Radcliffe may oppose Carr in '80 election

By MICHELLE McELMURRY State News Staff Writer

MSU Trustee Aubrey Radcliffe, announced Wednesday he is "seriously considering" running against U.S. Rep. Bob Carr in the next congressional campaign.

Radcliffe, R-East Lansing, said he was considering seeking the Republican nomination in the Sixth Congressional District because of Carr's position on the presence of a Soviet combat brigade in Cuba.

"Carr's position is the epitome of sheer irresponsibility," Radcliffe said.

Carr is a third term Democrat from East Lansing and a member of the House Armed Services Committee. Last week he told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that the controversy over the Soviet combat brigade in Cuba was "a tizzy over trivia."

CARR WAS QUOTED in U.S. News and World Report on Sept. 24. as saying: "The only danger posed by these troops lies in their apparent ability to provoke some into statements of higher stupidity. . .

The Soviet troops in Cuba are "insignificant since ther is no way they can get the strength to attack us," Carr said.

"We have 4,700 troops in Turkey, which is right next door to the Soviet Union. Our troops there don't threaten the Soviets and theirs in Cuba don't threaten us," he added.

Radcliffe said he "strongly objected" to Carr's position because he viewed the Soviets as a threat to U.S. security.

He said the Soviet presence in Cuba is a clear violation of the Monroe Doctrine, which forbids foreign military intervention in the Western Hemisphere.

"AS AN AMERICAN and a military veteran, my position is that the arrogant presence of the Soviet military power in Cuba should be removed from the Western Hemisphere immediately," he said.

Radcliffe said Thursday he also has other reasons for opposing Carr, but that he would not disclose them at the present

Though Radcliffe has not made a final decision on seeking the Republican nomination, he said he thought he was qualified for

He said he is not worried about a campaign against Carr, despite Carr's popularity in the East Lansing area. "I'm pretty popular too," Radcliffe said.

Lansing teachers defy Gidding's injunction

By ROLAND WILKERSON State News Staff Writer

Lansing teachers met Thursday night and voted to defy Ingham County Circuit Court Judge James Giddings' injunction requiring them to end their three-week-old strike and return to school today.

Giddings issued his injunction at a show-cause hearing in Mason late Wednesday night.

Although the teachers currently do not have a contract, Giddings directed that they work under the old agreement, with a 6.5 percent increase in pay, the latest figures the Lansing Board of Education has offered.

The increase will raise beginning teachers salaries from $11,053 to $11,771 and average teachers' salaries from $18,046 to $19,774.

He also ordered that they would work under the tentative agreements of the new contract, until a final settlement can be

DURING THE TWO day hearing, lawyers haggled over whether the teachers strike which left 213,000 students homewere on "strike" in the legal sense of the word and if the strike would cause "irreparable damage" to Lansing school

An injunction could be issued only if those two conditions were proven to be evident. Giddings said.

After hearing testimony from a variety of witnesses, Giddings determined that the teachers were on strike and that students will suffer irreparable harm if the strike

Maggie Blair, the Lansing mother that initiated the suit filed with four other Lansing parents, testified that she had been told by LSEA President Beth Monteith the teachers were not working because they did not have a contract - one of the criteria used in determining if a strike is in progress. Giddings also cited the testimony of an MSU professor who spoke as an expert on children's behavior. Donald Melcer, professor of child and family science, said that staying home from school would have a "major impact" on the child's trust relationship with teachers.

Melcer said the trust may never be totally restored as a result of the strike.

DAVID HAARER, ASSISTANT superintendent of special education in the Ingham County Intermediate school district, said that if the strike was to continue, students with mental and physical handicaps could regress because of lack of therapy.

Haarer testified that students would have to attend schools on Saturdays if the strike was to go past Oct. 2.

'Lifeline' bill supporters rally

By BRUCE BABIARZ

State News Staff Writer

About 400 persons representing 39 organizations rallied in front of the Capitol Thursday to protest rising utility costs, and to urge state lawmakers to pass utility reform legislation.

The majority of protesters, senior citizens from the Detroit area, came to push for adoption of a Senate "lifeline" rate reform bill, and the controversial consumer intervention funding bill.

The "lifeline" legislation would require utilities to offer low-volume residential consumers a low, fixed price for electricity used for basic household needs.

But the lifeline legislation would force high-volume users to incur the brunt of the costs for using more than "their fair share.

"CONSUMERS ARE FACED with the possibility of interrupted energy supplies, said Sen. Stephen Monsma, D-Grand Rapids, sponsor of the bill.

"Those who use the minimum amount of electricity to run a family (home) should pay a lower rate than those who use excessive amounts of energy," Monsma told the crowd at the Capitol steps.

Monsma said that he is "relatively confident" that students would benefit from

"Yes, it would help fixed, low-income and low-moderate income individuals, and many students fall in those categories," Monsma said in a phone interview.

The "lifeline" bill would abolish the Michigan Public Utilities Commission, and give all powers to the Public Service Commission. The commission's duties would include determining what the basic household utility need is for customers.

The consumer intervention bill would permit public intervention in utility rate cases, and set up a $1.5 to $2 million program to represent customers in utility rate cases. The program would be funded by charging customers 2 cents per month.

"THE UTILITIES ARE so arrogant, they feel they can kill this bill," said Sen. John Hertel, D-Harper. "So arrogant, they feel they don't have to compromise."

"The biggest battles will be on the floor of the House," Monsma said. The crowd at the rally, organized by the Michigan Energy Coalition, listened to Rep. Lucille Mc-Collough, D-Dearborn and members from the MEC, who gave them encouragement in their fight against utility rate hikes.

Profits and equipment in dispute

By MELANIE J. KOTOWICZ State News Staff Writer

After a heated debate the Programming Board decided in a straw vote that Ten Pound Fiddle is entitled to keep assets generated by ASMSU funds, the board chairperson said. At Thursday's meeting the board discussed the matter but did not decide how much equipment and money the group will let Ten Pound Fiddle keep, John Haytol, chairperson said. However, no formal action was taken and the board could change its stance on the matter, deciding to keep the equipment and

Ten Pound Fiddle, a group which sponsors folk music concerts, was a member of the Programming Board until it withdrew last May.

MEMBERS OF THE group believe they are entitled to keep profits earned and equipment purchased with ASMSU funds. Wayne Swick, who represented the group at the meeting, said they joined the Programming Board by verbal agreement by which they were told that profits generated by ASMSU money belonged to the group. He also said when they joined the organization, Ten Pound Fiddle was never told they could not keep revenues earned or equipment purchased with revenues.

Jim Peterson, ASMSU comptroller, said it was of his opinion the equipment and revenue are the property of ASMSU as an organization and not that of Ten Pound

HE BASED HIS opinion on the basis that there was not a written contract between the Programming Board and Ten Pound Fiddle allowing the group to keep the revenues or equipment.

