Investigation of E.L. student vote attacked

By DEBBIE CREEMERS
State News Staff Writer

A study of the student role on East Lansing voting patterns drew fire from East Lansing Councilmember Alan Fox and Ingham County Commissioner Mark Grebner Monday.

The study, conducted by the Lansing Regional Chamber of Commerce on East Lansing voting patterns since 1974, found three of the last five councilmembers elected attained office solely on the strength of the student vote and without the support of local homeowners.

It states students also defeated two major ballot proposals supported by homeowners: a 1975 fire station proposal and the 1978 Dayton Hudson shopping mall.

A split between East Lansing homeowners and students has existed ever since 18-year-olds first won the right to vote in 1971. The Michigan Supreme Court ruled at the same time that college students could choose to vote in their campus towns.

THE SPLIT WIDENED considerably after the student vote helped defeat the Dayton Hudson mall proposal on the ballot last year, but the report recommends dropping the de-annexation and August election schemes. Instead it urges increased involvement of permanent homeowners in city government and campaigns.

Grebner objected to the "semantics of bigotry" in the report.

"They draw a line between students and permanent residents — residents with a capital R," he said. "It's as if those people don't move as often as students do, and don't live in apartments."

Grebner also objected to some of the study's recommendations. The advice to forget annexing part of MSU's East Complex from Meridian Township to East Lansing is obviously based on fear of students, he said.

"The object is to make sure none of them (students) sneak into the city while no one's watching," Grebner said. Grebner also said he agreed that the idea for an August election should be scrapped.

A SUGGESTION FOR regional government which will be studied further by the Chamber, was also nixed by Grebner, who said the move would dilute the student vote so much they would not be able to influence anything.

Grebner also attacked the study's timing. "It lets students know the people in this city do hate them," he said.

Fox said he did not dispute the statistics in the study, but added election return subtleties may have been missed.

Fox said neither side is monolithic, as he said the study seems to suggest. He, former Councilmember Carolyn Stell and Mayor George L. Griffiths — the three members the study says would not have made council without the student vote — could not have won if they had received substantially less homeowners votes, Fox said.

"No one wins without getting a substantial part of both votes," Fox said. He also objected to what he called the suggestion in the report that "the people who have the majority in the community are not entitled to vote the majority of city councilmembers in."

"THE DISSATISFACTION SEEMS to be one-sided," Fox said. "There are no students demanding their money's worth for the amount of funds they bring into the city."

Wayne Williams, coordinator of Citizens for a Better East Lansing, a group recently formed in support of the Dayton Hudson mall, said the study's findings were not very surprising. Commenting on the Commerce Board of Directors, Williams said the report's timing was perfect.

"They have been working on the study since April, and it will give students and homeowners time to think about it," he said. "Students should have a better line of communication with East Lansing residents, and the report makes some good suggestions for channeling the Grand River gap."

ASKS FOR NEW PLAN

E.L. group supports mall

By MICHAEL K. VEH
State News Staff Writer

In order to solicit funds for the new Dayton-Hudson mall proposal, the Citizens for a Better East Lansing registered as a political organization Monday at Lansing City Hall.

The 2,400 group members are East Lansing residents who live near the proposed mall site at U.S. 127 and Lake Lansing Road and are interested in conducting a citizen campaign supporting the mall, Wayne Williams. CBEL chairperson said at a press conference Monday morning.

CBEL members were influential in encouraging East Lansing City Council to schedule a Nov. 6 advisory vote regarding the new Dayton-Hudson proposal.

The advisory vote will inform the council of the opinions of East Lansing registered voters on the issue, Williams said.

CBEL is an independent organization and is not receiving any financial assistance from Dayton Hudson, Williams added.

Members of CBEL went to representatives of Dayton Hudson Properties asking them to submit a revised plan after voters rejected the mall last November. The plan was to eliminate many of the objections of the original proposal, he said.

"Since we went to Dayton Hudson and asked them to come up with a different and more acceptable mall proposal," Williams said, "We feel that it is only right that our membership of over 2,400 work to convince East Lansing's citizens of the long-range benefits of a new Dayton Hudson shopping center."

The 162 acre mall site was to originally hold a two level mall with 710,000 square feet of rentable area. Under the new proposal, the mall size has been reduced to 495,000 square feet.

One positive effect of the size reduction will be an estimated 42 percent decrease in traffic from the original plan, according to a city Department of Planning, Housing and Community Development report.

Williams said that by using a totally "factual" campaign CBEL should be able to gain "overwhelming support" for the mall.

"We want the people to know that this is truly a citizen effort," Williams said.

Williams added that he wants to avoid an emotional campaign and to conduct a one-on-one campaign with citizens talking directly to students and other citizens.

"I feel that if we're going to let the issue come out and really let the voters decide, we're going to have to stay away from emotional type issues," he said.

HATCH SAYS BLOCKADE CUBA

Vance—Gromyko talks continue

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko met on Monday to discuss the dispute about Russian troops in Cuba, but there was no immediate indication a solution was found.

"We will be reporting the results to our respective governments," Vance said after the 90-minute meeting.

Gromyko, asked whether he was encouraged, told reporters: "I wouldn't give a direct answer."

He said he and Vance had "discussed substance" in their session at the Soviet mission to the United Nations and planned to meet again in New York on Thursday.

With the negotiations now in a third week, hopes are dimming for Senate ratification of the SALT II nuclear arms limitation treaty.

DESPITE CARTER ADMINISTRATION pleas that the subjects not be linked, a number of senators have said the treaty could not be approved without a troops settlement.

Zbigniew Brzezinski, U.S. national security adviser, was quoted as saying in an interview published over the weekend that the Soviet troops are "a serious problem in Soviet American relations."

He warned of possible retaliation if the Soviets failed to cooperate in finding a solution.

But in a speech Monday to the U.N. General Assembly, he said, "The East-West relationship can deteriorate dangerously whenever one side fails to respect the security interests of the other."

ASKED WHETHER VANCE was referring to the Soviet troops, Vance's spokesperson, Hodding Carter, avoided a direct reply.

"We have always said the troops are not a threat to the United States," Carter stated.

"But that doesn't mean they are not a threat to U.S. interests."

Vance had scheduled his meeting with Gromyko for Thursday. It was moved up at the request of Soviet officials, Carter said.

"I assume they now have something to say to each other which ought to be said now," the spokesperson said.

He said another Vance-Gromyko meeting remained on the schedule for Thursday.

The Soviet Union contends the brigade, believed to consist of 2,000 to 3,000 soldiers, serves only a military training role. But Brzezinski and Vance contend it is a combat brigade.

SEN. ORRIN HATCH, R-Utah, told a news conference Monday the Soviet brigade has been training insurgents from all over Latin America. He proposed an "immediate and total blockade of Cuba" until the force is removed.

Hatch said sources who had been accurate in the past told him the brigade is a special unit of Soviet "internal troops," that are "extremely mobile and exceptionally well-trained." He refused to identify the sources of his information and did not identify by name or country of origin any of the insurgents he said have been trained by the brigade.

However, Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, said Hatch's idea of blockading Cuba was "premature and potentially dangerous." He said a total blockade should be considered only as a last resort because it might require the U.S. Navy to stop or sink Soviet vessels.

Garn said any move to set up a blockade should be preceded by moves to increase U.S. forces in the area, including moving a carrier task force into waters off Cuba.

In addition, Garn said all further Senate consideration of the strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviets should be deferred and that all scientific and cultural exchanges with the Soviet Union should be suspended.

Soviet news reports have said the brigade is in Cuba on a training mission. Discussions on the status of the unit have been under way for the past three weeks between Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin.

Detroit teachers strike goes into third week

By United Press International

The Detroit teachers strike went into its third week Monday with no immediate end in sight, leaving classroom doors closed to 213,000 school children.

After a day-long court session, a state mediator called for a resumption of talks between the Detroit Board of Education and the 12,000-member Detroit Federation of teachers. Negotiations were to resume in the evening.

An ongoing hearing on the board's request for a back-to-work order was adjourned for the day without a final decision, which might not come until sometime next week.

Elsewhere in the state, teachers walked off the job Monday in the Clintondale district in Macomb County and the Madison Heights district in Oakland County. Contract talks were to continue in both districts later in the day.

In Detroit, Wayne County Circuit Judge Patrick Duggan took additional testimony in a hearing on the district's request for a back-to-work order.

Duggan adjourned the session for the day by announcing state mediator Robert Blackwell had asked for contract talks to resume.

A special Sunday board session called by seven of the board's 13 members failed to produce a hoped-for contract offer to end the 15-day Detroit strike.

The seven called the meeting to promote a compromise contract proposal similar to a pact okayed earlier by DFT bargainers but rejected by board negotiators.

The compromise offered teachers a three-year contract with a choice between a guaranteed 9 percent raise in the third year or an option for a wage reopener at the end of the second year.

But when the board later amended the proposal to include a residency requirement DFT officials said they could not accept the pact.

The DFT planned a union meeting Wednesday to inform union members of the status of negotiations and decide on a course of action.

The school board was to meet in special session Tuesday to decide whether to fire the district's more than 400 striking teachers.

School officials have vowed to keep schools open no matter how many teachers or students show up. Monday 4,413 of the district's 9,800 students reported for class, as did 111 teachers.

This week is especially critical for the strikebound school districts since a student head count will be taken on the last Friday of the month to determine state education aid.

State officials have said districts where students are not in class could face a loss of those payments, which amount to $51 million in Detroit alone.

Chrysler rebate has upped car sales, cut inventories

DETROIT — The struggling Chrysler Corp. Monday credited its $400 customer-rebate program with boosting car sales by 51.3 percent and dramatically reducing an unwieldy and expensive car inventory.

Chrysler said the promotion, scorned by other automakers, contributed to sales of 112,835 cars in the 26 selling days between Aug. 21 and Sept. 20.

That compared with deliveries of 74,540 cars in the 26 selling days preceding the rebate program, July 21 to Aug. 20.

A more dramatic increase in truck sales was recorded. During the rebate promotion, Chrysler said it sold 36,866 trucks, up 60 percent from 22,948 in the preceding 26 days.

"We regard this dramatic sales increase as a great vote of confidence from the buying public," said Gar Laux, Chrysler's executive vice president for sales and marketing.

Chrysler reported that the number of unsold cars in factory and dealer lots decreased by 27 percent during the rebate program from 296,078 units on Aug. 20 to 216,238 on Sept. 20.

The rebates were intended to reduce the crushing big car and truck inventories that drained resources of the company and its dealers.

ASMSU holds first meeting

There will be an ASMSU Student Board meeting today at 7 p.m. in Room 4 of the Student Services Building. All members should attend, and all students are welcome.

ASMSU, the Associated Students of Michigan State University, is an undergraduate student government which was developed in 1966 with the purpose of promoting student interest, student rights, student activities, and representation.

Each term students are taxed $3 as part of their tuition fees to finance ASMSU. This tax is refundable the first 10 days of class each term.

ASMSU has an annual budget of $500,000, which is distributed among its three boards: the Student Media Appropriations Board, Student Board, and Programming Board.

SMAB allocates money to publications of registered student organizations which are not already funded by the University. The Student Board is the governing body and makes ASMSU policy while the Programming Board is responsible for student programming such as concerts and films.

