President hopes to avoid new Cold War

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President Carter reported to the nation Monday night that the Soviet Union has refused to remove its troops from Cuba, but he said the controversy "is certainly no reason for a return to the Cold War."

Carter said he has received "assurances from the highest levels of the Soviet government" that the troops are manning a training center in Cuba, and offer no direct threat to U.S. security.

Nevertheless, the president said, "We shall not rest on these Soviet statements alone," and he announced that the United States is increasing its own military presence in the Caribbean.

In recent weeks, Carter had said the United States would act on its own to change the situation if no agreement could be reached with the Soviets. On one such occasion, he said, "The status quo is not acceptable."

CALLING ANEW ON the Senate to ratify the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty, the president said rejection of SALT II "would seriously compromise our nation's peace and security" and leave allies in Europe "confused and deeply alarmed."

In the text of his nationally broadcast speech Monday night, Carter said Soviet officials insisted to him that the brigade is a training unit, and not a combat unit. He said Soviet officials had indicated "they will not change its function or status as a training center."

"We understand this to mean that they do not intend to enlarge the unit, or give it additional capabilities," Carter said.

The president also reported assurances that the Soviet personnel on the island "will not be a threat to the U.S., or to any other nation."

Soviet officials have insisted publicly for weeks that the Russian troops in Cuba are not a combat brigade, and that they have been there for years. Carter confirmed that U.S.

Carter outlines response to Soviets' Cuban forces experts believe "this unit had existed for several years, probably since the mid-1970s, and possibly even longer." But he did not go so far as to accept the Soviet characterization of the brigade as a training force.

"JUST RECENTLY," CARTER said, "American intelligence obtained persuasive evidence that some of these forces had been organized into a combat unit."

It was understood that the Soviet assurances Carter cited were dealt with in a personal exchange last week between Carter and Brezhnev.

Carter sent a message to Brezhnev last Tuesday, it was learned, and the Russian leader replied on Thursday.

The issue concerning Soviet troops in Cuba has delayed Senate consideration of the SALT II accord, signed by Carter and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev in Vienna. Carter's speech was an effort to remove the roadblock and urge Senate approval of the accord.

Carter described the following steps that he was taking to bolster the U.S. presence in the Caribbean.

- "We will monitor the status of the Soviet forces by increased surveillance of Cuba."
- "I am establishing a permanent full time Caribbean Joint Task Force Headquarters at Key West, Fla.," which "will substantially improve our capability to monitor and respond rapidly to any attempted military encroachment in the region."

• "We will expand military maneuvers in the region, and we will conduct these regularly from now on."

• Without getting specific, Carter said, "We will increase our economic assistance to alleviate the unmet economic and human needs in the Caribbean region . . ."

WHILE DECLARING THAT the presence of the brigade continues to be a cause of concern, the president declared, "I have concluded that the brigade issue is certainly no reason for a return to the Cold War. A confrontation might be emotionally satisfying for a few days or weeks for some people, but it would be destructive to the national interest and the security of the United States."

Carter noted the Soviet insistence that their troops are occupied in training and "can do nothing more."

But the president said that "just recently, American intelligence obtained persuasive intelligence evidence that these Soviet forces have been organized into a combat unit."

He said experts believe "this unit had existed for several years, probably since the mid-1970s, and possibly even longer."

Carter acknowledged that the brigade presents no "direct threat to us." He said it has no airborne or seaborne capability.

Earlier, Sen. Frank Church, chairperson of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, met with the president for a half hour briefing on Carter's speech. The Idaho Democrat said he thought SALT II could be salvaged.

"I THINK WE can salvage the SALT treaty, and I'm looking for a way to do it," Church said. "I don't think that SALT is scuttled. I believe that a way can be worked out that is satisfactory to the Senate."

Carter, who was marking his 55th birthday, postponed his only scheduled appointment Monday to work on his address.

GIDDINGS SETS OCT. 15 DEADLINE

Marathon talks resume

By ROLAND WILKERSON
State News Staff Writer

Striking Lansing teachers and the Board of Education, still unable to reach a contract agreement, were ordered to resume contract talks Monday afternoon.

Noting that the teams met for less than five hours since Thursday, Circuit Court Judge James Giddings ordered the two groups to continue negotiations beginning at 5 p.m. Monday.

He later added that he would either attend the meeting or be nearby as the negotiations continued.

Giddings made the statement at a show-cause hearing to determine if Lansing teachers, who have been on strike for four weeks, were in contempt of court for defying his order that they were to return to the classroom by Sept. 28.

AT THE HEARING, Camille Aboud, a spokesperson for a group of citizens and business people, said his group hoped Giddings would delay legal action and give the negotiations a second chance.

Aboud said the current situation was "unacceptable" and added that his group would be monitoring progress of contract talks.

Maggie Blair, the Lansing mother, who along with four other parents filed a suit to reopen the schools, said she was very pleased with the ruling. She voiced hopes that an agreement could be reached soon.

The show-cause hearing adjourned at 5 p.m. Monday and is scheduled to resume at 1:30 p.m. today.

GIDDINGS ORDERED THE teachers back to school last week after determining that they were on strike, in the legal sense of the word, and that "irreparable harm" would be suffered by Lansing school children if the strike continued.

Teachers met Sept. 27 at the Lansing Civic Center and an overwhelming majority of teachers decided to stay out of the classroom until they had reached a tentative contract agreement.

At the Sept. 26 hearing, Giddings appointed Daniel Kruger, an MSU labor and economics professor, to be "master" over negotiations between the teachers and the board.

Giddings also set an Oct. 15 deadline for the ratification of a contract. He said that if he determined the board was not bargaining in good faith, that he might lift the injunction.

Issues still unsettled include a cost of living allowance, grievance procedures and classroom size.

Pope speaks to Boston crowds; asks choice of love over 'escape'

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON — Pope John Paul II opened a pastoral visit to his divided American flock Monday, raising a shepherd's crozier to bless a drenched but ecstatic Boston. He had words of praise and friendship-but warnings, too, for this rich and troubled nation.

"I greet you, America the Beautiful," the pope told a cheering throng in Boston Common in the first major address of his six-city U.S. tour. "I want to tell everyone that the pope is your friend."

He hailed America as a free and generous land, but said its youth was being lured from religion to the empty "escape" of sexual pleasure, drugs, violence and indifference.

"I propose to you the option of love, which is the opposite of escape," the pontiff said, amid a downpour that had turned the historic common into a sea of mud.

AS MANY AS 400,000 people crowded the park, waving flags, banners, handkerchiefs and whatever else was available as the pope, dressed in white and gold, raised his arms in blessing.

The crowds had stood under umbrellas, singing while they waited for the pontiff, who landed at Boston's Logan Airport in mid-afternoon. His motorcade from the airport ran about 40 minutes late, but when he finally approached along Beacon Street, standing in an open car, his arms outstretched, the throng broke into shouts and cheers.

Umbrellas were lowered as the stirring hymn "Praise to the Lord, the Almighty" signaled the pope's arrival. He stood on the altar, brightly spotlighted against the dusk, and began the mass: "In the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost."

The motorcade had changed its route to avoid a demonstration by an estimated 1,000 persons; protesting the shooting of a black youth at a football practice Friday.

The pope had spoken of the city's racial problems in a visit to Holy Cross Cathedral en route to the common, noting that "people of all races, colors and creeds . . . have created workable solutions."

THOUSANDS LINED the city's narrow streets as the pontiff's motorcade drove from Logan Airport, passing through neighborhoods that represent Boston's — and the nation's — diversity.

This is the nation's second-largest Catholic diocese. More than two million of the area's 5.7 million residents are Catholics.

Waving flags of papal gold and white, crowds a dozen deep along the sidewalks shouted "Viva il papa!" as the motorcade passed through the Italian North End. Rosaries were held aloft as it whizzed, too, through Irish "Southie" and the Hispanic section of the South End.

Gold and white were everywhere when the pontiff landed at the airport after a three-day visit to Ireland.

The pope's Aer Lingus jumbo jet, the "St. Patrick," set down at 2:49 p.m. EDT, as a band from St. Ann's parish in Neponset, Mass., blared a welcome and waved flags of red, white and blue stripes.

The pope, emerging from the jet in a brilliant red robe, kneeled at the bottom of the ramp and kissed American ground, as a reception party of 400 church and government leaders cheered and applauded.

FIRST LADY ROSALYN CARTER welcomed John Paul II for the week-long tour that will also take him to New York, Philadelphia, Des Moines, Chicago and Washington.

"We welcome you to our country with love," she told him. "We Americans of every faith have come to love you in a very special way."

State Dems urged to adopt Partisan caucus system

By United Press International

With the deadline passed for compromise on Michigan's presidential primary, top Democrats said Monday they will urge the state party to switch to a system of partisan caucuses starting next April 26.

The recommendation which came from the party's affirmative action committee will be considered by the state Democratic party's central committee at its Oct. 15 meeting in Muskegon.

The affirmative action panel, which includes all of the top state party officers, is charged with promoting broad participation in the party's delegation selection process. State party chairperson Morley Winograd said it will be impossible for Democrats to pick convention delegates in the regular May primary because lawmakers and Gov. William G. Milliken have been unable to agree on needed changes in the election.

New national Democratic rules refuse to recognize the results of primaries such as Michigan's that allow cross-over voting.

Measures to partially close Michigan's primary have met with stiff resistance in the Legislature.

The party had set a deadline of Oct. 1 for resolving the dispute.

Michigan will send 141 delegates and 74 alternates to the Democratic National Convention in 1980. Of those, 95 delegates will be chosen in congressional districts, 13 will be "add-on" delegates chosen from among party leaders and 32 will be selected at-large by the central committee.

