No Soviet action in Iran — Ginzburg

By ELYSE GOLDIN
State News Staff Writer

The U.S.S.R. will not engage in direct warfare in Iran even if the United States opts to take military action there, said noted Soviet dissident Alexander Ginzburg Thursday at MSU.

Ginzburg, human rights activist and former political prisoner of the Soviet Union, spoke at a press conference and lecture at MSU.

He said that if the United States were to mobilize troops in Iran the "U.S.S.R. probably would issue a very severe diplomatic note against the United States and then go on to sell Khomeini some very old military equipment."

Ginzburg said that strong strategic interests in Iran have prompted the Soviet Union to incite the current hostage situation. "It is within the interests of the Soviet Union to deprive the United States of Iranian oil and the possibility of using Iran as a base to observe rockets set up in the Soviet Union," Ginzburg said, "and these goals have been reached," he added.

Mexico shuns shah

The Mexican government said Thursday night that "it would make no sense" for the deposed shah of Iran to return to Mexico, so his visa will not be renewed.

Foreign Minister Jorge Castaneda issued a terse statement to reporters and refused to answer questions.

Doctors at the New York hospital where Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi has been undergoing cancer treatment told him Wednesday that he was free to travel, and there had been reports he would return soon to his rented mansion at Cuernavaca, 50 miles south of here.

He arrived June 10 on a visa good for six months, but Foreign Ministry spokesmen had said earlier that the visa was good only for one entry and exit. The visa was dated June 6 and expires Dec. 9.

"The government of Mexico will not be in a position to renew the visa of the shah on Dec. 9 because it would make no sense for him to return to Mexico," Castaneda said.

He said Mexico's ambassador to Washington, Hugo B. Margain, would inform the shah's "family and representatives" of the decision.

Trial 'inevitable' if shah leaves U.S.

By MAUREEN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

TEHRAN, Iran — The Moslem militants holding the U.S. Embassy said Thursday a trial of American hostages would become "inevitable" if the deposed shah is allowed to leave the United States for Mexico instead of being returning to Iran.

A spokesman said a trial could begin "very soon" and hinted the estimated 50 hostages also might be maltreated.

The Italian news agency Ansa reported that Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini told a group of European reporters he intends to put President Carter on trial after trying the shah.

Tens of thousands of Iranians filled the street in front of the embassy at about midnight Thursday. They prayed and chanted hymns, then faced the embassy and shouted in unison: "Allahu Akbar! (God is Great)."

DOCTORS AT NEW York Hospital,

where he has undergone gallstone and cancer treatment, have told exiled Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi that he can travel, and a spokesman for the shah says he might return to his Mexico residence within 10 days.

The new threats in the deepening crisis came after more than 1 million Iranians, chanting hatred for the "Yankees" and declaring their willingness to die, poured through Tehran's streets in a huge show of religious devotion to Ayatollah Ruhollah

Khomeini's holy war against America.

The United States, trying a new diplomatic tactic, asked the International Court of Justice in the Netherlands to order Iran to release the embassy hostages.

A world court ruling would further bolster Washington's hand before the U.N. Security Council, scheduled to meet this weekend in a session many regard as crucial.

Iran's religious rulers were waiting until the last minute to announce whether the new acting foreign minister, Sadegh Ghotbzadeh would take part in the U.N. debate. Ghotbzadeh was expected to announce the decision at a news conference scheduled for Friday.

THE THREATS AGAINST the hostages, held since the embassy was seized Nov. 4, were made in a statement by the militant students carried by Tehran Radio and in a spokesman's telephone interview with The Associated Press.

The embassy militants and Iranian leaders have threatened previously to put the hostages on trial as "spies" if the United States allowed the shah to go anywhere but back to Iran to stand trial.

"If the U.S. government does not return the ousted shah to Iran, and if it implements the plot of sending him to another country, the trial of the hostages will be inevitable," the radio statement said.

The spokesman said later that the shah's departure would be "the worst thing the United States can do. It may be a case of the trial beginning very soon." The militants have never set a date for such a trial.

He added darkly: "We will change our policy toward the hostages. We have respect for them, friendly relations, because our religion is Islam. We will change our policy . . . the reaction of the Iranian people will be such that it brings a great loss to the United States." As has been customary, the young man did not give his name.

The State Department on Thursday revised its estimate of the number of hostages from 49 to "at least 50," saying the 50th was a businessperson named Jerry Plotkin from California.

Iranian students in American cities receive physical threats, oral abuse

By ELYSE GOLDIN
State News Staff Writer

When they were screaming for attention, the Iranian students went unnoticed. Their weekly protests were heard only by a few more than those demonstrating.

Ironically, today the nearly 220 Iranian students on campus are receiving more attention than ever before even though they are quiet. Their voices are not sounded, but their audience is alert with anticipation.

Ever since U.S. Embassy workers were taken hostage in Iran 27 days ago, the attitude of American students towards Iranians has changed drastically, said Ali Mohammad, an Iranian student at MSU.

Mohammad, a member of the Iranian Student Association, said American students have been hostile towards Iranians since the embassy takeover.

