than those of any other public office.

I believe that we are indeed fortunate, within our statewide community, in being able to have a direct voice in the choice of basic direction in the course of the law.

Canon 7 in the Code of Judicial Conduct dictates that a candidate, if elected, is required to disqualify himself from rendering decisions on those matters on which he has spoken in the campaign.

One of those who has scrupulously adhered to the spirit of Canon 7 is Judge Blair Moody, Jr. We should all applaud his tenacity in abiding by the principle involved.

As president of the Cooley Chapter of the Assn. of Trial Lawyers of America, I am well aware that the Michigan Trial Lawyers Assn. (MTLA) has endorsed Judge Moody for the six-year term. I believe this endorsement tells of Judge Moody's strong commitment to human dignity and human values which so many of us hold in paramount importance in our perceptions of what ought to be the philosophy of those we ask to sit on our courts.

On what basis does MTLA make its choice? From watching the results of Judge Moody's hard work after many years on the bench.

I have talked with several lawyers who have worked before Judge Moody. Each was impressed with the conscientious effort put forth by the judge. This included both defense and plaintiff's lawyers.

In endorsing Judge Moody, the Detroit Free Press made its selection on the basis of the long experience on the trial bench: his nearly 11 years exceeds the total trial experience of the entire present court.

Concluding, may I suggest that those of us who live here on the MSU campus will best be served by the election of a man who, instead of talking about true justice, has been acting on it. A man who works hard at his job without perfunctorily sounding off about each problem on the face of this earth, a man with significant experience: Blair Moody Jr.

Klempnow is a resident of Spartan Village and has been involved in the Moody campaign.

VIEWPOINT: BARRETT

Place on Commission

By KAREN BARRETT

For eight months, I have been through the 8th district several hours a day knocking on doors. I have talked personally more than once with most of you.

I have kept my campaign on a positive level. I refuse to get into the distortion and name calling we have seen so much of this year.

I am the only candidate who has attended any county meetings; I have attended most since January.

My past record indicates I know how to get a job done.

The people working actively for my election include Republicans, Democrats, Independents — many are elected precinct delegates from both major parties.

This has been my consistent stand on issues from the beginning.

Write accountability into every program — had this been done with the Metro Squad to begin with, the problem would not be as severe as it is today. I support a civilian control board that includes student representatives.

Deal with the source of problems — education for everyone (parents, teachers, counselors, nonusers and young users) in the total area of substance abuse (alcohol, marijuana and nonaddictive drugs and addictive drugs) is needed. This education will eliminate lack of understanding that causes fears and more misunderstanding.

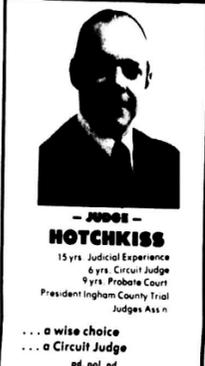

Write termination date into any new program — periodic evaluation will eliminate ineffective or outdated services, thus freeing funds for new areas of need. (for example, rape counseling now operates in several disconnected areas. We could do a better job in one strong program with all-out cooperation.)

I have consistently suggested the following:

- another judge on the local level would relieve overburdened court systems, help speed judicial process and empty the jails.
- health clinics on a permanent basis in East Lansing (as exist elsewhere in the county) would better serve MSU population.
- expansion and all-out cooperation in energy and resource conservation and recovery will prevent crisis situation later.
- Cooperation (possible merger) between area transportation systems will expand service while keeping costs down.
- More "halfway" facilities for rehabilitation of emotionally disturbed, and juvenile offenders.
- Cooperation with other local governmental units (especially the MSU Board of Trustees) offers chance for improved communication and understanding.
- Effective publication of already existing services (e.g., day care) can provide people with the knowledge and motivation to use them.

I remain accessible for comment or question.

Faculty letter false

By CLIFF TAYLOR

Through the rumor mill has been a very effective tool for conveying unfounded charges that my campaign is being funded by "arch-conservative Joseph Coors" through the "extremist right-wing Coors Beer Committee (CBC)," an

The Carr campaign's attempts to prove an identity of either Joseph Coors or the CBC with the Committee for the Survival of a Free Congress were repudiated by the tribunal. The tribunal failed to find that disseminating this letter constituted an unfair campaign practice on the part of my opponent, because of my inability to show that Bob Carr had actual knowledge of the letter. However, the circumstantial case is quite compelling:

(1) The Faculty for Carr has the same return address as the Carr for Congress Committee, P.O. Box 16204.

(2) An enclosure to be returned with contributors checks indicates the mailing was "paid for and authorized by the Bob Carr for Congress Committee".

(3) The several thousand piece mailing contained a standard Carr campaign leaflet which could only have been secured from one source.

It may come as quite a shock to the signers of the letter that the party on whose behalf it was sent denied under oath any knowledge of it and has left them holding the bag.

Taylor is Congressional candidate for the 8th district.

VIEWPOINT: COMMISSION

Marron a Ginny Slade

By JIM GROSSFELD

In the past few months a lot has been written about voter apathy. It is true, though, that people aren't so much apathetic as they are bored, weary and unenthused with political leaders at the national level or with those trying to influence political leaders locally.

