Tentative basketball ticket plan approved

By PAUL CURTIS
State News Staff Writer

A tentative lottery plan for basketball tickets that would give students a better chance of getting tickets has been agreed upon by the MSU athletic director and various student groups.

"The plan would provide for four (student) groups," Athletic Director Joseph L. Kearney said Sunday. Group I would consist of senior or higher student numbers; group II junior student numbers; group III sophomore student numbers; and group IV freshmen and new transfer student numbers.

The plan discussed is to be forwarded to the Athletic Council, Kearney said. It has to be approved by the council and President Cecil Mackey before it becomes policy. Representatives from ASMSU, resident assistants and the Student Committee on Policy Evaluation have been working with Kearney during the past week to develop ticket sales alternatives.

Under the plan, seniors and juniors would each get 30 percent of the tickets, and sophomores, freshmen and transfers would each get 20 percent.

There will be two different series ticket sets for basketball, Kearney said. Based on 3,400 student tickets for each basketball game, 2,040 seniors and graduate students will see basketball games (1,020 for each series); 2,040 juniors, 1,360 sophomores (680 for each series); and 1,360 freshmen and new transfers.

KEARNEY BELIEVES this is a fairer system than last year's, because freshmen will have a chance to get tickets. "Last year, we had to exclude the freshmen altogether," he said.

The problem is that 33 percent of the students (seniors and above) will get 30 percent of the tickets, but 19 percent of the students (juniors) will also get 30 percent of the tickets, Chris Hoffman, Residence Halls Association president, said.

Sophomores, 21 percent of the students, will get 20 percent of the tickets, and freshmen and transfers, 27 percent of the student body, will also get 20 percent of the tickets, Kearney said.

Hoffman is concerned because 19 percent of the students will have access to 30 percent of the available student tickets.

"We would like to see more student tickets going to freshmen and sophomores, because they make up 48 percent of the student body," she said.

The student groups represented at the meeting Thursday were hoping for a more equal breakdown according to percentages of students in each class, she said.

"THIS BREAKDOWN MEANS that the upperclassmen will get 60 percent of the tickets and choice of location (in Jenison Fieldhouse) or series," Kearney said.

The results of the lottery will not appear in The State News, because this is too expensive, Hoffman said. The results will appear in Jenison and in various classroom buildings on campus, she added.

Any tickets that were not claimed from one group will be passed down to the next group, and any that are not claimed by the fourth group will be passed up to the top group, if it's possible, Kearney said.

"The system we have now tentatively for basketball could work for hockey tickets," he said, "if we need to go to a lottery system in hockey."

Another meeting is scheduled for after football season to hear student input about the football ticket situation, Kearney said.

Toxic compound detected in lake

By KARL BLANKENSHIP
State News Staff Writer

A toxic chemical which leaked from a nearby waste disposal site has contaminated a lake near Montague, Mich., making it unsafe for fishing or swimming, the director of MSU's Pesticide Research Center said.

Fumio Matsumura, center director, said the chemical Hexachlorobenzene (HCB), a known carcinogen, had been found in high levels in several fish from White Lake.

He added the chemical has toxic properties which resulted in massive poisonings in southeastern Turkey about 20 years ago.

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources had been checking the lake for three or four years, Matsumura said, but they had found no chemical residues to alarm them. Based on that finding, he said the Michigan Department of Health had OK'd the lake for fishing about three weeks ago.

This has now been changed since the discovery of HCB in the fish by Burra V. Madhukar, a research associate in the Pesticide Research Center.

THE SOURCE OF the contamination, Matsumura said, is a chemical dump located a half-mile away from the lake at the Hooker Chemical plant.

About 20,000 55-gallon drums — many of which were corroded and leaking — of residues from the toxic chemical compound C-56 were dumped on Hooker's 900-acre Montague site over the past two decades.

Matsumura pointed out, however, that "at the time when they were dumping, there was no law against it."

The soil near the dump is sand, he added, which is not good for stopping the spread of contamination to groundwater.

"A compound such as HCB will last there (in the soil) for centuries," Matsumura said. Once the chemical got into the groundwater, it migrated to the lake and contaminated several wells in the area, he said. "Once the lake is contaminated, it is very difficult to clean."

Hooker Chemical Co. has also agreed to remove its chemical dump, Matsumura said. The original chemical which was dumped, C-56, is an intermediary chemical used in the manufacturing of plastics, pesticides and fire retardants, he said. But it is an unstable chemical which quickly mixes with other compounds in the environment.

"In a short time period you can't find the original compound anymore," he said. "It disappears just like that."

AT MONTAGUE, C-56 mixed with other chemicals which created HCB, Matsumura said.

"When one finds a new compound in a new area, the question is, 'How dangerous is it?'" he added. "I cannot answer right away because we don't know. It takes a long time period to find out how many fish are contaminated at what level."

"On the other hand, we know the compound (HCB) already is reported as carcinogenic," Matsumura said.

In Turkey, the chemical got mixed in food, resulting in the poisoning of about 3,000 people, he added.

"In the case of the Turkey instance, lots of infants who were fed on the breast milk of their mother died," Matsumura said.

HOWEVER, MATSUMURA NOTED, the levels of HCB which caused the poisonings in Turkey were higher than the levels found in White Lake.

HCB levels found in White Lake fish were as high as 2.0 parts-per-million (ppm), he said, adding that it is unknown what the safe level of HCB in fish would be.

Chrysler talks begin; financial woes still present

DETROIT (UPI) — The most difficult task of this year's round of negotiations faced bargainers today as the United Auto Workers and Chrysler Corp. open talks under the shadow of the No. 3 automakers' financial problems.

In an unprecedented move on Aug. 3, company chairperson Lee A. Iacocca shocked union bargainers for 101,000 hourly workers at Chrysler with a dramatic demand for a two year freeze on wages and benefits.

The request was rejected but Chrysler, which has said it expected to lose $1.5 billion this year and next and has 29,000 UAW workers on indefinite layoffs, expects some concessions from the union, which earlier won three-year contracts without strikes with General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co.

The agreements, overwhelmingly ratified by GM workers and still being voted on by Ford employees, contained generous financial improvements calling for wage hikes of $10,000 over the three years and an improved cost of living allowance formula, 26 paid days off in addition to regular vacations and a blue collar stock ownership program as well as pension improvements.

THE DEADLINE FOR ratification of the Ford pact is next Sunday. The agreement has been endorsed by union officials and the 200-member UAW Council at Ford.

Following Iacocca's request for a wage freeze, the UAW held an emergency meeting of its Chrysler Council and rejected the proposal.

But the council gave the bargaining team leeway to consider economic concession and UAW President Douglas Fraser, who will open talks with Chrysler today, said they would do just that.

The Senate Banking Committee also has been holding hearings in Washington on the automaker's request for millions of dollars in federal aid, or loan guarantees, to avoid bankruptcy.

Chrysler has said if it received federal aid the company has the ability — and the new car models — to return to profitability by 1981 or 1982. But the key to that turnaround, they say, is government aid.

The UAW has joined Chrysler in lobbying in Congress and the Treasury Department. But many lawmakers and bureaucrats want to know if the union will back up its lobby effort with bargaining concessions.

Approximately 75 children age 12 and under were able to participate in an International Year of the Child activity at MSU. They ran a one-mile race around Old College Field Saturday with the winning time being 5:45.

KENNEDY BACKERS HAPPY WITH SHOWING

Carter claims victory in Florida

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
and DAVID POWELL
Associated Press Writers

MIAMI — With three large blocks of votes still to be counted, President Carter held a statewide lead Sunday over Sen. Edward M. Kennedy in Florida's Democratic Party caucuses and Carter backers claimed victory in the first balloting of the 1980 presidential campaign.

But while Carter, whose campaign was supported by the political power of the White House, seemed certain to emerge with a majority of the elected delegates, Kennedy supporters called the Massachusetts senator's showing "one of the greatest political upsets of the century."

"A win is a win is a win," was the reaction of Evan Dobelle, chairperson of the Carter-Mondale campaign committee.

At stake was the chance to draw first blood in the anticipated fight between Carter and Kennedy for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination, even if the results had no direct bearing on that process.

The 879 delegates elected Saturday will join 833 others, most of them appointed by officials backing the president, at a Democratic state convention in November, the highlight of which will be a non-binding presidential preference poll. Florida's delegation to the Democratic National Convention will be chosen in a primary March 11.

