U.N. council favors Vietnam admission

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Security Council unanimously recommended for U.N. membership Wednesday the Vietnamese representative in the United States not to "shirk" on reconstruction aid.

The council decision cleared the way for the General Assembly to admit Vietnam in October along with newly independent Laos, boosting U.N. membership to 149.

American U.N. observer Dinh Ba Thi said speakers who, as he put it, had "shouldered" the responsibilities and contribute to the wounds of war and to postwar reconstruction of Vietnam.

The U.S. veto to Vietnam membership climaxed 23 years of American opposition to the Vietnamese Communists who came to power in 1954, when President Dwight D. Eisenhower first sent military advisers to help the anti-Communist South. The war that eventually followed ended with a cease-fire agreement signed in Paris in 1973.

Two Vietnams applied for U.N. membership in July 1975 after the North overtook the South. The United States vetoed both applications twice, the second time in the face of a General Assembly appeal that it reconsider its position.

The United States said it vetoed the two Vietnams because the council had refused to consider a membership application from South Korea.

Unified in 1976, Vietnam then filed a single application for membership. Last

Nov. 15, the United States vetoed that on grounds Vietnam had failed to account for almost 2,000 American missing in action.

At American-Vietnamese talks in Paris last May, the United States announced that it would no longer oppose Vietnam's membership in the United Nations because Vietnam had begun to account for the missing.

Strip mining bill OK'd by House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress Thursday sent to President Jimmy Carter for expected quick approval a strip mining bill designed to assure reclamation of land damaged by coal removal.

The House took the final action, approving by a 325 to 68 vote, a compromise measure which already had passed the Senate.

Passage of the bill marked the end of six years of legislative struggles over the issue. Twice before, Congress passed strip mining legislation only to have it vetoed. However, Carter has said he will sign the measure.

The main provision of the bill sets strict reclamation standards for some 60 per cent of the nation's coal areas.

It requires mine owners to restore land from which coal has been removed to its original contours and imposes a tax up to 35 cents a ton on coal to pay for reclaiming land injured in the past by strip mining.

Certain small operation strip mining operators are given until January 1979 to meet the new standards.

Chairman Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., of the House Interior Committee recommended the measure as a sound bill and said, "I hope it will end a legislative action that has been before us for six long years."

But Rep. Robert E. Bauman, R-Md., termed the measure "totally disastrous legislation."

He said it was likely to destroy many small mining businesses, invade states rights, inspire litigation, increase the cost of electricity and reduce needed coal production.

Proponents argue that strip mining regulations have been in effect already in some areas without having such pernicious effects.

Fire, smoke hit downtown tower

TROIT (UPI) — A fire that may have been caused by careless smoking struck a construction storage area beneath an unfinished office tower Thursday in the city's new, million Renaissance Center.

Occupied portions of the riverfront complex, including the 73-floor showpiece Detroit Hotel, were not affected by the three-alarm blaze.

Plumes of smoke seeped into the hotel lobby and elevator shafts from concourses linking the office towers, but guests were not evacuated.

Secretaries attending a national convention joked about the movie, "Towering Inferno," on the way to breakfast.

Two firemen were injured, one of them overcome by smoke inhalation and the other by a battering ram as holes were punched through a cinder block wall to get at the source of the blaze.

"It was just like a steam bath in there," one fireman said of the 100 by 100 foot storage area for construction materials and wood paneling.

"Our boys took quite a beating from the smoke," said Fire Marshal Donald Robinson. Robinson declined to speculate on the cause of the blaze, but there were reports that careless smoking may have been to blame.

Available fire equipment in the downtown area was rushed to the scene. About 80 men fought the blaze for more than three hours.

Officials said the unusual response was a precautionary measure developed by the fire department for just such an emergency in the towering complex.

Death toll hits 45 in Johnstown flood

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — The death toll from Johnstown's third major flood in less than 90 years reached at least 45 Thursday as repair and cleanup crews made their way through thick mud and debris into flood-scarred valleys.

In addition to the dead, an estimated 50,000 were displaced from their homes after rain-choked streams became rampaging torrents Wednesday along a 70-mile stretch of the Conemaugh River Valley.

"We're expecting more bodies. We're

Jaworski promises prosecution of any crimes in Korean probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski, hired to direct the House investigation of alleged Korean influence-buying, said Thursday that he'll recommend prosecution of any wrongdoing no matter who is hurt.

"If I find a crook involved in this matter, I want to bring him out and I want the public to know about it," Jaworski told a news conference in Houston.

"It will make no difference to me who is involved in this matter, be they Republicans or Democrats," he said.

Meanwhile, the House ethics committee voted to hire Jaworski as chief investigator of the probe and guaranteed him "full and complete independence." That written promise was contained in a "Memorandum of Understanding" approved by the committee.

Jaworski succeeded Philip A. Lacovara, who quit the job last week in a dispute with Rep. John A. Flynt, D-Ga., chairperson of the panel.

Flynt said he expects committee hearings, possibly public, to begin in September on schedule.

Libyan forces invade Egypt, reports say

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Libyan forces invaded western Egypt with tanks and planes Thursday but were repelled in a major desert battle near the border village of Salum, Egypt reported. Libya called the report a "lie" and said Egypt was the invader.

"The Egyptian force was able to destroy 40 tanks and 90 Libyan army trucks, to take 12 military prisoners from the 9th Libyan armored division as well as 30 saboteurs," Cairo radio said.