A contract has to be in writing if it involves more than $500 and more than a one-year period, he said, and both of these pertain to the Ten Pound Fiddle, he said. "We are not contractually bound to give them the equipment," he said.

But Colleen M. Hennessey, director of activities for MSU, signed a letter dated June 29, 1978 which stated that Ten Pound Fiddle would be granted ownership of the

SHE SAID SHE signed the letter under the authorization of the Programming Board business office and Tom Church, former ASMSU Comptroller. "I wouldn't have signed it if I hadn't had clearance by them," she said. She also stated that both the Programming Board and Ten Pound Fiddle are unsuccessful in trying to locate Church to clear up the matter. "Hopefully a fair decision will be made in the interest of Ten Pound Fiddle, the Programming Board and the MSU students," she said. According to a written opinion presented at the meeting and written by Jeffrey A. Muhn, co-director of Legal Services, ASMSU has no record of an agreement Programming Board and Ten Pound Fiddle. The letter which was produced at the meeting, stating that the group would take where it is going," he said.

control of the equipment, had only the signature of Hennessey, who said she acted according to orders.

Haytol said the question to answer is to whom did the money belong to begin with. "Since it was the students money to start with, the money should go back to them,"

Haytol added that the board exists to provide a service to the students and that service is provided through programming. "We're not here to make a buck, we're here to provide programming," he said.

HAYTOL SAID HE did not want groups to join the Programming Board with the hopes of getting student tax money and making a profit with it.

Peterson said that Church did authorize a purchase of the equipment with the revenue from the ASMSU account, but he did not sign a letter granting ownership of the equipment to the group and does not "recall" authorizing Hennessey to do so.

Haytol said he is not against the group, but because they chose to leave the organization, they would have to forfeit the benefits they argued. "No where in the Programming Board minutes can I find anyone signing over anything to anybody," he said.

Haytol also said that Hennessey's job is to advise, not to grant equipment. The board will meet and finalize its decision 4 p.m. Oct. 3 in the Union Sun allowing the group to take ownership of the Porch. In making their decision, Peterson warned the board that as members they can be held legally liable for the misappropriations of funds if students feel their tax dollars are not used properly. "Watch out for student tax dollars and

Terrorists bomb home of Argentine official

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) - A dozen masked, uniformed terrorists bombed the home of a top Argentine economic official Thursday and killed two of his guards, authorities said. Six other persons were reported wounded, including four members of the man's family.

The official, Guillermo Walter Klein, and his 12-year-old daughter, Marina, were trapped under the rubble of the two-story brick house for almost three hours after the blast. They were rescued, unharmed, by firefighters and police emergency squads working with cranes.

Klein, 35, is secretary of economic coordination and planning and aide of Economy Minister Jose Martinez de Hoz.

Klein's wife, Pamela: their sons Esteban, 12, Peter, 10, and Matias, 5; and two security officers were removed from the debris shortly after the blast and were hospitalized for treatment of fractures cuts and shock

The security officers, including the two dead men, were not immediately identified. It was not clear whether the two were killed in the blast or in a gunfight with the attackers. Neighbors reported hearing a shootout.

Gold prices send prospectors into hills

(AP) The lust for gold, whetted by a pricetag of nearly $400 an ounce, is sending amateur prospectors into America's hills and canyons and old abandoned mines in mounting numbers.

Every time the price goes up $20 in three days we have another gold rush," said Frank Sullivan, proprietor of the Mother Lode Dive Shop in Sacramento, Calif. It's happened about four times this year.

The price of gold bullion soured nearly $20 an ounce in London on Thursday, reaching a record high of $39.50.

The Gold Rush of '70 may be only a slow stroll compared with the stampede to Sutter's Mill after the big strike there on Jan. 24, 1848, but it's more than just a weekend diversion for the novice with a new plastic pan and a rock hammer.

William C. Butterman, gold specialist for the Bureau of Mines in Washington, said 12 to 15 gold mines have been opened or reopened in the past year. But the only major strike has come in Jerritt Canyon in Nevada, where Freeport Minerals and FMC Corp. hope to have a mine in operation by 1982.

Panama returns bodies of Americans

DALLAS (AP) — Leo Francis Donohue II buried 19 years ago in a cemetery in the Panama Canal Zone, is back in his hometown — because of a little-known provision of the Panama Canal Treaties that requires the bodies of 1,100 Americans to be unearthed and moved.

He had been happy down there and said he'd like to be buried there," said the ship captain's widow. Edna, who lives with their son, Leo Francis Donohue III, in Virginia Beach, Va. We were going to bring him home anyway as soon as we could. We are very glad to have him what we call back home.

According to the State Department, a Senate reservation to the treaties giving ownership of the Canal Zone to Panama called for all Americans buried in Mount Hope Cemetery on the Atlantic side of the zone to be moved to Corezal Cemetery north of Balboa on the Pacific side.

Spokesperson M. J. Spear said 1,126 bodies were moved to Corezal and 12 were shipped to the United States at government expense. Six bodies were moved at family expense to other Panamanian cemeteries and 38 remained at Mount Hope at the request of the families.

Radioactive material ordered removed

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — National Guard troops who took over a Tucson factory when the governor declared a state of emergency loaded radioactive tritium into 55-gallon drums Thursday and sealed them tightly for temporary storage in northern Arizona.

Gov. Bruce Babbitt on Tuesday night ordered the seizure of the American Atomics Corp. plant, which was closed in June amid reports that it was leaking excessive radiation and that $300,000 worth of food at a nearby school had been exposed.

The food, which showed readings above normal levels, was found at the Tucson Unified School District's central kitchen, where daily lunches for 40,000 students were prepared.

The troops, garbed in rubber gloves, coats and boots, worked under the direction of the state Atomic Energy Commission to pack the tritium, a radioactive material used to make self-illuminating signs and watch faces.

The drums were being sealed shut to prevent the release of radiation, said Darrell Warren, an official of the Arizona Atomic Energy Commission. The tritium was valued at more than $500,000.

Student threatens suicide, hold hostages

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - A student holding a pistol to his head burst into a classroom at a business college Thursday and took 30 students hostage, threatening to kill himself, police said. He let most of the students go after an hour and surrendered two hours after that.

Lt. Hugh Shelton said the student tentatively identified as Louis Posey, held a gun to his head during the stand-off. which started at about noon at Knoxville Business College. The man had wanted to come out earlier, Shelton said, but vowed to shoot himself if there was anybody on the street outside.

At 2:50 p.m., police came out of the building escorting the student, a heavyset man in his early 20s wearing a white T-shirt and black pants.

The two negotiators had already talked the man into freeing most of the hostages, but four or five students had voluntarily remained behind, authorities said. Officers said the student had earlier threatened to shoot himself if anyone attempted to leave.