Months of seeing political posters about campus like dry leaves it is hard to relate to. Some are running for the thrill of voting for themselves, for the money they'd be making if elected, and still others, perhaps a few, are running because they honestly believe they can do the job feeling that they have the insight and experience to work in government. Such a candidate is Aubrey Marron.

It has been working on Aubrey's behalf for 10th county commission for the past few months. In that time I've seen at first thought to be another political candidate evolve into a popular representative government, and several people to the Ginny Slade campaign in "Doonesbury." Like Marron started out with little chance of winning and like Slade, Marron is a candidate who could end up being a matter of party affiliation alone.

In many issues the stands of the candidates are similar, their perspectives on the commission and government differ substantially.

Marron could bring to the county commission a perspective that comes directly from this community. She is a housing counselor for the Tenants Resource Center, a volunteer with the Drug Education Center, a student, the cofounder and coordinator of the rape awareness program, a member of the American Civil Liberties Union and the East Lansing Food Cooperative.

Consistently she has been involved with the projects and services that this community has grown to trust and rely upon.

After two months of working with her, meeting people with her and listening to her talk about the issues with the people of this district I have come to trust her judgment, her honesty and take to heart the slogan that appears on her pamphlet: "an independent voice for our community, for us."

Marron, perhaps more than anyone else, represents the new politics, a politics of trust and caring, of listening and activism. It is something that puts Marron's candidacy in a place by itself.

Please think about voting for Aubrey Marron and about sending to Mason the sort of county commission member we've been asking for so long.

Grossfeld lives in East Lansing and is a sophomore.

Stills' unforgettable concert marred by political tangents

By JOHN CASEY

Bathed in the wash of red spotlights sat a man with glasses, strumming a guitar that had a familiar melody. Seemingly middle-aged, with a rapidly receding hairline, this musician began to sing "all of the ladies. . ." Sure enough, it was "Change Partners." Sure enough, it was Stephen Stills — a legend in his own time.

Or is he? When Stephen Stills performed Sunday in the Auditorium, his choice of music was impeccable, his style slow, almost to the point of indifference, a credible performance. Opening on acoustic guitars, to which he cutely refers to by individual names, Stills laced into a tasty version of the song, "Helplessly Hoping," followed by a tribute to the person who introduced him to folk-rock music and the 12-string guitar — Fred Neil. Stills' rendition of Neil's classic made famous by Nilsson, "Everybody's Talking," was a highlight of this set. As the cold drafts that Stills made mention of when he ended his first number began to disappear and the warmth of heat began to make things more comfortable, so did Stills.

Covering a McCartney-Lennon "Blackbird" on his 12-string and ripping into an inspired number from the "Deja-Vu" album, "4 and 20," Stills began to warm up to his audience. Stills mentioned after the concert that the "audience was very, very nice, it took me a minute to get everybody. . . they were quiet in all the right places, a good bunch of folks. . . I wanted everyone to know that this was an acoustic tour."

Stills ended the guitar set with a tune from his last solo album, "Illegal Stills," a politically based song called "Buying Time" that fired not only the audience but Stills.

After a few minutes, Stills returned to a cigarette-burned piano, with Joe Vitale on drums and George Perry on electric bass. The trio worked well, especially when Stills got into extended, impromptu riffs, and the sound was consistently there. The spex of this set was reached when Stills slapped on his solid-body electric and slid into "Make Love to You," a smooth and mellow Stills composition from the Stills-Young album, "Long May You Run." Rambling on about the art and frustrations of "dealing chicks," Stills' tasty guitar runs were on the mark, almost magic.

The magic was maintained through a powerful combination of "49 Bye-Byes" and the "Buffalo Springfield" anthem, "For What It's Worth."

An enthusiastic crowd got him back to encore with the surprising Greg Allman original, "Midnight Rider," and the trio closed up shop with Stills' "Find the Cost of Freedom."

From just a musical standpoint, Stephen Stills did show himself to be a legend, a more than competent musician who has created some unforgettable moments in rock.

Even though Stills has a good sense of his audience's needs and wants, he tends to overdo it to the point where it distracts from the music. His complaining over the cold drafts was definitely legitimate, but his political tangents are downright irritating. His urgings to vote for Don Reigle locally and Jimmy Carter nationally have all been heard before; "deja-dit" would be an appropriate phrase for Stills' political diatribes. He has all the right in the world to tell us his opinion, but this was a musical concert, not "Meet the Press."

What are Stills' feelings on the matter? "I don't think I'm that obtrusive about the whole thing, and secondly, I'm an American citizen and I have every right to speak my mind," he said.

"I have a voice and I will use it as I see fit." "I have just as much right to speak up in a case like this, as the oil companies do when they send their lobbyists to Washington and have them twist arms and buttonhole people to the point where they have changed the face of my life," Stills said. The sacrificial lamb, "Lions to the Christians," opening act was the wine-induced Phil Cody, a funny sort of dude who has written songs with Neil Sedaka ("Sad Eyes") and did some album work of his own. Listening to him play, you could swear Leon Russell was sitting down at the piano, but I'll wager that Leon's funnier than Cody, but the crowd certainly didn't care.

Stephen Stills embellished his solo appearance with a dash of the old from "CSNY" days, a blend of new Stills and a sprinkling of politics.