It said the Egyptian air force shot down two Libyan planes. Egypt said no Egyptian soldiers were killed, but several were wounded and one truck was lost.

Libya claimed Egyptian forces had crossed into its territory and Egyptian planes had bombed a village.

An Egyptian military spokesman said, "There has been fighting but we have not declared war."

The battle followed a series of incidents along the border between the two North African Arab nations, which once talked of union but have become increasingly hostile since a bitter policy disagreement at the time of the 1973 Middle East war.

17 KILLED IN BORDER CLASH Thais battle Cambodians

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Thai forces broke off a running battle with 300 black-clad Communist Cambodian soldiers and withdrew to a nearby town late Thursday following a bloody border clash that left at least 17 Thai soldiers reported killed.

Thailand had sent helicopter gunships, artillery and armored vehicles to support its forces.

Some 50 Thai troops and police were reported wounded in the fighting 140 miles east of Bangkok. Cambodian casualties were not known but Thai border police claimed they suffered "heavy" losses.

By nightfall, gunfire had ceased as the small Thai force joined by border police withdrew six miles to the district town of Aranyaprathet, officials at police headquarters reported here.

Thursday's clash began more than 24 hours earlier at the remote border village of Noi Parai. Cambodian and Thai patrols exchanged gunfire and fighting quickly escalated.

"Our soldiers were on a routine patrol and accidentally met with Cambodian soldiers. Fighting erupted and reinforcements were requested," Thai Army Lt. Col. Prachak Sawangchit told reporters.

"This is a clash between the soldiers of two governments."

The only civilians reported injured were three Thai journalists wounded by shrapnel.

Thailand's right-wing government claimed that Khmer soldiers, dressed in baggy black uniforms and yellow caps, pushed across the border and initiated the attack. But Cambodia's Communist leaders maintained that the village is in Cambodian territory.

Most observers say the 500-mile Thai-Cambodian frontier is poorly demarcated. The battleground was near the site of a Cambodian raid last January in which 30 civilians, many of them women and children, were killed.

Cambodia, taken over by the communist Khmer Rouge in the closing days of the war in 1975, has virtually isolated itself from the rest of the region.

At the center of the Thai-Cambodian dispute are quarrels over trading across the border and Thailand's claims of outright aggression by its neighbor.

During a brief period of eased tensions, liaison offices were set up by both countries at Aranyaprathet to facilitate trade and other matters. But they became inactive as border tension increased.

In recent months, the Thai government has reinforced its troops in the Aranyaprathet area and at other points along the border. Patrol police, numbering 90,000 nationwide, form a permanent border protection service for Thailand.

Moves to clearly demarcate the border have failed. Cambodians have tried to seal off stretches with land mines and booby traps, apparently to keep more than 10,000 refugees living in border camps from fleeing into Thailand.

President sees solid relations as policy goal

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — President Jimmy Carter again pledged himself Thursday to a long-range quest for solid relations between America and the Soviet Union saying his goal is not for easy or transient agreements but "solutions that are meaningful, balanced and lasting."

In a speech clearly aimed as much at Soviet and other world leaders as his immediate audience of southern legislators, the President called for "a relationship of cooperation that will be rooted in the national interests of both" countries.

And while "we must always combine realism with principle" toward that end, Carter said, "our actions must be faithful to the essential values to which our society is dedicated."

The address broke no new hard proposals for U.S.-Soviet relations, but it obviously was designed to signal the Russians that the U.S. government is concerned about the recent spate of bitter exchanges — as well as to assure Western allies that America has a long-term strategy for dealing with the Communist giant.

Carter's speech to the Southern Legislative Conference kicked off a two-day working swing through the South that also would take him to a citizens meeting in Yazoo City, Miss., before the day was out.

The President was greeted at the Charleston municipal airport by a crowd numbering in the thousands. He spent several minutes shaking hands despite the 100-degree heat.

In his prepared speech, Carter again insisted that Soviet leaders should not take personal offense at his tough stand on human rights issues.

"There are no hidden meanings in our commitment to human rights," he said. "Our policy is exactly what it appears to be: the positive and sincere expression of our deepest beliefs as a people."

"It is addressed not to a particular people or area of the world, but to all countries equally, including our own," President said.

Carter noted that his leaders have made recent "positive comments" about proposals for arms limitation and human rights.

"If these comments are based on a misconception of motives, we will redouble our efforts to make them clear," President said.

"But if they are based on a genuine desire to pressure us, let me say that we will persevere."

Carter, Begin finish up talks in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israel Prime Minister Menachem Begin Thursday wound up talks with the Carter Administration with a tentative agreement for a Middle East peace treaty.

Begin and President Jimmy Carter agreed to Arab talks in Geneva in October. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance will leave for the East on Aug. 1 to seek Jordanian and Syrian approval for the Geneva conference.

At the same time, sources disclosed that the Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan is expected to visit Washington in September during the General Assembly session in New York.

Begin met with group senators and congressmen Thursday shortly before he flew to New York to visit headquarters and confer with Jewish leaders.

Madrid police quell prisoners' mutiny

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Riot police blasted about 500 rebel convicts with a five-hour barrage of smoke grenades and rubber bullets Thursday, then burst into cellblocks at Madrid's Carabanchel prison and crushed the prisoners' four-day rooftop mutiny.

The news agency Europa Press reported several inmates were injured in the final police assault. Police gave no figures.

The revolt, demanding amnesty and better conditions, spread to 15 other prisons around Spain and threatened to take the luster off King Juan Carlos' address Friday to the country's first freely elected parliament since the Spanish civil war.