RESULTS FROM 64 of the state's 67 counties gave Carter 366 delegates, Kennedy 101, a slate supported by organized labor 19, and 27 uncommitted. In addition, Kennedy seemed certain to pick up the 116 delegates from Broward County where he made his strongest showing.

Still to be tallied from Saturday's vote were ballots for 188 delegates in populous Dade County where he made his strongest showing.

Still to be tallied from Saturday's vote were ballots for 188 delegates in Palm Beach County. Party officials said a final delegate count might not be available for several days.

Dozens of volunteers and a handful of paid professionals in three of Florida's largest counties spent Sunday validating and counting the cumbersome ballots from the Democratic Party county caucuses.

They said the counting would not be over until mid-week in the two largest counties where Carter faced Kennedy, Saturday in a contest that might have had some psychological effects but no tangible effect on the 1980 presidential campaign.

Palm Beach County party officials said they would finish counting about 1,200 hand marked ballots Sunday. Earlier, they counted more than 2,000 computer ballots but didn't disclose the results.

The tallying began Sunday in Miami, where Carter and Kennedy volunteers sat down with Dade elections officials to validate the 4,564 ballots that listed 841 names.

ELECTION OFFICIALS, WHO were under contract to the local party for the validation, also said they would check the registrations of 675 persons who voted after signing affidavits saying they were registered Democrats without registration cards.

They expected to finish checking the signed ballots against registrations late Monday or Tuesday. Then, the accounting firm of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell will convert the ballots to punchcards and run them through a computer. Officials expected the Dade results by Thursday at the latest.

Gloria Jackson, an aide to Broward Democratic Chairperson Eddie Kay, said she expected the counting of more than 4,000 Broward ballots to be completed by Wednesday. Volunteers finished validating the Broward ballots about noon Sunday and had counted less than 1,000 ballots by late afternoon, she said. The partial results were not disclosed.

Kennedy avoided personal involvement in the Florida contest.

Reached in Louisville, Ky., on Saturday where he was campaigning for John Y. Brown, the Democratic nominee for governor, Kennedy did not hesitate to pick Carter to win in Florida.

"CLEARLY, HE HAS all the horses down there," the senator said.

"He's the odds-on favorite," Kennedy added he believes the first true test of the 1980 campaign will be the Iowa party caucuses in January.

Jody Powell, White House press secretary, was in Florida and said the president called to say he was "very pleased" with the results.

The Kennedy campaign in Florida was run by Sergio Bendixen, a Democratic National Committee member, and Mike Abrams, Dade County Democratic chairperson. Both were early Carter supporters in 1976.

Carter campaign aides flocked to Florida to help turn the tide after it appeared that Kennedy forces could muster enough support to embarrass the president in a state bordering on his native Georgia.

Federal grant applications from Florida began getting priority treatment in Washington and a flurry of announcements of approval of funds punctuated the weeks before the voting.

In the end, the voting was comparable to a pre-season exhibition game, with its effect on honing strategy and molding team spirit, but with no impact on the official standings of the participants.

Pinto story 'old stuff' says Ford

DETROIT (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. Sunday said a newspaper report charging the No. 2 automaker knowingly produced Pintos susceptible to fiery rear-end crashes was a "rehash of what was written two years ago."

"It's old stuff," said a company spokesman. "If you remember that Mother Jones magazine on the West Coast, and the charges they leveled against the company back in August of 1977 — well, those are the same allegations that have surfaced again in the (Chicago) Tribune story."

The copyright story in Saturday's Tribune charged Ford executives knew the

"They, (the Tribune), are apparently tracking the progress of the case, and suddenly they think they may have new material."

"But there are no new developments. All that is public record."

—Charles Gumushian, government relations associate

Pintos' gas tank was susceptible to fire and explosion in low speed crashes but went ahead and built it because cutting the fire risk would have reduced luggage space and slightly increased production costs for each car.

The newspaper said it obtained numerous Ford memos and crash test results from a court file in a landmark Indiana criminal case accusing the automaker of reckless homicide in the deaths of three young women. The women were burned to death last year when their 1973 Pinto was struck from behind by a van and burst into flames.

"THEY, (THE TRIBUNE), are apparently tracking the progress of the case, and suddenly they think they may have new material," said Charles Gumushian, government relations associate at Ford's North American public relations office in Dearborn.

"But there are no new developments. All that is public record."

He also said the information and memos referred to in the Tribune story "are the old memos referenced in the Mother Jones story. There are no new memos."

In August 1977, Ford responded to the Mother Jones' article with a statement saying early model Pintos had suffered gas tank failures in rear impact tests at 20 miles per hour.

Ford, contended, however, it did not mean the Pintos were unsafe "compared with the range of other cars of that era."

Scientists doubt Soviet nuclear power

MOSCOW (AP)—After years of little but praise for nuclear power in the Soviet Union, two top energy specialists have voiced serious doubts over the scope, safety and environmental consequences of this country's ambitious atomic power program.

Unless the program is radically altered, they say, more densely populated areas of European Russia may soon reach the limits of their "ecological capacity" to cope with new nuclear power stations.

They also caution it would be wrong to assume that safe and economical technologies have been developed for all aspects of the complex uranium-plutonium "fuel cycle."

Nikolai A. Dollezhal and Yuri Koryakin sounded the warning in an authoritative article published in last week's edition of Kommunist, the Soviet Communist Party's leading theoretical journal. Koryakin is an economist and Dollezhal is chief of a department of the Soviet Academy of Sciences that deals with energy production.

Western scientific sources in Moscow said they were astonished at the critical frankness of the article, which contrasted sharply with the upbeat tone typical of most nuclear power coverage in the government-controlled news media.

Violence accompanies voting in Turkey

ANKARA, Turkey (AP)—Turks voted Sunday in a crucial mid-term election that could spell the downfall of Premier Bulent Ecevit's moderate-leftist government. The political gang wars that marred the campaign raged right through the balloting, taking six lives.

Anticipating continued violence, the government had canceled all police and military leaves and stationed 200,000 soldiers at polling stations around the country.

But the violence was reported only in rural areas, and Ecevit issued a statement saying the relative calm "once again proved the Turkish people's devotion to democracy."

Throughout his 21 months in office, Ecevit's government has battled relentless political terrorism that in the past two months took an average of five lives a day.

At stake in the election were 50 of the Senate's 183 seats and, more importantly, five Assembly seats vacated by legislators' deaths since the 1977 general elections. The 450-seat Assembly is the more powerful house because it can topple governments through votes of no confidence.

House, Senate still divided on 1980 budget

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two weeks into the new fiscal year, the House and Senate remain far apart on a 1980 budget, a document needed to set government priorities and establish firm spending ceilings.

House and Senate negotiators met last week, but managed to resolve only relatively minor differences.

Still separating the two chambers are the key issues of defense spending, proposed cuts in social programs and the federal deficit, which some members of Congress say must be held below $30 billion.

During the first week of negotiations between House and Senate conferees, senators continued to insist on their demand for a 3 percent increase above inflation for defense spending. The House has approved about a 1 percent increase.

Some senators say the higher defense spending is needed if the U.S.-Soviet strategic arms limitation treaty is to stand any chance of Senate ratification. They also note that 3 percent growth was part of a U.S. commitment to strengthen the NATO alliance.

The dispute over reconciliation has delayed conference committee approval of spending totals for several budget functions that cover social programs,

Man starves to death on sect diet

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—It was just five years ago that David Blume was pursuing an idyllic career as an English teacher at a liberal arts college in New England. His students loved the tall man with clear, bright eyes and a gift for sharing ideas.

But that was before Blume lost his job and set out on a trail of blind alleys and odd jobs that led to Temple Beautiful. The obscure sect promised him spiritual health through a strict diet of raw fruits and vegetables.

On Oct. 6, Blume's lifeless body was found in a shabby west Philadelphia apartment. He was 6 feet tall and weighed 87 pounds.

Dr. Robert Catherman, the city's deputy medical examiner, said Blume, 36, once a muscular and athletic man, starved himself to death.

"It's very simple," Catherman said. "He was tremendously malnourished, and he developed pneumonia...He looked like the pictures you saw on (the television special) 'Holocaust,' staring at you through the fence."

Blume, a native of Cape May, N.J., was a teacher at Nathaniel Hawthorne College in Antrim, N.H., before he was laid off in 1974 because of a budget cut.

Skip sex, play poker—secrets to long life

GARDENA, Calif. (AP)—When the chips are down, Joe Bassett, 103 years old, is at his best. That means he's playing poker 12 hours a day, one of his secrets to longevity.