Senate approves 1981 pay rise

By JAY PERKINS and ROBERT PARRY

Associated Press Writers WASHINGTON - The Senate approved without dissent Thursday an amendment that could prohibit any pay raise for members of Congress from going into effect until a new Congress is elected.

Passage of the amendment. offered by Sen. Richard Stone, D-Fla., tossed another factor into the complicated bargaining procedure between House and Senate negotiators who will decide the composition of the final bill

If accepted by both chambers, it apparently would mean that no pay raise voted by the current Congress could go into effect until Jan. 1, 1981 - after all House members and onethird of the Senate have been through the 1980 elections.

AFTER PASSAGE OF the amendment, the Senate took up other provisions of an emergency appropriations bill containing the volatile issue of whether - rather than when -Congress should raise its own figure skaters.

Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, Oct. 1. offered the committee motion to delete the pay raise but warned that his move should not be construed as a vote to reject the pay raise itself. After three unsuccessful tries, the House had voted Tuesday to give members of Congress, bureaucrats and federal judges making at least $47,500 a year a 5.5 percent pay hike, effective next Monday.

IF IMPLEMENTED, THAT raise would mean that current congressional salaries would jump from $57,500 to $60,700 on Quick Senate action on the bill containing the pay issue was necessary because it provides emergency funds to keep the government operating after Sunday, the end of fiscal 1979.

The legislation is necessary because Congress has not passed the regular appropriations bills needed to fund several major departments, including Defense, Transportation, and Health, Education and Welfare.

The House finally approved a 1980 budget Thursday, but apparently not in time to resolve differences with the Senate over defense spending before the start of the new fiscal year next week.

By a 212-206 margin, the House passed a $548.2 billion budget, only slightly leaner than the spending package that the lawmakers rejected last week. Republicans unanimously opposed the budget measure.

THE SENATE VERSION of the budget calls for $546.3 billion in spending and differs from the House budget by calling for sharply higher outlays for defense and cuts in social programs.

House leaders said House and Senate negotiators will not meet to reconcile their deepseated differences until after a week-long House recess.

That means the 1980 fiscal year will begin Monday without a firm budget ceiling in place. But the lack of a budget ceiling is not expected to affect the day-to-day operation of government, since Congress can still appropriate money. In the House vote, 154 Republicans voted against the budget along with 52 Democrats. No Republicans joined with the 212 Democrats in support of the budget.

Dayton Hudson mall rezoning is approved

By DEBBIE CREEMERS State News Staff Writer

The Dayton Hudson rezoning ordinance received unanimous approval from East Lansing Planning Commissioners Wednesday, and went back to East Lansing City Council despite several objections raised at a public hearing on the issue.

The meeting, which ran past midnight, featured presentations by Dayton Hudson consultant Daniel Swantko, city planner Robert Owen, and several traffic, environmental and marketing consultants contracted by the corporation. The Dayton Hudson question, a mall which would be built on a site north of Lake Lansing Road and east of U.S. 127, will make the ballot for a second time this November in an advisory election. Because the unusual vote will be an advisory one, rezoning steps are proceeding as scheduled to speed the construction process.

Owen presented a two-part staff report on the ordinance recommending the rezoning - a move which drew criticism from several members of the audience

SMITH NOTED THE appearance of a positive bias in planning staff reports toward the proposal, citing the lack of any possible negative impacts in the report's conclusion. Smith also criticized the planning department's reliance on materials provided by Dayton Hudson.

Smith stated the ordinance violates many of the objectives recommended by advisory committees on the city's comprehensive plan.

He concluded that an evaluation of environmental and social costs, in additon to the economic and the engineering implications of the proposal, should be addressed by Dayton Hudson consultants and city plan-

Vincent Leone, of 1302 Red Leaf Lane, explained that it "is hard for the planning commission and staff to be objective when they want something so bad.

Leone suggested the elimination of entrances to the mall from Lake Lansing Road would curb many expected traffic problems. "A special exit from the freeway for mall traffic would cut down the traffic fears of homeowners near the mall," he said.

PHYLLIS ANDERSLAND, OF 901 Woodingham Drive, also stressed the potential traffic problem generated by the mall. Andersland said potential problems would have to be resolved before the mall was approved. "It's up to you," Andersland told planning commissioners. "The traffic planners hired by Dayton Hudson and the city planning staff sloughed it.

Ralph Monsma, chairperson of the Planning Commission, listed issues the commission should pursue before site plans are approved, but he told the audience that the hearing is by no means the last on the mall.

Monsma said some of the technicalities raised can only be dealt with later, but he added the commission must have the will to keep potential problems from becoming Commissioner William Beachler asked the planning staff to draw up a "white paper" for MSU students on benefits of the mall.

New future ahead

The stage is set for a very interesting Board of Trustees meeting today. Administrative appointments have set a substantial part of the agenda for the board, aside from its usual tasks of approving gifts and grants and quibbling over the budget. Until two weeks ago, it seemed standard monetary affairs would be the biggest news of the entire board meeting, and observers expected the type of session which would allow plenty of time to catch up on their reading.

President Cecil Mackey, however, has created a virtual administrative whirlwind since he took over in August. His nation-wide efforts to there's only 200 students out there instead of find competent, dynamic figures to fill both administrative and my usual 400. Word must have gotten affirmative action goals have yielded three fruits which the trustees are expected to pluck (and if their comments are any indication, quite enthusiastically) and welcome into the hierarchy of MSU: Joseph E. Dickinson as vice president for development, Moses Turner as vice president for student affairs and services and most recently, Connie Stewart as vice president for University and federal relations.

Stewart appears to have the type of dynamic qualities which could make her stint in the office a huge success. From the little we know of her, she appears to have strong background in radio, newspaper and television, which should help with the various public relations functions which will be thrust upon her. Considering this is where her predecessor buggy economics and aren't enrolling for Robert Perrin fell behind, we have high hopes for her. Also, we feel her position as former director of policy communications with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in Washington D.C. will afford her those federal connections which this University so desperately needs. In an era where financially troubled schools flock to give me a hard time?" legislators for federal support, Stewart's familiarity with federal officials should help with her future lobbying efforts in the nation's capital. Perhaps most importantly, the fact that a woman has finally cut through the age-old biases at this University is an event for MSU to grams celebrate. While it is still a bit too early to be optimistic, we feel Mackey's actions within the past few weeks may open up a new future for MSU.

Michigan primary imposes on rights

With a dwindling number of voters participating in national elections, campaigns should attempt to protect the right of citizens to participate in the voting process. Unfortunately, the policies of the national Democratic Party do not seem to uphold this highly revered principle. Under new party rules, Michigan's registered democratic voters will not be able to cross party lines in the upcoming presidential primary.

With this policy, democrats have made it more than clear that they are running scared toward the 1980 presidential election. Republicans are gaining strength in almost every corner of the country, and the democrats apparently feel they have to resort to drastic measures to retain the momentum they stirred in the 1976 election. Democrats may feel this is the step they have to take, even if it means violating basic party principles.