The Carabanchel inmates took to the prison roofs on Monday, saying they would not give up until Premier Adolfo Suarez or a top aide came to hear their demands.

Labor leaders arrested in Peru

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Scores of labor leaders were reported arrested Wednesday in the wake of a 24-hour general strike and rioting that authorities said killed at least six persons in the Peruvian capital.

The strike was called Tuesday by the unions to protest government price increases. It ended Wednesday as thousands of workers returned to their jobs in factories and stores around Lima. Buses and trains resumed service.

The stoppage had closed an estimated 80 per cent of Lima's stores and virtually halted public transportation. Buses were set ablaze, youths hurled rocks and blocked off intersections and police counterattacked with tear gas and shots while army helicopters hovered overhead.

Israelis protest price increases

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — An estimated half-million Israelis stopped work for an hour Thursday, protesting what they called an unfair gap between government-decreed price increases and cost-of-living pay raises calculated by the government.

Normal work was interrupted from 10 to 11 a.m. at factories, banks, post offices and other enterprises. Only transport, hospital and other essential workers were exempt from the stoppage called by the national labor federation, the Histadrut.

About 95 per cent of Israel's work force belongs to the federation, which exercised considerable political clout under the nation's previous Labor governments but has seen its influence diminish in the new Likud government of Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

Conferees agree to fund water projects

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate and House conferees agreed Wednesday to finance a limited number of controversial water projects and drop funds for the Clinch River breeder reactor, an effort designed to adopt a public works appropriation bill acceptable to President Jimmy Carter.

In announcing the action, Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairperson of the conference committee, said he understood that Carter had told House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill that he would sign a bill that reduced the number of water projects and also dropped funds for the Clinch River reactor.

The conferees agreed to accept the Senate version which killed nine of the 18 disputed water projects and cut the amount of money approved by the House for 12 other projects.

The conferees also dropped $75 million approved by the Senate for the Clinch River nuclear reactor project in Tennessee.

GNP surpasses administration's hopes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's economy expanded at an annual rate of 6.4 per cent in the last three months, surpassing the administration's expectations for the second quarter in a row, the government reported Thursday.

The Commerce Department said the main reasons for the big second quarter increase in the Gross National Product were strong rises in total sales and inventory buildups.

The report revised the increase in the first-quarter GNP from an annual increase of 6.9 per cent, reported last month, to a new figure of 7.5 per cent.

Prices, as measured by the GNP, rose at an annual rate of 6.7 per cent in the second quarter, compared to 6.9 per cent in the first quarter.

Two men arrested for spying

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Two men accused for aiding Soviet bloc spies planned to use a cabin cruiser to smuggle components of the top-secret U.S. cruise missile to Soviet agents in Cuba within the next two weeks, the FBI says.

Carl Weischenberg, 33, a West German who officials said is awaiting trial in his own country on charges of high treason, and Carl John Heiser, 32, of Highland Beach, Fla., were arrested Wednesday at the Fort Lauderdale-Hollywood International Airport. Officials said Weischenberg was preparing to board a plane for Freeport, in the Bahama, where he has been living.

They were formally charged with "acting as agents of East Germany and the Soviet Union without prior notification to the secretary of state," a charge less severe than espionage because the government wants to expedite the case, a knowledgeable source said.

Demand for electricity jumps; over 46 billion kilowatts used

NEW YORK (AP) — The growth rate in electricity usage so far this year has returned to high, pre-Arab oil embargo levels, and officials said Thursday that power reserves for much of the country will be inadequate within the next decade. The Edison Electric Institute, and industry group that collects statistics on electricity usage around the country, says in a report to be released today that power output in the first half of this year has grown by 6.7 per cent. The institute also reported that power was produced at a record rate last week. The extremely hot weather and resultant demand for air conditioning resulted in 46.4 billion kilowatt hours being produced,

Barry appoints ASMSU aides

MICHAEL WINTER
State News Staff Writer

ASMSU President Kent L. Barry has announced the appointment of three students to the newly created positions in the office of ASMSU.

Barry, a 22-year-old senior majoring in economics education, was appointed to the post of Vice-President of University Affairs.

Green Carroll, a 22-year-old senior majoring in economics education, was appointed to the post of Vice-President of Student Affairs.

Barry said the major purpose of her newly created position is to assist Barry with his many duties, help him handle business affairs and act as a representative for him in his absence.

James Haischer, a 21-year-old finance major who will be graduating at the end of fall term, was appointed Vice-President for Administrative Affairs.

Haischer has worked as assistant comptroller for ASMSU and was comptroller from spring 1976 until the end of winter term 1977.

Haischer said his duties as one of Barry's executive assistants involve taking care of "red tape", helping Barry with his work, overseeing the various ASMSU cabinets, filling in when Barry is away and acting as direct liaison between ASMSU and the MSU Board of Trustees.

"Basically, there's too much work for the president," he said.

He added that the new set-up is a "vast improvement" in the president's office over previous years.

Both Barry and Haischer said they did not know that Haischer would be graduating fall term and they are now in the process of selecting Haischer's successor.

Haischer claimed there had been some confusion with the Registrar's office concerning the number of credits needed to graduate.

"You know how that goes," he said.

NEW DIRECTOR SETS GOALS

Aware doctors sought

High on the priorities list for Dr. John D. Siddall, newly appointed medical director of the University Health Center, will be recruiting staff physicians who are sensitive to the needs of the age group the health center serves.