Bassett gives these other prescriptions for long life:

- Smoke eight $1.35 cigars a day.
- Drink wine with every meal, plus three or four scotch and sodas daily.
- Skip sex for a whole year, once every 10 years.

Bassett, known as Lucky Mike around this town where legalized poker has spawned a string of card parlors, says he was born in Turkey in 1876 and immigrated to the United States in 1903.

Woman collects musical documents

LIVONIA, N.Y. (AP)—In a squalid cottage beside one of the Finger Lakes, a 55-year-old widow who depends on food stamps to survive is devoting her life to one of the most unusual private collections of musical documents in the world.

The hundreds of letters and manuscripts that June Dickinson own are mostly in the hand of the 19th century composer Robert Schumann or his pianist wife, Clara. Many of them were given to Dickinson by Schumann's grandson after World War II. The rest she and her husband acquired from dealers by spending—some would say squandering—a sizable fortune.

Ralph Locke and Jurgen Thym, musicologists from the Eastman School of Music in nearby Rochester who in 1978 befriended Dickinson and catalogued the collection. They term it "a priceless treasure," a major find for scholars studying the great German romantic, who died in an asylum at age 46 in 1856.

Cambodia sent food, supplies

By SETH MYDANS

Associated Press Writer

BANGKOK, Thailand — Cargo planes ferried tons of food and other relief supplies to Phnom Penh for Cambodia's starving people Sunday, but organizers of the emergency international airlift said they feared a famine might not be averted.

On the Thai-Cambodian border, meanwhile, a mortar attack from the Cambodian side killed five Cambodian refugees and injured 12 others in a camp on Thai territory. Thai soldiers said Vietnamese troops or soldiers of the Hanoi-backed Cambodian government were believed responsible.

The two mortar rounds fell in the Thap Prik camp, 125 miles east of Bangkok. Afterward

Thailand moved reinforcements into the border area, where 34,000 sick and starving Cambodians have fled in the past five days.

The Cambodian government gave the go-ahead for the relief program Saturday, and it got under way even though formal agreement has been held up over the government's insistence that no food should be given to the followers of deposed Premier Pol Pot.

VIETNAMESE AND CAMBODIAN government forces continue to battle Pol Pot's rebels in the Cambodian countryside.

Thirty nations have pledged more than $100 million to the relief effort, coordinated by the Red Cross and the U.N. Children's Emergency Fund. Two planes carried 55 tons of food into Phnom Penh on Sunday, but officials of the international agencies estimated 900 tons a day would be needed to stabilize conditions in the war-ravaged nation.

The planes also carried four Red Cross and UNICEF officials.

In a new estimate, UNICEF spokesperson Jacques Danois said 165,000 tons of food would be needed over the next six months to avert a famine. A number of relief operations that could help reach that goal are still in planning stages, but more than 10,000 tons of food are scheduled to be sent in by sea by the end of the month.

The funds committed to the aircraft include an initial pledge of $7 million and eventually as much as $30 million from the United States.

AUSTRALIA, THE FIRST nation to send in aid, bypassed formal relief programs as early as June and made its own deliveries to the refugees on the Thai-Cambodian border. Britain has pledged at least $2.2 million. The European Common Market has made an initial pledge of $5.6 million.

The changing estimates of how much relief is needed — a figure that has risen from 700 tons a day — reflect the difficulties aid groups are facing with a reluctant government in a country that has been decimated by war, famine and the disruptive policies of Pol Pot, who was toppled in January by the Vietnamese-led forces.

But the major aid groups are sticking with their policy of "even-handed relief" to people under the control of both sides, despite strong objections by the new Phnom Penh government.

"Our strategy has been just to keep the aid coming and see what happens. They weren't about to turn anything back," said one well-informed source in the aid community.

LEGAL BATTLE GOES ON AFTER BOY'S DEATH

Parents defy court to save son

BOSTON (AP) — Leukemia victim Chad Green is dead at age 3, but the legal ramifications of his parents' fight to treat him with Laetrile are still to be settled.

The youngster died Friday evening in Tijuana, Mexico, where his parents took him to continue Laetrile treatments in defiance of a Massachusetts court order.

His parents, Gerald and Diana Green, were found in civil contempt of court early this year by Judge Guy Volterra in Plymouth Superior Court, and there was a later finding of probable cause of criminal contempt of court for flouting the court's authority.

Should the Greens return to Massachusetts, where Gerald's parents live, they would be taken before Volterra for sentencing on the civil contempt of court finding.

AND THEY COULD be tried, before another judge, for criminal contempt if prosecutors decided to proceed with that action.

Legal experts said they doubted any criminal charges could be brought against the Greens in Massachusetts because of Chad's death. He died at his home in Mexico, and presumably any such charges would be up to Mexican authorities.

The cause of Chad's death was not announced, nor was there any official announcement on an autopsy.

The Greens could not be located to comment on the death.

However, their lawyer, William L. Ginsberg of Atlanta, said in a telephone interview that he had asked the district attorney of Baja, Calif., "to have an autopsy performed in Mexico and he has agreed." His remark could not be confirmed immediately.

"I MUST EMPHASIZE that no cause of death has yet been established," he said. "All we know is that Chad is dead."

Ginsberg said he wanted U.S. cancer experts to be involved in the autopsy, saying "there is precedence for a medical team from the United States coming to Mexico."

The Boston Globe quoted Ginsberg as saying the Greens originally planned to bury Chad in Nebraska, where he was born Dec. 18, 1976, but that burial would be delayed pending an autopsy.

Home prices skyrocket

WASHINGTON (AP) — A time bomb is set to go off in the early 1980s that could send the price of houses sky high, and the detonator may be the new surge of high interest rates, say numerous housing experts.

Ironically, the rapidly rising interest rates are aimed at dampening inflation and reducing excessive credit that has infected most markets, including housing.

These experts, interviewed last week, believe home prices should stabilize, and in some instances, fall slightly as a result of the board's tight-money policies.

But only temporarily. For as mortgages become too expensive for most people, and completely dry up for others, the pressure for housing will intensify, ready to burst as soon as interest rates begin to decline once again.

"People in the prime home-buying ages, between 25 and 34, will increase over the next decade at about 660,000 a year," said William Young, an analyst for the National Association of Home Builders.

This is the post World War II baby-boom generation coming of age.

In recent years, they have been bidding for homes faster than builders could supply them. This helped increase housing prices 13 percent to 14 percent a year, economists say.

Now, this group will be expanding in size, but the building of new houses will slump dramatically. Government officials and private economists say the board's new actions may reduce housing starts next year by as much as 25 percent.

Emmett Rice, a member of the Federal Reserve Board, disagreed.

He said he expected house prices to rise in the future, but not to skyrocket.

If you have ever had the urge to be a clown, now is your chance. Tryouts are being held Oct. 17 at 3 p.m. at Cobo Arena. Dave Carolyn, 29, became a clown for Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circuses after attending their "clown college".

'GREATEST SHOW' NOW HIRING

Wanted: serious clowns

By SUSIE BENKLEMAN
State News Staff Writer

If it seems that college is just a lot of clowning around, maybe it should be taken more seriously. Not the college, the clowning around.

For those interested in pursuing a career in making people laugh, Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus may have the answer. Ringling Brothers will be holding auditions Wednesday for potential clowns at Detroit's Cobo Arena.

For those who are interested in shedding the face of reality to wear the funmaker costume, "The Greatest Show on Earth" may just be the chance.

"THERE ARE NO skills that are absolutely necessary," said Trish Perez, public relations coordinator for the Detroit show. "They just need an interest and the ability to make people laugh any way they want."

Many of Ringling Brothers' present clowns are former college students who do not yet know what kind of career they want, Perez said.

Perez added that during the auditions applicants can wear anything and do anything they choose.

"It's the perfect opportunity for anyone in theatre or for anyone who just has an interest," Perez said. She said that certain talents such as gymnastics, unicycle riding and other theatrical skills may help, but are not necessary.

Applicants who are chosen are sent to a "clown college" in Venice for an eight-week, tuition-free training program. At the college, clown trainees learn to develop their own "clown personalities," she said. They also learn how to apply make-up, how to entertain and most important, how to make people laugh.

CLOWN COLLEGE CLASSES meet Mondays through Saturdays in a "very rigorous training program" during the fall. Clowns that are chosen for Ringling Brothers this year will attend the college in Florida next fall.

Ringling Brothers does not have a strict pay scale for their clown, Perez said.

"It depends on what they can get," she said. "They are paid under contract, like actors."