The people of Michigan must be able to put politics aside, and support the candidate who does the best job of addressing the nation's major isues. If democrats feel they cannot win by addressing the issues and working towards intelligent solutions of these problems, then voters have no choice but to abandon the party altogether.

The problem of declining voting trends, though a very serious one, is a problem that must be addressed on another level. The issue at stake here is the sole freedom of Michigan residents to choose the candidate of their choice — not a candidate selected for them by the national party.

Sticker expired?

As if the MSU parking "follies" were not creating enough of a stir, the Department of Public Safety has announced a plan developed by the University Traffic Committee to ticket all cars displaying expired parking stickers. According to the recent decision, cars will be ticketed even if they display valid stickers in addition to old ones.

This kind of action violates any previous pattern of logic behind the administration of parking stickers. It has long been understood that the purpose of the stickers was to authorize parking in certain areas otherwise restricted to the general public. A valid sticker is supposed to designate an ability to park in a particular area. Under the new rule, a sticker will be honored only if no other sticker is present.

Does the committee have nothing better to do during its meetings other than to devise ways to keep DPS busy and increase the already ridiculous number of parking tickets issued annually at MSU? The reasons behind this new order must be explained to the students if this effort is not going to fall into obscurity as another bureaucratic waste of

Though the Department of Public Safety has made a rather dubious reputation for itself in the past, their latest effort regarding parking permits will not change all that. There could be a logical, understandable reason for these new requirements. Persons issuing parking tickets may be unable to distinguish between last year's permits and this year's. If this is the case, perhaps we should issue DPS officers eye glasses and make them pass standard reading tests instead of inconveniencing community members with this "solution."

"What about accreditation?" he asks. "What would that do to students?"

"Nobody knows for sure," I says. "If nobody knows for sure what effect probation or disaccreditation would have on us students," he grumbles, "why doesn't the business school go ahead and enroll the students who want to take courses and see what happens? That way the students wouldn't have to suffer for some bureaucrat's ineptitude, Lash.

"Hold it right there!" I barks. "The dean and the provost are no dummies. If they didn't know what they're doing, they wouldn't be up there.

VIEWPOINT: DAYTON HUDSON

Mall deceives area voters

By ZOLTON FERENCY

Acting through Shopping Centers Inc., Mall. the Dayton Hudson Corp. is trying to breathe new life into a shopping center smaller version of the shopping mall that was turned down by the voters last year. In an undisguised political reaction to the expressed views of the mall's opponents, in keeping with the highly regarded Dayton Hudson proposes a smaller shopping character, customs and traditions of their center on a site farther back from the highway and a deletion of strip commercial development along the highway. By proposing those changes in the original plan, the shopping center giant is attempting to play smarter politics with the issue. Dayton Hudson apparently figures that if the folks won't go for cancer maybe they'll settle for a

Despite this new political gambit, however, the issue before the people of East Lansing is not whether a shopping center should be larger or smaller, but whether one of the last remnants of our dwindling natural resources ought to be perpetually dedicated to a totally unnecessary use.

The East Lansing Planning Commission is in the process of abandoning its primary function by limiting the debate to the merits or demerits of a private corporation's plan for the exploitive use of scarce land. Once again, the issue is not whether Dayton Hudson has managed to contrive a scheme that is more palatable for present political consumption, but whether the people of East Lansing, acting through governmental representatives charged with that responsibility, can come forward with other potential uses of the land which would have far greater long range benefit than just another shopping center. And Dayton Hudson's project is exactly that - just another shopping center. Comparing the stores they are presently erecting to the original J. L. Hudson Co. department store in Detroit is like comparing Woolworth's to Tiffany's. For various reasons, Dayton Hudson has managed to elicit favorable comments on its current proposal from some people, including important East Lansing personages, who were among the opposition last year. Privately, however, many of these new found friends will admit that another shopping center attracts them not at all and is totally unnecessary. Some are fearful that Dayton Hudson "will go across the highway and we'll have all the trouble a shopping center brings and none of the benefits." That argument admits, first of all, that shopping malls do bring trouble, and they certainly do. A community's only hope is that the business that a mall generates will more than pay for all the commotion that it causes. The people of East Lansing should not lean on that slender reed.

In the present case, a shopping mall across a limited access superhighway will not seriously blemish the quality of life in East Lansing. The only access from the east to such a mall affecting East Lansing would be the Lake Lansing Road bridge over the highway. For the most part, the people using that approach would be East Lansing ites who are addicted to prowling through endless numbers of shoestores and boutiques stocked with baubles, bangles and beads. People to the east of East Lansing can

It seems quite ironic that as the fall term begins, many new and returning MSU students have been denied the opportunity to cheer their own football team on to victory. With some 80,000 seats and an allotment of one season pass per student, many students cannot get tickets.

As I sat at the game last Saturday afternoon between Miami of Ohio vs. MSU, I found myself surrounded by high school students, young children, adults (other than MSU alumni), among others. Somehow I cannot justify this.

We, the students of MSU, are MSU. Without us, MSU would not exist. And so, we may still be able to acquire tickets to the Michigan vs. Michigan State game . . . if we are willing to pay the price. But for now, I guess we will have to plan on gathering around the television to support our team.

Leave on time

The new five year IDs seem to me an indiscreet way of telling students that we had better plan on staying one more year than most of us had anticipated.

This terms registration was another indication that my stay here at MSU will probably be longer than my original plan of four years. The business school shut out all non-business students to business classes. It's not right for the advertising department to require classes from a school that won't open its doors to non-business majors. These classes are pre-requisites to classes needed to graduate. These are supposed to be four year programs, not five. Can't more professors be hired? Can't something be done before too many students fall far behind in required classes?

Rexy bares his sexy wares ENTERTAINMENT

By JOY L. HAENLEIN State News Staff Writer

"What it is," said Terry Tannery, manager of Sexy Rexy and company, "is a new thing. There are probably three other groups that do what we do. And the women love it."

What it was to about a thousand women at Bonnie and Clvde's, well, that's a different matter. It became obvious from the beginning — when owners scheduled a second show at that last minute to accommodate hundreds of women who did not get in for the first - that Lansing women were attracted by the novelty of the event.

"I heard about it at work, said a conservatively dressed woman, who, like virtually all those this reviewer talked to, did not want their names used. "We decided to go down, but then just me and another woman from my office showed up here. I've never seen something like this," she explained. "I just wanted to see what it's

It was, let's say, interesting. Not especially because of what went on on stage - you can see the same "sights" in a J.C. Penny Catalogue. Because of Michigan law, Rexy and his three co-workers cannot "take it all off," and they avoided g-string, and thats as far as it

So what makes the show attractive to many patrons is the dancing. The show relies on up-tempo disco music for most of its beat, with a few slower suggestive - thrusting their and kissing a few of them - and women REALLY liked that that pot of gold. (incidentally, only women were allowed in for these shows, although a few men snuck in for with Steve, another male the second show). In fact, dancer and several of the more dancers received "tips" (rather vocal members of the group. sizeable ones at that) in their The group — Steve, Dynomite, briefs and g-strings all evening. Rex and Sundance — all joined And although before the second show, emcee Bill Little promised "more than the first time," it was basically the same stuff all over again.