Under the caucus system, all Michigan Democrats and persons elected as Democratic precinct delegates in 1978 are eligible to attend party caucuses April 26 and register their preference for a presidential hopeful or declare themselves undecided.

Each congressional district's delegates will be divided among the candidates based on the preference vote. Add-on delegates will be selected by national delegates chosen in the districts.

The preference balloting will be held in congressional district caucuses in the Detroit metropolitan area and in county caucuses in outstate areas.

Delegates from congressional districts will be selected the same day in the Detroit area and the next week in outstate areas.

Kent Carpenter, left, and Alice Martin sit in front of the house they and friends have lived in for four years. Because the new owners want possession of the house for personal use, the evicted tenants and their possessions must go.

NEW OWNERS RAISE RENT

Eviction sale caused by no lease

By DEBBIE CREEMERS
State News Staff Writer

The eviction sale at 236 River St. does not include the lease to the house, which is why plants are going for 50¢ a pot.

The house, occupied by George Cooper and various friends over the past four years, is being taken over by the new owners, who want the house for their personal use.

The tenants do not have a lease, which is the key to the bumped tenants' problems, Yvonne Nanasi, director of the Tenants Resource Center, said.

"When you don't have a lease you can be given one rental period's notice to vacate the premises," Nanasi said.

COOPER SAYS HE never felt the need for a lease before.

"We had a gentlemen's agreement with the man who owned the houses, and never felt the need for a signed contract," Cooper said.

The house, landscaped with flowers and a garden in the backyard, was maintained by the tenants, Cooper said.

"We painted the inside, cleaned carpets and landscaped," he said.

The rent was $240 a month for four persons.

The new owners, Pete Hinz, a recent MSU accounting and financial administration graduate, and Stephen Wickens, a residential and commercial builder, plan to raise the rent substantially.

"WE'VE ESTIMATED $125 to $150 per person per month," Hinz said.

Wickens said the house can hold five, but Cooper said he believes the owners will try to fit in six or seven tenants.

Cooper said he believes this because Hinz was their next-door neighbor for three years, and discussed his plans for the house with him. The current tenants were not included in those plans, Cooper said. "We didn't expect it," Alice Martin, a previous tenant said, "especially not from someone we thought was a friend. We parted together."

Hinz said he hoped there were no hard feelings, but said he assumed from conversations with Cooper that he would not stay because of the higher rent, which he said was necessary to avoid a dollar loss on the house.

COOPER HAS AN Irish Setter named Misty who was raised as a pup in the house. Hinz said he also told Cooper the dog would have to go under a "no pets" policy he was enforcing.

The owners served the tenants with a 30-day notice to vacate and a seven-day notice for failure to pay rent due Sept. 15. Although Hinz and Wickens did not actually buy the house until Sept. 24, the sale included rent for the month of September.

The eviction notice states the new owners want the house for their own purposes.

Wickens said the house needs a lot of work.

"The bathroom is in poor shape, carpeting and windows need to be replaced, and plaster is falling," he said. "My payments on the house are more than the rent they are paying."

Wickens and Hinz said they have given the tenants a three-week grace period — rent-free — to get out. The eviction date is Oct. 7, Wickens said.

Academic Council meets

The Academic Council will meet today at 3:15 in the Con Con Room at the International Center.

At the meeting, the president and provost will address the council and there will be an Executive Committee Report.

Also on the agenda will be the University Committee on Curriculum Report, a Status Report on General Education Policy and a resolution concerning parking, towing and other public safety issues.

The Academic Council is part of the MSU academic governance system, which is involved in setting academic policy and some University policy.

It is composed of members from the Faculty Council, the Appointed Council, the Student Council, designated members of Academic Council Standing Committees, the Steering Committee, the president and the provost.

The Academic Council meets at least twice a month during the academic year and the Steering Committee sets the agenda.

The Council considers all matters brought before it by the Steering Committee, president or provost. It participates in all major issues relating to educational policy and may consult on any other matter concerning the welfare of MSU.

International account may be established

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Finance ministers from 138 nations agreed Monday night to give priority attention to establishing an international account for deposits of surplus dollars from the world financial system.

Approval for creation of the so-called substitution account was reached during a day-long meeting of the International Monetary Fund's policy-making Interim Committee.

Treasury Secretary G. William Miller, who headed the American delegation, said he was satisfied "absolutely" with the outcome of the deliberations.

In a statement issued afterward, the committee said a substitution account if properly designed, could contribute to an improvement of the international monetary system and could constitute a step toward making the Special Drawing Right the principal reserve asset in the system.

The SDR is the special money based on the relative values of a number of currencies that was created by the IMF in 1969 to replace gold and is issued to IMF member nations. Dollars deposited with the account would be exchanged for new assets denominated in SDRs.

Panama has peaceful Canal celebration

BALBOA, Panama (AP) — The Panamanian flag was raised over the former Canal Zone Monday. Hundreds of thousands of Panamanians marched in for a look and for ceremonies marking the end of 75 years of American jurisdiction.

There were no reports of the violence some U.S. residents had feared as an estimated quarter-million Panamanians surged toward a zone airfield for a transfer ceremony attended by Panamanian leaders, Vice President Mondale and some Latin American heads of state.

During the ceremony under a blazing sun at Albrook Airfield, President

Aristides Royo declared: From this moment on, the Panamanian flag will fly above Ancon Hill and Panama begins to exercise jurisdiction over its entire territory.

The Panamanian will no longer be judged by foreign laws in his own nation. Now there is no country within a country. Now the Canal Zone has been erased and only remains as a bad memory in the annals of history.

The 10-mile-by-50-mile zone, whose existence ended at midnight Sunday, divided the country of Panama in half.

Highway patrol vacates post in Texas

JOURDANTON, Texas (AP) — The Department of Public Safety vacated its six-man command post in Atascosa County Monday rather than give in to county demands to transfer two officers credited with a crackdown on drunken driving. The crackdown led to the arrest of two politicians' sons.

The troopers suspended routine patrols and said they would answer only emergency calls in the county.

The county commissioners, citing harassment, had threatened to evict the state police from the county-owned command post unless the DPS transferred officers Earl Conaway, 32, and Albert Rodriguez, 26, by Monday. The DPS refused to go along with the county's demands and allowed the six troopers to vacate the post.

Conaway, 32, who is black, and Rodriguez, 26, a Mexican-American, were credited by their superiors with a crackdown on drunken drivers that has cut the county's traffic death rate in half this year.

That effort also resulted in drunken driving charges against a son of Commissioner Smith Tausch, who sponsored the Sept. 19 eviction resolution, and a son of Pleasanton Mayor Travis Hall.

Supreme Court to decide risky work case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court said Monday it will decide whether workers have a right, free from an employer's retaliation, to refuse work they feel is too hazardous.

The important worker safety case was brought to the high court by the Whirlpool Corp., sued by the government after it took disciplinary action against two workers at its household appliance factory in Marion, Ohio.

At issue is whether federal law and regulation bar employer action against workers who base their refusals to perform a task based on a belief that it presents an immediate danger of death or serious injury.

A section of the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 states that employers cannot discharge or discriminate against employees who file safety complaints against them. A Labor Department regulation implementing that section of the act spelled out workers who refuse to perform assigned tasks are protected, under certain conditions, against retaliation.

Cancer cases linked to chemical PCP

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Some cancer cases under study near an Army base in central Kentucky may be related to a chemical wood preservative used on ammunition boxes, the Louisville Courier-Journal says.

The newspaper quotes an unidentified federal researcher as saying the preservative, known as pentachlorophenol or PCP, was a common factor in several of the 120 cases of cancer under study by the Environmental Protection Agency.

The chemical is used as a preservative on ammunition cases at the Blue Grass Army Depot near Richmond, Ky.

The EPA study, being conducted by an epidemiologist at the University of Miami Medical School, is not complete.

But the newspaper quoted a source as saying the study found "one of the most substantial clusters of cancer" of the approximately 50 such investigations with which the source was familiar.

The paper said preliminary findings did not show how the chemical might cause cancer.

Owner says officials responsible in dog death

MIAMI (AP) — Sue Yodice, whose 13-year-old dog was killed by animal control officials shortly after its arrival at the Dade County Animal Shelter, wants a county law adopted to make officials personally responsible for such acts.

Storm, a Shetland sheep dog, was put to sleep a half-hour after he arrived at the shelter. He died last month while Yodice was on the telephone trying to find out about a lost-dog report she had filed.

I went hysterical," Yodice said Monday. This was one of my children. You know, after you have a dog 13 years he's part of your family."

Animal Control Division officials said they followed proper procedure in Storm's case.

The only slip-up was that the vet (who examined Storm) wasn't licensed in Florida," said Ronald Petty, director of the division.

Petty said Storm didn't have a license and was picked up on the loose in violation of a county leash law.

SENATE ACTION NEEDED ON FUNDING

Emergency measure put on hold

By JAY PERKINS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — An emergency measure designed to keep the government fully functioning and to revoke a 12.9 percent pay raise for congressmembers and top-level federal employees headed toward Senate action Monday.

The bill would provide operating funds for some of the nation's biggest government agencies — including the Defense Department and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare — which technically ran out of money at midnight Sunday. For now, the departments are getting by on money left over from the fiscal year that ended Sunday.

But the chances for quick action on the new money bill appeared slim. The House began a 10-day recess Friday, and House officials said there was "no chance" the House would give up its holiday to return to Washington to act on the bill.

SENATE MAJORITY LEADER Robert Byrd, D-W. Va., said he hoped the Senate could pass the emergency measure before Tuesday. That would toss the bill back to the House for action, and put new public pressure on congressmembers to act.