'2001' depicts quest of man with special effects, color

By BILL BRIENZA

Stanley Kubrick's photography is the star of "2001: A Space Odyssey." His use of special effects and color in the film he directed and produced took three years to perfect, and the time and effort clearly show. Overshadowed by the technical mastery, the actors (principally Keir Dullea and Gary Lockwood) are used as props to convey Kubrick's message. In fact, there is not a word of dialogue spoken for the film's first half-hour.

The script, adapted by Kubrick and Arthur C. Clarke from a Clarke short story, has man questing from his humble man-ape beginnings to space travel, reaching to the stars to find the source or meaning of life. He finds that the answers lie not in outer, but in inner space.

In depicting this quest of man, Kubrick produced some of the most breathtaking color film footage. The opening and closing sequences, especially, are awesome.

The opening, in the beginning — the "Dawn of Man" — is a series of incredibly beautiful film landscape paintings. . . vast panoramas of earth and sky in a state of innocence, the stage entered by the apes on their way to becoming men.

Crucial to man's rise is his learning to use tools (as simple as bones of dead animals) which, given man's violent, predatory nature, quickly become weapons to use against his fellows. The flowering of this base instinct coincides with his first stirrings of need to find life's higher meaning. The men-apes awake one morning to find a monolith, symbolizing this need. The need to reach toward it is as immediate as the need to kill. A "wind" of voices, a distorted choir, surrounds the worshippers, as religion is born.

The men look to the heavens and still are looking when their bone-tools have become space-ship tools. Science and technology have replaced earlier religion and even their absolutes have proved uncertain. The HAL computer is entrusted with the functions on board a manned mission to Jupiter, a machine "by definition fool-proof, incapable of error," fails the men who have invested it with such power. They must transcend it. Man will not allow himself to be convinced that the fact of his own existence transcends any icons, technological or otherwise.

Throughout the film, the steely tone of Kubrick's color, eliminating all the warm reds, browns, and yellows after man's advent on earth, underlines man's lack of belief in himself, of his resultant sterility. Everything is black and white and gray — a world as barren as the moon he explores. Kubrick's stark contrasts of white light and dark shadows in space are metaphors for man's duality, his spiritual and base aspects, conflicting in the vacuum of space, aimless, not progressing, but noble and worth watching. The cold, red glow of the inanimate HAL is the only very ironic exception to the colorlessness.

The sets and special effects space travel are remarkable. But the real fantasy, the point of departure for the film, from the capacities of any medium, comes as the "infinity and beyond" sequence. Here, man finally transcends space and time, as he has long sought to do, and reaches the source of life and higher meaning. What beyond is stunning. . . the meaning of life lies within himself, in his own mind. Kubrick's last shot makes unmistakably clear: a fetus drifting in the vacuum space which represents something that is not man.

The photographic elements are on a level of word descriptions. They have been seen — a demand for the art of film, and one often not made.

"2001" runs through today at the State Theatre.

Carmen album still spinning off hits

ERIC CARMEN: (ARISTA 4057)

Eric Carmen, whose music seems to be heard much too often on the airwaves, has definitely made his mark in the music business. While harmonizing for several years with the "Rasberries," he proved himself a good lyricist/performer, and the band prospered both musically and financially. But with time, he made the decision that so many members of bands do when going solo. His career has gone nowhere but up since then. Though released some time ago, this album has continued to stay current, with singles coming off it so successfully that it could very well turn out to be an "Eric Carmen's Greatest Hits" record. The most popular song at this time is "Sunrise," which is smooth-flowing, with a fast-paced beat that finishes off with an explosion that one never thought Eric Carmen music could handle. "Great Expectations" is a fine song because it lets one appreciate Eric Carmen's voice and music. The songs are all pleasing, with the pace varied and always interesting. "Never Gonna Fall In Love Again" and "All By Myself" are two more hits Carmen has released off this record. They have emotion and feeling that only a good voice has the ability to transfer from plastic to person. Carmen seems to mature and learn from his past efforts. The music is clean and arrangements are classy. With no exceptions, Carmen seems bound to find himself a very comfortable niche in the music business if future releases surpass this one. Give him room, because he'll be getting big.

More than just another impressive voting record.

You get a good idea of where Lynn Jondahl stands when you look at his vote ratings.

- 100% from PIRGIM.
- 100% from the Michigan Student Environmental Confederation.
- 100% from the Feminist Bureau of Investigation.
- 94% from the Michigan Branch of the American Civil Liberties Union.
- 100% from the Michigan Branch of the Americans for Democratic Action.

But you get a lot more than good votes with Lynn Jondahl in the legislature.

You get the leadership to fight the battle nobody else wants to take on.

Not many people noticed when Lynn Jondahl first introduced the bottle bill. They're noticing now. Nobody wanted to take on the job of restructuring Michigan's juvenile justice system except Lynn Jondahl. The mining companies tried to destroy Michigan's Environmental Protection Act. Lynn Jondahl said no. Nuclear power was none of your business until Lynn Jondahl stepped in.

Committee to discuss CD funds usage

MICHAEL ROUSE
State News Staff Writer
Proposed uses for federal Community Development (CD) funds in East Lansing have come under fire, forcing a tortuous path for the city's application before its destination in Washington April.