"I plan to recruit physicians interested in student health, and not those ready to retire," he said Thursday.

Siddall held the post of acting medical director since last July. The trustees appointed him to the position at their Thursday night meeting.

Last year, Siddall initiated a new concept in patient care at the health center — a "doctors' clinic" on the third floor designed to give patients greater personalized treatment.

"We feel we've seen more patients this way," he said.

Siddall said he felt that the experiment was a success in several ways, including decreasing student waiting time.

He also increased service in the Gynecology Clinic from three to five mornings a week and hired a nurse-specialist to assist women with contraception and family planning.

He hopes to similarly increase the scope and efficiency of other health center-provided services.

"If a student has a complaint, I'd like to hear it," he said, citing the lack of communication between student/patient and nurse or physician as the reason for most complaints.

The "Open Door Policy" is more than a vaguely remembered phrase from high school history class for Siddall.

By his own admission and that of other health center employees, he does indeed keep his door open, and encourages discussion with the students who have taken him at his word and walked right in with complaints, compliments and consultation requests.

Siddall said he will not cease seeing patients in favor of administrative busy-work.

"Keeping an active practice is important to what's going on (at the health center)," he said.

E.L. officials resentful over transfer of funds

East Lansing officials are still aghast after having a recent $3.3 million federal grant trimmed and the money given to Meridian and Williamstown townships.

"We had a brief meeting where we discussed that we didn't like the cuts at all," Coffman said.

After a meeting Wednesday between City Manager Jerry Coffman and representatives of the East Lansing school district, no plans have been made as yet to chop about $627,000 from the original list of projects on which to spend the money.

He said the reasons for the government redistributing the money were still not clear. "We have such scattered bits of information," he said.

The East Lansing administrators sat down with glee in June to figure out how to spend the money before a July 12 deadline and came up with a new fire station, a school central service center, renovations to school athletic facilities, a solid waste transfer station and other projects.

But Wednesday the mood was different, Coffman said.

Coffman said the deadlines have been loosened because of the mixup and he is "not under any gun" to come up with a new list of projects and a new pricetag for them.

The money, plus some from other localities was shifted to the townships because they were left off the preliminary grant list by mistake, said a representative from the office of U.S. Rep. Bob Carr, D-East Lansing.

Meridian will get about $662,000 now and Williamstown is set to receive about $96,000.

Council members still undecided on sites for Citgo lot

By MICHAEL ROUSE
State News Staff Writer

Again the fate of the old Citgo station property was before East Lansing city council and once again the debate generated heat than light.

The property, comprising the Ann Street-Albert Avenue-C. Avenue triangle, has been sought after by a multitude of interests for over a year.

At the city council meeting Tuesday night, another set of proposals — a basketball court and a park — were added to the list of ideas for further study.

When the abandoned Citgo station was still standing, there were discussions for renovating it into an art center, a food co-op or a store.

The decaying building was finally torn down last summer, but the site has not been developed.

The land was the home of a sculpture in the annual sculpture contest and the most likely outcome was a park lot and an East Lansing State Bank office building.

Never, City Manager Jerry Coffman said the bank is no longer interested in the property.

The basketball court idea was submitted at the last council meeting and the city staff said the lot would have to be resurfaced if any basketball could be played there.

The cost of a basketball court was estimated at $4,700 and the tag on topsoil and grass seed was $3,600.

Councilmember Mary Sharp, who has dreamed of having a park fountain there, made a motion to go for the park alternative.

She received no support from the other three councilmembers present, she was rather perturbed.

"God-damn jocks," Sharp retorted.

Councilmember John Polomsky said he did not like the use and upkeep of a park. Mayor George Griffiths said "visitors to the city will think we have taken a leave of our senses by putting a basketball court in the middle of the city with the traffic."

The next request would be a fence to keep the basketballs out of the street, Griffiths said.

Daunted, Sharp made an impassioned plea to spend $2,000 to have the lot presentable because passive enjoyment of greenspace is important as active.

"It could be an oasis and it would show a commitment to the sort of downtown," Sharp said.

Again her motion failed and the council ended up doing nothing at the recommendation of Councilmember Larry Owen.

Metro squad snares 62 in mammoth drug bust

By STATE NEWS
and UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

LANSING (UPI) — Narcotics officers arrested at least 62 persons in the tri-county Lansing area Thursday in what police called the largest individual drug raid ever conducted in central Michigan.

Police said the arrests were the result of a massive investigation into heroin and cocaine trafficking in Eaton, Clinton and Ingham counties.

The Tri-County Metro Narcotics Squad secured 139 warrants for 75 suspects. At 6 a.m. Thursday morning, about 100 officers broke up into 20 teams and began arresting suspects.

As a result of the massive effort, about $68,000 in heroin and cocaine was seized, along with an unspecified amount of LSD, valium and methamphetamine (speed).

Lansing Mayor Gerald Graves said some of those arrested in the bust were "major drug distributors" in the Lansing area. Arrangements for those arrested lasted throughout the day.

However, the amount of narcotics confiscated would have only a short-term effect, according to Bill Oberlin, information officer at the Drug Education Center in East Lansing.

"There might be a momentary fluctuation in price of the narcotics," he said, "but I doubt that it would have very much effect."

As a result of the arrests, Oberlin said, competition among the dealers' replacements will occur.

Two daughters of Ingham County Commissioner Grady Porter were involved in the drug bust.

Pat Porter was still being sought on charges of delivery of cocaine and heroin and conspiracy to deliver heroin. Her sister, Sylvaine, was charged with two counts of delivering heroin. She was already in jail on an unrelated narcotics charge.