Senate leaders predicted that the new bill would rescind the 12.9 percent pay hike — which automatically went into effect at midnight Sunday — so congressmembers would get nothing. The House had wanted to allow a 5.5 percent pay raise.

The Senate bill also was expected to reduce the 12.9 percent hike for some 22,000 top bureaucrats to 5.5 percent or perhaps to nothing. However, the pay raise for some 900 federal judges cannot be rolled back, since the Constitution prohibits lowering the pay of a sitting judge.

And, the Senate bill was expected to contain more liberal restrictions on federal financing of abortions than those approved by the House.

The House had attempted to write strict limitations on abortion funding into an earlier version of the funding bill — limitations the Senate has rejected repeatedly. That, together with the pay raise and the House's decision to recess, prompted enraged senators to kill the earlier bill.

AS A RESULT, a new fiscal year began Monday with no decision by Congress on operating funds for major government agencies — the Housing and Urban Development, Labor, Agriculture and Transportation departments, in addition to Defense and HEW.

Authority for those departments to disburse funds technically expired at midnight Sunday when the new fiscal year started.

However, House and Senate officials indicated the departments had enough funds left over from the just-ended fiscal year to keep functioning for at least a week or so, although some programs might be impaired.

HEW officials said the impasse would have no effect on the Supplementary Security Income checks due for payment Monday or the Social Security checks and black lung disability checks to be paid Oct. 3. Aid to Families with Dependent Children checks also would be paid on time, they said.

There was no word on how long the impasse would have to continue before it would affect any of those operations.

THE TRANSPORTATION DEPARTMENT ordered its top administrators to curtail all non-essential activities. Acting Deputy Secretary Linda Kamm said this would delay release of some grants, "contracts not absolutely required for the operation of the department," some travel and new hirings and promotions.

Labor Department spokesperson John Leslie said the department has stopped making purchases, awarding contracts and approving most administrative expenses. He said the department has a $1.5 million working capital fund it can tap to keep essential services going.

A spokesperson for the Department of Housing and Urban Development said all new grants and loans for housing are "dead in their tracks," including funds for housing of the elderly and rental housing assistance. He said the department is "still trying to figure out a way so employees can be paid."

1980 Census will ask nothing too personal

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Census Bureau has decided that it just doesn't need to know how many left-handed American pet-owners snore.

When the Bureau takes its 20th national head count next April the statisticians will be striving to learn not just how many of you are out there, but what you're like and how you live.

There are some things, however, that won't be asked. Special-interest groups ranging from the poor to the handicapped to American Indians each has a need for special information and a desire to get it in convenient form.

This means that in the decade it has spent preparing for the 1980 census, the bureau was under constant pressure to ask this or that question, get such and such a piece of information.

AND THE ANSWERS are of more than academic interest: millions of dollars in federal and other money for groups and municipalities depend on the count.

The Constitution requires a head count of the people, the added questions are a look at the characteristics of the population, explained bureau spokesperson Henry Smith.

But, he added, "The questions have to have some relationship with an identifiable national interest. We don't ask your religion, or who you sleep with or whether you have a pet."

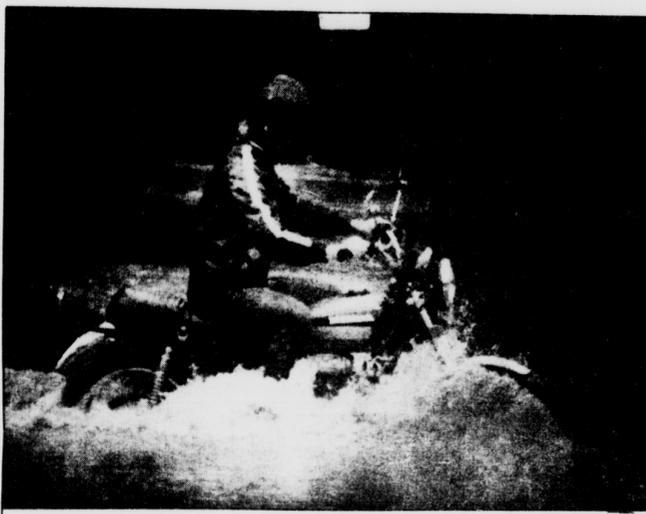

More than 70 meetings were held across the country to solicit views on what 1980's questionnaire should ask, and these meetings, starting in 1974, led to several changes in the forms.

RAY BANCROFT of the bureau reported that among the questions urged at these sessions, but rejected, included whether a person is left-handed, whether you snore, whether you own pets or a horse, what type of leisure activities you engage in and your sexual preference.

Still, in each census year there are complaints that some questions are too personal. Bureau officials emphasize, however, that they are asked for statistical reasons and individual responses are kept completely confidential.

The 1980 census will ask 19 questions of every American, seven population questions and a dozen queries about housing. Bureau experts say it should take about 15 minutes to fill out the form.

One American in six — more in rural areas — will get a longer form that should take about 45 minutes to complete. It has an extra 20 housing and 26 personal questions.

Rape counseling needed

By MOLLY MIKA
State News Staff Writer

Spring term of her freshman year at MSU, Carol went to a party given by some classmates. After a few hours, a friend from her residence hall asked if he could walk home with her.

"He was a friend of mine... someone I trusted," she said. They went to his room. There she found her "friend" holding a knife. That friend raped her.

Carol said being raped shattered her. She felt betrayed and incapable of judging who was dangerous.

"I FELT VERY afraid because he was living in the same dorm," she said. "I didn't know what to do besides locking the door and barring the window. I stayed in my room for three days. My roommate brought me food from McDonald's."

"We were in the same class and we had mutual friends, so I couldn't go back to class. I got a low grade because I missed the final."

Carol told the Board of Trustees Health Committee last Thursday about being raped, to stress the need for a rape crisis center at MSU.

"I didn't know where to go," she said. "There was no identifiable rape center at MSU, and I didn't want to struggle through the bureaucracy at MSU to track it down."

Carol, 24, told the committee if she were raped today, there would still be nowhere to go.

CAROL IS PART of the majority of victims who would rather go to an identified center than to the police, said Diane Windeshmin, Domestic Abuse Coordinator and rape counselor for the Ingham County Prosecutor's office.

Windeshmin was one of 10 women who voiced their concerns about rape on campus before a capacity crowd of 100 in Kellogg Center's Lincoln Room Thursday night.

"Women get threats from their attackers, such as 'I know where you live, who you are, even if you don't know me,'" she said.

"Women also fear the system. They hear so much about the callousness of police, prosecutors and medical people."

Windeshmin said she hears rape victims say they would have come to her sooner but they were afraid of being treated badly.

Windeshmin said a rape victim also fears the reactions of family and friends, because she feels shame in talking about a humiliating sexual experience. The victim also feels guilt, especially if she was hitchhiking or in some other dangerous situation.

CAROL'S REACTION IS typical of other women who know their rapist, said Windeshmin.

"If the woman is assaulted by someone she knows, the woman feels guilt and betrayal. If the woman is assaulted by a stranger, she feels fear, anger and outrage."

Windeshmin said rape victims should get help immediately, while the feelings are close to the surface and it is easiest to vent anger.

Dr. Katherine See, MSU James Madison College professor, told the committee women and men must be educated about rape and women must be encouraged to take self-defense instruction.

"The problem with present education efforts is that warnings are directed to women only," she said.

"The burden of education is on the shoulders of the victim. No attempt is made to educate men on the causes, consequences and meaning of rape, when only men can stop rape."

"As a woman, I'm concerned that I can't work in my office at night and I won't schedule classes at night without arranging rides for the women in my class since my friends have been raped," she said.

"AS A TEACHER, I'm concerned about the ignorance of sexual assault on the campus."

"Students accept the idea that women who go to the bars are asking for trouble," she said. "Where is our freedom of movement? Men who believe that are denying responsibility for rape," she said.

Another MSU professor said learning self-defense is an extremely rewarding, healthy experience and urged the committee to provide free instruction to MSU women.

Dr. Eileen VanTassel, professor of natural science, who has developed and taught courses on sex differences, said most college students don't have any understanding of the real world.

"There is an incredibly callous attitude of college men concerning sex differences. I hear very hostile comments to questions women raise in my class. It's a language of male dominance and aggression."

"Women are very trusting and open. They need to have a much more skeptical attitude."

SHARING HER VIEWPOINT was Joan Nelson, a self-defense instructor at Lansing Community College.

"In this culture, we raise little rapists, we raise little victims. Women learn how to behave like victims by learning passivity."

Nelson told the Committee that our culture is dangerous and cited statistics released by the FBI showing that one in three persons are victims of assault; one in four are victims of beatings; one in four are victims of sexual abuse and four of five women are subjected to sexual harassment.

"This is why self-defense is every woman's right," she said.

"It's a serious, practical skill that teaches you awareness, prevention and preparedness. You develop the judgment and self-confidence needed to respond in a crisis situation," she said.

The presentation before the Board of Trustees was organized by Jan Leland, a rape education instructor who last year authored the proposal for a rape counseling center at MSU.

President Cecil Mackey heard the presentation and is expected to make recommendations to the Board of Trustees later this month.

Stats show millions of veterans still eligible for GI Bill benefits

By MICHAEL VEH
State News Staff Writer

Nearly five million Vietnam veterans are still eligible for GI Bill educational benefits, according to Veterans Administration statistics.

Veterans lose their eligibility for GI Bill educational benefits 10 years from the date they were discharged.

The VA estimates that nearly 900,000 veterans will lose their eligibility beginning Oct. 1, 1980.

Most veterans should have been informed of their educational benefits during "out processing," Michael Belrose of the campus VA office said, but many ignore the pamphlets given to them.