The East Lansing Planning Commission, said the projects proposed by the city staff will be "ripped apart" at the planning commission committee of the whole meeting Wednesday at 7:30 in the city hall conference room.

The application will be reviewed by the Tri-County Regional Planning Commission, the State Office of Management and Budget and the State Dept. of Civil Rights before being sent to the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

The budget may still not be final at the home of the CD coffers since programs may be declared ineligible, as were a handful of public service activities in last year's budget for East Lansing.

Dudley said, pointing out the last-minute juggling of funds and programs last year. Dudley criticized the staff proposals as offering few direct benefits to students, who he claims are the sole reason the city receives CD money.

The supposed objective of the CD program is the "development of viable urban communities, including decent housing and a suitable living environment and expanding economic opportunities principally for persons of low and moderate income."

Lansing — rental housing. Berry said HUD has no written restrictions against appropriating money in rental housing categories, but that none has been appropriated because of verbal instructions received from HUD last year.

concentrations of minorities and concentrations of low-income households, Berry said.

Singer offers inheritance for university fund

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Singer Bobby Vinton, the surprised recipient of $8,650 from the will of a fan from Alameda, Calif., says the money will be used to set up a scholarship fund for Polish-American students at Duquesne University. "I haven't worked out the details with the people at the university, but I plan to make this a permanent fund by adding a big chunk of my own money," said Vinton, who attended Duquesne. The $8,650 was bequeathed to Vinton by Martha I. Visser, 72, who died earlier this month. She had seen him perform in San Francisco and was impressed by his pride in being of Polish descent.

THROWS SUPPORT BEHIND JONDAHL Rep hopeful withdraws

Grossfeld, Human Rights party candidate for 59th district state representative, has drawn from the race and has turned his support to Lynn Jondahl, the Democratic incumbent.

Another candidate, whom he would not name, and be kicked off the ballot because he is not 21. "I was then going to file suit and challenge this age requirement," he said.

Electoral College may enable popular winner to lose race

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a close election at hand, don't forget the Old Math of the Electoral College — by which the man with the most popular votes can still wind up a loser on inauguration day.

But it's still possible to win without a majority of the popular vote, even in a two-man race. It happens simply, if the winner takes small popular margins in states with many electoral votes, while the other claims bigger pluralities in states with fewer college memberships.

ident, and the results, in turn, will be sent to the Senate for formal counting next Jan. 6.

Though the electors usually are committed by party or state rules to vote for the person upon whose slate they run, they don't have to live up to that pledge because the Constitution, the foundation of the Electoral College, doesn't itself require it.

It's theoretically possible that a few turnout electors could throw even the Ford-Carter race to the House if both should come up just a vote or two short of an electoral majority. Those who did it would doubtlessly risk massive wrath — but if it happened, the Democratic House just as doubtlessly would pick Carter.

In 1824, Andrew Jackson beat John Quincy Adams in the popular vote but failed to get the electoral majority in a four-man race. The House made Adams president. And Rutherford B. Hayes in 1876 and Benjamin Harrison in 1888 were second-place finishers in the popular totals but won the states that added up to an electoral majority.

Each state gets a number of electors equal to its number of senators and Congressmen. In some states, the competing electors are named individually on the ballot, while in others they are named as "electors for Carter," or "electors for Ford."

Every state except Maine chooses the electors on a winner-take-all basis. In Maine, a 3-1 split is possible since each of the two Congressional district electors are decided within those districts, while the two at-large candidates are elected statewide.

The states of electors who win Tuesday will convene at their respective state capitals on Dec. 13 to cast their ballots for president and vice president.

For a duck on the Red Cedar River, cold feet must be one of the first signs of the oncoming winter.

Nothing but goose eggs

"Five minutes to the start of the Turkey Trot, five minutes." Steve Davis and I had already planned our Thanksgiving dinner. "Runners, you have just three minutes until the start."

We were going to have mashed potatoes, squash, cranberries, pumpkin pie with whipped cream and, of course, that traditional bird.

"Runners, take your mark."

We were to buy the vegetables, Steve's girlfriend was going to bake the pie and as for that main Thanksgiving dish... well, we were going to win it in the Men's Intramural Turkey Trot.

"Get set."

"Hey, isn't that Herb Lindsay over there?"

"Don't worry," I said to Steve, "he's not eligible to run in this."

"Oh, that's too bad. I was looking forward to some stiff competition."

"Go!"

The command sent over 100 students of both sexes in a chaotic scramble across Old College Field along the banks of the Red Cedar River. Like a herd of wild buffalo, we stampeded toward the practice green in the first leg of the 1.5-mile course.

The strategy Steve and I so cleverly devised one night at Lizard's was to jump out in front of the pack and hold the lead for the entire race.

We were caught tying our shoes during the starting command, however, and were in the middle of the field after rounding the practice green and by the time we had reached the baseball stands, we were battling it out with two girls, a 73-year-old man and the intramural officials for last place.

What started out as dreams of a 25-pound turkey roasting in the oven on Nov. 25 quickly turned into visions of a Swanson TV dinner with the foil peeled back.

"You know," Steve said as we climbed over the top of one hurdle and then crawled under the next, "I think we should have trained a little longer than four days."