Assisting local narcotics officers in the arrests were the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration, Michigan State Treasury Department, the federal Alcohol and Firearms Division of the U.S. Treasury and the Division of Crime Detection of the Michigan Department of Public Health.

Funds for the four-month investigation which led to Thursday's arrests were supplied by the cooperating agencies, the state and the Drug Enforcement Administration headquartered in Grand Rapids.

Graves said the raids could have been even more sweeping if the Lansing City Council had not turned down a police request for an additional $15,000 for investigation and drug "buy" purposes.

"The failure of some members of city council to vote for the appropriation simply was an act of irresponsibility," Graves said.

"What is just as pitiful is that some members of the Ingham County Board of Commissioners have recently been threatening not to fund the county's financial share of the metro squad."

Smokestack solution belated but welcome

At last it appears that the state and MSU have reached an accord on the long-smoldering issue of Power Plant 65's wayward smokestack, which has been allowed to blight the atmosphere since 1969.

This inaction will result — as is always the case when the maze of bureaucracy cannot be untangled enough to determine which department, bureau, agency or whatever will be the one to spend the people's money — in what can only be considered an additional burden on the taxpayers of the state.

Certainly, no one will be going door to door, hat in hand, to wring dollars from unsuspecting patrons, but the great delay has resulted in a much-inflated price for a suitable solution to the 8-year-old problem.

This is not to say that the $6.5 million baghouse filter system is not seen as a welcome solution, for it obviously is that. The manner in which MSU and the state have decided to fund the project — $3.5 million expected to be appropriated by the state and the rest to come from the University — is also not at this juncture in question.

What has been arrived at as the most viable solution to the emissions problem of the smokestack may well prove to be worth the eight years of bickering, haranguing and apparent procrastination that have accompanied it.

But somehow this must be doubted.

The amount of money that will now be spent can easily be seen as more than would have been spent in the early 1970s. The amount of time that federal, state and University officials have had to spend in these past eight years dealing with the problem can also be equated into public dollars.

The costs against society that cannot be accurately gauged — and which in the long run may prove to be the most damaging — are the effects that the ensuing pollution may have on people, and, even more importantly, the erosion of faith in the political system that seemingly could not come to grips with what should have been an academic exercise in paper shuffling.

Rape victims win court victory

Those seeking to relegate Michigan's medieval rape laws to the morgue of history won a significant victory Tuesday when the Michigan Court of Appeals upheld a statute which prevents defense lawyers from questioning rape victims about their private sex lives.

The law, passed in 1975, stipulates that a rape victim can be questioned only about her sexual relations with the defendant.

The court wisely rejected the contention of convicted rapist Morris Thompson that the law violates the Sixth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, which guarantees a defendant's right to cross-examine witnesses against him.

Under no conceivable circumstances does the statute undermine constitutional law. It does not prohibit a defendant from confronting his accuser, which is the crux of the amendment. It does, however, spare a rape victim from potentially humiliating and wholly irrelevant intrusions into her private affairs. As the court noted, "The rape victim's sexual activity with third persons is in no way probative of the victim's credibility or veracity."

Rape is a crime of violence, like assault or murder. For too long perverse sexual connotations have been attached to this crime which, in the eyes of society and juries, have proved detrimental to the victim's integrity. A rape victim who is forced to disclose the details of her sex life is effectively put on trial herself, and all too often she is portrayed by unscrupulous defense lawyers as the provocateur and instigator of the crime.

The court's ruling insures that this benighted mentality will no longer influence jury deliberations and contaminate the lawbooks. We applaud the court's foresight in this matter.

Punishing 'Chaos'

The students of 6 NE Holden Hall who participated in the vandalism of their floor deserve to be barred from any University housing.

At the same time, it is unjust that University officials insist on punishing all residents of the floor with a $13 damage assessment. What is even worse is that students who took no part in the destruction now find themselves prohibited from living on campus. It is appropriate that the floor is named "Chaos," since wanton destruction and disregard for property reigned there. Such malicious activity culminated in a fire during finals week, and because certain residents had taken it upon themselves to idiotically and dangerously empty the contents of that hall's fire extinguisher, making the damage even greater.

The decline in unrecovered, malicious damages in the residence hall since the hall damages committees were instituted last fall is encouraging. But Holden's committee and repeated attempts by advisors to alleviate the situation on "Chaos" proved futile.

Part of the blame for the horrendous conditions on 6 NE Holden Hall should be placed on the students who did not directly have a hand in it, but refused to reveal the names of those who did or pressure them to stop.

However, the punishment in this case outweighs the crime. A better alternative would be for the University to permit those students who had no hand in the destruction to return to campus housing, but to make sure they are separated in different dormitories. A similar solution was arrived at with respect to the vandalism that plagued McDonel Hall last year.

Those students who committed the vandalism, however, deserve sympathy. If they insist on destroying public property, let them vent their aggression elsewhere.

RIDING SHOTGUN

ART BUCHWALD

Calling your loved ones

Art Buchwald has taken off a few weeks to study the effects of solar energy on bikini bathing suits. He left behind some of his classic columns which the Supreme Court has just ruled can now be released to the American people.

PALERMO, Sicily — The telephone companies have been urging fathers to telephone home to their loved ones when they are away from home; and I'm beginning to understand why. If everyone has the same experience I had calling from Sicily, the telephone company stands to make a fortune.