VETERANS EDUCATIONAL BENEFITS can be applied to nearly all full- and part-time schooling and may be used at all levels of education.

The GI Bill offers veterans 45 months of educational or on-the-job training, $725 a semester through VA's work-study program, $825 in tutorial assistance and $2,500 in low-interest loans, based on financial need.

Veterans who have begun their training but have not completed it by the 10 year expiration date will lose their right to VA payments. No retroactive payments are available under current laws.

The veteran's dependents are also eligible for benefits under the GI Bill.

If the veteran is disabled or has died as a result of military service, the VA will usually pay up to $270 per month to educate the spouse, widow or widower, and each son and daughter, beyond the secondary school level.

Zimmerman said that as many as 2,600 veterans used the GI Bill during the peak years in the early 1970s.

VA predicts that by early 1981, the total number of Vietnam veterans using the educational benefits will have surpassed the number of World War II veterans who used them.

DURING SPRING TERM of 1979, 733 veterans and 150 dependents attended classes at MSU through the GI Bill.

"We have only about 63 to 65 percent who have used their benefits," said Dan Zimmerman of the MSU office of VA. "And the number is dropping."

New governance due?

By SUE ROBACH
State News Staff Writer

The academic governance system has been considered cumbersome and slow by many in past years, and finally a re-evaluation of the system has been proposed to hasten the process.

At the Faculty Council meeting last Tuesday, President Cecil Mackey suggested that "it would be worthwhile to look at the effectiveness of the system, and see if it meets the needs of the University."

Some of the areas of major concern are the long periods of time it takes to move a proposal through the system, increased faculty participation and administrative authority.

The academic governance system is involved in setting university policy and academic policy.

to move proposals through the system."

THE PROPOSED REVISION to the Interim Faculty Grievance Procedure is one such example.

Since 1972, the Faculty Council and administration have been working on a revision to the Interim Faculty Grievance Procedure implemented that year. That proposal has been halted at the administrative level, after being approved by the Faculty Council this summer.

The revision to the Student Instructional Rating System (SIRS) forms is another example.

The forms, instituted this year, took about two years to be revised and approved by the Academic Council.

However, there are two sides to the issue.

Certain procedures are time consuming and deliberate because the committees want to be absolutely sure about the decisions they make," said Zolton Ferency, associate professor of criminal justice.

Committee, said that the last time the academic governance system was re-evaluated was in 1973.

"Now we must reassess what we really want to accomplish in the system," he added.

MANDERSCHIED SAID THAT one of the major problems with the present system lies in disagreement over the distribution of power among faculty members and administrators.

"The president's suggestion was a refreshing breath of air," said C. Patric "Lash" Larrowe, faculty grievance official.

The Board of Trustees and the Administration want full faculty participation in academic governance, Ferency said. "If the faculty is going to voice an opinion on university policy, we have to do it through the Faculty Council and various committees," he said.

"On the other hand, if they want to abolish faculty participation, they could go to the collective-bargaining table and see where the faculty stands on university policy," Ferency said.

The Board of Trustees and the Administration have to come to a decision, he added.

THE GOVERNANCE SYSTEM is composed of the Academic Senate, the Steering Committee of Academic Council which includes members of the Faculty Council, the Student Council, and designated members of the Academic Council Standing Committees.

"I would like to see it studied and re-evaluated," Provost Clarence L. Winder said. "The present system requires a long period of time

THE SEARCH AND selection process, used to select an official such as the president, is one such example, Ferency said.

Oct. 9 is E.L. voter registration deadline

East Lansing residents must register by Oct. 9 to be eligible to vote in the Nov. 6 city election.

Residents of East Lansing may register from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the City Clerk's office in East Lansing City Hall or at any Secretary of State office.

Individuals will also be going door to door every night through Oct. 9 to register students living in residence halls.

At this time, the Nov. 6 ballot is scheduled to include the Dayton Hudson proposal, East Lansing City Council candidates, a Grove Street parking ramp proposal, and the proposal to annex part of east campus from Meridian Township to East Lansing.

National consumer confidence dropping U-M survey shows

By MICHAEL VEH
State News Staff Writer

Consumer confidence dropped sharply during May to August, a University of Michigan quarterly survey of consumer attitudes reported.

The latest drop in confidence is part of a steady two-year drop, which accompanies current declines in consumer sales of automobiles and other large items.

The August survey represents a nationwide sample of 1,212 respondents who rated the index of consumer sentiment at 64.5, down 14 points from 1978 and down 23 points from 1977.

The ratings are based on a 100-point scale with 100 being the best conditions and zero being the worst.

THE RESPONDENTS WERE scientifically chosen from a cross section of people representing all major portions of the population, Gil Goodwin of the U-M Information Service office said.

Survey Director Richard T. Curtin said in his report that although the decline has been steep and widespread, the overall decline "has been less severe than prior to the last recession due to the impact of buy-in-advance psychology."

If people are convinced that prices are going to continue to rise, Goodwin said, they think it makes more sense to buy now, before prices go up even higher.

The U-M report said personal financial attitudes improved slightly during the latest quarter but still remain near record-low levels.

Of all families surveyed, 38 percent reported they were "worse off" financially while 33 percent said they were "better off."

better off, the report said.

The survey said more respondents frequently reported hearing unfavorable changes in business conditions and many reported growing signs of a slowdown in the economy.

The report also showed consumer confidence near the lowest level ever recorded regarding government economic policies to fight inflation and unemployment.

Automobile buying attitudes were largely unchanged from May, the report said, but 2 percent below 1978 levels.

The survey rated market conditions for houses unfavorable and said rising interest rates have contributed to the decline.

The report also said the amount of spendable income after taxes being placed into savings has remained below 6 percent since late 1976.

"During the second half of 1979 and early 1980, continued cutbacks in consumer spending will result in savings rates moving above the 6 percent level," Curtin said.

"In contrast, from 1970 to 1975, the quarterly saving rate fell below 6 percent only once," Curtin added.

Correction

The deadline for voter registration in Meridian Township was incorrectly reported in Monday's State News. The deadline for voter registration for the Nov. 6 election regarding the annexation of parts of East Complex Residence Halls to East Lansing is Oct. 9.

OPINION

Pay hike in '81 a shrouded issue

The nation's Congress gave some support to the credibility of the current recession with their recent plans to increase House salaries from $57,500 to $60,700 a year. Though the bill is expected to pass both houses of Congress with little opposition, the Senate has attached an amendment to the bill prohibiting the pay hike from going into effect until 1981, after the 1980 Congressional elections.

Most Congressmembers claim their pay hike is absolutely necessary, a point many outsiders see as well taken. Nonetheless, there is no excuse for a pay hike to be shrouded and pushed through the Congress as this one may well be.

Whenever a justifiable cause is carried out through sneaky cloakroom methods, only a fool would fail to be concerned with what is actually going on. (The move to enact the pay raise after the 1980 elections is sheer politicking at its best.) The average — meaning uninformed — American is supposed to think that receiving the pay hike in 1981 is a vote of support for the economic system. This is simply not so.

Amidst a flurry of growing economic concerns, leadership and faith in our economic system must come from Washington if the nation is to confront its problems.

Perhaps the most substantial claim made by Congressmembers is that their current salary is inadequate to maintain two homes and stay financially solvent. That may be true, after realizing one of those homes must be in Washington D.C., a city with the second highest cost of living in the nation.

The most dangerous aspect of the pay hike is that the Congressmembers are shrewdly increasing their already lofty power of incumbency. Some time ago, many Congressmembers lost their seats due to increasing fire from irate constituents who disapproved of their quietly giving themselves pay hikes. Now with fewer weak spots which may be vulnerable to angry constituents, the members of Congress wield the intolerable power of running a campaign by almost solely highlighting the power of incumbency.

A study of the number of Congressmembers successfully re-elected will make this issue painfully clear.

Should the House fail to receive their pay increase — the bill has yet to pass both chambers — they should keep in mind one very important thought: the prestige of being a Congressman does not entitle one to live an elitist's life. (Unfortunately, too many Congressmembers do just that in their Capitol Hill homes, many of which cost upwards of $100,000.

C'mon, Congress, let's not be hypocritical. Stick the taxpayers now, or leave us alone.

Call to Kelley is a plea for service

When Ingham County recently asked Attorney General Frank J. Kelley to become a third defendant in the dispute between the county and Meridian Township, it was a call for help. While the county may feel Kelley could help its case by revealing which law his office uses in such municipal disturbances, we feel the attorney general would be of service no matter who benefits. For Kelley's charge is the affairs of the state, and his refusal to become involved will not prevent the issue from surfacing again.

Meridian Township and Ingham County met an impasse in September when the township asked courts to stop a special election, which would determine if East Lansing will annex parts of MSU which currently lie in the township. Ingham County, using one law currently on the books, and Meridian Township, thinking another applies to this special election, now find themselves in court with a lawsuit. The complex tale of woe — which effects many MSU students in Akers, Hubbard, McDonel, Holmes and Owen Halls — has already reached the status of a classic bureaucratic battle.

As a government official and the state's most highly revered opinion-maker, we understand that Kelley would much rather leave the decision up to the municipalities involved. But we also feel the legal interpretations of his office could shed a lot of light on this issue. This may not be one of the more glamorous testimonies of Kelley's career, but it is none the less an important one. His refusal to get involved with the issue will not expedite the resolution — on the contrary, it could mean a slew of court cases in the future.

We also urge lawmakers to re-examine the two conflicting laws in the case — the Charter Township Act and the Michigan Boundary Commission guidelines — to try to determine which mandate will be used in the future. We know this will not be an easy task, but we feel it must be done if situations like this are to be avoided.