ASMSU also offers a number of programs to assist MSU students. These include a student loan program, a legal services program and a copy service.

For further information on these and other ASMSU programs, call 355-8266.

Jackson in Israel to help PLO talks

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — American black activist Jesse Jackson, opening an eight-day tour of the Middle East, said Monday that Israel should "relieve America of its gag policy and recognize the PLO."

The Rev. Jackson told reporters at Ben-Gurion International Airport he had come to the Middle East to get Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization talking. Israel has refused to recognize the PLO, which it terms a "gang of terrorist murderers."

Prime Minister Menachem Begin has declined to meet with Jackson or his party. Last week, Begin also refused to see a delegation of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, which visited Lebanon at the invitation of PLO chief Yasser Arafat.

We hope he (Begin) will change his mind," Jackson told reporters. We assume it means he thinks we are unnecessary... and that our support for Israel is automatic.

Jackson will tour northern Israel on Wednesday, including a visit to the Lebanese border area. He then will visit Jordan and Lebanon.

US affirms support for Mid-East truce

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States, seeking to end the fighting in Lebanon, has launched a new diplomatic initiative for a truce supported by all principal Middle East parties.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance disclosed the drive in a speech Monday to the U.N. General Assembly hours after Israeli and Syrian jets clashed over Lebanon.

Lebanon has suffered all too much," he said.

Privately, U.S. officials said a number of specific proposals are being circulated among Middle East governments. Vance is to follow up on these exchanges in meetings with foreign ministers attending the 34th annual U.N. General Assembly.

We are looking for a more lasting arrangement than the cease-fire," one U.S. official, who declined to be identified, told reporters. He provided no details of the U.S. proposals and said there was no direct U.S. contact with Palestinian elements.

The United States has urged all sides, particularly Israel, Palestinians and Christian forces, to end the "cycle of violence" that has brought death to thousands, made many more homeless and threatens to set off a wider conflict.

Israel and Syrian jets duel over Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian jet fighters and U.S.-made Israeli F-15s duelled south of Beirut on Monday in the biggest air battle over Lebanon in three months. Four Syrian Soviet-made MiGs were downed, both sides said, and Syria claimed two Israeli jets were "hit."

The Israelis said all their planes made it safely back to base.

In Washington, State Department spokesperson Thomas Reston called the air clash a "dangerous development" and appealed on all sides to exercise restraint.

Syria said its MiG-21s scrambled to intercept the Israeli warplanes after the Israelis attacked civilian camps — presumably Palestinian — in the Damour area 10 miles south of Beirut. The Israeli military command in Tel Aviv said its jets, including the F-15, America's most sophisticated fighter, were on a reconnaissance mission over Palestinian guerrilla bases.

The Israeli jets first drew ground fire from Palestinian and Lebanese leftist gunners as they roared over Beirut International Airport and the nearby Sabra camp, headquarters of Palestine Liberation Organization leader Yasser Arafat.

Freedom sweet to ex- 'Gentleman Bandit'

MEDIA, Pa. (AP) — The Rev. Bernard Pagano was finally cleared of the "Gentleman Bandit" stigma Monday when the last robbery charge against him was dropped. You never know what freedom is until you haven't got it," the 54-year-old Roman Catholic priest said.

Pagano had been accused of committing a series of armed holdups last winter in Delaware and Pennsylvania, but all charges were dropped after another man confessed to the crimes.

I'm happy," Pagano told reporters after Delaware County, Pa. Judge R. Barclay Surrick dropped robbery and weapons charges involving the attempted holdup of a dress shop owner in Glenn Mills last Feb. 22.

Pagano was cleared last month of five Delaware holdups after Ronald Clouser interrupted the priest's trial and confessed he had committed the crimes. Clouser bears a strong physical resemblance to Pagano, who had been picked out of a lineup by several holdup victims.

Clouser, a 39-year-old Brookhaven, Pa., postal service engineer now suspended from his government job, was arraigned Monday morning on charges that he committed the Glenn Mills robbery and was freed pending further court action.

Presidential campaign may be premature

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Larry Pressler concedes that some might view a campaign for president as premature for a 37-year-old man first elected to public office in 1974.

Some people will look on it as an ego-centered thing, but we will just have to let the chips fall where they may," said Pressler on the eve of formally announcing his candidacy.

But Pressler said he became a Republican U.S. senator from South Dakota by ignoring conventional wisdom that said he was either too young or unknown to win election to federal office.

At the moment, he said in an interview before his planned Tuesday announcement, "I am not perceived as a serious contender..."

Nonetheless, Pressler can argue that he has come a long way in a short time, first as a House member elected five years ago at age 32 and now as a freshman member of the Senate.

A boyish-faced man who answers questions cautiously, Pressler says his initial support will come from among young voters in their 20s and 30s who are disenchanted with conventional politics.

Anxiety at 3 Mile Island will be passed on MIDDLETOWN, Pa. (AP) — Like the unseen nuclear particles that peppered this rural town of 10,000 persons six months ago, the lingering anxiety of Three Mile Island's neighbors is hard to measure.

Its level of contamination varies from heavy to non-existent. Some believe the fear, like radiation, has a half-life of several generations.

As long as the plant is there, people in the area will think about the accident constantly," said Mayor Robert Reid, a teacher at Middletown Area High School and the father of three children.

If the plant would be there for the next 100 years, I think fear is going to be passed down from generation to generation. History is just not going to allow the people to forget about that accident," Reid added.

Last March 28, a series of mechanical malfunctions and human errors at Three Mile Island resulted in leaks of radioactive material when uranium in the reactor overheated.

For now, economics keeps the accident from local obscurity.

Deposed dictator finds asylum

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast (AP) — Deposed emperor Jean Bedel Bokassa, condemned to death in his Central African Republic homeland and denied asylum in France, flew here Monday and was given refuge by the Ivory Coast government.

But his successor, President David Dacko, immediately announced he would demand Bokassa's extradition as "a common criminal... who killed, raped, and pillaged the state." Earlier, a radio broadcast from the republic's capital of Bangui said Dacko had condemned Bokassa to death.

Dacko said that under treaties with the Ivory Coast, which like his nation is a former French colony, the extradition "should not pose any problems."

In France, newspapers were severely critical of the government's actions during the 56 hours Bokassa sat in his private aircraft at a military base in Evreux, 65 miles west of Paris, seeking asylum.

THE INFLUENTIAL Le MONDE accused the government of "indecision, not to say cowardice."

Reports from Bangui, where Dacko, with support from France and other African nations, ousted Bokassa in a bloodless coup last Thursday, said there was general bitterness that Bokassa was set free by France.

The reports also said students and intellectuals who had led opposition to Bokassa were already complaining of Dacko's retention of many of the officials who served under Bokassa.

Bokassa arrived in France on Friday in his Caravelle jet, but was denied permission to disembark. On Monday, after the Ivory Coast agreed to give him asylum, he left his jet, boarded a French Air Force DC-8 and flew to Abidjan with at least six of the 26 persons who accompanied him to France.

The Caravelle took off late Monday, and while its destination was not announced, reliable sources who asked not to be named said at least 16 of Bokassa's party, with him in Libya when the coup was carried out, wanted to go back to Bangui and it was believed the jet was headed there.

BOKASSA, STILL A French citizen by virtue of service in the French Army, sought asylum in France, but the government said he was an "undesirable" and his presence there was "inopportune." The government's denial of entry to the French citizen drew the ire of the judiciary.

The ruling Ivory Coast Democratic Party announced Monday that in consultation with senior ministers, army officers, and religious and women's leaders, it had appealed to President Felix Houphouet-Boigny to grant Bokassa asylum for "humanitarian reasons."

In Paris, official sources said Houphouet-Boigny had agreed Sunday night to pressing appeals in telephone calls from Bokassa's wife, Catherine, on behalf of her children, pleading for asylum.

Dacko, in a broadcast from Bangui, said he would be ready to establish diplomatic relations with South Africa and other nations, if it could help provide economic aid to restore the "ruined economy" of the country.

"I would do it officially, in the light of day, instead of hypocritically having trade relations with South Africa as many African nations do," he said.

Since Bokassa overthrew Dacko 14 years ago and anointed himself Emperor Bokassa I, there were repeated reports of killings of opponents. The reports culminated this year with the report by Amnesty International, confirmed by an independent inquiry by African jurists, of the murders of up to 100 schoolchildren in Bangui prison, with Bokassa's presence, and his "quasi-certain participation."

Soviet performers defect

By HANNS NEUERBOURG
Associated Press Writer

GENEVA, Switzerland — Soviet figure skaters Ludmilla Belousova and Oleg Protopopov, two-time Olympic champions and aging darlings of the Russian ice rink, have defected to the West, the Swiss government announced Monday.

The husband-wife team, who dominated world pairs skating in the mid-1960s, were the fourth and fifth prominent Soviet performers to seek political asylum abroad in little more than a month. Three dancers of the Bolshoi Ballet defected to the United States.

The 47-year-old Protopopov and the 44-year-old Belousova vanished last Tuesday, the day they were to have flown back to the Soviet Union after a four-week skating exhibition tour of West Germany and Switzerland.

He said he thought they made a wrong decision. "If I knew where they are I would tell them, 'Go home,' but I guess it is too late... I don't think they have much of a chance in the West, professionally. They are well past their peak. After all, they are in their mid-40s."

SWISS JUSTICE MINISTRY spokesperson Ulrich Hubacher announced Monday that they had asked for asylum in Switzerland last week, and he said the government would make a decision within several weeks. He did not disclose their present whereabouts or their plans.

Their Swiss host and tour organizer, Kurt Soenning, told a reporter that the couple, who are childless, arrived at Zurich airport Aug. 22 with 10 pieces of luggage. "He brought a videocorder and she even a sewing machine. I joked about it then. Now, I know why they brought all this," Soenning said.

He said he thought they made a wrong decision. "If I knew where they are I would tell them, 'Go home,' but I guess it is too late... I don't think they have much of a chance in the West, professionally. They are well past their peak. After all, they are in their mid-40s."

NEVERTHELESS THE PETITE blonde and her slim partner have been idolized by millions of skating fans for more than 15 years. Soviet authorities heaped top honors on them, including the prestigious title "Masters of Sport of the Soviet Union."

The Protopopovs, married since 1957, rose to world fame at the Olympic Games in Innsbruck, Austria, in 1964, dethroning defending gold medalists Mariia Kilius and Hans Jurgen Baumber of West Germany. They won four successive world championships in 1964-68 and another Olympic gold at Grenoble, France, in 1968.

The couple last appeared in international competition at the 1969 world championship in Colorado Springs, Colo., where they placed third, losing their title to another Soviet pair, Irina Rodnina and Alexei Ulanov, who went on to win the 1972 Olympic title. The Protopopovs turned professional early in the 1970s, skating with a troupe based in Leningrad, their hometown.

In Moscow, a Soviet sports official told a Western reporter he knew of no reason why they should leap to the West.

Medicaid sponsored abortions delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate stood firm Monday in Congress' annual battle over federally-financed abortions, rejecting a House move to tighten abortion restrictions.

The action keeps uncertain the fate of the big $72.3 billion appropriations bill to finance the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare in the fiscal year beginning next Monday.

Senators voted 54-33 against a motion by Sens. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., and Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who wanted to agree with the House and prohibit the use of Medicaid money for any abortion unless the mother's life is in danger.