Auditions will be held at 3 p.m. Wednesday in Ring 2 at Cobo Arena. Applicants must be American citizens and at least 17 years old.

Ill may obtain the right to choose to live or die

By KAREN GOODWIN
State News Staff Writer

Persons who are ill should have the right to choose whether to live or die, said state Rep. David C. Hollister at a health care workshop Saturday.

The Lansing Democrat told an audience of about 50 people at University United Methodist Church, 1120 S. Harrison Road, that ill persons would have the right to control their own health care if the state House passed the Medical Treatment Decision Act.

"Death and dying is not an issue most people like to talk about," Hollister said, "but legislation is needed to create options."

Under current Michigan law, he said, only conscious and competent adult patients can refuse to accept medical treatment.

"THE LAW IS unclear for unconscious patients," he said. "Treatment is usually left up to the mercy and discretion of the physician."

"The right to live or die is an ethical decision, not a medical one. Is a doctor really qualified to make these decisions?"

Doctors have the highest suicide and substance abuse rates of any profession, he said, because they are forced to "play God."

Hollister said the Medical Treatment Decision Act would allow ill people to choose one trustworthy person, called an agent, to make the life or death decision for them if they are unconscious.

"This isn't asking another person to play God," Hollister said, "because the agent would carry out the wishes of the ill person."

The law, if passed, would allow only conscious, competent adults, whether they are terminally ill or not, to appoint an agent.

THE BILL WAS written by a citizen's group task force.

"It is voluntary and is not thought of as suicide by insurance companies," he said. "But companies are neutral on this legislation right now."

Another health care alternative suggested by Hollister was the concept of hospice for terminally ill patients.

Hospice patients are not isolated in intensive care units, but are united with their families at home to accept and work through the dying period together, he said.

"Hospice considers the patient and the family as a unit of caring," he said. "Both are treated."

"EIGHTY PERCENT OF terminally ill people would prefer to die at home," he said, "but in reality most end up dying in institutions."

An interdisciplinary team of a psychologist, a member of the clergy, a physician and a family member would treat the individual, he said, because dying is not only a medical problem, but is a social, emotional and spiritual problem as well.

The hospice team would also work with the family one year after the patient dies.

To alleviate pain, as in cancer cases, hospice patients are given a mixture of heroine, cocaine and alcohol, he said.

Citizens criticize Citgo development

By ELLA CHOINSKI
State News Staff Writer

The lack of student housing in the proposed Citgo Block development drew objections from citizens Thursday night.

Housing in the development is geared to university professors and higher-income level people, developer David Krause said.

"The kind of housing needs we have don't fall into the level of higher income," said Bill Main, 603 Division St.

"It's not going to address our student housing problem," he said.

with the rest being used for rental apartments, condominiums and a clubhouse.

Main said he was also concerned about how well the building would blend with the rest of the neighborhood, stating that the building would be the tallest in East Lansing.

Because there is very little land in downtown East Lansing, this is the only way to build, Krause said.

Other citizens questioned the desirability of more retail stores in East Lansing.

"The University Mall already has empty space. Why put in more stores?" Kathy Kleo, 549 Division St., asked.

THE $10 MILLION development, to be located on the northeast corner of M.A.C. and Albert avenues, would consist of a multi-use building and a parking area.

The building will be 11 stories tall according to the plan. Three stories would be for retail, restaurant and office use

KRAUSE SAID THE problem with the University Mall is that it is not visually attractive to customers.

The development would provide additional space to merchants who have no other place to expand in East Lansing, he

Lansing NOW chapter pushes for equal rights

By MOLLY MIKA
State News Staff Writer

Wearing Equal Rights Amendment armbands and buttons stating "A man of quality is not threatened by a woman of equality," women, men and children gathered at Riverfront Park Saturday afternoon to walk in the ERA Move-a-thon.

The participants, who walked to the Capitol, raised more than $500 in pledge money for the National Organization for Women to help ratify the ERA.

The ERA, which would outlaw discrimination based on sex, must be ratified by 38 states by June 30, 1982. So far, 35 states, Michigan included, have ratified it, although five states have voted to rescind their ratifications.

For NOW members, the big push is to get three more states — specifically, Illinois, Florida, and Virginia, where state legislators are reportedly close to ratification.

IN A KICK-OFF rally at Riverfront Park, the president of the Lansing chapter of NOW inspired the group.

"The fact that ERA has been ratified in Michigan doesn't mean anything if we don't get a national ERA," President Julie Jackson said.

Jackson then handed the microphone to Lorraine Beebe, former state senator of Michigan, who has a history of political activism for human rights. Beebe is president of the Michigan Abortion Rights Action League. As chairperson of the Health and Social Services Committee in 1966, she was the first to introduce legislation on sex education in Michigan's public schools.

"WOMEN ARE STILL second and third class citizens," she said.

"We are still not considered complete persons by those in the political world who are determined to hold us to a 15th century status."

"We are denied any intelligence and we are denied our own sexuality," Beebe added.

"Some politicians say they believe in equal rights — but once in office, they deny equal rights to persons in one way or another."

Beebe named several state legislators whom she thought denied equal rights. "We must go after them, we must get rid of them," she said.

"We must face down the bullies, get rid of their political intimidation and show them we can win and we will win in 1980."

Beebe led the group in their march through Lansing to the Capitol in the Move-a-thon, sponsored by the National Organization for Women.

PIRGIM now taking applications

The Public Interest Research Group in Michigan will fill two non-paying openings on its campus Board of Directors.

Students will be appointed based on their written responses to the question "Why would you like to work with PIRGIM?"

Written responses, a 200 word maximum, should be submitted by noon, Oct. 22 to the PIRGIM office in the basement of Student Services Building. Responses should include a description of skills and qualifications.

PIRGIM is a statewide, student controlled consumer action group working on energy, environmental, housing and consumer reform.

Club offers low-priced pork sale

Increasing food prices present a problem, especially for students operating on a tight budget. But the MSU Block & Bridle Club sponsors the annual meat sale which may help release some pressure on the pocketbook. Each fall term, the club sponsors a pork sale at the MSU Meats Laboratory where it sells bacon, smoked ham, pork chops, sausage and other pork products at lower than retail prices.

The meat is sold on a first come first serve basis, on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday from 1 to 5 p.m. and the sale will continue until Nov. 11.

Before each sale, the club purchases 45 hogs, each averaging 220 pounds, from the Michigan State Swine Research Center.

Club members participate in the killing, cleaning and processing of the hogs.

"It gives people hands-on experience working with livestock," said Dan Wyant, a club member.

The club expects to make about $2,500 in profits this year, he added, which will be used for future club activities and to sponsor livestock and meat judging teams to represent MSU.

The club, which has more than 350 members, is one of the largest department affiliated clubs on campus.

For information on prices, variety and quantity of products available, call the Block & Bridle Club Office.

University van pool proposed for students, faculty, staff

By TIM SIMMONS
State News Staff Writer

MSU faculty, staff, employees and students can participate in campus van pools if a plan proposed by the MSU Employees' Association is approved by University officials.

MSUEA originally devised a van pool plan for campus employees only, Jackie Tompkins, chairperson for the public relations subcommittee of MSUEA, said.

Response to the project was so great, however, that attempts are now being made to implement the system for all University members, she added.

"WE HAD HOPED to get this thing to go before the snow flies, but now it looks more like we might have it working by the end of winter term," Tompkins said.

MSUEA is proposing the University lease or purchase the vans that would be driven by employees along established routes. The University would also be responsible for maintaining the vehicles, Tompkins said.

MSUEA members have received "a quite favorable" response after discussing the plans with Keith Groy, assistant vice president for personnel and employee relations, Tompkins said.

The van pools would cover out-lying areas such as Grand Ledge, Mason and St. John's before working their way toward the center of campus, Tompkins said.

VAN DRIVERS ASSIGNED to established routes would be

Renovation funding considered

Funding for the renovation of the city-owned Baptist Convention Center 213 W. Main St., Lansing will be considered by the Lansing City Council at 7 tonight on the tenth floor of city hall.

The center, which is being eyed by the Michigan Women's Study Association as a Hall of Fame for women, needs a new boiler and the roof repaired said First Ward Councilmember Robert Hull.

The law offices of Foley, Rasmussen and Emerson have also expressed interest in purchasing the building.

Full slate set for Homecoming

The scent of roses will fill the air as the MSU Homecoming Committee sponsors a rose sale, just one of the many events planned for Homecoming Week, Oct. 15 through 21.