He said Iranians have received frightening phone calls and death threats. Painted pavement slogans and anti-Iran protests also exemplify American hostility towards Iranian students.

"BEFORE THE TAKEOVER, there were either Americans who supported us or those who didn't care about our struggle. Americans never physically opposed us as they do now," Mohammad said.

"In the beginning (of the embassy takeover), American students looked at us as a symbol of Iran. This atmosphere still exists and the Carter administration tries to support this attitude," Mohammad said.

"At this point it seems like everything is going nuts in the United States," Mohammad said.

Regarding President Carter's decision to deport illegal Iranian students, Mohammad said that it is an "illogical and irrational move."

"It was a spontaneous and irrational decision. The Carter administration is trying to purge the active Iranian students from this country," Mohammad said.

"IF THE ADMINISTRATION was so concerned about the illegalities of the situation in Iran, it would be just as concerned about the illegality of all students, not just Iranians here," Mohammad said.

He said that the University attitude towards Iranians has not condoned or condemned them on campus but for the most part has followed along the lines set by Carter.

"As far as the foreign student office goes," Mohammad said, "they give credit to those who ignore and don't question the Iran situation. They have tried to cool us off and say we are good to be keeping a 'low profile.'"

"We haven't been keeping a low profile though. Our method is a change of tactics rather than content," Mohammad said.

"At this point, we are more interested in politically educating the Americans. Things have changed wrongly due to the administration and mass media and it will take more time to change their attitudes," Mohammad said.

"But if MSU students know what is really happening in Iran they will fight the government," he said.

"AS SOON AS Americans find out that they have to go to the draft, they will oppose the American position, like they did in Vietnam," he said.

Mohammad said that the Iranian Student Association has not ruled out any activity that will convince Americans to side with the Iranians' cause.

He said that the Iranian Student Association "understands" Iran's action against the United States.

"We (the I.S.A.) support Khomeini because he led the mass movement to overthrow the shah," Mohammad said.

"I support hostility of Iranian people towards the U.S. government," he said.

Mackey's past shows ambition and 'inaccessibility'

By TIM SIMMONS
State News Staff Writer

Editor's Note: This is the last in a series on MSU President Cecil Mackey's past and present administrative policies.

LUBBOCK, Texas — After Cecil Mackey was appointed president of MSU, his past record of administrative turnover and faculty input created some anxiety within the MSU administration.

Although a certain amount of anxiety is expected when a new president is selected, the tension seems to be warranted in this case.

ANALYSIS

In 1971, Mackey was appointed president of the University of South Florida in Tampa. Within 30 months, 42 administrators had either resigned, retired, were fired or had been demoted at USF.

The administrators included vice presidents, deans, directors and chairpersons of departments.

Many of the position changes resulted when Mackey undertook a fairly large reorganization of the University's administrative structure.

PRIOR TO MACKEY'S appointment as USF president, the College of Basic Studies had been dissolved and the College of Liberal Arts had been divided into four separate parts, said William Scheuerle, assistant vice president for academic affairs at USF.

Some of Mackey's administrative changes were necessary because of these college alterations, Scheuerle said.

"He (Mackey) did make quite a few changes and when you reorganize, a lot of things happen," Scheuerle said. "He didn't wipe the slate clean, but he did make appointments."

When Mackey was named President of Texas Tech in 1976, the amount of administrative changes decreased.

"I think he did learn from that experience at USF," said Lee Stafford, Texas Tech Board of Regents member.

However, Mackey will make any changes he feels are necessary and he "is not scared to make them," Stafford said.

TEXAS TECH ADMINISTRATORS were aware of Mackey's actions at USF and "there was some concern," said Charles Hardwick, vice president for academic affairs at Texas Tech.

Though there were few administrative changes at Texas Tech, Mackey did have to "convince the staff that a more rigid style was needed," Hardwick added.

Mackey was also given time in respect of his position, said Jack Baier, assistant vice president for student affairs at Texas Tech.

"There are fewer people here (Texas Tech) who disrupt for the sake of disruption," Baier said.

One administrator Mackey released from his duties at Texas Tech was the existing executive vice president.

The executive vice president served under the prior Texas Tech president, Grover Murray, and did not fit Mackey's administrative plans, said J. Knox Jones Jr., vice president for research and graduate studies at Texas Tech.

SOME FACULTY AND administrators at Texas Tech also complained because they felt Mackey was not available enough in comparison to the prior president.

"Murray's office was open to everyone and Mackey considered that intolerable for

Postal rates get international raise

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — Postal rates for international mail will be allowed to rise as much as 100 percent, according to Universal Postal Union recommendations — the biggest hike in the 105-year history of the United Nations agency. The 158 member states of the Bern-based agency set the standards at last month's conference in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. They apply also to post-cards, printed matter and parcels. In most categories, the standard rate approved this time was 0.75 gold francs (about 30 cents) for a letter weighing less than 20 grams .7055 oz.