It is a tradition that the winners of the race, Jeff Washburn in the individual division and Ed Griffes and the Mid-Michigan Track Club in the team category, donate the five 25-pound birds to some nonprofit organization or charity group in the local area.

It is also traditional that the last-place runner and team be awarded a goose egg for their effort.

Should we fry it, Steve, or scramble it on Thanksgiving?

Hannon leads new secondary

By TOM SHANAHAN
State News Sports Writer
Tom Hannon isn't as lonely as MSU's defensive backfield as he used to be. Hannon was MSU's only experienced defensive back to return after Mike Imhoff and Tom Graves went down with knee injuries and Joe Hunt was suspended by the NCAA. Now Hannon and his new defensive backfield teammates Ken Jones, Dave Duda and Jerome Stanton are becoming just as familiar with each other.

"At first it made a big difference," Hannon said about the difference between this season and last. "Tommy (Graves), Jo Jo (Hunt) and Mike (Imhoff) all knew what to expect and we used to gamble and cover up for each other. So now I have to be more cautious," he said. "It's hard to compare them because this is the first year we've played together."

Hannon said, pointing out that he had played with the others a couple years more.

Hannon was picked as MSU's defensive player of the week as was tight end Mike Cobb on offense.

The 6-foot 188-pound strong safety from Massillon, Ohio, has the unusual statistic for a defensive back of being second on the team in total tackles with 76. In addition he has nine touchdown-saving tackles.

"That's what he's there for — to make game-saving tackles," MSU coach Darryl Rogers said. "I don't particularly like my safety being the second leading tackler, but if he is, you want him to be someone like Tom," he added.

"He is able to play man-to-man or zone coverage and is the leader of our secondary," Rogers said.

Despite the increased tackling, Hannon doesn't feel any more beat-up physically. Last year in one game, after knee injuries knocked several starters out of the line-up, Hannon incredibly was called on to blitz 20 times against Purdue.

Early in the season, Hannon was in a lot of one-on-one situations as he was the last man to defend several long runs that occurred.

"It's a challenge to me because if it's one-on-one we got the whole field to open on. It tells me what kind of athlete I am," he said.

Hannon said much of the improved defensive play has come from time and working against a passing offense more in practice this year than previous seasons.

"We get more practice against passes in practice than in a whole season so it makes a better defensive back," he said.

MSUINGS: Tony Bragg, right tackle, is scheduled to undergo surgery today on his knee after tearing cartilage Saturday. He will be replaced in the line-up by 6-foot-4 3/4 pound senior John Maloney from Vancouver, B.C. On a more positive injury note, backer Paul Rudzinski will return to the team Saturday. Tom Graves' knee surgery is reported to be progressing satisfactorily. Graves had his removed and will have a brace put on.

Stick team ready for Chippewas

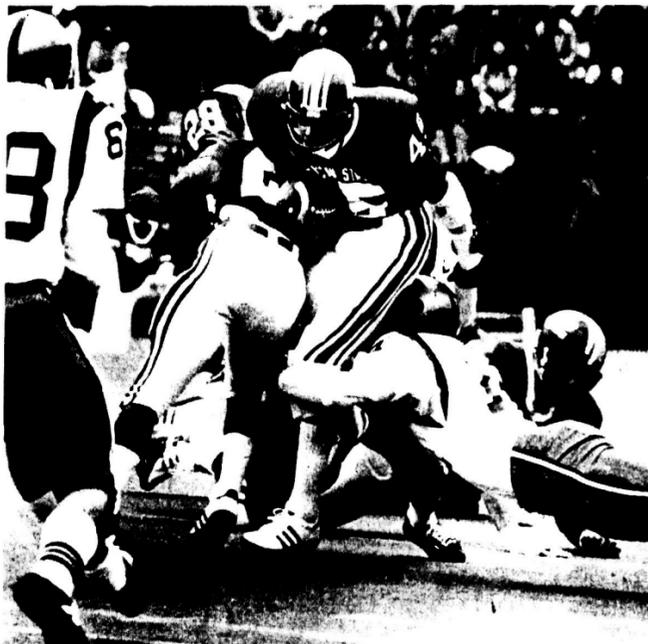

The women's field hockey team will be out for revenge today, as the Spartans face Central Michigan University at Mount Pleasant.

The Chippewas beat MSU earlier this season 2-1. And last season, the Spartans were knocked out of the State of Michigan Assn. of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (SMAIAW) championships by CMU.

The 1976 SMAIAW meet will be held this weekend at Adrian, and the Spartans will take a 9-2 record into that contest. Seven of those wins have been shut-outs, and both of the losses were by one point only.

MSU has seen strong scoring all season from sophomores Pati Lawson and Nancy Lyons, and from junior Kathy Eritano.

The meet with CMU today will mark the end of the Spartans' regular season for 1976.

Defensive Spartan of the Week Tom Hannon returns this punt in Saturday's 45-13 win over Purdue. Hannon turned in another sterling performance from his safety position and recorded 10 tackles.

Cagers seeking 'Spartan Spirit'

By SUE STEWARD
State News Staff Writer
Students are being given the chance to purchase a "bargain basement opportunity" of tickets for the upcoming basketball season.