It took me two days to get my loved ones in Paris on the phone. Every time I placed the call, I was informed the lines were down. Rome wouldn't let the call go through, there was fog over Mount Etna or the Mafia had cut all the lines.

And every time I told them to forget it they informed me there was a surcharge for canceling the call.

"But I never received the call. How can you charge me for a call I never got?"

"But it was your intention to telephone and that is all we need. It is not us, Signor. It is the Italian Telephone Co. Don't cancel and then we won't charge you."

"But I can't get Paris on the phone."

"We know that, Signor. But as long as you can't get Paris they cannot charge you. If you tell them you don't want Paris, then they can charge you. This I'm sure you understand."

In order to save money I let the call stay in, and finally it came through. There was great excitement in the hotel, because, though many people in Sicily have in the last few years put in calls to Paris, none has ever gotten through.

My wife got on the phone.

"How wonderful of you to call," my wife said. "Just a minute, Jo-jo (our three-and-a-half-year old) wants to say hello."

There was dead silence. Then I could hear my wife say, "Jo-jo, say hello to Da-da."

Dead silence.

The Italian operator came on. "Are you finished?"

"No, we're not."

My wife came on. "It's funny, he's been talking about you all week. Wait a minute, now he wants to say something."

Dead silence.

"Say something, Jo-jo. It's Daddy," I could hear her saying.

The French operator came on. "Are you finished?"

Before I could reply, my wife came back on. "I don't understand it. He said he wanted to talk to you. Wait a minute, Connie (our two-year-old) wants to speak to you."

Dead silence.

Then I could hear Jo-jo screaming for the phone.

I heard my wife say: "You both can talk to Da-da. Jo-jo first."

Dead silence.

"All right, let Connie talk then," my wife said.

Dead silence.

"They're both shy," my wife explained to me. I could hear screaming in the background. Apparently they were both fighting to get at the phone.

Dead silence.

"I can't talk to you now," my wife said, "because they're fighting. Can you call me later?"

I said no, I'd write her a letter.

"Say goodbye to Da-da," my wife said.

Dead silence.

"Goodbye," I said and hung up.

The people in the lobby seemed a little confused by the conversation, but I didn't try to explain. I went over to the concierge.

"How much did that call cost?" I asked.

"She doesn't know," the concierge replied. "We've only been charging people for canceling their calls. The operator's been here just four years and this is the first time anyone has called Paris and got his party on the line. She's quite upset. She's afraid she may lose her job."

VIEWPOINT: AUTOMOBILE SAFETY

Government promoting highway slaughter

By BENJAMIN REDMOND

Relentlessly every month, there are 3,000 to 4,000 people killed and many, many more thousands seriously injured on the nation's highways. Since 1974, the blood of those victims is on the hands of the insurance industry, on the hands of Congress, and on the hands of the U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT), who were all responsible for the congressional ban on interlocks between seatbelts and car movement.

It is universally recognized that the best safety device yet proposed and available for the protection of motorists who are involved in a crash is the seatbelt, when buckled. Unfortunately, too many people, for one reason or another, imprudently fail to buckle their belts and of course, are unprotected.

The interlock idea is a gentle form of "enforced prudence" to get motorists to buckle their seatbelts in order to move the car. This system gave the motorist the peace of mind of knowing that he had protected himself. As with most systems, there is generally more than one way to accomplish the desired end result, and several interlocks were proposed to the DOT in the late 1960s and early 1970s.

After several years of study, the DOT's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) in 1973 mandated an ignition interlock, which was obviously inferior to other proposed interlocks, and cause it interfered with the operation of the engine and was frustrating.

About the same time that NHTSA was studying the interlock ideas, the insurance industry had invested many millions of dollars in an airbag restraint system and was pressuring DOT for recognition.

The insurance industry lost no time in spending millions of dollars in various of the publicity media highlighting the merit of its passive system, and deceiving the public. Like all automatic mechanisms, their operation is always fallible, and in a life-saving system, they are all potential killers. There is no room for debate!

The public displeasure with the ignition interlock, magnified many-fold by the insurance industry propaganda, makes one forgivably, suspect that the ignition interlock was mandated to be knocked down. However, the NHTSA in 1974 did propose a simple non-frustrating drive train interlock as an alternative to the ignition system — but it was too late. The insurance lobby in Congress had done its job, and Congress voted the ban on all interlocks. This, in effect, banned all active systems and left the door open for the airbag.

The following paragraphs appeared in the U.S. Department of Transportation News release of June 14, 1977 (NHTSA 46-77):

"In addition to the new investigations, NHTSA announced the availability of its annual report of motor vehicle defect recall campaigns for 1976. During the year, vehicle manufacturers issued 209 recalls involving more than 3.5 million motor vehicles. The report also lists the recall of more than 330,000 items of vehicle equipment and nearly 464,000 tires.

"Ms. Claybrook noted that 'the 1976 total brings to 52.4 million the number of vehicles recalled since 1966 when the national safety effort was initiated.'"

Despite the fact that these paragraphs set forth more than 52.4 million recalls of cars and parts recalls — why the passive system must be relegated to the trash heap, nothing is being done by the DOT, the Congress, or the motor car manufacturers to get the ban reversed or amended permit the mandating of the drive train interlock and check the slaughter on highways.

Each day, each week, each month, blood stains the hands of all who could do something about it but callously read statistics, while the families of the victims grieve and the nation sustains a loss about $6.5 billion each year.