Crowded stadiums cause public woe

Not too many years ago, the MSU football team abandoned its losing ways, and now students are realizing they must make many sacrifices in order to have a winning football team.

The recent mix-up of football seating, however, is not the type of sacrifice students should be forced to make. Steps must be taken to prevent students — many of whom paid premium prices for tickets — from having to sit two abreast in the aisles. Not only is this a safety hazard, but it also ignores the rights of those who patiently waited for their opportunity to view an MSU football game. Will those who had to sit in the aisles get a refund for their tickets?

Now that the unfortunate mix-up has been clarified, something will have to be done to rectify the situation and keep it from happening again, especially at the upcoming Michigan game.

Though the stadium may be crowded, the withholding of tickets for public sale is a well founded idea. Folding chairs in the aisles may help those students forced to sit on cold concrete, but that is not the type of long range solution students seek.

With the greatest football season to come thrashing across this campus in several years, all students should be able to enjoy the benefits of an exciting football year.

JAY F. FLETCHER

The Republican vote is nearing extinction

There are very few things I like about the changing of the seasons, especially the shift from summer to fall. The leaves start to turn, the days get shorter and the students know that midterms and finals are not too far around the corner. Also lurking in the future is the horrible winter, which will fortunately remove the bikes from the paths and make life a lot safer for all of us.

The best things autumn has to offer, and probably the only things I like are the political elections which seem to haunt us annually. This year may be the best political display in quite some time, with democrats trying to pitch a split between south and north; hell and high water; Kennedy and Carter.

Meanwhile, the Republicans are busy putting on a first rate show of their own. Such political conservatives as Ronald Reagan, John Connally, and Phillip Crane actually think they have a reasonable chance of winning the Republican nomination and going on to win the presidency. Some of these candidates have very poor perceptions of the future, however.

While speaking to a bright-eyed crowd of Congressional interns this summer on Capitol Hill, Chairperson of the Republican National Committee William Brock said the Republican party is dawning on a new era in national politics. Didn't we hear that classic line at the beginning of Nixon's second term in office?

Politics are always filled with hypocritical statements and ironies. Republicans claim they are looking for a young candidate to spark the country and give it the sense of direction so urgently needed. Does this mean that Ronald Reagan is out for 1980? After all, he is 68 years old and not getting any younger. I would only hope this is not the type of new, young candidate the Republicans had in mind.

Do you sometimes have the feeling that politics is nothing more than a re-cycling of a bunch of old stuffed-shirt businessowners and conservatives who have nothing better to do with the waning years of their lives? Some candidates the Republicans are scraping out of the woodworks incite great cause to wonder. For example, take Phillip Crane, a liberal's best friend. If you are willing to accept the fact that the country is shifting to the right, then Crane is your man. Having a number one ranking in the eyes of the American Conservative Union, Crane's philosophies are undoubtedly the most acceptable to this new right. His perception of this new right is somewhere just left of Neanderthal. Once again, this is not the kind of image the Republican party needs to regain the strength it has lost over the years.

After thinking about the Republic Party's fate, it would not be such a foolish adventure to support them. If you were drowning, wouldn't you want some innocent fool to throw you a life preserver? To be an enlightened voter, you have to address the facts of political life. First, don't support candidates for their stance on the issues. You support candidates for the quality of the image they portray. Cowboy and Indian fanatics of the late 1930's may come out of the closet and cast their unyielding support for Ronald Reagan. You never know, this may be a major factor behind his winning the election.

Secondly, you never vote for a true Republican, but you may vote for a person who is declared a Republican only if that person has democratic thoughts. Hey, let's face it, this is America, and being a Republican isn't the trendy thing to do.

For those of you who think life is boring, meaningless and farcical, throw your vote to Ronald Reagan. Your life will surely change. Remember his speech on the Panama Canal treaty a couple of years ago? Well, in a few years you may find yourself fighting the Panamanians in some malaria infested trench defending a canal which will inevitably be blown up by the Russians before you start to collect social security — if social security is still around.

Auction off MSU for a good drunk and better seats

When I learned that MSU intended to build a Football Training Facility this summer, I thought it was bomb. "What a break for learning," I cried. So, you can imagine how the recent proposal for adding $20 million worth of seats to Spartan Stadium blew me away. But I was bummed out when I heard later that we might have to wait five years before we start building because we're not sure if we have a winner on our hands.

Why don't we ever think boldly? I mean we gotta want it, right?

Let's do this: Let's auction off the Colleges of Business, Education, and Engineering. Bidding will be lively, no doubt. What corporation wouldn't be proud to have our education college at its masthead? And if, by some act of God, the sale falls flat, we'll toss in Arts and Letters. I'll probably get some objections on that score, but you gotta remember — it's a big college. So what if the buildings are old? With the right approach, I'm sure we could market them. Merging with a life insurance company might be a good idea.

Sounds wild, doesn't it? Really, nothing will change, except that we'll be loaded after the auction. Those seats could be up by next year. And if we have any extra cash, we'll blow our faces out at Dooley's.

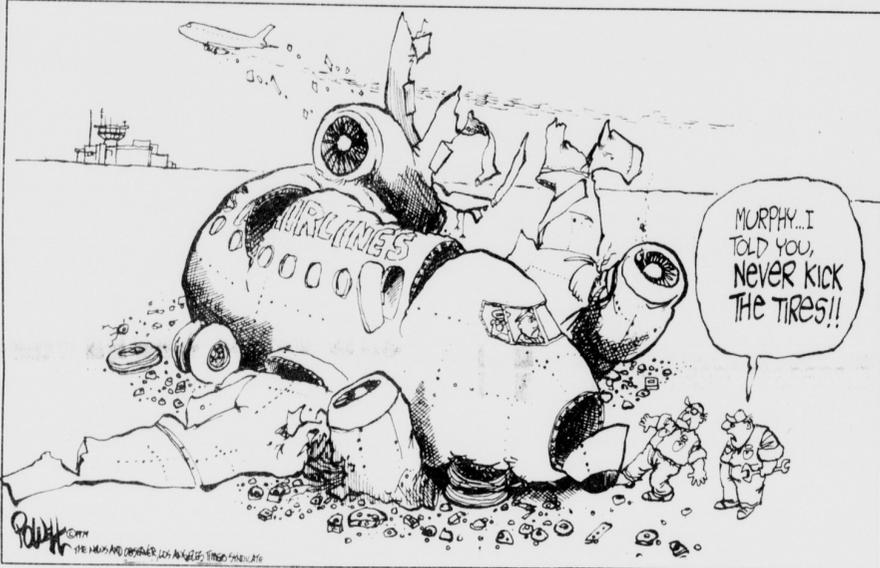

Charles B. Fleetham
Lansing

MSU should give students a break in the ticket line

Upon receiving information pertaining to my request for Spartan football tickets, I could not help but feel hostile towards the denial. Our team is the best in the area and is on their way to the Rose bowl. Being denied such an educational experience in my freshman year upsets me greatly. Perhaps as a freshman, I have no right to speak out, but it is hard for me to fathom how a stadium which holds some 70,000-plus people does not have room enough to seat all those MSU students who would like to go and support their team. I realize that in a structure such as Jenison Fieldhouse it would be impossible to house the entire student body; but this does not apply to the stadium.

If the football tickets do not go to the students, then to whom? Alumni and "scalpers"? I think MSU keeps forgetting its purpose, "the education of its students!" Granted, the University makes more money from selling tickets to alumni and they also buy more refreshments, but the alumni have had their day as students. The University should be thoughtful enough not to allow people outside of MSU to infringe on the education of today's students.

VIEWPOINT: ABORTION

Contraceptive methods perform political tasks

By KATHRYN TRACY

This letter is in response to Robert Spira's letter entitled "Students — Beware of sharp knives." From talking with women who have had abortions as well as from reading literature about abortions, I can assure you that the dangers you speak of are usually not present. I find the paragraph you devoted to the dangers of abortion totally repugnant. How can you say you are not speaking against abortion?

When you say to keep out of the situation of abortion as best you can, I assume you are advocating birth control of one sort or another. And of course, this task falls entirely on the woman most of the time. Which form of birth control would you suggest? The Pill? When you are given a prescription for the Pill, a large pamphlet is included, outlining the many dangers associated with this method. Would you suggest an IUD? The medical world still doesn't know how it works or all the dangers associated with it. These two forms of birth control are the most effective, yet they are also the most dangerous to the woman who is forced to use them. The truth is that women are still being used as guinea pigs by the male dominated world of medicine.

Several times in the past four or five years I have heard about breakthroughs in medicine where a form of male contraceptive has been discovered. These "breakthroughs" fade away as quickly as they come. Why do you suppose this is so? Could it be that male dominated medicine does not want to subject men to the dangers it so suavely subjects women to?

What happens if a woman decides she does not want to use birth control and, in fact, does not want to have children at all? If she asks to have her tubes tied, the response is almost always no. The same people who expect a woman to be mature enough to keep herself from becoming pregnant say she is too young and imply she is too unknowledgeable to determine for herself whether she wants children. I am talking about middle or upper class white women.

Let us now talk about poor native

American, Mexican-American or black women. White doctors are all too willing to keep these women from having children, even if they want to have them. There are so many cases of third world women who go to a doctor for health care and come out sterile — AGAINST THEIR WILL! The same reasoning that tells doctors white women want children, but don't know it, tells them third world women DON'T want children, but don't know it.

I agree that abortion is not a pleasant subject to talk about, but it is only one among many unpleasant subjects having to do with women's health care. If a woman becomes pregnant, abortion is the one real alternative to having a child and this alternative is, thank God, very available and at least as safe as other alternatives.