"A Salute to Big Ten Football — A Race for the Roses," is the theme of this year's activities which will also include a pep rally, T-shirt day, pennant sale, Green and White day, a window decorating contest and a dance.

The festivities will begin Monday night with a pep rally, highlighted by the traditional lighting up of Hubbard Hall, at 9 p.m.

Monday night is also bar night at Coral Gables, 2838 E. Grand River Ave., featuring Spartan beer.

ON TUESDAY, MSU T-shirt Day, the committee will sponsor another bar night and a Sparty Look-a-Like Contest downstairs at Dooley's, 131 Albert Ave., beginning at 9 p.m.

Roses and pennants will be sold Wednesday all over campus and on Grand River Avenue, with proceeds going to the State Center for the Performing Arts.

Phi Gamma Delta fraternity, along with the homecoming committee will sponsor a bar night Wednesday at Mac's Bar, 2700 E. Michigan Ave., just one more place to toast to Spartan victory with Spartan beer.

Thursday bands from eight on- and off-campus locations will parade students to the Case Hall IM fields for the Homecoming bonfire, beginning at 8 p.m. Thursday is also Green and White Day.

The rally will feature the announcement of the 1979 Homecoming King and Queen.

the MSU cheerleaders, coaches and members of the football team. The "Yell Like Hell" contest, where campus organizations compete for a prize for the best cheer, based on volume, clarity and originality, will also be included.

TO ADD TO the festivities, the judging of the window decorating contest will begin at 6:30 p.m. Friday.

On Saturday, the committee will host a series of events beginning at 8:30 a.m. with the judging of the Homecoming floats. A mini-pep rally featuring the MSU marching band and cheerleaders will begin at noon followed by a parade to Spartan Stadium at 1 p.m.

The Homecoming football game between the Spartans and the Purdue Boilermakers will start at 1:30 p.m. in the stadium.

Meanwhile, the Class of '54 will hold its 25th reunion brunch at 10 a.m. in the Big Ten Room at the Kellogg Center.

The week's events will end with the MSU Alumni Lacrosse game, Saturday at 2 p.m. at the Old College Field.

State News board approves members

The State News board of directors approved the appointments of six board members Friday evening.

One of two new student members who will serve a one-year term is Lynn Byrum, 22, a graduate student in the College of Business and the College of Communications Arts and Sciences. Byrum formerly worked in the State News classified advertising department.

Also elected was Joe McElroy, 27, a graduate student in the Department of Urban Planning. McElroy was the former managing editor of the Charlevoix County Press in Boyne City, Mich.

Four board members re-elected for two-year terms are: John O'Donnell, professor of accounting and financial administration; Richard Milliman, publisher of the Livingston County Press and the Grand Ledge Independent; Phillip Johnston, a sophomore in the School of Journalism; and Rebecca Madison, a senior in the Department of Microbiology and Public Health.

Other board members whose terms have not expired are: John Malloy, professor of social science; and Thomas C. Huckle, publisher of the Cadillac Evening News.

Teachers' strike may be legalized

After the lengthy and controversial Lansing teachers' strike, the Michigan House Labor Committee has proposed legislation to legalize teachers' strikes in the state. Under the recently announced plan, school districts would have a specified amount of time in which teachers may legally be allowed to strike. In this way, legislators hope to encourage teachers and board members to put more emphasis on settling differences quickly, thus averting strikes like the recently settled one in Lansing.

Though legislators have proposed a plan for teachers' strikes, this plan cannot be extended to cover strikes by other public service workers. They, if given the power to strike, must be dealt with in a different light. Public servants — namely firefighters, police officers and sanitation workers — are definitely worthy of legislation dealing with the legality of strikes and we encourage lawmakers to deal with this dilemma. For strikes are the only means of insurance public servants have against governmental abuse and low wages.

In theory, government and public service workers provide services critically important to the safety of the community; more so than teacher services. If firefighters were to strike for an extended period of time, the community would be endangered by the denial of crucially important services. A police strike would turn streets into a literal battleground for a host of unwanted criminals. These stark differences are merely a few of the reasons for not including this type of public servant with the bill to legalize teachers' strikes. Conversely, a teachers' strike would not propose a tremendous threat to the safety of the community.

While other public servants must usually deal with the city council or other local officials in contract negotiations, teachers must deal directly with the school board. Too often in the past, school boards have been unable to perceive the problems teachers face and how those problems are manifested in the community. More importantly, school boards are primarily interested in staying financially solvent — sometimes at the expense of the teachers — while city councils are interested in community welfare. School boards would be well-advised to understand the connection between the teacher and community needs in future contract talks.

The right to strike is a fundamental democratic principle which has laid the foundation for the industrial growth of this country. To deny teachers this right by opposing current legislation is contradictory to the long held beliefs of the American system.

Pot is a must for medicinal reasons

Governor William G. Milliken has the opportunity to sign a bill which will hopefully be the first in a long series of legislation to legalize marijuana. This particular bill will enable marijuana to be used as an alternate method of relief for cancer victims who suffer painful side-effects from chemotherapy treatment. Ther herb could also be used to retard the spread of glaucoma — a disease of the eye. Certainly this bill must be signed into law and hopefully it will blaze the trail to greener fields for further legalization, cultivation and distribution of the herb.

The bill now before the governor, is designed to help cancer victims by providing relief from nausea and lack of appetite — side-effects of chemotherapy treatments. Witnesses have testified before the House Public Health Committee that use of the drug during chemotherapy helped them through their trauma considerably. Any relief that can be extended to these unfortunate victims must be provided. Mountains of research on marijuana have found only minimal adverse effects from the drug. Indeed, other drugs and foods deemed legal on the market today have been found to be much more harmful to the body. In an era where many substances are found to cause cancer, it is time we start to legalize those products which provide relief from the disease.

The popularity of marijuana makes it relatively easy to obtain regardless of its legal status. Laetrile — another controversial drug used to combat cancer's pain — was also sought after despite its illegality. The problem arises when one has to decide between following the laws of society or the one's conscience. When a loved one is involved, most go to any length to make victims comfortable, before worrying about legal consequences. And if Milliken signs this bill, legal implications will be one less factor to worry about in the incessant drive to provide cancer patients with a compassionate end.

Public to suffer in arena verdict

The decision to close Demonstration Hall Ice Arena represents another in what seems to be a series of anti-student moves. When the ice arena — admittedly suffering from poor maintenance — was first closed last spring, little was said. But now that students and East Lansing residents have very limited access to the facility for recreational purposes, a committee has formed to try and re-open the arena to the general public.

The committee has some serious problems ahead of it — including our old friend campus politics. First, the committee must realize that John Letts, rink manager, is besieged by headaches which provoked him to throw up his hands and decide the facility was more of a hindrance than a help. Letts has known about the poor state of the facility and was advised by many to set the wheels of repair in motion. He could have informed the Board of Trustees or even Roger Wilkinson, vice president for business and finance, of the dilemma years before the closing. But this was never done. In the meantime, Letts has violated personnel measures, by employing the "cheap labor" college student instead of the union-protected worker — a mistake which has caused several grievances to surface. As Letts lamented, students are a lot cheaper to employ.

The rink has become too great of a weight around Letts' neck. But what he forgot (and how so many forget) is how the public is affected by his decision. As it stands now, Health and Physical Recreation students have a limited amount of rink time in Munn Ice Arena to carry on class activities. Their schedules, it seems, conflict with those of the hockey team, which is faced with a poor record and needs all of its ice time. Students and area residents, who have always had access to the arena in the past, will find their ice time reduced to almost nothing.

Palestinian Arabs are victims in the fight for their homeland

By DAVID Q. SCHWAB

In November 1974, Yasir Arafat, Chairperson of the Palestine Liberation Organization stood on the rostrum of the United Nations General Assembly and told the world:

"I have come bearing an olive branch and a freedom fighter's gun. Do not let the olive branch fall from my hand."

Israelis promptly hurled it to the ground; it was, they said, a grotesquely stunted foliage!

On Nov. 29, 1947, the General Assembly, (by a vote of 33 for, 13 against, and 10 abstentions — a scant two-thirds majority), adopted a resolution proclaiming the re-establishment of an independent Jewish state in Palestine.

Following the announcement, the Arab delegation stood and proclaimed, "The responsibility (for what would come), would not be theirs but would be on the shoulders of the countries pressing for partition."

The next day, Arabs solemnly announced that, "In their eyes the United Nations had died — had been murdered," and added, "Yesterday's resolution destroys the charter and all previous covenants."