In an effort to "put a shot in the arm" of a basketball program which "hasn't had thousands of students involved," Joe Kearney, athletic director, is spearheading an effort to increase student enthusiasm towards the Spartan cage program.

Kearney and the basketball staff will be appearing at sororities, fraternities and dormitories during the next several weeks to talk to residents about the upcoming season and to offer the opportunity to purchase tickets at a reduced rate.

For $10, students will be able to purchase a season ticket which is good for all 14 home games, including nine Big 10 games and five nonconference clashes, Kearney said. Student admission to the games without the special deal is $2 per game.

During their visits, the basketball staff will also be promoting student interest, involvement, enthusiasm and attendance at basketball games, Jud Heathcote, head basketball coach, said.

"If we are going to revitalize the basketball program the first people we have to involve are the students," Heathcote said. "We want to make basketball games a happening rather than just a spectator's delight." Heathcote said during their visits the staff will be trying to organize a group of 100 to 150 hard-core enthusiasts who will be known as "Spartan Spirits."

The Spartan Spirits will serve as catalysts for more enthusiastic fans. "An enthusiastic student group really adds to the game, and it helps to get faculty and staff involved," Heathcote said.

Members for the Spartan Spirit groups will be recruited by the basketball staff during their visits to the various residence areas.

The schedule for basketball staff appearances is: Tuesday: Hubbard Hall, north main lounge, 7:30 p.m., Joe Kearney; West Fee Hall, main lounge, 9 p.m., Kearney; Wednesday: Campbell Hall, south lounge, 9 p.m., Jud Heathcote; Thursday: Mason and Abbott halls, study lounge, 7:30 p.m., Heathcote; Wilson Hall, west lounge, 7:30 p.m., Kearney; and McDonel Hall kiva, 9 p.m., Heathcote.

With rent control, everyone loses.

RENTERS LOSE
Property services will decrease for lack of operating income to the apartment owner. City services will also decrease. No new housing will be built in a rent control atmosphere. Many houses now rented will be withdrawn from the market. Many apartments will be converted to condominiums while others will be occupied by long term residents from the outlying areas of East Lansing. The available supply of rental housing will diminish!

HOME OWNERS LOSE
You will pay higher taxes! Taxes normally paid by apartments will be lowered and the home owner will make up the difference. Experience shows that your increase could be as much as 70% in only three years.

School funds and city services are derived from your tax dollars. Without the apartments paying their fair share, the tax burden will fall heavily on the rest of us. Your property will decrease in value since few people will want to move to an area with such repressive taxes. Your property values will further decrease due to a blighted apartment community.

EAST LANSING LOSES
Rent controls have historically blighted housing! New York, Paris and Cambridge, Massachusetts are classic examples of the ill aspects of rent controls. Save East Lansing from being another loser community! Vote NO on rent control!

A career in law—without law school.

What can you do with only a bachelor's degree? Now there is a way to bridge the gap between an undergraduate education and a challenging, responsible career. The Lawyer's Assistant is able to do work traditionally done by lawyers.

Three months of intensive training can give you the skills—the courses are taught by lawyers. You choose one of the seven courses offered—choose the city in which you want to work.

Since 1970, The Institute for Paralegal Training has placed more than 1600 graduates in law firms, banks, and corporations in over 75 cities.

If you are a senior of high academic standing and are interested in a career as a Lawyer's Assistant, we'd like to meet you.

Contact your placement office for an interview with our representative.

We will visit your campus on TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 9 and WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 10

Number of GOP governors may rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — The fraternity of GOP governors has a chance to expand today for the first time since becoming virtually an endangered species in 1970. And so has the sorority of Democratic women governors, now numbering one.

There is no way, politically or mathematically, that the Republicans can regain their late 1960s dominance of executive mansions. The field is too sparse, with only 14 contests for governorships now held by eight Democrats and six Republicans.

Here is the outlook for today based on public opinion polls and reports from the Associated Press bureaus in each state.

The Republicans are expected to win the biggest prize, Illinois.

Democratic women candidates in Washington and Vermont are even with their republican male opponents in the pre-election rankings. The country now has only one woman governor, Connecticut's Ella Grasso, a Democrat whose term has two more years to run.

Most states elect governors in nonpresidential years and Illinois' election is for a single two-year term in order to resume a four-year cycle in 1978.

Before the 1970 election, 32 states had Republican governors. But Democrats gained 11 in 1970 to make the tally 21-29. In each of the next three years the GOP lost one more governor; then five in 1974.

Going into today's election, 36 governors are Democrats, 13 are Republicans and there is one independent, Maine's James B. Longley. Seven incumbents are standing for reelection.

Republicans are pre-election favorites to win in Illinois, Delaware and Utah, and are rated toss-ups in Montana and Vermont, all states with Democratic governors.

The flip side of that coin has Democrats favored in North Carolina and West Virginia, and rated even in New Hampshire and Washington — all with Republican governors.

The governorships of Arkansas, North Dakota and Rhode Island are expected to remain in Democratic hands. And Republicans are favored to hold onto Indiana and Missouri.

If the pre-election favorites do win and the two parties split the four toss-up races, the Republicans would emerge with the net gain of one governorship.

Even if the candidates were known outside of their own state borders — and a few are — a natural focus of attention would be the race in Illinois where the candidate of a big-city organization is the underdog to a crusading prosecutor.