GM notes airbag danger to children

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp. told federal officials Monday it will not offer passenger side airbags in its 1981 models because it fears the devices could be dangerous to small children.

GM said earlier it would offer airbags on certain 1981 model cars — a full year before federal safety regulation mandates passive restraints as standard equipment.

But in a letter Monday to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, Betsy Ancker-Johnson, vice president of GM's environmental activities staff, said "extensive development testing" has worried GM about the potential for risk of injury to unrestrained small children.

"Our studies suggested that due to the effect of pre-impact braking on unrestrained children, or because they might not be seated properly at the time of restraint deployment, they might be exposed to inflation forces capable of producing significant injury," Ancker-Johnson said.

GM NOW HOPES to offer driver's side airbags sometime in 1981 and passenger side restraints in 1982.

The No. 1 automaker has worked "aggressively" toward solving problems with passenger side airbags, Ancker-Johnson said, but it now has run out of lead time for even a late introduction during the 1981 model year.

"Accordingly," she said, "we deem it inadvisable to offer a passenger side inflatable restraint option in the 1981 model year. However, we are continuing our engineering development efforts with the goal of introducing such an option on full-size cars in 1982."

GM now has tested nearly 10,000 airbags and recently developed new tests to evaluate their risks.

Ancker-Johnson said engineers and physicians need more information on child injury tolerances and improved test dummies to help design an airbag which is not dangerous for small children.

Ticket refunds

Refunds will be available through 5 p.m. Wednesday for those students who purchased tickets for the telecast of the MSU-Notre Dame football game Saturday at the Auditorium.

Students must bring their ticket stubs to receive the refunds which are being distributed at the east ticket office of Munn Ice Arena.

The telecast of the game, which was supposed to begin at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, was fouled up because of a problem with wiring.

There was a break in the line that was supposed to transfer the TV signal from South Bend, Ind., said John Haytol, chairperson of Programming Board.

The signal was unable to go through because of the break in the line, he said.

But Haytol added, that because the audience seemed to think the idea of the telecast was a good one, given another chance he would try to arrange a similar production.

Professor receives distinguished award

Richard U. Byerrum, dean of the College of Natural Science and professor of biochemistry, will receive an Honorary Alumni Award at the Homecoming Banquet on October 19.

The Board of Trustees approved the MSU Alumni Association's recommendation that Byerrum receive the award for his outstanding service in his field.

Byerrum came to MSU in 1947. He has served as the dean of the College of Natural Science since 1962.

Hospitality open house

The Hospitality Association is sponsoring an open house tonight from 7 to 9:30 p.m. in the Kellogg Center Auditorium.

Speakers from different sectors of the hospitality industry will discuss opportunities offered to HRI college graduates.

This year, William Adams, regional vice president for Sky Chiefs, a subsidiary of American Airlines, is among the guest speakers.

The event, called Open House '79, is an annual production for the association and the biggest event of the year for the School of Hotel, Restaurant & Institutional Management.

The open house is informational in nature, said John Tsui, president of the Hospitality Association, and freshman and sophomore HRI majors are encouraged to attend. The event is open to all students.

Hors d'oeuvres will be prepared and served by the Catering Club.

The Hospitality Association is comprised of six clubs, which are the Hotel Sales Management Association, the Club Managers Association of America, the Catering Club, Les Gourmets, the Hospitality Press and the Travel and Tourism Club.

Show spirit at pep rally

A pep rally for the MSU-University of Michigan football game will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 4, on the grass field in front of Demonstration Hall.

The rally, sponsored by the MSU Student Foundation, is open to the public and will feature Spartan head coach Darryl Rogers, the MSU Marching Band, Spartan cheerleaders and a number of MSU players.

Bob Berry, WVIC radio disc jockey, will be master of ceremonies.

'U' drives Kennedy draft

The drive to elect Sen. Edward Kennedy to the presidency has begun at MSU, despite the fact that Kennedy has not yet announced he will run.

More than 30 students have already volunteered to aid in launching the campaign for the Massachusetts democrat.

"The group was formed to show Kennedy the strength behind him," Alan Fox, campus campaign organizer said. The MSU group is affiliated with the statewide campaign effort, which has its headquarters in Southfield.

The main job of the volunteers will be to get other people to support or work for Kennedy's candidacy.

"We are hopeful that Kennedy will make the decision to take the candidacy by the end of the year, possibly by the end of October," Fox said. Fox is an East Lansing council member.

Campaign officials said the results of the Florida primary will be a decisive factor in Kennedy's announcement.

"The main thrust of the campaign will be to show Kennedy's ability and leadership that is needed to help us through these inflationary times," Fox said.

Kennedy will probably pursue his national health plan and other current issues, Fox said. No campaign issues have really been worked out as of yet, he continued, because the campaigners are "still working separately from him (Kennedy) right now."

"Michigan has potential to be the most organized state in the campaign for Kennedy. What we need now is communication to get more people for other meetings," Fox said.

Iggy goes pop on new LP

By BILL HOLDSHIP
State News Reviewer

DICTIONARY OF '70s SURVIVORS AND OTHER STRANGE CURIOSITIES: IGGY POP (aka James Jewel Osterburg) — Born in Ann Arbor, Mich. 1947, to schoolteacher parents. Changes name to Iggy while performing with several high school "punk" bands. Moves to Chicago during the mid-'60s to play blues with Paul Butterfield. Returns to Detroit to form the Stooges, one of the most demented bands in the history of rock 'n roll.

The Stooges provide the perfect antithesis to the peace-love-flower power mood of the time by taking the social anarchy stance of the Rolling Stones to its furthest nihilistic extreme. Like the Stones, Iggy is obsessed with the boredom and frustration inherent in a passionless society. The band plays the loudest, hardest, most banal form of three chord rock (and once they learn to play their instruments, they are even better), while Iggy portrays a rock version of William Burroughs by incorporating every form of human vileness, decadence and degradation into his personality, combining it with a Kierkegaardian search for passion and the forces of nature.

Iggy also seems obsessed with the contradictions of humanity, and his persona portrays such human dualities as the connections between pain and pleasure (or death and the orgasm), narcissism and self-hate, sanity and insanity, animal sexuality and human emotion, etc. The Stooges are sort of like a non-intellectual version of the Doors, and — like Jim Morrison — Iggy fulfills a priestly function by revealing the total naked human psyche.

The Stooges' punk and "revolution-as-theater" stance is unrivaled by none. Iggy continuously lives on the edge, and the band becomes notorious as rock's premier burn-outs. By the time of their second LP (1970), the band is playing music from somewhere on the other side of the Twilight Zone, while Iggy — covered in blood or peanut butter or both — crawls to the microphone to croon "Strangers In The Night" or to quote Renfield from Dracula ("Flies . . . big juicy flies . . . and spiders!") through cracked and bleeding lips.

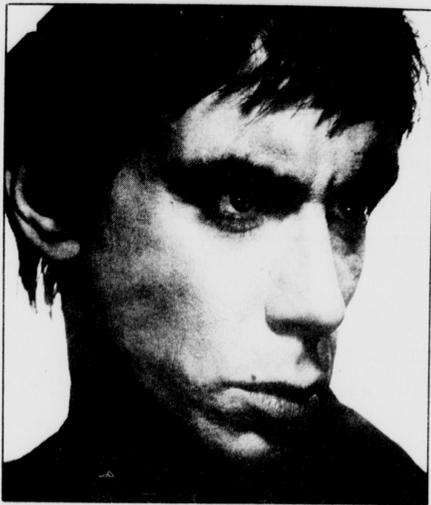

Needless to say, the band burns itself out. Elektra drops their contract, and Iggy becomes a literal street addict, still committed to a course of self-destruction. When Jim Morrison dies, Iggy is scheduled to become the Doors' lead singer, but the plans fall through. In 1972, David Bowie releases The Rise & Fall Of Ziggy Stardust, dealing with a character based on Iggy. (Iggy would later be the inspiration for Bowie's "Panic In Detroit.") Bowie expresses interest in Iggy and takes him to England where they team up with guitar virtuoso, James Williamson. The result is the Bowie-produced Raw Power, perhaps the greatest heavy metal and most nihilistic rock LP ever recorded.

The new band burns itself out, and Iggy returns to Los Angeles where he enters various institutions to dry out. In Britain, the punk rock movement has begun, and Iggy is canonized by such new English and American rockers as the Sex Pistols, Patti Smith and the Ramones. Elton John in an interview calls Iggy one of rock's greatest performers and expresses interest in recording an album with him. Plans fall through.

Bowie decides the time is right for Iggy's "comeback," and he takes him to Berlin — the world's most depraved city. ("I always knew I wanted to come to Berlin," said Iggy, "like some guys always knew they wanted to wear a dress.") The result is The Idiot, which resembles electronic disco music for the living dead. Iggy does a "comeback" tour with Bowie in the background on keyboards and an unknown opening band called Blondie.

Bowie produces two more Iggy LPs — the rocking Lust For Life and a dismal "live" LP, TV Eye. The LPs don't sell. Bomp Records releases old Iggy tracks on Kill City LP, one of 1978's best rock records. Bowie loses interest. RCA drops Iggy's contract.

Iggy Pop remains one of rock's most sympathetic artists. I mean, even people who've never heard him perform have to admit that his is a pretty impressive history. Iggy should be a star, and yet he has been surpassed by numerous other acts influenced by him.

Iggy Pop

Iggy deserves a piece of the cake, and that seems to be his aim on his latest LP, New Values (Arista AB 4237). Old Iggy aficionados shouldn't be misled by the LP's title. As Iggy states on the title track, "I'm looking for one new value but nothing comes my way," and the only real "new value" he has discovered is a more commercial-sounding one. That isn't to say that Iggy has grown mellow or changed his philosophies (although he is a bit tamer than he used to be). What "commercial" means is rather than three chords, Iggy now occasionally uses five or six in his music. In other words, it's still pure rock 'n roll.