In the Arabs' eyes, they had indeed been betrayed by their fellow nations aligned in an organization proclaiming itself to be the sole arbiter of peace and justice internationally. The story of the Palestinians' dealings with the powers from the West, is one of treachery and betrayal.

During World War I, in return for the Arab contribution to the war effort, Britain and France had promised to "recognize and support" the independence of the Arabs in the Arabian Peninsula, Palestine, Transjordan, Syria and Iraq.

A year later, in Britain's Balfour Declaration, it was declared that, "His majesty's government views with favour the establishment in Palestine of a Jewish homeland, and will facilitate the achievement of this object."

This declaration and the U.N. partition plan, are only two examples of violations of the rights of Palestinians for self-determination — in a homeland populated by them uninterruptedly for more than 2,000 years.

At the turn of the century, 75 percent of Palestinians were tenant farmers working the plots of absentee landlords. History shows that the Palestinians were betrayed, not only by foreign powers, but by their own people.

Between 1891 and 1920, the Sursocks — a Levantine family of high breeding and wealth owning some of the richest land in Palestine — sold it all to Jewish Zionists.

By 1948 and partition, Jewish ownership of Palestinian land did not exceed 6 percent of the total. The partition plan allotted the proposed Jewish state 56 percent of the total land area! Not only that, but the Jewish portion was deemed by experts to be that of better quality, with much of the Arab portion consisting largely of arid and mountainous regions with little irrigation possibilities.

Can any reasonable person question the outrage of a subject people who systematically had their land stripped from them for more than 50 years by a foreign invader who was more advance both culturally and economically?

The press in this nation would have us believe that the Palestinian Arab is a mindless barbarian bent on the destruction of the peace-loving neighbor — the Israeli.

What the press fails to point out is the other side of the issue, the fact that the Palestinian Arab believes that the Israeli is the aggressor, and that Arabs are merely acting, in a helpless and desperate fashion, to keep the wolf from the door.

Perhaps the issue is best summed up in the words of Moshe Dayan, who in a 1953 funeral oration said, "Let us not today fling accusations at the invaders. Who are we that we should argue their hatred? For eight years now they sit in their refugee camps in Gaza, and before their eyes, we turn into our homestead the land and villages in which they and their forefathers have lived."

What a switch: jock hits cyclist

As I pedaled my bike home from class the other day, I found myself entering a busy cross-section filled with both students and wrestlers. Students were coming or going to class and athletes were in the process of training. As most of the people filling the cross-section had either scurried across or stopped until I had crossed, I pedaled through without fear for my life.

At this point, I was forced on confront what had to be MSU's heavyweight wrestler. As he seemed to be slowing up to allow me to pass, I entered the cross-section. I guess I hadn't given him enough time to decide what to do, because he found it necessary to plant a forearm shiver squarely across my chest. I'm still wondering how I could have mistaken him for a wrestler, when his true calling was certainly on the football field. I was knocked onto the path for bikers going in the other direction, narrowly missing an unsuspecting female rider deep in thought.

Although no one was injured (except possibly for the wrestler's ego), I am quickly reminded of Paul Curtis' article in the State News (Oct. 10) concerning bicycle safety and the complete disregard for it. The article mentioned bikers injuring unsuspecting and even suspecting pedestrians across MSU's campus. What a twist this could have been: Pedestrian seriously injures cyclist, film at 11. Maybe this wrestler feels very proud of himself now? I think if he asked anyone who saw this spectacle, he might view it differently. Maybe his position on the team was in jeopardy, or his scholarship was up for renewal. Well, he definitely proved something to me, something I will not soon forget. And in case he needs someone to take his final in "Pit-Licking 101," I just want him to know I am available.

An open letter to Provost Winder

Please be advised that I and most faculty members with whom I am acquainted, consider your decision to give faculty a 3 percent cost of living increase this year a very cheap insult.

When cost of living increases for the last 10 years or more have consistently been well below the actual cost of living index, and when we receive 3 percent at the same time that teacher's and auto worker's groups received 12 percent or more, we at MSU have obviously been cheated and taken advantage of. It is also a real shame when you and other highly paid administrators receive a whopping 12 percent increase yourselves.

There is only one way to deal with such thoughtless and inconsiderate administrators.

I hereby advise you that I will cut back my working hours a full 10 percent. And I will greatly expand my consulting activities to compensate for your shabby treatment of faculty.

Ellwood mystery solved by biker

After two articles in the State News which referred to a careless biker as the cause of Tip Ellwood's accident, I feel compelled to give my eyewitness account of the incident. At approximately 12:35 p.m., Oct. 2, I saw Tip trying to take his wheelchair down a bike path ramp near the Cyclotron Laboratory (there are no ramped sidewalk curbs). The bike ramp was too narrow and one wheel dropped over a steep part of the ramp, causing Tip to fall. He was dazed from hitting his head and apparently could not tell if he fell or was hit. The driver of the only bike in the area (myself) set his bike down next to Tip, possibly causing others who arrived later (police) to think a bike was involved.

VIEWPOINT: ISRAEL

PLO vows death to State of Israel

By S. L.

It is really sickening to read the type of simplistic editorial which appeared Oct. 5, claiming Israel ignored the PLO situation (as if we could with the constant terrorist attacks). And why didn't the State News mention the covenant of the PLO which avows "the destruction of the Zionist entity?" Would you sit down with someone who openly avows their wish to destroy you, no less recognize them? It's really easy, State News, to be so conciliatory in East Lansing when your closest enemies are the wolverines in Ann Arbor.

Why doesn't the PLO recognize the legitimacy of Israel? Who's stopping them, OPEC maybe?

And Jesse Jackson embracing that great humanitarian Yasir Arafat. Arafat — the man who rejoiced when one of his men killed my neighbors' 2 1/2 year old on her lap in a bus and killed her 12-year-old son in front of her eyes and killed her husband when he was trying to negotiate in his native Arabic with one of Arafat's killers. Or should I mention the 26 children in Ma'Alot or the 12 children in a schoolbus in 1970 — all killed by the man Jesse Jackson embraced. Just try to imagine Jesse Jackson's reaction if an Israeli embraced the guy who killed four black children in church in Montgomery, Alabama in the '60s?

And why did Jesse Jackson refuse to meet the head of the Organization of Arab Jews when he was in Israel? Do you know who they represent, State News? They represent the 1 million Jews who were thrown out, yes thrown out, of the Arab countries in the last 30 years. But you don't know too much about them because they are not a sore that was left to fester for political gain. They were resettled in the State of Israel.

In the meantime, State News, read a little more about the facts on BOTH (or all) sides in the Middle East before you insult and debate the history of black Americans (never guilty of mass murder and child killing) by comparing their struggle (which we are all part of) with that of the PLO.

Van Morrison's religious rock of ages

Editor's Note: This is the first installment of a two part story about the recently revived influence of religion on rock music.

By BILL HOLDSHIP
State News Reviewer

Van Morrison's latest LP — Into The Music (Warner Bros. HS 3390) — and the newest release from Bob Dylan — Slow Train Coming (Columbia FC 36120) — both combine strong religious themes with a rock music format. Despite the hoopla (especially regarding the latter LP), the combination really isn't that weird.

To a certain extent, rock and religion have always been strange spiritual associates. One of rock 'n' roll's primary roots was emotional gospel music, and many rock tunes (i.e., the Stones' "The Last Time") are direct rip-offs of early gospel songs. Elvis Presley thought nothing of recording an album of religious hymns amidst his celebrations of sexuality (and, believe it or not, there is a correlation between sex and religion), while Little ("I was a drug-taking homosexual") Richard has periodically hung up his rockin' shoes to become an evangelist.

During the liberated '60s, rock factions grew disenchanted with the hypocrisies of organized fundamental religion, and — although the themes had always been evident — this was the period where rock reached its peak as a "religion" of its own ("We are now more popular than Jesus"). Rock and religion have always shared the same romantic faith in mystical salvation or redemption, an idea which has evolved right down through "I believe in a Promised Land." To build on something Dave Marsh once illustrated in Rolling Stone: when even a jaded cynic like Lou Reed can write that someone's "life was saved by rock 'n' roll," there's gotta be "more to the picture than meets the eye."

Cult legend Van Morrison ("Gloria," "Brown Eyed Girl," Astral Weeks, "Caravan," "Wild Night" — need I say more?) has always drawn on the themes of music as a transcendental experience, and Into The Music takes these ideas to a peak he hasn't reached since Astral Weeks and Moondance. In fact, the album's title is a word play on Morrison's "Into The Mystic" from the Moondance LP. Into The Music is a joyous, religious celebration of life, both its beauty and despair and all the ambiguities in-between.