That movie-script contest pits Democrat Michael J. Howlett, the secretary of state and protégé of Chicago's Mayor Richard J. Daley, against Republican James R. Thompson, a former U.S. attorney in Chicago who sent a number of Daley cronies to jail.

As Daley's candidate, Howlett removed a long-time Daley nemesis by defeating incumbent Gov. Daniel Walker in a bitterly contested primary. But Walker tagged him as the mayor's stooge. Howlett's insistence that he is his own man has done little to alter that image.

Thompson, 40, has led in the polls and doesn't let voters forget who propelled Howlett, at 62, a veteran of Illinois Democratic politics.

"When Mr. Daley plays the drum, Mr. Howlett puts on his cap, salutes, and starts down Route 66 on the way to Springfield," Thompson said.

Among the incumbents running today are Missouri's Christopher S. Bond and Indiana's Otis R. Bowen, both Republicans and both favored for reelection. So are Arkansas' David Pryor and North Dakota's Arthur A. Link, Democrats.

In Delaware, Republican Rep. Pierre S. duPont is considered ahead of Democratic Gov. Sherman W. Tribbitt.

New Hampshire, incumbent Republican Meldrim Thompson is running against Harry T. Spanos in a race considered a tossup.

Applicants sought for at-large seats

Any nonwhite male or female undergraduate student interested in applying for the at-large student representative position on the Academic Council should pick up an application Monday through Friday in 10 Linton Hall.

The application must be returned by Friday. The applicant selected to fill the at-large representative seat will also be appointed to the University Committee on Student Affairs.

Bob Greene's WORLD of JELLY ROLL MORGAN

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 3 — 8:15 P.M.

Jelly Roll claimed he invented jazz. It sounds boastful, but his claim has some merit. He was the genius who took ragtime and made it hot—like "Tiger Rag" and "Steamboat Stomp." In a charming tribute telling Jelly Roll's story, Bob Greene and his band catch the flavor of the 1920's and make the music come alive.

RECEIVES $20,000 FROM HEW MSU gets federal grant

OXANNE BROWN, News Staff Writer, received $20,000 in recently allocated by the Education and Welfare Federal Dept. of Education grants go to 774 and universities out of the 50 states, the of Columbia and Puerto Rico totaling over $7.5 million. Michigan schools received $20,000 in grants authorized Title VI-A of the Education Act of 1965. The states that the grants are used for improving graduate instruction, but the courses can use the grants if they are used by undergraduates.

Dr. Haberman will speak on the controversial DNA experiments at the Undergrad Microbiology Club meeting, 7 p.m. Nov. 9 in 101 Gilmer. Nonmajors welcome!

The TV and Radio Dept., the Natural Science Dept. and to various divisions of the Instructional Media Dept. More than half of the grant will go to the Instructional Media Dept. According to Rose Keating of instructional media, equipment and materials purchased by the media center will be beneficial to the University as a whole because of the vast amount of visual and audio aids used in instruction.

TO BEGIN IN DECEMBER Board adds essay tests

By SEAN HICKEY
State News Staff Writer

The College Entrance Examination Board (CEEB) is adding two permanent tests of writing to its examination program for college-bound students.

One addition, which starts this December, will be a 20-minute essay section, to be administered as part of the English composition achievement test. The English composition examination is currently made up entirely of short-answer, objective questions.

The second change, coming in October 1977, will be the permanent adoption of the college board's experimental Test of Standard English Writing.

The test, a 40-minute short-answer, objective exam, has been tested for three years as an addition to the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT).

Sidney Marland, president of the college board, said the new changes "reflect a serious concern on the part of the college board to membership over the perceptible deterioration of writing ability among the young."

Marland said the tests were added to create an impartial and standardized means of assessing the skills of applicants.

Bernard Engel, director of the American Thought and Language Dept., said the test would only be able to give a very general estimate of a student's writing ability.

"I'm a little bit suspicious of using one sample to judge a person's writing ability. It hardly seems adequate to come up with a real judgment over just 20 minutes," Engel said.

Engel said the essay test would probably be able to measure only the student's ability at writing sentence structure.

"They should really give the students at least 45 minutes to an hour for any real basis for judgment. Of course, it's better than no test at all," Engel said.

Though Marland said the new tests were created to show a concern of the college board over deterioration of writing ability among the young, Engel said that students at MSU have raised their writing abilities over the past years.

"I don't really know what national patterns have been, but students at MSU write better than they did 20 years ago when I first came here," Engel said.

The essay portion of the English composition test will be graded centrally by high school and college instructors at a special session to be conducted once a year by the Educational Testing Service of Princeton, N.J.

At first the essay portion will be offered only during the December administration of the English composition test. If it proves popular, it will be given on other test dates.

The test of standard written English was added to the SAT in 1974 as a 30-minute test comprising 50 objective questions on English usage and sentence construction. It was used experimentally for three years to help place students in proper courses.

The college board decided to use this experimental short-answer test of standard written English after studies indicated a high correlation between scores on the test and students' writing ability in college courses.

Energy conservation encouraged by governor during November

By ANN BUGGE

With gasoline prices continuing their upward climb, a 25 per cent increase expected in the price of natural gas and a cold winter ahead, Gov. Milliken has declared November "Energy Month" in Michigan.