The Senate then voted 57-31 to insist on its own version, identical to the present law that resulted from last year's battle over the abortion question.

That version prohibits Medicaid-financed abortions unless the mother's life is in danger, unless she is a rape or incest victim or unless two doctors testify she will suffer severe, long-lasting physical harm if she gives birth to the child.

The House, which has already rejected the Senate version once, must now take up the matter again.

Debate on the issue Monday took less time than on some occasions but was as pointed as ever.

Helms told colleagues they should vote for the House restrictions because "what we're talking about is innocent human life."

Arts and Letters forms alliance

The College of Arts and Letters is in the process of organizing an undergraduate student government which will be a "definite plus" for the college, Henry E. Sosa, the ASMSU Student Board representative for the college said.

As an ASMSU representative, Sosa said he represents 2,800 students in the College of Arts and Letters, but because the college does not have a unified student organization, he has no way of knowing the needs of the students he represents.

The new government, to be called the Liberal Arts Alliance, would establish an organization between the different departments within the college, said Sosa, a junior majoring in German. There is a need for representation between each of the 10 departments and the academic committees within the college, he said. If the formation of the Liberal Arts Alliance is successful, some of the goals of the new organization would be to publish a bulletin for students within the college, to begin some fund-raising projects for the Performing Arts Center and to support the college of Arts and Letters in general, Sosa said.

The Liberal Arts Alliance will hold its first organizational meeting at 5 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 27, in Room 328 of the Student Services Building.

All students who are majors in the college are welcome to attend.

GM recalls X-cars for potential defects

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp. Monday recalled 225,000 of its popular X-car compacts to correct a potential transmission cooling line defect that could cause a fire under the hood.

GM said 160,000 of those vehicles also may have a cracked mounting plate in the steering mechanism which could result in excessive steering wheel play.

It was the first recall involving the hot-selling X-car GM introduced in April as 1980 models — the Chevrolet Citation, Pontiac Phoenix, Oldsmobile Omega and Buick Skylark.

The company said it has received no reports of accidents or injuries because of the defects. A GM spokesperson said, however, there have been nine reports of fires under the hood.

GM attributed the transmission line problem to possible material deficiencies in cooler line hoses.

"This could cause hose failure and transmission fluid leakage which could create potential for an underhood fire," GM said.

The second defect involves the steering gear mounting plate, GM said. On 160,000 vehicles, fatigue cracks could develop and cause the steering gear attachment to loosen.

"If this condition is present, the driver may notice excessive steering wheel play," GM said.

GM said it will ask owners of the affected vehicles to contact their dealers for installation of new transmission cooler hoses and, if required, a new type steering gear mounting bracket.

Some vehicles will require both installations, GM said.

'U' music professor and choir director dead at 68

Richard E. Klausli, 68, MSU professor of music and director of the University choir, died Sunday in a local hospital.

A native of Ohio, he came to Lansing and joined the MSU faculty in 1948.

Klausli received a master's degree in music from the New England Conservatory of Music. He did additional study at Longy School of Music, the International School of Art in Czechoslovakia, Columbia University, the Union Theological Seminary, and Oxford University.

He received the honorary degree Doctor of Musical Arts from Piedmont College. Klausli was also the organist and choir director at Plymouth Congregational Church. He served as director of the University choir, The State Singers, while at MSU.

He is survived by his wife Dorothy; two daughters, Mrs. Gregory Worosz of Novi, Mich., and Mrs. William Ruehlmann of Norfolk, Va.; and one granddaughter, Michelle Worosz of Novi, Mich.

A memorial service will be held 4 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 30, at the Plymouth Congregational Church.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Richard E. Klausli Memorial Fund, in care of Plymouth Congregational Church.

N-power safer than coal or oil, professor says

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Using nuclear power to generate electricity results in fewer deaths than using coal or oil, a professor told a legislative committee on nuclear energy Monday.

Fatalities related to nuclear-produced energy average less than one per year, compared with an average three coal industry deaths and one for oil-generated power, said chemical engineering professor Bruce Wilkinson.

Wilkinson told the Special Joint Committee on Nuclear Energy during an informational session serious accidents like the recent Three Mile Island incident in Pennsylvania are highly uncommon.

He also said scientists predict radiation emitted from the Pennsylvania atomic plant last spring will not cause a single cancer death among area residents during the next several years.

Nuclear waste disposal — one topic upon which the committee will focus during the next several weeks — poses the most complex problem, Wilkinson said.

Although some consider the idea absurd, he said launching nuclear waste toward the sun in rockets may be feasible "if we can guarantee the rocket would never abort."

MSU station celebrates 25th anniversary

WKAR-TV channel 23 is celebrating its 25th anniversary today with a dinner beginning at 8 p.m. in the Big 10 Room of the Kellogg Center.

The celebration, which will be broadcast on channel 23 at 9 p.m., will include entertainment by the Four Freshmen.

Among the guests attending the banquet include the chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, James Quello, Lt. Gov. James Brickley and Sen. William Sederburg along with other local legislators.

WKAR, the oldest public television station east of the Mississippi and the second oldest public station in the United States, is among the pioneers of educational TV, said Willa Gritter, program coordinator.

WKAR has been in operation since 1954.

Services for Elliot scheduled

A memorial service followed by a reception will be held for James M. Elliott at 4 p.m. today in the MSU Alumni Chapel.

Elliott, 60, died Sept. 18 in his East Lansing home. He was acting associate dean of University College and acting director of the Office of Instructional Services.

'Greek system' takes time to seek new blood for its ranks—especially freshmen

By LESA DOLL
State News Staff Writer

It is a common misconception that all greeks are the same.

Fraternities and sororities, often referred to as the "greek system," have been chided for many years by outsiders as being stereotypical. The people involved in the system will tell you that they're wrong — especially freshmen.

Those in their first year of college make up the bulk of students currently rushing the greek system. There are older students and transfer students eligible, but the influx of freshmen create the biggest "business" for the greeks right now.

During this term's rush period, students are invited to visit all the fraternities and sororities on campus to get a taste of what life in a greek house would be like. The general idea of rush is to go back to the houses the student prefers and then to narrow down the list, finally ending up with the one house that is most suitable to his/her needs.

But wait. One just can't join any house that one wants. Although the male and female rushing systems are markedly different, they share one common rule: a house must also approve you.

IN THE FRATERNITY system, beginning this week, the aspiring man gets a taste of all the houses and visits the ones he prefers. The fraternities that prefer him casually inform him that they would like to see him again.

The man gets the opportunity to speak with members of the fraternity, and they in turn get to know him. If they still like him, the fraternity will ask him to "pledge."

"You are selling yourself," said Tim Jones, Alpha Delta Phi fraternity president. "If you like them and they like you it works out."

"The fraternities cooperate a lot," he said. "They might like your house, but you want them to see the others, too."

Fraternity rush is not a formal affair, and guests are entertained with refreshments at the houses.

"FIRST IMPRESSIONS ARE important, but we like to see everybody back," Jones said. "The pledges pick us. It seems like we pick them, but sometimes it seems as if they pick us."

Another distinction freshmen and other students who are rushing the greek system for the first time will point out is the tremendous difference between the fraternity and sorority rush systems.

ASMSU program offers short-term student loans

There comes a time for many students when their expenses exceed their finances. Instead of writing mom or pressuring a roommate for needed cash, a short-term loan may be the solution.

The Associated Students of MSU, the MSU undergraduate student government, has a loan program which entitles students to borrow up to $35, interest free if the loan is repaid within three weeks.

Any undergraduate student who has not received a $3 ASMSU tax refund, is eligible for the loan.

Students may make as many loans as necessary, but can only take out one loan at a time.

Interested students can take their current MSU I.D. to 307 Student Services Bldg. between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, to apply for the loan.

New Nessie theory

URBANA, Ill. (AP) — A new theory about the Loch Ness monster has been propounded by a University of Illinois scientist studying a group of islands in the Pacific Ocean.

Geography professor Donald Johnson had studied the islands, off Los Angeles, for years, and he is also familiar with the Loch Ness mystery and the many photographs allegedly taken of Nessie.

It could be the trunk of a swimming elephant, thought Johnson. But elephants don't swim, or do they?

Now Johnson has discovered the remains of elephants on his islands. Since he has disproved the notion that the elephants got there by walking over a land bridge from the mainland, they must have swum, he says.

The female rush system, now just beginning to wind down into its final stages, is a highly structured affair. It is the contrast to the fraternity system, which is casual and loosely structured.

"It takes a lot of time," said Jan Eubank, rush counselor and member of Sigma Kappa sorority. "It's hard to pick somebody to live with. Sororities are really close."

Eubank is one of many women who serve as guides to students as they go through the many stages of the formal rush process. She is responsible for 30 women, available to answer their questions and help with any problems throughout the two week event.

Rush consists of four phases, starting with a general meeting of interested students and the 15 sororities during Welcome Week. By Sept. 23, those who are rushing narrow their choices from 10 to five, and two days later they visit the three houses they like the most.

UNLIKE THE FRATERNITIES, the women are notified by computer cards throughout the rigid rush schedule of what houses want them and what houses don't.

"We pick somebody that is compatible with the other girls in the house," she said. She explained that close relationships in the house and compatibility among the girls is very important.

Unlike previous years, there will only be one formal sorority rush scheduled for this school year. Mary Mullen, president of the Panhellenic Council, said that women who wish to rush later could also go through informal rush at any time during the year.

"At some schools you're nothing if you don't belong to a fraternity," Dan Jones said. "Here, it's just a different lifestyle. At first you think all greeks are the same, but they're not. This is one way of life, and I like it this way."

Liquor increases bar pick-ups

OSHKOSH, Wis. (AP) — Men who drink liquor are almost twice as likely as beer drinkers to try to pick up women in bars, say three graduate students at the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh.

The students — Tami Kohls, Gary Schuch and Michelle Fueger — said their research project conducted at area discos disclosed that 42 of 48 liquor drinkers tried to pick up women during the period of observation.

However, only 17 of 53 male beer drinkers made any moves, they said.

The three, who reported on their project at a recent Midwest Psychology Association convention, said they noticed that ads in men's magazines gave the impression that liquor drinkers got the girl, while ads for beer rarely had women in them and tended to portray a more macho image.

Faculty Council meets today to discuss budget

The Faculty Council will meet today at 3:15 p.m. in the Con Con Room in the International Center.

The agenda includes addresses by the president and provost concerning a report of the Ad Hoc Committee to study the faculty grievance procedure and a report on the University budget. Also on the agenda will be Faculty Council elections and an information report from the University Committee on Academic Governance.

An announcement concerning agenda for the Faculty Council meeting on Oct. 9 will also be discussed.

Panama canal compromise nears Congressional approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of a Senate-House conference committee agreed Monday on a new compromise bill to carry out final details of the Panama Canal treaties. The compromise replaces a measure rejected by the House last week. Rep. John M. Murphy, D-N.Y., who managed the canal bill on the House floor, predicted the new version would be approved by his colleagues later this week.

The treaties, which provide for Panama to take control of the canal at the end of the century, take effect Monday. The compromise bill offered by the conference panel establishes a U.S.-controlled commission to operate the waterway until the Panamanians take over.