In the past, Morrison has transformed lines like "Doo doo doo" and "Turn up the radio" into significant poetry. Likewise, the lyrics on the new LP must be heard in their proper context to fully appreciate the native Irish folk tradition. Combined with Morrison's perfect vocals (he sings a tribute to the "Troubadours" of the past and present on the LP), the marriage is like a "Full Force Gale," another of the LP's song titles.

Morrison's religious conviction important theme on Into The Music. "You Make Me Feel So Free" is one of the LP's titles, and Morrison expresses that the brilliance of the "Troubadours" has always been found in "their freedom songs."

The musical redemption/salvation theme is perhaps best illustrated on the album's opening track, "Bright Side Of The Road" — a joyous ragtime-like rocker — when Morrison sings: "Into this life we're born/Some-times we don't know why/And time seems to go by so fast/In the twinkling of an eye/Let's enjoy it while we can/Won't you help me sing my song/From the dark end of the street/To the bright side of the road." By the song's conclusion, Morrison is so full of exuberance and passionate intensity that he sings the final verse as a Louis Armstrong vocal impersonation.

Morrison puts the themes together and brings it all back home on "Rolling Hills," an Irish "jig" which utilizes all the elements of the Irish folk tradition. It's as if Morrison is trying to come to terms with his Irish heritage, as he sings: "Among the rolling hills, I'll live my life in Him... I'll do no man no ill... I'll read my bible still... I'll write my song... (and) I will do my jig." Morrison grows through this tune as though he was singing the rowdiest rock song, and the effect makes any listener want to join Morrison in his celebratory jig. This might be viewed as the basic essence of life, rock 'n' roll, and religious celebration.

Into The Music is Van Morrison's most important work in years and certainly one of this year's best albums. Van the Man is back in top form, and that alone is worthy of serious jubilation.

Tomorrow: Slow Train Coming and Bob Dylan's apocalyptic foreboding.

Van Morrison puts religion back Into The Music, and the result may be his best album in years.

Van Morrison has always drawn on the themes of music as a transcendental experience, and Into The Music takes these ideas to a peak he hasn't reached since Astral Weeks and Moondance.

transcendental splendor of Morrison's art. Into The Music showcases a beautiful union between poetry and various musical forms, including rock, R&B (why do you think they called it "Soul"?), jazz, classical influences, and Morrison's visions are clear. "I was lifted up again by the Lord," he sings on "Full Force Gale," but Morrison's religious ideas are obsessed with the concept of freedom and the previously discussed spiritual redemption and salvation. Freedom is an

Bryan Bowers brings his autoharp to MSU

By WILLIAM BARNHARDT
State News Reviewer

Bryan Bowers sat backstage at McDowell Kiva sipping a cup of hot tea. I studied the seven autoharps leaned up against the sofa.

"Why do you have seven?" I asked.

"Don't want to waste time tuning the same one over and over on stage," he smiled.

I tried to figure out how the harp worked. It sounds like a harpsichord and looks somewhat like a zither. One hand depresses the chord dampers while the other races across the 36 strings.

"Some people don't even know what an autoharp is. Once at a club in Chicago, a woman called up to ask what it was that I played. The owner told her I played autoharp. She was quiet for a minute and then asked, 'He plays auto parts?'" She had no idea what an autoharp was.

I told him that I remembered the autoharp from kindergarten. This kindly grandmother-type named Miss Wimbley came in and strummed this out-of-tune autoharp, and we all sat around her on the floor and sang "Itsy Bitsy Spider" and some song about a farmer and her favorite solo soprano version of "Born Free," which we all giggled at.

Bryan laughed. "We autoharps have to go a long way to fight what these kindergarten teachers have done to us."

Bowers talked about his friends, the backgrounds he played for Emmylou Harris, the song he wrote that's on John Denver's Greatest Hits, the album he recorded The View From Home (Flying Fish 037) and his outlook on things in general.

"Well, if you think about the world and its problems — the bomb and the money scene — it's just not a happy place. I know it can really get me depressed; I think about it more than I should. But on stage the world ain't such a bad place. I try to forget about it and try to make others forget about it — you know, a positive atmosphere. It may not be the real world, so to speak, but it's important."

Bowers started the Mariah fall season Saturday night with two shows in the McDowell Kiva. Popular local folk singer Sally Rogers opened the show with her sweetly disarming stories and reminiscent traditional folk songs.

Bryan produces a variety of moods on the autoharp. It twangs like a gospel organ as in the Carter Family's "Golden Slippers," or sounds like a dulcimer in the tender canticle rough folksy manner, whether singing a song for a baby in the audience or singing a salty putting the harp down and just telling folks what I got to say."

"Flowers of Edinburgh." He let's loose with bluegrass, then slows it down for softer ballads.

"Some people don't even know what an autoharp is. Once at a club in Chicago, a woman called up to ask what it was that I played. She was quiet for a minute and then asked, 'He plays auto parts?'" She had no idea what an autoharp was." —Bryan Bowers

Bryan considerably explains to the audience how the harp is played — an amazing demonstration. He also involves and amuses his audience with a sailor's song. "I love stories. It's the most important thing to me. Sometimes the autoharp is incidental to my stories. I don't mind Chop 'em into pork. Cut 'em into ham, Slice 'em into bacon. Squeeze 'em into Spam."

He also gets the audience singing — I mean REALLY SINGING — with the old gospel favorite "I'll Fly Away." He coaxes away the shyness from the crowd.

"C'mon now. Everyone, I mean everyone can sing..."

Supportive applause.

"Now some sing reeeeeeal good... and some sing 'bout half-way. And then there's some that is just flat-a — bad! But I think it's beautiful how all that bad is lost when it gets mixin' in there with all that good."

Bryan Bowers is always a popular Mariah attraction and I'm pretty sure he'll be back again.

WISCONSIN TOPS SPARTANS

MSU's title hopes buried

By ADAM TEICHER
State News Sports Writer

MADISON, Wis. — Ever seen those T-shirts that proudly display the slogan "Michigan State Rose Bowl 1980" across the front? Sooner than anyone expected, those shirts are outdated.

The University of Wisconsin football team used numerous MSU turnovers to score the most points on a Spartan team in one game since 1976 and bury any chances MSU had of repeating as Big Ten champions by handing the Spartans a 38-29 defeat Saturday.

Darryl Rogers knew it was a poor effort and realizes his ship is sinking. "It was a very sad performance on our part," the MSU coach said.

When asked whether MSU's season had slipped down the tubes, he replied, "That's one way to put it. We had great expectations for this season and have not lived up to them. That's a fact."

MSU was without quarterback Bert Vaughn. In the hospital earlier in the week to treat a bruised kidney, Vaughn was given the OK by his physician to make the trip, but Rogers decided not to use him.

Bryan Clark was used instead and completed 17 of 33 for 148 yards and one touchdown. He was intercepted three times.

The Badgers did very little for themselves, but then MSU was so generous it didn't matter. The Spartans turned the ball over three times inside their own 29-yard line and Wisconsin used the goof-ups to score 18 points. The Badgers also intercepted a Clark pass for a touchdown.

"Turnovers defeated us," Rogers noted. "I don't recall that we've fumbled so much since I've been at Michigan State."

MSU jumped out to a 14-3 lead and looked ready to rout the Badgers.

"We got 14 points right away and I thought we were going to win," said Rogers. "But I've never seen so many things go awry in a football game."

Strong safety Rick Milhizer intercepted a pass on the second play of the game and it took the Spartans just five plays to go the 25 yards. Steve Smith went in from the 10 and MSU was on top.

After Wisconsin marched down the field — the Badgers' only drive to a score that was over 37 yards — for a 22-yard Steve Veith field goal, MSU went ahead 14-3 as Bruce Reeves ran 79 yards for the second touchdown.

That was with 3:09 left in the first quarter. From there, it was all downhill, and fast.

Early in the second quarter, Reeves fumbled a pitchout and Wisconsin grabbed it on the MSU 21. After MSU stopped the

Inconsistency plagues spikers; take fourth in MSU invitational

By BILL TEMPLETON

State News Sports Writer

Inconsistency, an attribute which had yet to haunt the MSU women's volleyball team, paid the spikers a visit over the weekend as the team placed fourth in the MSU International Invitational.

The Spartans swept through pool play with a 6-2 record to stake them to the second seed position in the championship bracket.