During November, the Energy Administration of the Michigan Dept. of Commerce will disseminate information on Michigan's and the nation's energy situation to encourage conservation.

"Energywise, we're worse off now than we were in 1973," said Michael Dively, director of the Energy Administration.

Three years ago, the Arab oil embargo set off a chain of events that resulted in a five-fold price increase and cost the nation more than 500,000 jobs and $10 billion in production, according to Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

"The embargo hit Michigan particularly hard and since that time we have not moved to protect ourselves from the consequences if the same thing should happen again," Milliken said.

"In 1973," recalled Dively, "33 per cent of the national oil supply was imported. Now we import over 40 per cent of our total petroleum supply."

"The Arab countries involved in the embargo supplied about 11 per cent of our oil in 1973. They now supply 18 per cent of our demand," Dively continued.

According to Robert Waldron, executive director of the Associated Petroleum Industries of Michigan, the OPEC (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) nations have a greater impact on our lives than people are willing to admit.

The nation's dependence on petroleum imports could have serious implications for Michigan should another embargo or curtailment occur. Michigan currently depends on other states and countries to supply 90 per cent of its petroleum needs, according to Energy Administration figures.

For the last two years Michigan's energy consumption has been depressed because of decreased economic activity and because of two exceptionally mild winters.

"Now Michigan's demand is increasing and we're consuming energy at an unprecedented rate," Dively said.

Compounding the difficulties that could be caused by Michigan's scarce energy resources is the fact that the state's three most important economic sectors — manufacturing, tourism and agriculture — are vitally dependent upon a reliable, steady supply of fuel.

"We have no choice but to launch a major effort to eliminate wasteful energy consumption in all sectors of the Michigan economy," Dively said.

"The longer we wait to do something about our energy situation, the greater impact the nation's energy shortage will have on people's lives and the Michigan economy," he added.

Statistics from the Federal Energy Administration (FEA) show that approximately one-third to one-half of this country's energy is wasted.

Accordingly, FEA has launched a program offering federal grants to state governments that undertake plans to cut their projected 1980 energy consumption by 5 per cent.

"The public should know that we can't turn on a spigot and get oil," Waldron said.

"I think once the public knows what kind of energy situation we face, and what our potential energy supply is, they'll be willing to conserve," he continued.

Waldron pointed out that as energy becomes more scarce, the price will rise, thereby offering added inducement for people to conserve energy.

"Just recently, we learned that there will be a price increase averaging over 25 per cent in our natural gas for this winter," Dively said.

Most of the natural gas imported into Michigan is used to heat homes. Because of the domestic natural gas shortage, some customers, like MSU, have been cut from service by the utility companies. MSU now burns coal instead of natural gas.

American activities in Chile main topic of meeting tonight

There is something else to do on election night besides watching the returns. A presentation on the history of United States' intervention in Chile will be made at 8:30 tonight in 331 Union.

It is sponsored by the Committee for Justice in Chile — NICH (Non-Intervention in Chile), a student group of about 10 members.

The evening will begin with a slide show on the labor history in Chile and the history of U.S. intervention. Following the slides, William Barclay, asst. professor in James Madison College, will speak on U.S. interests in the copper industry in Chile. There will also be a speaker talking on imperialism in Latin America, followed by a discussion.

The group formed in 1973, following the CIA-supported coup of Salvador Allende Gossens, the legally elected head of the Marxist government, in September of that year. Last year, the committee merged with the national group, NICH. The focus of the committee is the protest of U.S. support to the current Chilean government.

The committee gives a presentation on some aspect of Chile on the first Tuesday of each month.

tomorrow," Korth said. "Realistically, we need more signed cards that would call for a collective bargaining election."

Keith Groty, executive vice president for personnel and employe relations, said job security is a major issue in labor agreements and that within the faculty the issue revolved around tenured and nontenured faculty. "Many universities do not use temporary appointments as much as we do here," Groty said. Temporary appointments are a buffer that protects tenured faculty, in that if cutbacks occur, the buffer group is the first to go."

Korth said that the Administration is in the process of drawing up a contract that would allow for tenured faculty to be fired in the case of financial emergency. "The Administration is better prepared for collective bargaining than we are," Korth said.

UFW asks for students

Did you know that pesticide poisoning kills 800 farmworkers each year? The death rate for farmworkers from tuberculosis and other infectious diseases is 260 per cent higher than the national average and the average life expectancy for farmworkers is 49 years as compared to 72 years for others.

Individuals wishing to support the United Farm Workers (UFW) in their attempt to change their working conditions are invited to attend a local organizational meeting Nov. 9 at St. John's Student Center, 327 M.A.C. Ave. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. David Super, local coordinator for the UFW, said he thinks people are uninformed on UFW activities and the purpose of the Gallo products boycott. The meeting, Super said, is being held to organize supporters for the UFW and to inform people of the conditions that face farmworkers.

Pioneer female dies in 'Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco pioneer Winifred Wobber died in her Nob Hill apartment last weekend, and the hearse driver told Joseph the doorman not to worry, the body would be taken out the back way.

Not so, said Joseph, tears in his eyes. "She came out of this front door every day for 47 years, and she leaves this way." He stood at attention as the lady made her final exit.