The House rejected the last treaty implementation bill last week on a 203-192 vote — an embarrassment to the Carter administration. President Carter already has signed the treaties and they have been ratified by the Senate.

After Monday's quick approval of a new compromise measure, Murphy said, "I think we have support for this package — in fact I'm certain we do."

Murphy said he hopes to win final House approval of the bill on Wednesday.

Candidates need issues

As the economy deteriorates, and the future of a struggling Chrysler corporation remains uncertain, students must now determine the leading issues which will surface in the upcoming Michigan presidential primary. Compounding this uncertainty is Massachusetts Senator Edward M. Kennedy, who is not yet a declared candidate for the democratic presidential nomination.

In what may be recorded in history books as the most important election year since the 1930s, one wonders why the issues have failed to be addressed by the bulk of the leading candidates, including Senator Kennedy. Failure to address the issues, and running an election campaign on charismatic hype, are two of the major factors that seated President Carter in the oval office and may do the same in 1980 with Senator Kennedy.

Of course, it only matters if Senator Kennedy decides to run. Almost all of the nation's leading polls state Senator Kennedy ahead of President Carter and other democratic contenders, with approximately 53 percent of the vote. Kennedy is now leading Carter in every geographic region of the country except the South, where Carter still maintains a slight but dwindling lead.

One would naturally tend to assume that nationwide support for Kennedy can be correlated to an approval of his political views. In this case, that is a most presumptuous assumption. Maybe a few days before the election (should Kennedy decide to run), he will make his views and opinions known to the public-at-large.

Several observers of Kennedy's actions argue that he is taking the middle-of-the-road stance to ward off those who oppose his consistently liberal tag. One wonders if Kennedy will attempt to destroy his liberal attire in favor of a more fashionable wardrobe of textured conservatism. With the growing shift to the right in American politics, it is obvious that Senator Kennedy is desperately trying to stay abreast of the whimsical tides of opinion bubbling in the American people. Does this shift to the right include such legislation as the Official Secrets Act, which would give the federal government discretion in withholding certain information from the public? Support of this bill could be misinterpreted as an effort to conceal the possibility of a future democratic Watergate. The Republican administration of Richard Nixon considered Watergate's actions (before made public) very official, and very secret, but a bill protecting their actions would have been most inappropriate. Senator Kennedy is also the primary sponsor of a bill to establish a new charter for the FBI. Once again Kennedy's thoughts fail to surface here. It is very difficult to support merely a new charter for the FBI when the fundamental principles which established the bureau need to be reworked from top to bottom.

The last thing needed to add fuel to the Kennedy fire is the continued media hype he has received in the past. Since almost a year ago — when the name Kennedy was mentioned in the cloakroom of the House of Representatives — the media has pounded on many of Kennedy's actions with a host of journalistic interpretations. The mere Kennedy name produces a general mystique among reporters, and a glare in Walter Cronkite's eyes that leads one to think Kennedy actually deserves top billing on the evening news. Though the job of the press is to report the news, many reporters, eager for a name and drunken by the aura of a Kennedy, have made this story a gilded item hot on the political calendar of 1979. Though Senator Kennedy has tried to maintain his position of indecision, it is this indecision that has forced the American people to brace themselves for what may be the best theatrical show in quite some time.

Let us not allow the same tragedies of the 1976 election to resurface in the 1980 campaign. Ambitious to destroy the remnants of the good old days of Watergate, the nation jumped at the chance to bury its conscience and the Republican party with a simple stroke of the pen in a ballot box.

Student vote must stand

The stature of student government took a turn for the worse last Wednesday, as RHA President Chris Hoffman told the group's representatives that residence halls will not boycott Nestle products. One small point must not be ignored in all this — students voted last spring to boycott Nestle products in campus cafeterias.

RHA management apparently claims voter turnout was far too low to adequately represent students, and so they will continue to buy and use Nestle products in their menus. If the percentage of voter turnout was to be such a prime consideration in national voting procedures, the United States would most likely not have a president, state governors, or any local government officials. The fact is that presidential elections — particularly in the past 10 years — do not usually elicit more than 30 percent of the registered vote. And if we can thrust the major leader of this country into office with less than one-third of the available vote, we can most certainly give up Nestle's cocoa if the majority of the students who voted want it deleted.

Furthermore, we urge representatives from the Residence Hall Association to strongly protest this decision. If the Association is to have any spine, any credibility and any future as the voice of the students, they must use any and all available methods to see that this management decision does not go uncontested. The Residence Hall Association was created, after all, as the voice of students living in residence halls. If they were, as suggested by Hoffman, to strike-up a petition drive to eliminate Nestle foods from the cafeterias, this is one way of admitting that residence hall residents as a group have no power. RHA was the petition. It was decided last year to boycott Nestle foods. Let it rest there.

At the same meeting, the more likely reason for the boycott nix was uncovered when Residence Hall Manager Robert Underwood mentioned the "heavy financial impact" which would result should Nestle products be struck from University food lists. Students decided, by their vote, not to support a company which produces sub-standard infant formula and sells that mixture for astronomical prices to third world countries. In an age of increased student apathy, this is one issue concerned students wanted to decide. It would be a shame indeed, if RHA were to discourage student activism by telling their constituents their vote does not count. If RHA discards this vote, then let them also discard the student vote next spring, when students lift a candidate to that coveted office in Student Services Building.

The past year was a rather dismal one for student issues. RHA made few strong stands in defense of student rights. It would appear that, at least in the case of RHA, this has not changed. We urge the group to act on this blatant denial of student concerns, and protect the wishes of the students they were elected to serve.

Brilliant thoughts that anyone could think of ... How come the copying machines in the Union are 15 cents while the ones in the Library are only 5 cents?

... The most overplayed songs of the summer were: "Is She Really Going Out With Him?" by Joe Jackson; "My Sharona," by The Knack; and "Gold," by John Stewart and Stevie Nicks.

... Did you know that singer Carly Simon's father is the Simon of "Simon & Schuster" publishing in New York?

... According to the Simmons Market Research Bureau, the ten most frequently purchased items in today's grocery stores are: toilet tissue, laundry detergent, bread, soap, eggs, salt, aluminum foil, flour, mayo, and fresh milk.

... I can't decide which was the biggest disappointment of the summer: Skylab or "The Amityville Horror."

... Was there anything sadder this summer than venerable Jack Nicklaus finishing 65th in the PGA at Oakland Hills?

... Yes, there was: the picture of Thurman Munson's 4-year-old son Michael in a little New York Yankees uniform at Thurman's funeral.

... I think the University should give a

VIEWPOINT: CRIME

Snowballs, clubbing, riots and other relevant issues

By SCOTT FISHER

Two colorfully-garbed figures dart through the streets at twilight in their constant vigil for wrong-doers doing no-rights.

"Holy spherical slush," exclaims Robin, the Wonderful Boy, "that juvenile just hurled a globular assemblage of light, frozen particles of precipitation at that accelerating automobile. That's illegal. What shall we do, Batman?"

"Quick, Robin," directs the quick-thinking pillar of justice in blue and black, "hand me the Bat Criminal Magnet."

"Holy praiseworthy stratagem, Batman, not the Bat Criminal Magnet — that ingenious and thoroughly effective crime-fighting device which draws unwilling law-breakers to their deserved confrontation with justice!"

"Yes, chum, the Bat Criminal Magnet, and hurry before the young incorrigible reigns further mayhem on the upright, law-abiding inhabitants of this fair university."

"Holy blunder of blunders, Batman, I just remembered — the Bat Criminal Magnet is in my spare pair of Bat Skivvies. Alfred is ironing them."

"Don't fret, Wonderful Boy. The Bat Criminal Magnet is probably not the most advantageous article for this situation, anyway. We don't want to attract a crowd."

"Holy alternatives, Batman, now what?"

"With haste, Robin, the Bat Instant Penitentiary — my incredibly inventive, dehydrated, fit-in-any-Bat Pocket prison, which, upon the addition of ten milliliters of lukewarm, fluoridated water, expands into a maximum security facility with well-trained personnel, room for one hundred inmates, and a lit baseball diamond."

"But no guard dogs."

"Right, chum."

"Holy vulgar equivalent of feces, Batman, I assumed that was a Bat Aspirin."

"Be calm, chum, and don't drink anything."

"Batman, we have yet to deal with the perpetrator."

"Um... what did we bring, anyway?"

"Only this, Batman."

"A snub-nosed .38. Well, it will have to suffice." The cowed crusader levels the firearm at the offender and fires: KERPOW (registered Bat Noise. Used by permission). The infractor is cut in half.

"Holy precision, Batman, that's one criminal who will trouble these fair streets no longer."

"Right, Robin. There comes a time when a crime fighter must put away the toys and really annihilate someone."

"That's a valuable lesson, Batman."

"A fundamental, Robin. Let's get a beer."

"But I'm underage, Batman."

"So we lie a little."

Amanda attended the "Fry Underson" rally, designed to prompt the governor to order the electric chair execution of Harmon Underson, the notorious Electric Hedge Clipper Murderer. She spoke hotly, forcefully, and self-righteously in favor of, as she put it, "barbecuing that living scum."

Amanda was wearing her "Save the Hamsters" button. She was head of an ever-growing band vehemently protesting the senseless clubbing of hamsters just so a select few heartless barbarians could have hamster dip. She couldn't understand how any human being could clout a hamster.

Randy Bob's homicidal brother Kevin attended a marvelous outdoor concert last August.

As the singer and his entourage finished their final pre-encore set, the patrons held lit lighters and burning matches and sizzling sparklers overhead. The man behind Kevin wanted to do something pyro-spectacular; he asked Kevin if he would mind terribly being set afire and held aloft. Kevin said, "I would rather not," and, thereafter, ignored him. "The best thing to do when someone wishes to set you aflame," Kevin was wont to tell most everyone, "is to ignore him, especially if he, (like the man behind him,) is lit-up himself."

Defying better judgment, the man persisted and took a match to Kevin's shirt. Kevin flogged him senseless with a Styrofoam cooler then yelled for the singer to play on.

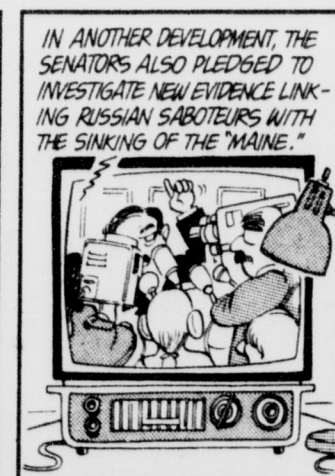

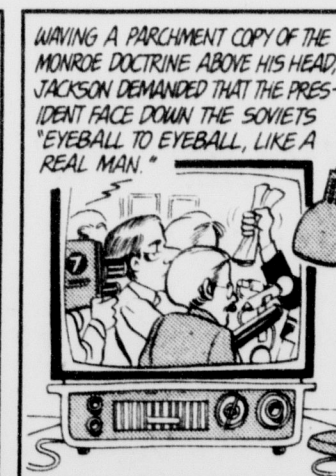

The man later died from the wounds.

Kevin was held by the theatre officials, but after they confiscated his cooler, slugged him around a bit, and told him "bad boy, now behave," they released him. They got a lot of encore-related deaths and they had made an example of the last perpetrator.