For example, "Tell Me A Story," the LP's opening cut, is the type of pop song that reveals Iggy must have been the type of guy who stood with his hand over his heart every time he heard songs like "Be My Baby" when he was a kid. On the other hand, tunes like "Five Foot One" and the title track have riffs which remind the listener of outtakes from Raw Power. This may be the case, as New Values features the triumphant return of James Williamson, whose scorching guitar shines throughout the LP. Williamson also acted as the album's producer, and this is Iggy's most crisply produced record. It's about time.

Lyrically, Iggy has matured somewhat. Some songs deal with his role as rock's most surprising survivor ("Me, I'm just a lucky guy/I'm young and free/Too dumb to cry"), while others are a more mature look at Iggy's age-old themes ("I'm bored/I'm the chairman of the bored!").

Iggy demonstrates his most lyrical growth on "Billy Is A Runaway" — the LP's closing track — which includes pure rock poetry in the vein of Dylan's "Subterranean Homesick Blues" or Elvis C.'s "Pump It Up." On the other hand, Iggy's conception of "stupid rock" still prevails on "African Man," a song so stupid that only Iggy could get away with performing it. Iggy gets a bit too wimpy on "Angel" — a real love ballad(?) — but the rest of the record is top-notch rock music. And any LP that paraphrases both George Gershwin's "Summertime" and "Santa Claus Is Coming To Town" has gotta be commercial.

New Values isn't Iggy's best LP. Kill City holds that title, while Raw Power will always remain in a league of its own. Still, the LP is an excellent place for anyone uninitiated to begin. After all, it's commercial Iggy, and THE RADIO STATIONS SHOULD BE PLAYING IT.

'Mondo Video' belongs on television

By BYRON BAKER
State News Reporter

As is fairly well known by now, humorist Michael O'Donoghue's Mr. Mike's Mondo Video (New Line Cinema; at the Campus Theatre) was originally produced for NBC television. However, the network — reportedly "aghast" at what one NBC source called the special's "garish and flagrant violations of standards of taste" — refused to air the 90-minute program. Eventually, some enterprising honchos, hoping to somehow capitalize on the National Lampoon/Saturday Night Live reputation of O'Donoghue in a way directly translating into hard currency, arranged a theatrical release for the show.

In a way, it's a shame NBC couldn't have somehow silenced whatever internal objections it had regarding the show's content, and aired it as planned. Mr. Mike's Mondo Video doesn't really belong on the big screen — it belongs on television, the medium for which it was designed. If the program is arguably too daring for commercial broadcast, it is, sadly, far too tame for the movies.

One gets the feeling that producer-writer-director O'Donoghue and co-writers Mitchell Glazer, Emily Prager and Dirk Wittenborn were here carefully skirting the edges of prescribed video acceptability in order to provide the folks watching at home with various unexpected cheap thrills, shocks and laughs. In a movie house — particularly at $3 a head — Mondo Video merely seems watered-down and half-hearted. The film's murky image quality, a frequent problem with material transferred from a videotape original to celluloid, doesn't help the matter.

Still, the picture is occasionally extremely funny. O'Donoghue, responsible for such gems as "How to Write Good," "The Vietnamese Baby Book," and The National Lampoon Encyclopedia of Humor in his days at the Lampoon, and did much as a writer to fount Saturday Night Live's distinctive, anarchic brand of boffs, is a witty, inventive and darkly humored fellow. Sometimes his original comic concepts and observations in Mondo Video seem quite apt.

The show is a mixed bag, featuring such diverse items as a report on a cat-swimming academy in Amsterdam (" . . . not a cat has drowned in Amsterdam in over 300 years, and here's why . . ."); a bit of film on a sect in Cedar Rapids, Iowa which worships Jack Lord ("The Jack Lord helped me kick Valium," excitedly breathes a housewife); a person-in-the-street Q&A on "should there be capital punishment for elephants;" footage of the late Sid Vicious singing "My Way;" a captured Pentagon film on special laser bras . . . in addition to providing a devastating laser blast, they also support, lift and separate . . ."), and shots of Gig Young's groceries. Throughout, O'Donoghue, as a friendly Mr. Mike, keeps warning us of the "brutal, strange, shocking and repugnant" things coming up on the show, and promises "an odyssey of aggressive weirdness," which somehow never arrives. On television, it might be pleasantly amusing, strange and obscure. At the movies, though, it's mostly a disappointment, despite brief appearances by Dan Aykroyd, Don Novello, Gilda Radner and other sundry friends from Saturday Night.

Sharing the bill at the Campus with Mr. Mike's Mondo Video is a special retrospective of the adventures of Mr. Bill (Mr. Bill, it seems, has amnesia, and Mr. Hands and Dr. Sluggo try to jog his memory by showing him highlights of his life) which somehow lacks the careful tempo of catastrophe of his TV exploits, and a colorful Universal travelogue about Nova Scotia which, in its way, is more bizarre than anything Mr. Mike has to offer.

'Harlan County' film to be shown tonight

The Miners' Art Group, an organization of political artists dedicated to communicating the plight of the miners and mine-towns in rural West Virginia, currently have an exhibit of works in the Union Lounge. The exhibits, consisting of some 75 paintings, sculptures and photographs representing life in the coal fields, will be on display through Oct. 3. Hours are from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. The group will also present Barbara Kopple's highly praised 1976 Academy Award-winning documentary about mining life and hardship in the Kentucky coal fields, Harlan County, U.S.A. The film, presented in association with Front Line Cinema and Praxis, will be shown tonight at 7:30 p.m. in 336 Union.

Streisand sues skin magazine

NEW YORK (AP) — Barbra Streisand filed a $5 million damage suit Thursday seeking to block High Society magazine from publishing photographs showing her nude above the waist.

The actress-singer claimed the magazine, which features "hard-core pornography," wrongfully obtained the photographs and intends to distribute them in its November issue about to be sent to subscribers.

Papers filed in the U.S. District Court in Manhattan indicated the photographs were taken but never used while the star was filming the movie, "The Owl and the Pussycat."

Rastar Productions, Inc., producers of the film, joined Streisand in a request for an injunction against distribution plus damages.

"Throughout her career, Streisand has vigorously protected her reputation and privacy by refusing to consent to release of any film or publication in which she was not fully clothed," the papers state.

HARLAN COUNTY, U.S.A., wrote State News film reviewer Byron Baker, " . . . is a powerful, celebratory story of human conflict and dignity. Kopple has carefully, movingly and lovingly captured something of the spirit of the county men and women in their continuing struggles." Andy Willis, co-founder of the Miners' Art Group, will speak after the film.

Admission is $1.50.

Golfers win state title

While MSU women's golf squads gained fourth, fifth and 11th place finishes in the first MSU-Central Michigan University Invitational last weekend, MSU's number one designated team came up with a victory in the first annual State of Michigan Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women Golf Tournament.

The Spartans' Green team, chosen earlier as the squad that would represent MSU in the SMAIAW tournament, outlasted the University of Michigan and Central Michigan and Ferris State universities. The SMAIAW tourney was, in effect, a tournament in a tournament, as it was being played as part of the larger MSU-CMU Invitational.

THE MSU GREEN team was led by the Spartans' weekend medalist, Nina Spatafora. Spatafora, with rounds of 82, 83 and 74, for a 239 total, helped keep MSU in contention for state honors after her team fell far behind with a poor showing Friday. Spatafora and her teammates were forced to come from 10 strokes behind on the final day of competition Sunday, in order to defeat U-M, 980-991. CMU and FSU followed in that order with scores of 1009 and 1124.

MSU's White squad, although its score did not count in the state competition, finished immediately behind the Spartan Green team with a final card of 981.

The final MSU team to compete over the weekend was the Spartan squad, which finished with a 1,017 total.

OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY won the MSU-CMU Invitational with a 921 card, followed by Furman and Marshall universities at 932 and 970. MSU coach Mary Fossum was not disappointed in her team's fourth, fifth and 11th place finishes in the tourney. "I am extremely pleased with the young talent we have," Fossum said. "Though we didn't win the tournament, we showed a lot of potential. This would be a good time for us to peak with the Midwest Tournament coming up in two weeks."

Harriers outclassed by Penn St., Wis.

By BILL TEMPLETON
State News Sports Writer

Two of the nation's top-ranked teams in women's cross country were here last weekend to run in the Badger-Spartan Invitational held at the Forest Akers golf course.

Pennsylvania State University and the University of Wisconsin claimed nine of the top ten individual place finishes, with Penn State claiming the 1-2-3 slots in winning the tournament.

The Spartans were led by freshmen Jill Washburn, who ran the 5,000 meter course in 18:37 for a 10th place finish.

GAME TO BE ON NATIONAL TV

Vaughn will start against U-M

By ADAM TEICHER
State News Sports Writer

If there is anyone out there without a ticket to Saturday's MSU-University of Michigan football game in Spartan Stadium, don't fret. ABC-TV announced Monday that the Spartan-Wolverine clash will be the network's weekly national college football telecast.

Kickoff has been moved back to 2 p.m. from the usual 1:30 p.m. starting time.

The Spartans received another bit of good news when they learned they wouldn't have to face the Wolverines with an untested freshman quarterback. Bert Vaughn has recovered from the back injury that knocked him out of last week's contest with the University of Notre Dame and will start against U-M.