Rexy and company were rather slim, but attractive (stylishly so, not in the classic 'rugged" sense of the word). You know, perms and Peter Frampton hair cuts. At the beginning of each act, dancers would parade on the dance floor in three piece suits which were reduced to the g-string within minutes. Each performer said later, however, that they lose a lot of nice clothing during their stint on stage, with women hungry for souveniors of their 'night with the girls" grabbing The group does not want to stop with the Midwest - they have their sights set on Hollywood and Las Vegas. And while group members consistently refused to talk about earnings, estimates from gate figures throughout Michigan indicate the "fab four" make about

It's hard to say if the quartet is in it for the money, however. At least, in an interview, they said they were eventually seeking a career in dance. Two of the four mentioned they had had dance training (Steve said he trained for a year at Arthur Murray and even had some at any vest or jacket they can find. One dancer, Sundance, even confided he had lost a lot of his sister's lingerie that way.

The story of Sexy Rexy and Company is an interesting one. Rexy was busted in little Coldwater, Mi. this summer when he "bared it all" for a woman admirer on stage. What followed was a stream of publicity attempts by many women to do when the owner of the estabjust that Tuesday night at the lishment, Glenda Brewer, was show. Sure, they have the opportunity to meet women after the shows and socialize a bit. Steve and Dynomite said they often go out dancing even after the show is finished. But when not greeting their public or partying, Sexy Rexy and Company usually retire to any one of a number of motels along the road to stardom, often

But regardless of why they came, a certain camaraderie came through tuesday night that cannot be put into words. Sure, women seemed to love the show, but they also loved each other. It was an opportunity to get crazy without worrying about dirty looks from their male counterparts. It was that chance to hoot and holler and enjoy talking with other women. There were no fights - no bad arguments and for one night, even if for "questionable reasons", women enjoyed the company of each other as much if not more than that of the performers. No one cared where the others came from. Virtually all economic, social, age and educational backgrounds were represented. Provided this opportunity, women just got off on the emotions and sentiments of

It may not be prime time, but new wave rock finally makes it to national television tonight (or tomorrow, depending on how you look at it) when the Cars host Midnight Special at 1 a.m. on NBC-TV (Channels 5, 8 and 10 in the Lansing area). The Cars personally chose the acts that will appear on the telecast, and the "chosen few" read like a rock fanatic's dream.

Michigan's own Iggy Pop — the original crown prince of punk will be making his national television debut, as will Stiff recording artist, Lene Lovich, also a former Michigan resident. Other acts include M - a strange group of musicians whose debut Sire LP, Pop Muzik, sounds like a de-evolved mixture of disco and pop—and Suicide. The latter band is described by Ric Ocasek of the Cars as "the band you love to hate."

Agnes Varda's 1976 One Sings, the Other Doesn't is the story of the friendship of two women (Valerie Mairesse, Therese Liotard) from 1962 to 1976. As Varda says in her introduction to the film, One Sings . . . "is about women, men, work, music, love, marriage or not, children or not, and friendship," and, while her efforts to deal with such issues are laudable in principle. her movie fails to sufficiently dramatize her ideas. Varda isn't interested in developing her characters beyond a benign, didactic point, and her film is only sporadically interesting. Sports weekend - SPORTS forget the books

Notre Dame football game dangerously close, there is no better time than now to issue this warning to the newest of the true Spartan student-fans: people, don't plan anything (constructive) for the weekend.

In some ways it doesn't seem fair, but it's true - you can slip those books away somewhere, far out of the way.

As any coach will tell you, every game is important for him and his team. Fans take it upon themselves to observe the same approach. By the time Friday rolls around, all a fan's energies have turned to Saturday's game. Friday represents the day of most intense preparation, emotion hit the high point on Saturday and Sunday is needed purely for recovery purposes.

Days are spent speculating about the big game, hours are spent living through it and days, weeks, months, years or possibly decades can be amassed in analysis and discussion.

THE PAST MSU athletic season was particularly hard on many Spartan student-fans, pushing grade point averages steadily downward. The foot ball team made a heavy contribution with the big win over University of Michigan en route to the Big Ten co-championship. The basketball team did its share by worrying fans past the 'study point' for weeks before it finally won a Big Ten co-championship. From that point it promptly excited fans past the 'study point' on its way to the national crown. Much celebra-

Like basketball season, baseball season offered more than one game per week. Student fans nearly dropped their books altogether trying to deal with that, let alone the fact that the batsmen had to force the championship race down to the last weekend, before defeating none other than U-M for the league

After a summer of recuperation, students are back into their dual roles as student-fans. And things are not much more relaxed for them this year than last. After a 3-0 start, the football team faces Notre Dame Saturday, with U-M, Purdue and Ohio State, back on the schedule after a couple years absence, rounding out the season's challenges. Though it may seem hard to believe, the football players will be only a little over half way; well maybe not even half way, through their schedule when the hockey season gets underway. And the icers, under new coach Ron Mason, promise to be playoff bound this winter.

As far as basketball is concerned, sure MSU won't be as good as last year. Yet, don't put

That, by no means, is where the sports excitement ends at MSU. This fall the women's cross country team, 10th in the nation last year, has a fine chance to improve on that finish. Coach Michael Kasavana has made a legitimate claim that his Big Ten championship team will be the best group of women gymnasts ever assembled at

This spring's men's golf team also may be the best ever at MSU, according to coach Bruce Fossum. The women tracksters, many of whom also toil for the cross country squad, envision a Big Ten crown and the men's indoor as well as outdoor track teams may also contend for Big Ten titles for the first time in a few years, according to coach Jim Bibbs.

But most of these things are midterms, even finals, down the road and at least not of immediate concern to the avid studentfan. For the moment, attention is drawn to this weekend.

If your weekend does not include the MSU-Notre Dame game, either going to South Bend to watch it or seeing it via cable at the MSU Auditorium, you'll be missing a lot.

Yet, if you center your entire weekend around that one contest, you'll be missing a lot that

NO LESS THAN three invitational tournaments highlight the end of the first full week of classes of fall 1979, at MSU. The MSU-Central Michigan University Golf Invitational, possibly the first women's collegiate it past newcomer Kevin Smith event to employ more than one course, will be held in Mt Pleasant today and at MSU's Forest Akers West Course Saturday and Sunday, with tee off time at 9 a.m. each day. There's nothing more pleasant than taking an afternoon to stroll through MSU's beautiful course, watching some of the finest golfers in the college

> While at the golf course, you can catch a glimpse of both the men's and women's cross country squads, who have respective 10:30 a.m. and 10 a.m. starting times. The men are hosting Kent State University in a dual meet while the women entertain University of Wisconsin and Penn State University in the annual Badger-Spartan Invitational. Wisconsin ended last season as the third- and Penn State, as the sixth-ranked team in the nation.