RESIDENTS LOSE SUIT

Court OKs drive-in porn movies

By CHRIS PARKS
United Press International
(UPI) — The Michigan Court of Appeals said Monday a judge cannot ban a drive-in's X-rated movie shows merely because they bother nearby residents unless he also finds the films legally obscene.

The appeals court's decision overturned an injunction issued against the owners of a drive-in theater in Lake Township of Huron County.

The House Judiciary Committee will be studying the ruling to determine whether new legislation is needed, the committee's co-chairperson said. Rep. Dennis Hertel, D-Detroit, said he believes the public has some right to protection from offensive displays.

The movie case involved a suit brought against the owners of the Blue Sky Drive-In by nearby residents who complained their children were exposed to the theater's allegedly pornographic shows which were clearly visible from their property.

The Huron County judge did not properly find the films in question to be legally obscene before issuing the injunction, the appeals court said.

"IN SUMMARY, WE find that the exhibition of an obscene movie upon an outdoor movie screen in such a manner that it is visible to adjacent landowners may be abated as a private nuisance," the court said.

"As a prerequisite to this abatement, however, there must be a judicial determination that the movie is in fact obscene applying the standards set forth . . . by the U.S. Supreme Court rather than merely finding it to be offensive to the complainant viewers."

neighbors seek to have enjoined from being shown are in fact pornographic when examined under proper standards, then an injunction prohibiting their exhibition may be issued," the courts said.

Court decisions protecting captive audiences from offensive materials do not apply in the case of a drive-in's neighbors, the panel said. It also said an injunction must be limited to films which were before the court.

Carter cabinet appointments end shake-up

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter formally ended his Cabinet shake-up Monday with formal installation of two former mayors, Moon Landrieu of New Orleans and Neil Goldschmidt of Portland, Ore.

Landrieu, 49, taking office as secretary of housing and urban development, promised to build a "partnership" between the government and private enterprise to rebuild the nation's cities.

Goldschmidt, 39, the new secretary of transportation, said the future looks bright for the post-World War II generation following the civil rights, free speech and anti-war movements of the 1950s and 1960s. He urged Americans "to keep building, to keep growing, to keep loving."

Goldschmidt and Landrieu took office less than 24 hours after Donald F. McHenry was sworn in to the Cabinet-level post of U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, replacing Andrew Young.

"This is really a happy day for me and the country," Carter said at Monday's ceremony for Landrieu and Goldschmidt. He said it would be "impossible to find two men who are more conversant with the crucial issues that face our country."

Goldschmidt said, "For those of us who got our education not on the battlefields of Europe, but on the battlefields of Mississippi, for those of us who got our understanding of higher education from the free speech movement in California, for those of us who had our beliefs challenged by Vietnam, everything in the future looks bright, looks hopeful, looks possible."

Landrieu was accompanied by his wife and nine children. "I hope the photographers have a wide-angle lens," Carter said as the family gathered for the ceremony.

Landrieu, whose appointment drew some controversy over his links to a major real estate developer, said that as head of HUD he would help private enterprise and "be working with those who are working to rebuild urban America."

Jane Fonda and Tom Hayden visit real life 'China Syndrome'

MIDDLETOWN, Pa. (AP) — Hollywood merged with headlines under the looming towers of Three Mile Island on Monday as activist actress Jane Fonda and her husband, Tom Hayden, stopped here on their 50-city anti-nuclear tour.

"It's very moving for me to be here," said Miss Fonda, whose film "The China Syndrome" eerily foreshadowed the accident that crippled Three Mile Island last March.

"I doubt there's any place where people have been made to feel so expendable. That must have been a very shattering experience," she told a group of neighbors on a street corner across the Susquehanna River from the facility.

Miss Fonda said she was not frightened by her first view of the notorious plant. "But if I'd been here during the accident I would have joined with everybody and hightailed it out of here," she added.

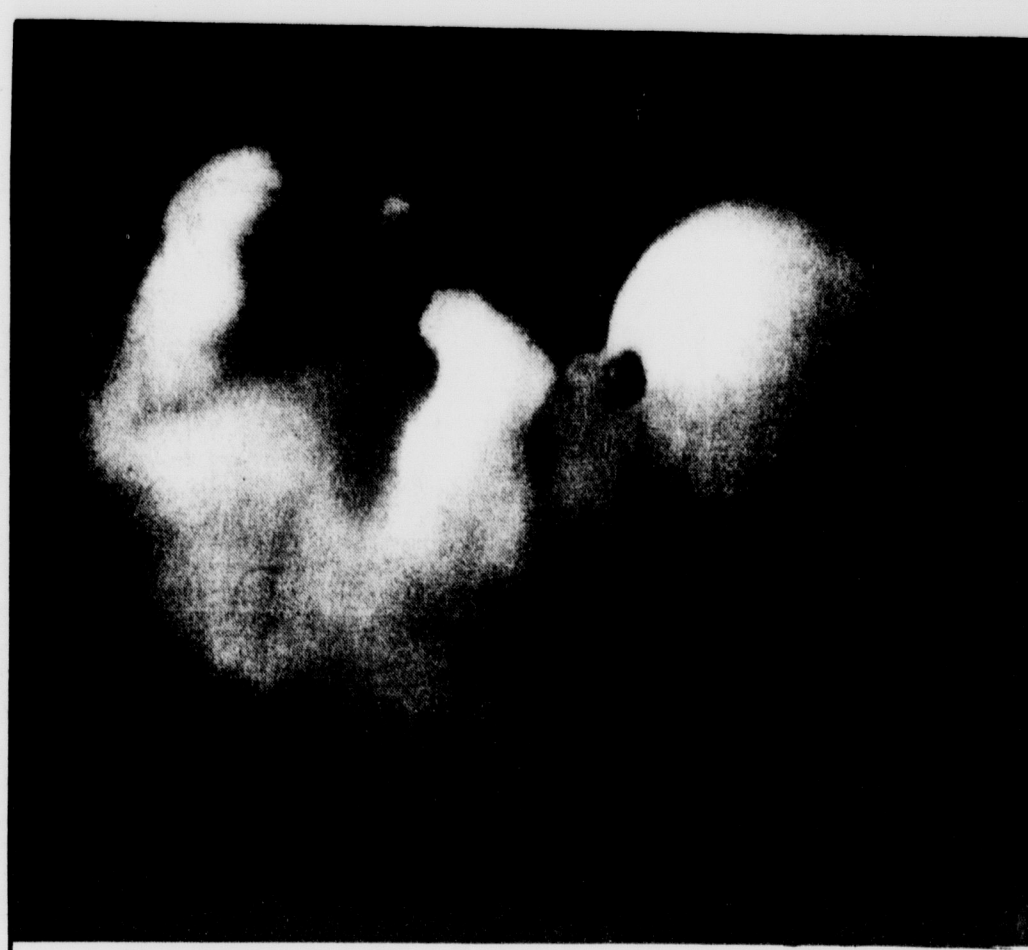

She and Hayden, a leading 1960s student activist, are touring nuclear-dependent areas to encourage discussion of the energy issue among 1980 presidential candidates. On Sunday, she spoke in New York City at the largest anti-nuclear rally ever held.

Hayden, chairman of the Campaign for Economic Democracy, said the California group is trying to create the same kind of "massive citizen consensus" that helped end slavery, achieve women's suffrage and get the U.S. out of Vietnam.

Hayden, whose group arose from his unsuccessful 1976 U.S. Senate bid in California, said Three Mile Island is "a very special place. It is the scene of probably the end of the nuclear age as it plays itself out."

He called for a federal and state commitment to phase out nuclear power, develop new energy resources such as solar, wind, water and biomass, and protect communities during the conversion.

MYTHS DISPELLED

Fetal evolution observed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prenatal monitoring devices, including a method of observing the fetus through a tiny microscope placed in the womb, have dispelled many myths of human development and can identify medical problems before birth, Parents Magazine said Monday.

The magazine published a picture essay of the unborn human fetus photographed by a method called fetoscopy, in which a telescopic device is inserted through the uterine wall.

It said monitoring methods such as fetoscopy and ultrasound scanners that reproduce the shape of an unborn fetus have found humans do not go through the complete evolution of life — from a primitive one-celled organism to a human — in the womb.

"Today it is known that every step in the fetal developmental process is specifically human," the report said.

Positions open on boards

Five East Lansing residents are needed to fill vacancies on three city boards and commissions.

The Housing and Community Development Commission has two openings in unfinished terms ending June 30, 1980 and June 30, 1981. The commission meets monthly to advise City Council on housing programs, review housing code amendments and prepare the annual Community Development application.

Two residents are also needed on the Officer's Compensation Commission; one for the remainder of a term ending Sept. 30, 1981 and one for a full seven-year term. The commission determines the salaries of the city's elected officials in special called meetings after elections.

The Board of Canvassers needs a Republican to finish a term expiring Dec. 31, 1979. The board's two Republicans and two Democrats meet monthly and certify the accuracy of the vote in city elections. All positions are voluntary.

The selection date will be determined by the number of applications received by the Oct. 2 City Council meeting. Applications are available at the City Clerk or City Manager's office, 410 Abbott Road.

MONDAY'S SWEARING-IN ceremony in the White House Rose Garden brought to a close a series of Cabinet changes that began in July when the president fired or accepted resignations from four Cabinet officers following his "domestic summit" meeting at Camp David, Md. Young quit in a later, unrelated controversy over his unauthorized meeting with a representative of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Weatherization workshop to be held for E. L. homeowners

Urban Options will be holding a free home weatherization workshop for East Lansing homeowners on Friday evening and Saturday morning at the home of Shelly Jacobs and Ron Wallace, 603 Sunset Lane.

In the Friday session, 7 p.m. to 9 p.m., participants will learn the various weatherization options open to them and the cost-effectiveness of each.

In the Saturday session, from 9 a.m. to noon, participants will get "hands-on" experience when they learn how to do the actual work themselves.

If ya wuz male, Italian, goin' to Tully High in the Bronx in 1963, and ya wuz sorta tough-minded, innerested in survivin', and had no special idea who ya were, ya probably woulda joined The Wanderers (Orion; at the Meridian Eight Theaters). At least while ya wuz figurin' things out. This way, ya'd get to wear a nifty monogrammed jacket, grease ya hair back, learn to walk like a hard guy (and how to bump into chicks in the street to cop a quick feel), and ya'd have lotsa buddies to defend ya in case ya crossed one of the other gangs.

Like the Del Bombers, a slew a black guys a lot like the Wanderers, except for bein' black. Or, the Wongs, a gang of Chinese kids who all know Judo, and don't even hafta carry a piece (and, they's all related — 27 guys, all with the last name a Wong). Or, the Fordham Baldies, a herd of giant creeps with shaved heads — so they's hair won't fall in they face when they fight. Or, worse of all, the Ducky Boys, cold, ruthless, pint-sized little guys who come at ya in dozens, maybe to make up for the fact that mosta them ain't much over four feet. Yep, with guys like those around... it wuz good to have fellas like the Wanderers to hang out with. That way, ya might make it to eighteen.