MSU opened play Friday, beating Calvin College 15-7 and 15-4, and splitting with Western Ontario University 15-8 and 6-15.

The spikers then split with Mount St. Joseph College of Cincinnati, 6-15 and 15-10, before sweeping the final match of pool play with Eastern Kentucky University 15-7 and 15-13.

BEFORE ENTERING ACTION in the championship bracket, assistant coach Nancy Steel offered her thoughts on the Spartans' play through the preliminary round.

"Our sets should have been further back against the better (continued on page 10)

With every word the P.L.O. utters, they make it clear they will do anything to sabotage the Mideast peace process. They threaten to blow up ships in the Hormuz Strait and stop oil from reaching our shores.

They want America to recognize them, while they murder our diplomats in Beirut and Khartoum. How can Americans be expected to recognize this fanatical group of terrorists armed and trained in Russia?

Terrorists whose covenant promises the bloody destruction of Israel... whose leaders threaten us with an oil embargo... whose killers have maimed and murdered 3,600 innocent men, women and children in the last 10 years... whose members denounce America to the Arab world.

Our administration would be making a serious mistake giving in to threats from oil rich countries by recognizing murderers.

Let's face it, America didn't become the greatest nation on earth by falling on its knees and begging for its life.

Runners split, but gain strength in weekend dual

The MSU men's cross country team continued its marked season progression Saturday despite splitting a dual meet with the universities of Minnesota and Michigan at the Forest Akers West Golf Course.

The Spartans downed the Golden Gophers 20-35 while suffering their first loss of the campaign by an identical score to the Wolverines.

Mark Mesler's streak of three straight individual victories came to an end as he crossed the finish line in fifth place overall for MSU. Mesler covered the six-mile course in 31:13, a personal best as a Spartan.

MSU's next three finishers crossed the line in a pack led by Michael White, seventh place, 31:25; Martin Schulist, eighth, 31:26; and Ted Unold, ninth, 31:27. Keith Moore captured the 11th spot for the Spartans in 31:41.

"I thought our kids ran excellent," said MSU coach Jim Gibbard. "I'm pleased with their performance because this was the first time they've run six miles this season. We're still a month away from where we should be, but we'll be ready when it comes to the Big Ten and district meets next month."

U-M's Dan Heikkinen took top individual honors in the meet with a 30:32 first-place finish. He was followed by teammate Dave Lewis in second place at 30:40 and Minnesota's Don Hurley in third at 30:43. The Wolverines' Brian Diemer captured the fourth position in 30:51.

The Spartans, who have built a 4-1 season mark, are idle until their meet with Miami of Ohio University on Oct. 27 at Oxford, Ohio.

Spartan basketball team begins NCAA title defense

The NCAA champion MSU basketball team begins preparation for defense of its title today as the Spartans begin practice for the 1979-80 season.

Earvin "Magic" Johnson and Gregory Kiser, the two catalysts in the drive to the national crown, have moved on to the professional ranks. Coach Jud Heathcote will build around returning starters Terry Donnelly, Mike Brkovich and Jay Vincent, last year's sixth player Ron Charles, and Kevin Smith, a transfer from the University of Detroit.

MSU opens up with an exhibition match against Athletics in Action, Nov. 27 in Jenison Fieldhouse. The regular season begins with the Joe Lapchick Tournament in New York City.

Women runners edged

Competing Saturday on the hilliest course in the Midwest, the MSU women's cross country team finished second behind nationally top-ranked Iowa State University at the Saluki Invitational at Southern Illinois University.

MSU finished with a score of 37, just seven points behind Iowa State and far ahead of third through sixth place finishers Western Illinois University, University of Minnesota, Illinois State University and University of Illinois which had respective scores of 110, 171, 175 and 190.

Spartans Lisa Berry, Cynthia Wadsworth and Jill Washburn placed third through fifth with respective times of 18:46, 18:48 and 18:59. Kelly Spatz finished ninth at 19:04 and Mary Ann Opaleski finished 16th at 19:27.

SHOW BOAT

FEATURING MCQUEEN

Based on the novel "SHOW BOAT" by EDNA FERBER

A musical theatre classic, SHOWBOAT is as enjoyable today as it was in the late 20s when it exploded on Broadway and became an instant success. With songs like "Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man," "Make Believe," "Bill," "Why Do I Love You" and "Ol' Man River," SHOWBOAT is alive with theatrical excitement. FORREST TUCKER, known to millions of TV and Broadway fans, stars as Cap'n Andy. BUTTERFLY MC QUEEN, a revered figure in American show business for her unforgettable performance in "Gone With the Wind," is something close to an American Institution.

blocking teams," Steel said, "and we need to be able to hit the ball off the sides of our opponents hands, but other than that, the girls are really keyed up for championship play."

Being 'keyed up' did not prove to be enough however, as the spikers went down to defeat at the hands of York University (Canada) in the quarterfinals 10-15, 18-16 and 15-13.

Poor defense, an inability to serve with consistency and a state of physical fatigue took the life out of the Spartan machine and sent the spikers into a situation where they could compete for no better than third place.

"We had to wait around a lot before we got to play the York match," Steel said. "Our serves were also very surprising, because many of our people who don't usually miss serves, did."

IN THEIR FIRST match in the loser's half of the champion## ship bracket, the Spartans won a rematch with Western Ontario and advanced to the finals to play Mount St. Joe for the second time. The match against Mount St. Joe offered MSU a chance at third place in the tourney.

It wasn't meant to be, however, as the spikers were defeated in three games in the best-of-three match.

Kellogg Community College, national champions last year in Division II, beat the University of Kentucky in the finals to win the tournament.

The Spartans will entertain Western Michigan University in a dual match at the IM Sports-West arena at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

Wisconsin breezes past Spartans, 38-29

Badgers, Veith added his second 22-yard kick and it was 14-6. A minute-and-a-half later, the score was tied. Derek Hughes, usually a tailback but starting against Wisconsin at split end, caught a Clark toss over the middle but dropped the ball and Wisconsin had the ball on the MSU 29. Tailback Curtis Richardson ran three yards for the score and then quarterback Steve Parish hit Tim Stracka for the two-point conversion.

Veith gave Wisconsin the lead for the first time with just two seconds left in the half when he nailed a 37-yarder to make it 17-14 Wisconsin at the intermission.

A Smith fumble midway through the third quarter set up the Badgers' next score. Fullback Dave Mohapp capped the 3-play, 18-yard drive with a 1-yard touchdown run.

Hughes, the nation's leading kickoff returner, brought back the ensuing kick 98 yards for a score to draw the Spartans to within three at 24-21. It was as close as they would get.

Wisconsin reserve fullback Gerald Green, a 250-pound freshman, busted loose up the middle for a 29-yard touchdown to put the Badgers on top 31-21.

They made it 38-21 when Clark dropped back to pass on MSU's next series, only to have the ball slip out of his hand as he threw. The ball flew straight up into the air and Badger linebacker Dave Ahrens caught it and ran 55 yards for yet another touchdown.

"The ball just slipped," Rogers said later of the pass. "We sure as heck have never taught that," he joked.

MSU scored once more, an inconsequential touchdown. Clark threw to Eugene Byrd for four yards and the two hooked up again for the two-point conversion to make the final 38-29.

The Spartans, once battling for a spot in the Rose Bowl, are now fighting to keep their heads above water. The loss drops MSU to 3-3 and with Purdue University next and Ohio State to follow, it's entirely possible that the Spartans may end up the 1979 season, the one that began with so much promise, with a losing record.

DEAR WEIGHT WATCHERS

"In the Dark" wants us to shed some light on "Weight Watchers."

★ ★ ★ ★

Q. I've heard about the Weight Watchers® Program for years. But what exactly is it? When somebody says "I go to Weight Watchers," where do they go?

(signed) IN THE DARK.

A. Glad you asked. The term "Weight Watchers" refers to a unique weight control organization that conducts meetings all over the world. If you join the Program you'll pay a modest registration fee plus a small fee for each weekly meeting. (No contracts, no payments in advance, no extras.) The program is comprehensive! It includes the famous Eating Plan, to help you achieve your ideal weight. And the Personal Action Plan, which teaches you how to face challenges that tempt you to overeat, how to be slim and stay slim. This year Weight Watchers has also introduced the PEPSTEP™ Personal Exercise Plan, which is optional. (Also easy and fun.) The Weight Watchers Program is scientifically planned. But the atmosphere of the meetings is warm, informal and friendly. Best of all, it gets results! That's why so many people "go to Weight Watchers."