> The remaining invitational tournament this weekend will be at the IM Sports-West where the MSU women's volleyball team plays host to 10 schools in the Spartan Invitational, beginning at noon today and 9 a.m.

So, you ask, what about all this weekend's homework? As the familiar saying goes, "Blow undefeated.

HAVE THINGS TO PROVE

Spartans to tackle Notre Dame

By ADAM TEICHER State News Sports Writer

The MSU football team will be out to prove a few things Saturday when the Spartans meet the University of Notre Dame in South Bend, Ind. Kickoff will be at 1:30 p.m. E.S.T. (2:30 p.m. in East Lan-

The Spartans hope to show that they deserve their sixth place rating in the latest United Press International college football poll, that they can beat one of the nation's top teams, and that last week's close brush with defeat against Miami of Ohio University was a fluke.

'Anytime you play Notre Dame . . . it's a big football game," MSU coach Darryl Rogers said. "More so at Michigan State because of the traditional rivalry we've had.'

THERE HAVE BEEN many outstanding games between MSU and Notre Dame with the Irish leading the series 27-16-1. The 1966 game is still referred to as one of the greatest in history. The teams tied 10-10 and both ended the season

But this season, for the first time in a decade, the game will mean more to MSU than just a chance to upset one of the top teams in the nation. Although the Irish, ranked 16th by UPI, are the favorites (from any where from three to five points) the Spartans are the ones that are undefeated and ranked in the top ten.

Notre Dame is 1-1, both games against Big Ten contenders. They opened with a 12-0 win over the University of Michigan when they blocked a U-M field goal in the waning seconds. But the Irish blew a 20-7 lead a week ago and succumbed to the passing of Purdue University's quarterback Mark Herrmann and the Boilermakers, 28-22.

Before this season, one look at the Notre Dame roster revealed plenty of familiar names like Montana, Golic, the Browners, MacAfee, etc. Not so anymore. This is one of the youngest Irish units in a few

The one familiar name that is still around is Vagas Ferguson, the Notre Dame tailback that Rogers calls "one of the premier running backs in the

SO FAR IN 1979, Ferguson's statistics don't look like those of an All-America candidate. He has run for 197 yards, but he has carried 60 times. This averages out to a very unglamorous 3.3 yards per carry.

Ferguson has also been the workhorse. Notre Dame's next leading rusher, fullback Ty Barber, has run for just 11

The quarterback situation is very unsettled. Rusty Lisch started against U-M, but injured an ankle. Coach Dan Devine still doesn't know if Lisch will play against the Spartans. Junior Tim Koegel is listed as the probable starter although Mike Courey may get

"There is no question Vagas Ferguson is their best offensive weapon at tailback," Rogers said. "We've got to try to stop

Ferguson and the passing of their quarterback, whoever that might be.

"We can't let them control the ball," he continued. "There's no way we're going to win if we let them have the ball

At the same time, Devine is worried about the MSU offense, "Michigan State's offense seems to have improved it's efficiency every game, particularly as (quarterback Bert) Vaughn gains experience each time out," the Notre Dame coach said.

VAUGHN HAS THROWN for 584 yards and four touchdowns in his team's first three games of the season. His completion percentage, though, is low and this worries Rogers. But Vaughn was on target when he needed to be against Miami, as he rallied the Spartans for the winning score.

"He (Vaughn) seems to be the key to their success because they have plenty of ability and depth at the running back and pass receiving positions," Devine noted.

Tailback Steve Smith gained 70 yards against Miami, putting him atop the Big Ten in rushing. The junior from Louisville, Ky., has run for an average of 102.7 yards per game in three games this season. Flanker Eugene Byrd is sixth in the conference in receptions with 10.

The status of one of the most important MSU offensive weapons is still unknown. Placekicker Morten Andersen was released from the hospital earlier in the week, but Rogers said before practice Thursday he still didn't know whether Andersen would make the trip to South Bend.

Win or lose, MSU returns for a showdown with the U-M Wolverines next Saturday for early supremacy in the Big Ten. But don't think they'll be looking past the Irish.

MSU AMONG FAVORITES

Spikers host Spartan Invitational

By BILL TEMPLETON

State News Sports Writer Today and Saturday's Spartan Invitational will allow the MSU women's volleyball team a chance to blend consistency with

Ten teams, besides MSU vill invade the IM Sports-West Arena and the IM Sports-Circle today, with the start of the tournament slated for noon

MSU rates as one of the favorites in the tournament and head coach Annelies Knoppers also mentioned the team from Cleveland State and Northern Kentucky as other squads to watch.

"We expect some fast hits from Cleveland State," said Knoppers. "They're usually a hard-hitting team.

"They play a multiple offense and they usually have a good setter," assistant coach Nancy Steel said, "so with these points of concern, MSU's blocking will have to be good. "Northern Kentucky has a very hard-hitting team also," Knoppers added. "They're also very tall and they can be intimidating.' KNOPPERS AND STEEL also mentioned Western Michigan and Northern Michigan Universities as "darkhorse" teams in the tournament, mainly because of the caliber of their coaches.

"Rob Buck (WMU) and Mark Hunt (NMU) are both very fundamentally sound in their coaching techniques," Steel admitted. "Northern improved about 100 percent last year and Rob was the assistant coach on the junior national team."

Other teams in the tournament this year are Marquette University, University of Wisconsin-Parkside, Grand Valley State Colleges, Central Michigan University, the University of Michigan and the University of Waterloo.

Realizing it is a contender in this weekend's tournament, MSU has worked this week on a couple of things it views as necessary to

"Our basic goal for every match is good serves and good service reception," Steel said. "The breakdown of any team comes when service reception is not consistent, and we (MSU) feel we must return about 75 percent of our opponent's serves to win."

MSU enjoyed great success Tuesday against Grand Valley and Steel said many of the tactics used or discovered in that match should help the Spartans this weekend.

"We ran a fast offense against Grand Valley," Steel said, "and because of that, our blocking developed fast.'

THE SPIKERS BEGIN play today at 2 p.m against Marquette and play again at 4 p.m. against Western Michigan.

At 5 p.m. and 7 p.m., the Spartans will play Northern Michigan and Cleveland State.

The format for the tournament will be round-robin play in two pools, with the top three teams from each pool advancing to the championship flight on the basis of total victories in the four, two-game matches.

Championship flight action picks up at 11 a.m. Saturday, with the semi-finals and finals slated for 5 p.m. and 7 p.m.

Admission prices for the tournament are $1 for MSU students with a validated I.D. and $2.50 for the general public.