This is the cockeyed world — a bitter, aimless time, with the 'fifties not really passed and the 'sixties slowly rolling in — evoked by Richard Price in his celebrated 1974 novel, and it has been vividly captured in a gritty, energetic, darkly humored new movie by Philip Kaufman. The Wanderers, scripted by Kaufman and his wife Rose, owes nothing to the recent cluster of "gang" movies; filmed in a seemingly casual, almost throwaway style (the photography, by Michael Chapman, who shot Taxi Driver and Kaufman's remake of Invasion of the Body Snatchers, is fluid and atmospheric), the picture is off-beat, engaging and frequently terrific.

Though the Kaufmans have altered or condensed many of the events and details of Price's novel, their film remains remarkably true to the book's spirit. Like the novel, though, the movie's narrative unfolds in colorful vignettes — some real, some surreal. We follow Richie

How To Pick Up Girls, circa 1963. The Wanderers is playing at the Meridian 8 Theaters.

(Ken Wahl), the handsome, fast-talking nominal leader of the gang, earnestly preoccupied with getting Despie (Toni Kalem), his steady, to "go all the way" (she's not ready... yet); Turkey (Alan Rosenberg), a Wanderer already looking past high school and trying to break in with the Baldies; Joey (John Friedrich); and Perry (Tony Ganos), a soft-spoken, powerfully built fellow who looks after his alcoholic mother, through a desperate series of urban adventures.

Some of their experiences are memorable. Like the night the Fordham Baldies get drunk and inadvertently join the Marines. Or, when a Civics class discussion on brotherhood erupts into a near riot between the Wanderers and the Del Bombers. Or, when Richie and Joey, utilizing a complicated system of winks, cheat at strip poker with Despie and Nina (Karen Allen). Or, when the big football game between the Del Bombers and the Wanderers is abruptly halted by the mysterious arrival of Ducky Boys carrying clubs and switchblades. Or, the intimate moments between Terror (Erland Van Lidth De Jeude, at 6'6 and 425 lbs.), leader of the Baldies, and his sweetheart, Pee Wee (Linda Manz, a 4'10", 80 lb. waif last seen in Terrence Malick's Days of Heaven).

The Kaufmans, with great wit, originality and stylishness, have caught the sound and feel of a doomed era: the Kennedy assassination, the rise of Bob Dylan and the protest singer, the end of high school and the spectre of the war are all fast approaching — the days of the Wanderers are clearly numbered. They are almost obsolete, and they somehow seem to know this. Kaufman, working with a cast composed of obscures, unknowns and non-actors, has drawn some telling performances from his principals. Wahl, Friedrich, Ganos, Kalem and Allen help to make the Wanderers' moments in the sun important to us — they show us their drives, ennui, frustrations and apprehensions.

Admittedly, it doesn't all work smoothly. Some of the humor falls terribly flat, and a couple of the more surreal reflections on the lives of the gangs come off too curiously similar in tone to moments in Kaufman's Invasion of the Body Snatchers for their own good. But the head and soul of the film is in the right place. Go see The Wanderers... if ya don't, well, the Baldies are probably back from the Marines by now, and they just might come after ya.

American hot wax: local vinyl shops

By JOHN NEILSON
State News Staff Writer

To some people, record albums are a luxury — a harmless if expensive diversion of one's pocket money away from such necessities as Snoopy memo pads and toe socks.

To a lot of us, however, records rank with food and shelter as among the true staples of life — and I don't necessarily mean that they rank BEHIND food and shelter, either. If it ever comes down to a choice between spending my last fiver on a new Elvis album or a Wendy's double-with-everything-minus-the-pickle, chances are I will consider it as good an excuse as any to start a new diet.

The fact that it often DOES come down to a choice such as this, however, means that hard-core record buyers soon come to realize the importance of shopping around before laying out their cash. In this area, thanks to the large student population, the record buyer is in luck. In the few short blocks between Abbott Road and the local Taco Bell there are no less than eight stores that will gladly take your hard-earned cash (or Dad's hard-earned cash) and send you on your way with the newest releases by your favorite artists. (And as if that wasn't enough, a 35 cent bus ticket will enable you to take advantage of the elections at Recordland in Meridian Mall, Marshall Music in the Frandor shopping center, or a number of Lansing record stores, too.

Now, if it was just a question of comparing prices, choosing a favorite store would be relatively easy. However, a store's selection is also an important consideration, because it doesn't matter if the store's price is 50 cents apiece if all they have is Gregorian Chant LPs, and I for one wouldn't want the latest Kansas album if they gave one away free with every gallon of milk at the A&P.

Since everyone has different musical tastes and needs, and since every store in town caters to different markets in differing amounts, we can't pretend to tell you the one best all-around place to stock up on your daily dose of vinyl. Instead, we've decided to give you an alphabetical store-by-store rundown of the East Lansing record market, and leave the rest to you.

See you in line...

• The Disc Shop/Hi Fi Buys (323 E. Grand River Avenue, next to Jacobson's) — The Disc Shop carries a variety of rock, jazz, soul, and disco albums, as well as an assortment of cassette tapes and singles. Recent releases that list for $7.98 sell for $4.99, while those that list for $8.98 are sold for $5.49 to $5.99. Most older LPs retail for $5.99, though once a term the store holds a sale wherein all records sell for $1 less than the marked price.

In addition, the Disc Shop carries an assortment of imported rock and jazz LPs, which vary greatly in price but average between $5.99 and $7.99.

• Discount Records (401 E. Grand River Avenue, near the Campus Theater) — While Discount Records carries a lot of rock, jazz, R&B, folk, and country & western records, their biggest asset is their extensive selection of classical and opera albums, which is easily the largest in town. Their standard price for $7.98-list LPs is $5.99, while their $8.98 list albums sell for $6.99. Discount Records also carries a large selection of cut-out albums, ranging in price from $1.99 on up.

• Elderly Instruments (in the basement of the 541 Building on E. Grand River, below Paramount News) — Elderly specializes in all manner of traditional music, and offers musical instruments, books and lessons as well as records albums.

To a lot of us, records rank with food and shelter as among the true staples of life — and I don't necessarily mean that they rank BEHIND food and shelter, either. If it ever comes down to a choice between spending my last fiver on a new Elvis album or a Wendy's double-with-everything-minus-the-pickle, chances are I will consider it as good an excuse as any to start a new diet.

Their selection includes blues, bluegrass, folk, ragtime, protest music, English/Scotts/Irish folk music, cowboy music and sea shanties in addition to other ethnic and traditional styles. Their selection within their field is unmatched anywhere else in the area, and includes music from small labels that are not carried anywhere else in town. All of Elderly's albums range in price from $2.45 to $6.50.

• Flat, Black & Circular Recycled Sound (also in the 541 Building, though upstairs) — FBC is one of East Lansing's two used-record stores, both of which capitalize on the fact that people tire of some of their albums before they wear them out.

FBC will buy used albums that are in good condition for about $1 (continued on page 7)

There are better ways to handle a tough semester of math.

Choose the Texas Instruments calculator that's right for your major.

When you're working in a specialized field, you need a specialized calculator. That's why Texas Instruments designed the Slimline Business Analyst-II for business and finance... and the Slimline TI-50 for science and math. Each provides the tailored power and the reliability you'll need as you learn to solve the problems you'll face as a professional. And each has a price you'll appreciate as a student.

Slimline Business Analyst-II. Sleek LCD calculator with versatile business capabilities.

Solving financial problems with the Slimline Business Analyst-II can make working with your old calculator seem like pencil-and-paper arithmetic. The functions required to perform many common business, financial and statistical calculations are built in to help you make quick, accurate evaluations of many complex business situations.

Special financial keys are used to handle time and money problems such as compound interest, annuity payments, mortgage loans, investment yields, amortization schedules and more.

Statistical and linear regression capabilities provide the power you'll need to boil down data and automatically handle problems such as sales and earnings forecasts.

Profit margin calculations concerning cost, selling price and margin can be performed rapidly when any two of the variables are known. Other features include a four-function data register with Constant Memory™ feature that retains its contents even when the calculator is turned off. Two miniature batteries provide up to two years of operation in normal use. And TI's APD™ automatic power down feature helps prevent accidental battery drain.

The Business Analyst-II, with detailed owner's manual and suede-look vinyl wallet with pockets for notes, $45.00*.

The Slimline TI-50 packs 60 powerful functions into a handsome, compact package.

The pocket-portable Slimline TI-50 is a remarkably powerful LCD slide-rule calculator. Yet it's as thin as a pencil and weighs only three ounces!

Its 60 versatile functions can help you handle a wide range of college math problems. Capabilities include common and natural logarithms. Six trigonometric operations that can be performed in three angular modes (degrees, radians or grads). Two constant memories that retain their contents even when the calculator is turned off. And more.

Seven built-in statistical functions simplify the task of boiling down large sets of data points so you can perform accurate analyses and draw reliable conclusions.

The power of the Slimline TI-50 is made easy to use by TI's AOS™ algebraic operating system, which provides 15 sets of parentheses and accepts up to four pending operations. That means you can enter most problems just as they're written, left to right.

Two miniature batteries provide up to two years of normal operation. And TI's APD™ automatic power down feature helps prevent accidental battery drain.

The Slimline TI-50 includes a detailed owner's manual and a durable vinyl wallet, $40.00*.

Make sure your next calculator has the specialized power to handle the problems unique to your major. See the Business Analyst-II and the Slimline TI-50 at your college bookstore or other TI dealer today.

'BEATLEMANIA'

Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Clone Band

By BILL HOLDSHIP
State News Reviewer

Some random observations on Beatlemania — the "big Broadway multi-media hit" — at Pine Knob last Saturday night:

Although it makes me feel a big guilty to admit it, Beatlemania really is an entertaining and enjoyable stage presentation. While it hardly compares to John, Paul, George, Ringo . . . and Bert (a fictionalized biographical play which won the British equivalent of the Tony award for best play in 1976 — and then failed to ever open in America!), Beatlemania holds far more reverence for the Fab Four's music than either the stage or film productions of Robert Stigwood's atrocious Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band.

And yet reverence is a word I use rather hesitantly in association with Beatlemania. Oh, it's apparent that the four young Beatle clones must have been super Beatlemanics, watching films like A Hard Day's Night, Help and Let It Be a hundred times over to get their characterizations down so perfect. The multi-media techniques are effective in portraying the Beatles' spot at the center of '60s culture, particularly the psychedelic sequence and a startling scene which combines a rousing "Helter Skelter" with all the uglier aspects (i.e., napalm, assassination, Manson, etc.) of that decade.

But in the end, Beatlemania is nothing more than a '60s equivalent of Sha Na Na, and it fails miserably by transforming the Beatles and the romance they symbolized into a commercial commodity. (In fact, Variety magazine reports this week that the same people who produce the Sha Na Na syndicated TV show are planning a weekly series based on Beatlemania, and the pilot will air sometime in January. God forbid! I'd rather watch reruns of the old Beatles' cartoon series.) As long as there are Beatle clones to play the parts, there can always be a Beatlemania, and the illusion can be preserved intact. The only things missing are the emotion and the magic.

Interestingly enough, the biggest entertainment wire story so far this week has been another in a long series of Beatle reunion rumors. Three weeks ago, Sid Bernstein — the promoter of the historic Shea Stadium concert — took out a full-page ad in the Sunday New York Times, urging the group to do three TV concerts to raise up to $500 million for the Indochinese boat people. While I sincerely doubt that the concerts will ever happen (Bernstein took out a similar ad three years ago asking the Beatles to aid the children of Biafra), I have to agree with Lester Bangs' statement that a Beatles' reunion would probably be the biggest anti-climax in the history of the world. Too much has happened for it to ever be the same again.