I judge this is Hutson's first performed work — this play is chock full of festering wounds, a busy amalgam of rehased story lines and borrowed dialog. Bernard Shaw once remarked, concerning the lifting of lines from the works of playwrights one admires, that it is a sign of a playwright's good taste. But Hutson has borrowed more than I am comfortable with. I recognized whole lines verbatim from Edward Albee's The Zoo Story ("I was there before I came here.")
Its similarity to the recent conclusion of David Rabe's Vietnam Trilogy, Streamers is far from casual. The play owes debts to Peter Shaffer's Equus, and especially to John Herbert's Fortune and Men's Eyes and Jean Genet's Deathwatch.

The play deals with Joe and Summer Circle Free Festival: comedies to ice heat wave

Joel Oppenheimer's "The Great American Desert" and George Courtline's "The Commissioner" were appropriately staged and executed, and delighted the audience Wednesday night at the Summer Circle Free Festival.

The first play is set in the American desert where three cowboys (Gary Martinez, John Beem and Tom VanderWeele) flee from a town after robbing the bank and the banker's daughter of something precious.

"The Commissioner" worked well even in the outdoor setting, and the performances are equally good, especially Gary Martinez as Mr. Floche.

This was a satisfying production that left one wishing it would have gone on just a bit longer.

Both plays will run Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p.m. in the Kresge Courtyard along with the third play in this trilogy, "The Triangular Cell."

PLANS INCLUDE PRAYER MOSQUE Islamic Center soon to open

A 100,000 Islamic Center prayer mosque, is scheduled to open in East Lansing area. Construction is planned to begin shortly.

The site for the center has already been purchased and traditional prayers are conducted throughout the week there. The land parcel came with the building that is at the location now.

The Lansing area Muslim community will continue to hold its Friday prayer services on the second floor of the International Center until the new facility opens.

Currently, the building on the site of the future center is used for the "allah-o-Akbar" prayer recited by Muslims five times a day. It also serves a library and information center.

He said the city should not sink money into the lot if it is to be sold and a decision should not be made until the long range use is planned.

In other action at the otherwise calm meeting: The council approved the contract for the non-supervisory police officers which includes a six per cent pay hike and various benefits.

The council rejected a proposal by the Tri-County Regional Planning Commission for a super-agency to coordinate the improvement of water quality in the area.

Ordinance 406 was unanimously approved. The ordinance sets up a site plan review of all commercial development in the city.

The council approved a traffic light to be installed at the corner of Harrison and Wilson Roads.

No exit out of 'The Triangular Cell'

(continued from page 5) some charge having to do with homosexuality, who talks about being Jesus Christ in a way that convinces no one that he really believes it.

Into the tense relationship between these two comes Jamie, a sensitive young man (superbly played by Beem, an actor with talent worth watching) who has been arrested and convicted of charges stemming from a desperately sad homosexual encounter. To the other two, Jamie becomes a scapegoat for their fears and bitterness toward society (and specifically toward women — more on that later), as well as a sexual prize over which the others fight.

It is a play about loneliness and the frustrated violence of suppressed emotion. But the single unsettling wind that brings the house of cards toppling down is that underneath these crucial contemporary issues is a simplistic answer that is so unsond and perhaps even unhealthy that it colors the whole experience for me in a negative way. This is a play that hates women.

In the course of the play's two scenes, Hutson manages somehow to burden women with the blame for all of the ills of these three outcasts, and by extension, all our woes. The play's only female character, Jamie's mother (Judy Ulrich), is an insufferable, smothering, manipulative, castrating example of femaleness, and the prisoner's speech is peppered with sexual hate-mongering.

I wonder how many of my fellow students will see this play, nod their heads, and mutter, "Yup. That's what life is all about. He said it all there." All right, life is tough, and you can't really live it without feeling pain. But this, for me, does not justify self-indulgent, imitative, self-pitying pretentiousness like The Triangular Cell.

Gebbie's performance as Jesus is competent, but Voland was badly miscast and misdirected as Joe. Voland is simply not frightening enough, nor is he able to build his portrayal through two scenes without letting his energy dissipate in weak gestures and line deliveries. Beem, on the other hand, promises to be an actor of poise and strength with his performance as Jamie. With some stronger direction, his performance might have helped salvage the evening.

I applaud the Theatre Department's efforts to stage original plays. Perhaps with more experience and the submission of material from other sources we will all be treated to one of art's rarest experiences — the strong sound of a new voice and a new vision that says to us, "attention must be paid." Maybe the most positive thing I can say about The Triangular Cell is that it might be a first step to that end.

The Triangular Cell will run tonight and Saturday in the Arena Theatre. Curtain is at 9:30 p.m.

New associate provost named at board meeting

The MSU Board of Trustees on Thursday approved Jack B. Kinsinger as the new University Associate provost. The associate provost position was vacated when Clarence L. Winder was named provost earlier this month.

Kinsinger holds a doctorate in chemistry and has been on leave of absence for the past year.

The board also approved Dr. W. Donald Weston as the new dean of the College of Human Medicine.

Weston had been associate dean for community and clinical affairs in the college since 1970. He replaces Dr. Andrew M. Hunt, the first dean of the medical school.

In other medical-related board action; Dr. John D. Suddall was approved as medical director of university Health Center. He had been serving as acting director of the center since last June.

Dr. Raymond H. Murray, professor of medicine and chairperson for four years of the Department of Community Health Sciences at the Indiana University School of Medicine, was named professor and chairperson of the MSU Department of Medicine in the College of Human Medicine. Murray's appointment is effective Aug. 1.