Kickers pass test in Calvin win; tough Loyola tournament is next

State News Sports Writer The jury is still out on the MSU soccer team but the Spartans' case has been strengthened as they begin play at the prestigious Loyola Invitational Soccer Tournament this

After rolling up a 3-1 season mark against some lean competition, the Spartans traveled to Calvin College Wednesday for their first real test of the year. They responded with an impressive 4-1 triumph before 1,000 fans at Knollcrest Field.

The national caliber competition MSU will face in Baltimore, Md., for two games should further measure the growth of the Spartan soccer program under third-year head coach Joe Baum. The Spartans open the tournament Saturday against the University of Maryland and then play either Duke University or host Loyola College Sunday. Maryland has an experienced squad with 15 holdovers from the 1978 season. The Terrapins fifth-year head coach Jim Dietsch is blessed with one of the Atlantic Coast Conference's finest players in Scott Boddery.

Ironically, it was Maryland that played MSU to a double-overtime 2-2 deadlock in the 1968 NCAA Division I Soccer Championships. The two schools have not met since then. Baum was goaltender that year for the Spartans as they won their second straight national co-championship. It was the last time MSU has reached such a pinnacle.

Duke returns All-America candidate Richard Murray, an All-ACC performer last season, for head coach John Rennie's a threat to anyone on their schedule.

Lovola is the tourney favorite after finishing second last year to ten-time NCAA Division I champion St. Louis University. four games, the Spartans took just 19 against Calvin. But as The Greyhounds play a tough defensive style of game with a Baum was quick to point out, his team made them count.

wealth of talent at every position. Head coach Jim Bullington has Loyola at the Division I level for the first time after seven straight season appearances in the NCAA Division II

"We're honored to be going to such a prestigious tournament and representing MSU," Baum said. "We're physically and mentally ready for the kind of competition we'll face. Our win over Calvin was a real good test for us before going out east."

The Spartans seemed in fine form against Calvin, scoring three goals in the first half and then squelching a Knight rally

MSU's Vancho Cirovski, who missed the first three contests of the season with an eye injury, scored his second goal in two games at the 10-minute mark to get the Spartans rolling. Five minutes later, Eric Wostl tallied his first goal of the year on a pass from Richard Huff to make it 2-0 for MSU. Ben Gellis put across the Spartans' third goal on a rebound shot at the 30-minute mark Calvin struck quickly in the second half, scoring just one minute into the frame on a goal by Mark Rucker.

The Knights were pressuring from that point on and at the 20-minute mark Gellis was called for a foul. Calvin took its penalty shot at the MSU nets and Rob Grinter made an unbelievable save to douse the Knights' attempted comeback.

Eric Reinhard pushed across an insurance goal five minutes later on a pass from Tom Coleman for MSU's final score. "Calvin's play in the second half was a blessing in disguise," Baum reflected. "Our players held their composure during first year at the helm. Golfers co-host tourney

By DAVE JANSSEN

State News Sports Writer

Eighth-year coach Mary Fossum will send three teams against a field of 13 other schools this weekend in the first annual MSU-CMU Golf Invitational.

The 54-hole tournament will begin today with 18 holes at Mt. Pleasant's Riverview Golf Course. MSU's Forest Akers West Golf Course will be the site of the final two days (and 36 holes)

MSU's first team will be comprised of senior Ann Atwood, who has been voted captain of this year's squad, sophomores Nina Spatafora and Beth Sierra, and freshmen Sydney Wells, Alison Sellers and Lisa Brown. Spatafora led her team to a second-place finish in the 15-team Illinois State Invitational earlier this fall by shooting rounds of 79 and 74 to end up as the runner-up to the medalist in that tournament.

GOLFING ON THE third Spartan team will be junior Cathy Hackett and Cindy Kerridge, a transfer in her first season at MSU, sophomore Karyn Colbert and freshmen Julie Voshel, Gale Hovey and Dianne Whitman.

The schools that will oppose the MSU teams in this tournament, possibly the first women's collegiate event to employ more than one course, will be the universities of Kentucky, Cincinnati, and Michigan. Also Furman, Marshall, Ohio State, Bowling Green, Purdue, Indiana State, Ball State, Ferris State, Oakland and, of course, Central Michigan

The MSU women's field hockey team will travel to the Valley Farm Camp in Brooklyn, Mich. this weekend for its final tuneup before opening its home season Tuesday against the University of

Head coach Sam Kajornsin said the Valley Farm weekend is not really a tournament, rather more a series of scrimmages against some top-notch competition.

"There will be about 20 teams there this weekend," Kajornsin said. "We use the Valley Farm Camp to build more confidence in our players and to get a look at some of the other Big Ten schools."

Kajornsin also admitted that because MSU is the defending state champion, many of the teams will be "looking at us as well." MSU will play four games at Valley Farm, but has no way of knowing who its opponents will be until it gets there.

"Because we had a good team last year, we will be matched against some teams of relative ability," Kajornsin added. Kajornsin stated that the stickers worked hard this week in

Foreign oil cost raise trade deficit

By EILEEN ALT POWELL Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - A surge in imports, including record costs for foreign oil, helped widen the U.S. trade deficit to $2.36 billion in August, the government reported Thursday.

The August deficit was more than double the $1.1 billion by which imports exceeded exports in July, the Commerce Department report said. And it was the largest since a $2.48billion red-ink figure in May.

The report was likely to lead to more pressure on the dollar, which fell sharply against major European currencies on foreign money markets Thurs-

The U.S. inflation rate, currently at an annual pace above 13 percent, and its merchandise trade deficit are among the factors causing the dollar's recent weakness.

THE COMMERCE DE-PARTMENT report indicated that imports rose to a record $18.18 billion in August, up 8.3 percent from July's $16.78 billion. The increase was the largest, in percentage terms, since an 8.8 percent rise in February 1978, figures show. Exports also hit a record level, $15.82 billion. But the 1 percent increase from July was not enough to keep pace with the import surge.

The August figures reverse the pattern so far this year. Exports for the first eight months totaled $115.4 billion. 27 percent ahead of the same period last year. Imports, meanwhile, are up only 16 percent to $130.6 billion.

The strength of the exports has led Carter administration officials to predict that the trade deficit for 1979 will be about $23 billion, down from last year's $28.5 billion.

Part of the surge in import costs in August was due to higher-priced foreign oil, which has been boosted 60 percent in price since January by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. The nation's petroleum import bill rose to a record $5.2 billion in August, up 7.9 percent from the previous high of $4.8 billion in July.

THE VOLUME OF imports totaled 245.9 million barrels, up only slightly from the previous month and still below the 8.2 million barrel-per-day quota President Carter has set.