"The closest Western civilization has come to unity since the Congress of Vienna in 1815 was the week the Sgt. Pepper album was released . . . For a brief while, the irreparably fragmented consciousness of the West was unified, at least in the minds of the young."

— Langdon Winner
"If the Beatles were greater than Jesus Christ, what does that make Farrah Fawcett-Majors?"

— Lester Bangs

In our present state of cultural "advancement," we have totally lost perspective of what the Beatles were and meant. I don't care if they have sold the most Capitol singles since "I Wanna Hold Your Hand," the Beatles most certainly weren't the Knack with their sexist lack of emotion. And I can only laugh hysterically when I read that the Bee Gees — poor Beatle imitations to begin with — have tied a Beatle sales record with their Minnie Mouse-on-helium vocal impersonations. Everyone from Led Zeppelin to Jethro Tull to Peter Frampton to the next sensation to come along have broken a Beatle box office record, but what the Beatles meant transcends volumes sold.

The Beatles weren't disco or Travolta or Star Wars or Charlie's Angels. The Beatles weren't "Magic" Johnson. The Beatles weren't Beethoven or Mozart. Unfortunately, the Beatles weren't even Costello, Springsteen or the Rolling Stones. The Beatles, in fact, transcended rock 'n roll, although — in the end — they demonstrated that rock 'n roll can't change the world, but it can change the way one looks at that world.

And still — despite Wings, despite everything we now know — people long for a reunion, or at least for a return to something familiar from the past as our own times grow progressively worse. Thus, we have virtually thousands of Elvis clones in the United States alone, and now Beatle clones, despite the fact that the only "looking back" the Beatles ever endorsed was to "Get Back" to the roots — advice which the new wave seems to have taken to heart. But to quote a woman sitting behind me at Pine Knob Saturday night: "This is better than seeing the Beatles 'cause the real Beatles are fat and old."

Just as the late '60s weren't made for Elvis Presley, the late '70s weren't made for the Beatles. The Beatles weren't right for Watergate conservatism, economic problems, narcissism, pessimism, fatalism, (bagism, shagism) and total hopelessness of this decade. You see, the Beatles ruled during an era where — despite the harsh realities of the time — beautiful romance ruled supreme.

Three years ago, I wrote an article on the significance of the Beatles. I think I said it best then, so once again — The Beatles? They once reflected everything we were, everything we will be, and everything we could ever hope to become. They told us that all we need is love, and set out to save the world with the love of their music. The funny part is they actually made us believe it. What's funnier is maybe they were right. Ah, but we were so much younger then, we're older than that now.

This isn't the Knack. This is the band Paul McCartney was in before he formed Wings and died. Remember?

East Lansing's record market

— $2 per disc, depending on condition, rarity and demand. These are then resold at the slight mark-up, usually selling for $1.50 — $3 (although rarer discs and collectors items sometimes go for more).

In addition to rock, jazz, classical and assorted other albums, FBC also recycles singles, music magazines, books, and tapes. Local new wavers should also note that the store carries an assortment of new wave singles from small, independent labels.

• State Discount (two locations: 211 E. Grand River, across from the Union, and 545 E. Grand River, next to Paramount News) — While not record stores in the strictest sense of the term, both State Discount outlets carry a selection of the most popular rock, soul, and jazz chart albums.

$7.98-list albums sell for 4.59 each, while $8.98 LPs go for $5.19 or $5.79. In addition, both stores have regular advertised specials wherein selected albums will sell for as low as $3.98.

• Wazoo records (223 Abbott Road, next to the State Theater) — Wazoo also deals in used records, buying and selling at prices that are roughly the same at FBC. Once again, all records are guaranteed to be in good playing condition, and exchanges will be made for defective purchases. Wazoo carries an assortment of rock, jazz, soul, and classical LPs.

• WhereHouse Records (220 M.A.C. in the University Mall) — WhereHouse has an extensive selection of rock and new wave releases, as well as jazz, soul, and R&B albums. A spokesperson said the store wants to be known as THE rock store. Recently released $7.98 albums sell for $4.99 and $8.98 LPs sell for $5.49, though older albums usually sell for $5.69 to $5.99. Also there are usually advertised specials on certain new releases. WhereHouse, too, carries a variety of imported rock albums, and they have recently instituted a policy of giving away a free protective outer sleeve with each purchase.

NOTRE DAME NEXT OPPONENT

MSU faces 'meat' of schedule

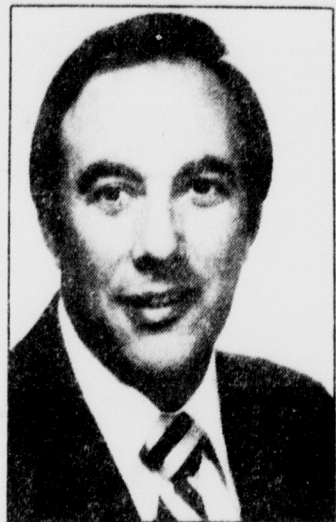

By ADAM TEICHER
State News Sports Writer

The party is now over for the MSU football team. After opening with two teams that won three games between them a year ago and a third team from the Mid American Conference, the Spartans now head into a five-game stretch that will determine their fate.

Saturday's meeting will be with the University of Notre Dame in South Bend, Ind. Then come four consecutive Big Ten contests beginning with the University of Michigan and ending with Ohio State University. In between those two games, the Spartans will meet pre-season conference favorite Purdue University and the University of Wisconsin.

"We want to build upon the positive things we have done because we have the meat of our schedule ahead of us," MSU coach Darryl Rogers said. "With the next five games that we have, I suggest that we get our things together. The conference games are the most important in the long run, but we always say the most important game is the one coming up next so Notre Dame is the most important," he continued.

ROGERS THINKS THAT last Saturday's close call against Miami of Ohio, where MSU scored the winning touchdown with 1:25 left in the game, may have been good for the Spartans.

"We escaped with the victory and our football team now knows the feeling of losing because we were losing for nine minutes in the fourth quarter," he explained. MSU has now won ten straight games, including seven last season.

Although the Spartans were able to grab a victory against Miami when they didn't play well, they probably won't have that luxury when they play the Irish. MSU got off to a 17-0 lead at the half against the Redskins, but as Rogers said, "we let up mentally and Miami came out and played excellent football. Our intensity dropped off in the second half."

The Redskins rallied to take a 21-17 lead in the fourth quarter before quarterback Bert Vaughn connected with Mark Brammer from six yards out for the winning touchdown.

Rogers said that he won't know until later in the week whether Morten Andersen will return for the Notre Dame contest. The sophomore place-kicker aggravated a back injury two weeks ago against the University of Oregon and did not play in the Miami game.

HE WAS SORELY missed because reserve kicker Rich Schario blew two easy field goals. Because Schario does not have Andersen's range on long distance kicks, the Spartans were also forced to try for the first down several times on fourth down when they were too close to the Miami goal line to punt.

The first diagnosis on Andersen was that he would have to remain in traction for 10 days, which means he would have to pass up the Notre Dame game. But now his injury is not believed to be very serious and Rogers left open the possibility that Andersen may be back on Saturday, if just to kick field goals and extra points.

Varsity meetings

The Varsity 'S' Club has scheduled its first meeting for 6:30 p.m. Sunday at the Varsity Club Room on the west side of the stadium. All Varsity 'S' Club members and all letter-winners are invited to attend.

Students interested in trying out for the men's or women's bowling teams should sign up anytime at the Union Lanes.

Candidates for the MSU women's varsity and jayvee basketball team should report to Rm. 137 in the IM Sports-Circle at 3 p.m. Wednesday, not Thursday, as was reported in Monday's State News.

Gregory Kelser picks off a rebound in his professional debut Sunday night in the Lansing Civic Center. Kelser scored a game-high 23 points as the Pistons won the exhibition contest against the New York Knicks, 104-95.

State News/Richard Marshall

ED PETRUSKA

Magic act underway in L.A. as Earvin impresses in debut

Editor's Note: Ed Petruska is a 1977 MSU graduate, presently working as the sports editor of the Casa Grande Dispatch, Casa Grande, Ariz. Petruska covered Earvin Johnson's first game with the Lakers, which was played at the Los Angeles Forum Sunday.

Earvin Johnson buttoned his shirt and pulled on his trousers while talking and joking with the small crowd gathered around him. "They were here first," he said to a Los Angeles sports writer who wanted a quick word. At the same time the Magic Man motioned to a television camera man and his sidekick.

The reporter mumbled something and Johnson said: "Hey, I'll talk to you after they're done. I've got to talk to you. You're from my home newspaper."

"I'm ready," Johnson announced moments later to the TV reporters. Their bright lights popped on and Magic flashed his famous smile almost simultaneously. With the ease and coolness of a veteran, Johnson fielded their questions, grinning all the while.

JOHNSON AND HIS team, the Los Angeles Lakers, had just defeated the Phoenix Suns, 119-111, Sunday night in the first exhibition game of the season for both squads. It was Magic's pro Kelser, now with the Detroit Pistons, made famous.

"That's a hard play. It's not as easy as it looks on TV," Johnson said. "Maybe next year I'll find a guy that can do that."

What better "guy" for that play than one Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, the 7-foot-1-inch Laker center? The big man was slowly getting dressed when the question was posed.

"It's more of a timing thing — something that has to be perfected over time," said Jabbar. "It's just not another play that you can put in the book overnight."

Jabbar, the veteran, was impressed with Johnson, the rookie. "He's a guy that can generate his own offense," said Jabbar.

"He's still surprising people on this team — tonight, guys missed passes because they weren't aware the passes were possible."

As everyone knows, Johnson passed up his last two years of college eligibility to make a living playing the game he loves. But that doesn't mean the old college spirit has departed from Magic's soul. Traditionally, NBA players are a stoic lot. But here were the Lakers, led by Earvin Johnson, slapping hands and cheering after baskets and good plays.

"Does your enthusiasm for the game affect the rest of the team?" Johnson was asked.

He paused and reflected before answering. "I was jumping up and down and clapping just like a cheerleader," Johnson recalled with a laugh. "I think the guys liked it. I think my enthusiasm is rubbing off."

Magic was asked if he remains in touch with Kelser, the other half of Michigan State's dynamic duo. "I was going to call him," said Johnson. "You know, he's playing his first exhibition game, too."

SOMEONE ASKED JOHNSON if he eventually wanted to play for the Pistons and team up with Kelser once again. "Right now, I just want to be happy in L.A. Besides, Detroit doesn't have that man over there," said the Magic Man, pointing to Jabbar.

What's the difference between college and the NBA, a writer asked.

"It's no easy chore, guarding someone like (Paul) Westphal every night," answered Johnson. "If you blink for just a second, you get burned."

debut and the first real game he had played since last March, when his Michigan State Spartans crunched Indiana State and Larry Bird to capture the national championship. So how is Earvin making the transition from college to the NBA? Just fine, thank you.

"Magic played very well," said Laker Coach Jack McKinney. "He played intelligently on defense and he ran the offense pretty well."

"I thought Johnson played well," agreed Phoenix Coach John MacLeod. "He was very quick and mobile, made some excellent passes and showed that he's a better shooter than a lot of people thought."