He succeeds Dr. Scott Swisher, the first dean of the year-old medical school, who resigned to devote more time to research.

The trustees also approved the latest contract between the American Federation of County and Municipal Employees Local 999 and MSU.

Local 999, which represents about 230 skilled trades employees at MSU, ratified agreement July 14.

The contract will extend two years, provide wage cost-of-living allowances and the established Union guidelines, give an additional personal leave day and hospital and medical insurance coverage for those employees

Medicine in the College of Human Medicine. Murray's appointment is for August 1. He succeeds Dr. Scott Fisher, the first dean of the 100-year-old medical school. He is expected to devote more time to research.

The trustees also approved the latest contract between the American Federation of Teachers and the Michigan State University and Municipal Employees Local 999 and MSU Employees Local 999, which covers about 230 skilled trades employees at MSU, ratified by a vote of 7-1 on July 14.

The contract will extend for 3 years, provide wage increases of 3.5 percent, and establish a grievance procedure. It also provides for a 10-day paid leave day and an increase in medical insurance coverage for those employees.

Exercise may be more beneficial if done under water. The lessening of the buoyancy means it is easier to exercise in water and a particularly good time for an aquatic fitness program to practice.

One good exercise, according to the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports, is swimming.

As with any exercise program, you should start slowly and have a checkup before beginning.

For more information on exercising in water, there is a new booklet, "Swimming: A Guide to Consumer Information." It costs 75¢ and is available from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Dept. 118E, P.O. Box 10,009.

Cheerleaders get Spartan spirit

"Slice through the dee-fense line. . ."
 The chant, feeble at first, punctuated by giggles, begins to grow stronger.
 ". . . leave those Buckeyes way behind. . ."
 Purple and white pom-poms rustle against the cloudless blue sky. Arms fly and legs kick while instructors bark out commands.
 "Get it straight, get it clear. . ."
 A multitude of colors — green, blue, yellow, red — pinwheel on the flat green carpet of Spartan Stadium.

"... Seventy-seven is vic-tree year!"
 1977 may not be "vic-tree" year for the Spartans, but the last two weeks have been quite a winning experience for participants in the MSU cheerleaders program.
 Girls aged 12 to 17 from all over Michigan — many of them future Spartan boosters — have been spending mornings and evenings sharpening their skills in the fine art of dual mounts, pyramid mounts, shoulder stands, backstands, and, of course, leading cheers.
 Mary Flynn, the program's co-director, explained that "developing leadership" is a primary function of the training sessions.
 "We want to develop a high caliber of skill among the girls, and we have created several cheers that are geared for getting the crowd to respond."

The two week course, offered by MSU's Summer Sports School program, is an annual event. Participants, under the watchful eye of present and former MSU cheerleaders, perfect their moves during two separate two-and-a-half hour sessions, one in the morning and one in the evening, Monday through Friday. The morning practice is held at Spartan Stadium, the evening session at the ROTC field.

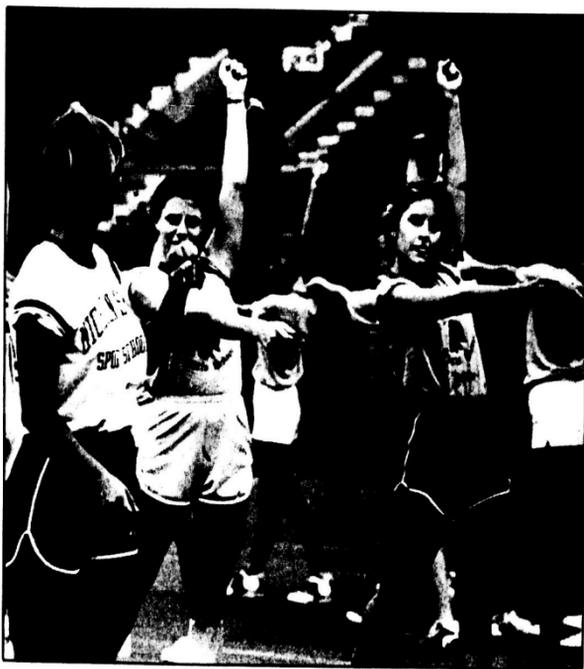

Cathy Lilly, one of five instructors, is due to become the captain of MSU's cheerleading squad next year. Lilly describes the girls' response to the whole affair as "remarkable."
 "Even before we open the gates in the morning they are running around outside, practicing competition, chanting and cheering."

The program is divided into two one week sessions, each session training a different group of girls. One hundred thirty aspiring cheerleaders practiced their kicks and chants during the second week, about twice as many as participated in the first seven days. "It's a much more enthusiastic bunch this time," one of the instructors said.
 The cheerleading program is not all fun and enthusiasm, though. Hard work and competition are also stressed.

Carol Underwood, the program's other co-director, explained that the end of each one week session the girls get to compete against each other for the honor of performing at half time of an MSU football game in Spartan Stadium.

"They compete in individual and squad competitions, she said. "The first four place finishers in each competition get to perform at half-time."
 The competition is held on the last day of each session. Twenty six girls made the grade at the end of the first week.

Next year's program will be held in August. Those interested in participating should send their applications to the Summer sports school program at Jenison fieldhouse. Rewards are plenty. In the words of one girl from Battle Creek Lakeview High School: "This is not a fake competition. Everyone really helps. We are given personal attention."
 Another instructor summed it up this way: "We try not to give the girls too much material. We would like them to learn what we teach them well."