Who will back-up Vaughn is anybody's guess at this time. Bryan Clark stepped in for Vaughn against the Fighting Irish, but was forced to the sidelines himself with a rib injury. "Bryan Clark is a bigger question mark (as far as his status for the U-M game) at this time than Bert Vaughn is," MSU coach Darryl Rogers said at his weekly press conference Monday.

Without Clark, the Spartans are going to need a second quarterback. "We're going to try and find a second quarterback among our freshmen," Rogers said. The four freshmen quarterbacks on the MSU roster include Jon English, Otis Grant, Denis Lavelle and John Leister.

ROGERS INSISTS THAT all four, as of Monday practice, were equal on the depth chart. "They've basically been on our scout team," explained Rogers. "We haven't had to come to the point where we had to say which one was ahead of the other, but we have now."

"They're all passing quarterbacks, good athletes of different sizes and shapes," he continued. "Each has some pluses and each has some minuses. We'll have to find their pluses and build from there."

How much would it hurt MSU to go with a freshman that has never played a down of football in college?
"He would be a bit limited, there's no question about it," Rogers answered. "But if that's all you have, that's what you go with."

MSU'S PASSING ATTACK can't be any more feeble than it was last week against Notre Dame, no matter who plays quarterback. Rogers said that the nine yards passing the Spartans accounted for was the worst effort by a Darryl Rogers team in his 14 years of head coaching.

While Rogers isn't happy with his passing attack, one player he is pleased with is tailback Steve Smith. The junior from Louisville, Ky. ran for over 100 yards against the Irish, the second time he has done so this season. For his effort, he was named offensive player of the game.

Similarly honored were linebacker Dan Bass on defense for his 24 tackles and a fumble recovery and Ray Stachowicz for his special teams work. Stachowicz punted nine times for a 46.3 average. His four-game average is now 44.6 yards per kick, which puts him in the top ten nationally.

Spartan Spirit sign-up

Students interested in being members of the Spartan Spirits for the 1979-80 basketball season should sign up in the Green Room of the MSU Union between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. today or Wednesday.

Students should bring their MSU I.D. and a check for $25, which will be good for ten games.

Students who were in the Spartan Spirits for the 1978-79 season will have first chance to join the group again this season. A lottery will be used to determine which new members will be accepted into the Spirits. For more information, call Mike Fisher at 332-6162.

Stickers in top form in weekend action

The MSU women's field hockey team enjoyed a successful weekend at the Valley Farm Camp in Brooklyn, Mich., as it went undefeated, including a tie, in the four scrimmage games it played.

The stickers opened the weekend tournament with a game against last year's midwest regional champions, Southern Illinois University, and defeated SIU by a 2-0 count.

After a scoreless first half, Jennie Klepinger hit Barb Oakley with a pass which Oakley netted for a 1-0 lead. It was Oakley's first of three goals for the tournament.

Ten minutes into the second half, Judy Ignasiak pushed the ball in front of the SIU goal box and Debbie Robson slammed it home to round out the scoring for the Spartans.

Defense was the key in game two, as MSU and Illinois State University played to a scoreless tie.

In game three, MSU tackled Earlham College and won again by a 2-0 margin.

Both goals in the Earlham game came in the second half, as Ignasiak and Oakley scored on assists by Oakley and Barb Shannon, respectively.

In the final game of the Valley Farm event, MSU received the only goal it needed from Oakley with an assist by Klepinger, as the Spartans defeated Kent State University 1-0.

The stickers open their home season today against University of Toledo and remain home to take on Grand Valley State Colleges Wednesday. Both matches will be played at Old College Field, with today's match slated for 4:30 p.m. The GVSC match will start at 4 p.m.

Opponents outrun MSU

Opalowski, 17th; junior Sue Richardson, 18th; junior Candy Strobach, 21st and freshman Ann Pewe, 24th.

Penn State's Kathy Mills captured the top spot in the race with a time of 17:31.

Mills is one of the nation's top collegiate cross country runners and is a former member of the national women's cross country team, along with being a former national record holder in the 5,000 meters.

Penn State freshman Heather Carmichael placed second in the race with a time of 18:00.

Carmichael, a native of New Zealand, broke Mary Decker's record this summer in the Peach Tree 10,000 meter Road Race in Atlanta, Ga.

Decker is the national record holder in the mile.

The third runner of the day to cross the tape was also a Nittany Lion, as Patty Murname finished her run in 18:07, thus giving Penn State a comfortable margin of victory.

Penn State also captured fifth and seventh places on its way to the championship, and, along with Wisconsin is a power to be reckoned with when it comes time for the national cross country meet.

This weekend the Spartans will again be at home, this time hosting the Spartan Invitational, a race in which six teams besides MSU will be running.

B-ball tryouts

Freshmen and sophomores interested in playing on the MSU men's junior varsity basketball team should contact jayvee coach Fred Paulsen between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. any day this week in 226 Jenison Fieldhouse.

I'VE VERIFIED MY CONCERNS ABOUT THE WHITE HOUSE BEING BUG B'D. LOOK AT THIS MOSQUITO I CAUGHT IN THE EAST WING. LOOK AT THE MARKINGS ON IT.

WHAT MARKINGS?

YOU MEAN YOU DON'T SEE THE MARKINGS OF THE PERUVIAN AIR FORCE ON ITS WING?

NO.

THEN IT'S AN UNMARKED MOSQUITO. IT MUST BE A SPY FLIGHT.

Anti-racism given funds

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The World Council of Churches' controversial Special Fund to Combat Racism awarded $349,000 this year, including grants to two California groups that work for Hispanic rights, it was announced here Tuesday.

Grants totalling $82,500 to seven organizations that defend African immigrant workers in France were the largest of awards made to 33 groups on five continents. They indicate what these organizations call a growing hostility in France to immigrants," the WCC announcement said.

Set up in 1969 — and often criticized by member churches — the special fund is financed by gifts from churches, groups and individuals, and the governments of Sweden, Norway and the Netherlands.

There was widespread opposition last year to an $85,000 grant to black liberation groups and the Patriotic Front alliance fighting the government of Zimbabwe-Rhodesia, which the dissidents call a facade for continued white minority rule.

CRITICS POINTED OUT that rebels had been blamed for massacres of missionaries there. Church leaders in several countries said the grant seemed to be pitting blacks against blacks. The council's policy-making central committee, representing 293 Protestant and Orthodox denominations totalling about 400 million Christians around the globe, later set up restraints that give members more control.

This year's awards include a donation, announced earlier this month, of $35,000 to the Patriotic Front's delegation to the Zimbabwe Rhodesia peace talks convened now in London, to cover costs. It was the largest single grant this year.

The fund has distributed a total of $3,412,500 in the nine allocations since 1970, including this year's, largely to African liberation groups but also to movements defending American Indians, black workers in South Africa and Korean minorities in Japan.

THIS YEAR'S ALLOCATIONS include one of $15,000 to El Barrio Communications project of Monterey Park, Calif., to help educate the Mexican community in the United States.

The WCC said El Barrio will use the money for "cultural programs and for a series of film strips that will document the history of racism against Chicanos in the American Southwest."

Another $10,000 grant goes to Immigration Advocacy, National City, Calif., for organizing Hispanics "on the issue of undocumented aliens and to resist police brutality." The WCC said the grant will be used for general support.

Accused kidnapper of Mich. girl gets hearing

LITTLETON, Colo. (UPI) — A judge has set an Oct. 26 preliminary hearing for a Texas truck driver accused of abducting a teen-age Michigan girl near Cleveland and holding her captive in his vehicle during a cross-country trip.

Littleton District Judge Richard Greene has ordered Elmer Glenn Sweeney, 36, of Irving, Texas, held under $25,000 bond on charges of kidnapping, sexual assault and false imprisonment.

Officials said Friday Sweeney could be sentenced to death if convicted of the first-degree felony kidnapping charge. The other counts are misdemeanors.

The 17-year-old girl, who has been placed in a safe house, told police she ran away from her home in Michigan and was hitchhiking to Florida when Sweeney picked her up near Cleveland Sept. 19.

Sweeney was arrested two days later in Strasburg, Colo., after the girl yelled to a motorist in a restaurant parking lot and told him to call police.

The girl said Sweeney forced her to take off her clothes and locked them in the truck's luggage compartment. She said he raped her repeatedly.

The victim said at one point, Sweeney told other truckers via his citizens band radio that he would "sell" her to them for $50.

DAMAGES IN SON'S DEATH

Dad sues for $12 million

DETROIT (UPI) — The father of a 24-year-old mechanic who died in police custody in Macomb County has filed a $12 million lawsuit accusing authorities of failing to give his son the medical care he needed.

Ron Jacob died Aug. 10 in the Macomb County Jail in suburban Mount Clemens after suffering a burst bowel, doctors said. He had been arrested 12 days earlier on assault charges.

Jacob's father, Ronald W. Jacob Sr., said his son died "screaming, twisting and contorted... because (jail personnel) did not give him medical attention he needed."

The elder Jacob filed suit in U.S. District Court last week against Macomb County Sheriff Bill Hackell, jail administrator Don Ambroyer, Dr. M.R. Emerick, 10 unnamed sheriff's deputies and eight medical attendants.

The father's attorney, George Michaels, said Sunday his staff has talked to jail inmates who witnessed Jacob's pleas for help.

The suit said jail personnel ignored Jacob's condition and responded to his screams by placing him in isolation.

Michaels said Jacob died of what later was diagnosed as a bowel malfunction.

The attorney said Jacob's condition could have been corrected easily by "routine" surgery.

Instead, the suit said, on the day before Jacob died he twice was given laxatives which were prescribed over the telephone by Emerick, who never examined Jacob.

Michaels said jailors showed "callous indifference and total disregard for life. Maybe if they are hit hard enough, they won't let it happen to anyone else."