Johnson played 26 minutes in his NBA debut, scored 17 points, 17 of 10 field goals, 3 of 4 free throws, dished out 5 assists, and grabbed 5 rebounds.

"It's a learning process for me," said Johnson. "I have to learn the Laker offense and the man-to-man defense. I didn't feel any pressure tonight, even though it was my first game. I just went out and played my game."

Magic didn't start, but was inserted into the contest with 4:58 remaining in the first quarter. With 3:58 left in the frame, Johnson netted a shot from the base line for his first professional field goal.

His first assist was vintage Magic. Working it in near the L.A. basket, Johnson leaped high as if to get off a shot, but instead passed it underhand to forward Kenny Carr, who slam dunked. The crowd loved it.

AFTER THE GAME, Johnson was asked if Los Angeles was going to institute the back door lob pass that he and Gregory

Grand Valley poses first threat as spikers open regular season

By BILL TEMPLETON
State News Sports Writer

The 1979-80 edition of the MSU women's volleyball team takes to the court at 4 p.m. today in their home opener against Grand Valley State College.

Head coach Annelies Knoppers said the Spartan spikers are ready for the Lakers following a weekend of rest and a rigorous pre-season.

"The girls should be fresh and ready to play today," Knoppers stated. "We worked hard in the pre-season and we're hoping that the work will pay off for us."

KNOPPERS NOTED THAT Grand Valley has lost some of its height from a year ago and that their ability to "scramble and get almost anything back" will be a concern for MSU.

"They lost Kim Hansen to professional basketball," Knoppers said, "but they are a fine defensive team. It will be up to our offense to try and stop them defensively."

Young harriers have experience

By JEFF HITTNER
State News Sports Writer

The names and faces of a year ago will be the same, but the results promise to be much different when the MSU cross country squad opens the 1979 season today.

The Spartans, who return six letterwinners off last year's team that finished 2-6 in dual meets and sixth in the Big Ten, host Eastern Michigan University at 4 p.m. on the Forest Akers West Golf Course.

"We're much improved over last year," said MSU coach Jim Gibbard, who begins his 11th year at the helm. "Hopefully we'll move up to the number two or three team in the Big Ten."

Gibbard has good reason to think so. His top four runners of a year ago are back and a newcomer is fighting for the fifth spot with the other two returning linemen.

The Spartans are led by the finest group of sophomores in the conference. Mark Mesler of Grand Blanc was the Big Ten's 18th-place finisher in 1978, followed by Martin Schulist of Whitehall (25th) and Michael White of Jackson (29th). The trio will battle for the No. 1 spot on the team.

THE ONLY SENIOR on the squad is Keith Moore of Ottawa, Ont. He is a veteran of two seasons with the cross country team and three with the indoor-outdoor track units.

Newcomer Todd Snow of Jackson rounds out Gibbard's top five harriers for the EMU meet. Snow finished third in the State Class A prep cross country championship last fall.

Ted Unold of Westland and Tim Kerr of Dearborn, both previous letterwinners, make up the sixth and seventh spots, respectively.

The Hurons will not be as strong as the team that defeated the Spartans by an 18-43 score last season at Ypsilanti. Gone are EMU's top two runners of a year ago, Rodger Jones and Keith Ferguson. They were the key in the Hurons' 4-1 season mark.

Gibbard rates Indiana University and the universities of Michigan and Wisconsin as the schools to battle for the Big Ten crown.

WISCONSIN AND INDIANA finished third and eighth, respectively, in the NCAA Championships last year. Wisconsin also took their second straight conference title.

"The Big Ten usually has a team in the top three or four nationally," Gibbard said. "I expect the same again this year."

All the more reason why a high conference finish by the Spartans this year would mean so much.

"We will be shifting the girls around against Grand Valley," Knoppers continued. "We have not yet determined who will start for us, and this match will allow us to see a lot of people."

Knoppers said the Spartans have three goals for today's match and if they can be accomplished, the spikers should be on their way.

"We're going to try and control our service reception so that we can set up our offense," Knoppers said. "We're also going to try to run some of our plays that we couldn't run last weekend and thirdly, we're going to try not to let Grand Valley out-scramble us."

Knoppers spoke very highly of her club in regards to the depth on the bench that the Spartans possess.

"We have a very strong team this year," Knoppers added. "I can substitute almost anywhere and with our versatility, we don't lose any strength."

"Last week, for instance, we found out that one of our best setters was also an excellent defensive player," Knoppers said. "We just have so much depth."

KNOPPERS CONCEDED THAT if there is a weak cog in the machinery of the team, it stems from the fact that MSU might not respect their opponents as much as they should.

Knoppers said the team's season long goal is to make use of the game to game strategies.

"We've got our three things to key on today," Knoppers said, "and after today we'll just use a kind of staircase progression upward. Once we've worked the bugs out of a spot we're weak at, we'll move on."

Knoppers' team was the runner-up in last year's state meet and should challenge for the title again this year.

"We've got the University of Waterloo coming in on Thursday," Knoppers said, "and then we're hosting the 11-team Spartan Invitational Friday and Saturday."

All of the MSU home games are played in the IM Sports-West Arena. Admission is free for today's match.

Basketball telecasts set

By BILL TEMPLETON
State News Sports Writer

A third consecutive season of sellouts at Jenison Fieldhouse is anticipated for Spartan basketball home games.

Those people who do not get tickets need not dismay however, as the heaviest television schedule in the history of MSU athletics was announced Monday.

WJIM-TV, channel 6, will telecast 14 Spartan games this year, eight of which will be played at home.

WKBD-TV, channel 50 (in Detroit) and WOTV, channel 8 (in Grand Rapids) will be fed some of the games by WJIM and schedules of these games will be announced later.

THE SPARTANS WILL also be on the Big Ten Game of the Week twice this year, playing at Indiana on Jan. 12 and at home against Northwestern on Feb. 23.

"We are very pleased with this arrangement with WJIM and the other stations," MSU Athletic Director Joe Kearney said. "It is another step in our continuing effort to provide our wonderful fans the opportunity to see our Spartan team in action. They are the best, most loyal fans anywhere."

The television schedule begins on Dec. 20 when the Spartans will play the University of Detroit. The game is scheduled to be played in the new Joe Louis Arena in downtown Detroit, but if the building is not ready at that time, the game will be switched to Jenison Fieldhouse.

More mothers to be employed by '90s

By OWEN ULLMANN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON — Two of every three American mothers will be holding a job in 1990 as the exodus of women from the home to the workplace continues during the next decade, a group of employment experts predicted Monday.

The role of full-time home-maker and mother is becoming the exception rather than the rule, according to six economists and sociologists who have written a book on working women.

The book, "The Subtle Revolution: Women at Work," describes the sharp increase in female employment as a revolution that is affecting "virtually all of our social and economic arrangements."

An estimated 11 million women will be entering the labor market by the end of the next decade, and the majority of them will be mothers, the authors reported.

AS A RESULT, the percentage of married women who will be in the labor force will grow from the current level of just more than half to nearly two-thirds by 1990, according to the book. The same two-thirds percentage is expected to apply to all women who have children living at home regardless of marital status.

An even higher percentage of women who are both married and have children living at home will be in the job market in 10 years, the authors reported. By 1990, "the stereotype of a wife as someone who stays home to look after children will fit only about one quarter" of American wives, said Ralph Smith, an economist who edited the book.

The percentage of women who work has been growing steadily since reliable records first were kept in 1890. In that year, only 18 percent of females over the age of 13 and less than 5 percent of married women were in the labor force.

But the most dramatic exodus of women from the home and into jobs has occurred since the end of World War II, when the percentage of working women has risen from one-third in 1947 to one-half 30 years later, Smith said at a news conference Monday.

WOMEN HAVE BEEN streaming into jobs for a combination of economic and social reason, Smith said. They include a sharply declining birth rate, increased employment opportunities and higher salaries for women, a family's desire to keep up with inflation by having two wage-earners and changing social attitudes about sex roles.

A principal consequence of the increase in working mothers will be the need for more child-care facilities, the authors noted.

During the next decade, there will be 3.1 million more working mother with preschool children. And the number of children under age 6 who will have working mother is expected to rise from a current 6.4 million to 10.5 million — 45 percent of all American children that age.

"Increases of those magnitude... could have tremendous consequences for child care policy, work schedules and other issues that affect an individual's ability to juggle the demands of a job with the demands of a child," Smith wrote.

Social psychologist Kristin A. Moore, one of the authors, said that studies conducted on child care have found no evidence that children of working mothers suffer any harmful effects.

The book was produced with the financial support of the Ford Foundation, American Telephone & Telegraph Corp., Atlantic Richfield Foundation, Columbia Broadcasting System, Exxon Corp., General Motors Corp., and International Business Machines Corp.

Casino's glitter makes Boardwalk glow

By PETER MATTIACE
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The golden glitter of one of Atlantic City's new casinos is causing an unexpected problem on the Boardwalk. Officials say the sun's rays are bouncing off Caesars' new casino hotel and causing fires on the wooden way.

"They put a piece of paper out there one day and it burst into flames," Assistant Fire Chief Joseph Goukler Jr. said Monday. "We think it take a combination of things: the sun being right and the wood being dry and maybe the sap flowing out."

"This doesn't happen in a place like New York because they don't have a Boardwalk," he added.

Officials say some panels of the angular, plexiglass facade around Caesars' new Boardwalk Regency are warping inward, causing the concentration of the sun's rays onto a small area of the Boardwalk.

A SOLAR ENERGY professor told fire officials that temperatures in the treated pine planks can reach up to 400 degrees in areas up to 18 inches in diameter.

Goukler says firefighters have been called out several times to put out small fires and smoldering wood on the Boardwalk.

The heat once reportedly ignited a seat cushion of a pickup truck. On another occasion, Caesars officials tried to cool the boards with water, but the rush of steam set off another fire alarm.

Barefoot bathers scampering from the beach have felt the heat, too.

City Engineer Michael Ingram said the rays have created two "craters" in the wood as big as half dollars. In about a dozen other places, the Boardwalk has scorch marks about 18 inches in diameter.

Officer entrance exam date set

An Oct. 19 deadline has been set for all applicants interested in taking a Foreign Service junior officer entrance examination. The Foreign Service will be giving the exam on Dec. 1 in Lansing as part of the service's annual recruiting drive. All applicants must be United States citizens and at least 20 years old.

Foreign Service officers maintain United States relations with governments around the world.

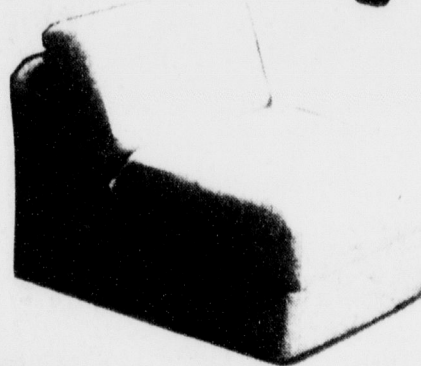

Appointments to various officer positions are made according to the needs of the Foreign Service. These include administrative, consular, economic, political and media-related positions.

Starting salaries for junior officers range from about $13,000 to $18,000.

Examination applications are available at 113 Student Services Bldg.