That produced a per-barrel price of $21.14 in August, compared with $19.60 in July. The price per barrel in January was

Energy plan criticized

By CHRIS PARKS United Press International

A battle is brewing before the Public Service Commission over who will pay for a utility-sponsored educational program which a state energy official says may prompt waste rather than conservation among Michigan stu-

The Public Interest Research Group in Michigan is challenging Consumers Power Co.'s right to pass on to its ratepayers the cost of sponsoring the program as well as producing and distributing a controversial film on solar

PIRGIM Thursday appealed a PSC hearing examiner's decision which barred from the current Consumers rate case testimony critical of the program and the film. The firm is seeking a $324 million

A Consumers spokesperson defended both the film and PIRGIM's move is merely part of an effort to sabotage the firm's overall educational

THE PROGRAM IN question - Energy Today and Tomorrow — is a 50-minute presentation prepared and conducted by a Tennessee organization called Oak Ridge Associated Universities.

PIRGIM said it has been presented in more than 260 Michigan schools over the past two years at a cost to Consumers of about $50,000 per year.

William Stevens of the state energy administration said officials conducted extensive research on the program over two years, analyzing over 30,000 students, who had viewed the presentation.

"We found out that the students who observed the program became more negative toward energy conservation attitudinally," he said.

"THEY CARRY OUT less energy conservation tasks and in turn, that leads to using relatively more energy than students who don't observe the program," Stevens Stevens said the program portrays, we believe, conservation in a relatively negative or problematic sense" and emphasizes advanced technology and nuclear energy.

"The kind of message that could come through is that energy conservation is not all that necessary since there are other technologies . . . somewhere down the line," he said.

Stevens added that both Consumers and the firm which produced the show were informed of the findings but have not responded.

Consumers spokesperson Robert Wischmeyer noted the program is put on all over the

HE SAID IT "presents to the students in a very lively manner, the wise use of energy and where we get our energy, and it is definitely not designed to encouraged energy conservation.

The film, "Solar Energy and You," cost $50,000 to produce and has been shown to more than 58,000 students since 1977, PIRGIM claimed.

Critics charge it portrays solar energy as a far-out technology not yet really practical.

Wischmeyer noted the film won an award two years ago from the Michigan Outdoor Writers Association as the best ecology documentary of the year.

PIRGIM Legal Director Trady Dobson said the group will claim that the film and the program do not meet PSC rules governing which educational programs may be paid for with ratepayer's money.

City lays off employees

By JOANNA FIRESTONE United Press International

DETROIT - In an attempt to reduce Detroit's projected $70 million deficit, Mayor Coleman Young Thursday ordered the layoffs of more than 900 city employees - including 400 police officers.

Young said the layoffs, which also will affect the city's fire department and 15 other agencies, will save nearly $16 million. "The reductions we've made in the police department will have no effect on the number of uniformed officers patrolling Detroit's streets and the cuts in the fire department will not necessitate the closing of any fire houses," Young said. "Levels of police and fire protection will remain well above the low points we reached in 1976 - the last time we laid off police officers — when a national recession forced us to cut our police department to a total of 4,245 officers and firefighters to Thursday's cut leaves police strength at 5,025 officers and the fire fighting division at 1.386.

YOUNG SAID LAYOFFS in the police department will be based solely on seniority and will affect "people who are not walking the streets" such as office workers and officers stationed at city courtrooms.

"Crime is down nearly 40 percent in the past two years and a spirit of cooperation exists between the police department and the people they serve. I'm confident that spirit will prevail and the progress we have made in making Detroit a safe and comfortable place to live and work will continue," Young said.

"Let no one mistake these police cutbacks today as an invitation to go crazy.'

City employees who received pink slips Thursday included 400 police officers, 173 parks and recreations employees, 182 workers at Detroit General Hospital, 26 firefighters and 49 persons employed by the Environmental Protection and Maintenance Department.

YOUNG SAID THE reductions were necessary because of "ill-considered" pay raises given police officers and firefighters by arbitration panels.

"The arbitrators ignored us when we told them that pay increases granted to Detroit police and firefighters - increases of more than 30 percent over three years — would create a $50 million hole in the city's financial purse," he said. Earlier this year, Young imposed a partial hiring freeze in his efforts to balance the city budget.

STUDENTS HELP IN FILM SELECTIONS

Movies offer fun and escape

By LESA DOLL State News Staff Writer

Movies create fantasy worlds student often wish they were a part of.

For an evening, a student can be in the Alamo waiting for the enemy, or on a future-age, high-speed space ship confronting alien beings. Wherever the moves take them, the screen helps students escape

Tom Leach's philosophy is that escape is valuable in coping with student life. As director of the Residence Hall Advisor's Movie Selection Board, he has a chance to initiate programs of this type for all students.

"IT'S A GREAT way to get away from it all," he said. "It's a form of escapism."

The attendance figures could be used to support his theory. Last year over 205,000 students went to either one or several RHA film series movies, Leach said. He also pointed out that the RHA program, which has expanded to show over 150 movies a year, is probably the largest one any college campus in the United States.

"This fall through next summer we plan on showing 160 films," he said. "You can pretty much pick a wide favorite of movies." That is Leach's job - helping to pick entertainment he believes students use to escape the sometimes desperate, lonely feelings of being in a big university. He has been at it for 12 years, and is aided by two RHA student representatives from each residence hall.

THEY RECEIVE LISTS of movies and suggestions from students and then the board makes up the movie list for

"If someone disagrees with a film, we don't show it,"

Leach explained. "But I don't have a chance to see all the films. If I did I wouldn't have a chance to sleep."

It is not hard for Leach to select the kind of movies students prefer. Through experience he has learned their likes and dislikes.

"It's the films that poke fun at everybody that are really popular," he said. "The students look at them as a way of Blazing Saddles, for example, drew the biggest single crowd Leach had ever seen -5,000 people during the three days it was shown. Other movies that were as nearly successful also border on notes of hilarity.

The Rocky Horror Picture Show also drew exceptionally large crowds last year, but the mess left following the movie was one of the few difficulties with students Leach has encountered.

"If the film's really funny the response is great," he said. "But The Rocky Horror Picture Show created problems. It was a massive clean-up. We must have hit the time when the picture was gaining national prominance." Leach said student behavior at the movies is far better than adversaries of the

RHA movie program said it

"If the film's really funny, there's a response," he said. "Other than that, there have been no exceptions, except for the 'Rocky Horror' flick."

Movies students can identi-

Laboratory Row' and Linton Hall acknowledged as historical sites

By ED BRADLEY

Six buildings on MSU's campus have been recognized by the Michigan Historical Commission for inclusion in the State Register of Historic Sites. Linton Hall, the oldest in-strucitonal building on campus, has been listed, as well as five structures designated as "Laboratory Row" - Cook, Chittenden, Marshall and Agriculture halls and the Journalism building.

The buildings are the first on campus to be listed in the register, said Bob Christensen. historic preservation coordinator of the Michigan History Divison, Michigan Department of State.