The current U.S. rate to most countries is 31 cents per half-ounce air mail and 20 cents per ounce boat mail. Most countries will be allowed to implement the new charges starting in July 1981. The United States, Britain, France and some others, have been told they can go ahead six months earlier. Union spokesperson Leonard Rubens stressed that the recommendations also allowed countries to drop their rates by as much as 70 percent, thus providing the largest possible leeway around the new standard rate.

Historic school desegregation case reopened

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — The historic Brown vs. Board of Education case, which began here 28 years ago and led to the U.S. Supreme Court's 1954 ban on racial segregation in schools, was reopened by a federal judge Thursday after a group of parents complained schools are not yet integrated. U.S. District Court Judge Richard Rogers ruled that a group of Black parents who asked him to revive the case have a continuing legal interest in seeing that the court's desegregation order is properly carried out. The parents contend that Topeka schools remain racially imbalanced and they cite figures that some schools have as much as 70 percent minority enrollment. School officials deny that they have failed to carry out the Supreme Court's order and say recent federal investigations have dismissed charges of segregation in Topeka schools. The original Brown decision struck down a 1949 Kansas law that allowed racial segregation of school children in some cities. In the early 1950s, Kansas was one of four states that permitted segregation, while 17 states and the District of Columbia required segregation.

Special prosecutor to investigate Jordan

WASHINGTON (AP) — At the recommendation of Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti, a special three-judge court appointed a special prosecutor Thursday to investigate a charge that White House chief of staff Hamilton Jordan used cocaine. The court named Arthur H. Christy, 56, a former U.S. attorney in New York, to run the probe. Jordan has denied ever using the illegal drug. The Justice Department said the scope of Christy's investigation should be limited to the charge that Jordan used the drug during a visit to a discotheque called Studio 54 in New York City last year. But in its brief order, the court said

Christy should investigate the Studio 54 charge "and any other related or relevant allegation" of drug law violation. Christy told reporters that his investigation is not limited to the Studio 54 allegation, but would not elaborate. White House press secretary Jody Powell said President Carter asked Jordan to remain as chief of staff, and that Jordan would do so. "It would be an incredible injustice for a person to be forced from office because a preliminary investigation has been concluded which did not imply that there was substance to the charges against him, but rather the contrary," Powell said.

Car thieves get schooling in Chicago

WASHINGTON (AP) — Aspiring car thieves seeking big bucks get their start at Chicago's "chop shop" college, where the teachers are mobsters and graduation means entry into a nationwide auto theft ring, a Senate panel was told Thursday. "Chicago is the training ground for chop shop operators in other parts of the country," Illinois police investigator Vladimir Ivkovich told the Governmental Affairs Committee. Ivkovich said Chicago's car theft operations, tightly run by organized crime, have become "the chop shop capital of the world." At a chop shop, a stolen car is broken into parts and subsequently sold at huge profits to repair damaged cars. "After learning how the operation works in Chicago, some operators move to other areas in the country where professional auto theft does not exist, but where the demand exists," Ivkovich testified. "They then set up a salvage yard and start developing new body parts markets." Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., the committee's chairperson, quipped, "Chicago is where they get their master's and Ph.D. in car theft and chop shop operation."

Tax exemption approved by legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee approved legislation Thursday allowing a tax exemption of up to $400 a year for dividends and interest earned on savings accounts or government bonds. The amendment, billed by its sponsor, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, as a much-needed spur to savings, was approved on a 15-2 vote. The committee will seek to attach it to the "windfall-profits" tax bill being considered by the Senate. The Carter administration opposes any tax reduction at this time, and contends the Bentsen amendment is only a piecemeal approach to the nation's problems of low productivity, savings and investment. The amendment would cost an estimated $27 billion in lost taxes from 1981 through 1990, according to the Joint Committee on Taxation. But Bentsen said the proposal probably will end up costing nothing because it will boost the economy by encouraging savings. Current law taxes interest just as any other income, although up to $100 per year in stock dividends ($200 per couple filing a joint return) is tax-exempt.

Kennedy's health plan criticized

WASHINGTON (AP) — HEW Secretary Patricia Harris said Thursday the national health care plan being pushed by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy would mean more unemployment and higher consumer prices. In testimony before two House health subcommittees, Harris also urged Congress not to tamper with President Carter's own step-by-step approach for an expanded health care system. Congress is not expected to adopt any national health insurance plan in the immediate future, although committees are working on the details of various proposals. The HEW chief said a more ambitious health program along the lines suggested by the Massachusetts senator — Carter's rival for the 1980 Democratic nomination — would cost employers an added $33 billion in insurance premiums because it requires very comprehensive benefits with no patient cost-sharing. However, Harris said, the Carter plan would only add $6.9 billion more a year to employer health insurance costs. Employers are expected to spend $41.7 billion for health insurance in 1980.

COMMITTEE FINDS FAULT WITH TREATY

SALT II called unfair, unequal

By LAWRENCE L. KNUXTON Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON — A report drafted by a decisive majority of the Senate Armed Services Committee concludes that the SALT II treaty is unfair, unverifiable and "not in the national security interests of the United States." A committee majority, said by Senate sources to be 11-6 and perhaps greater, is prepared to recommend the Senate not ratify the strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union until major changes are made. Although the committee's tentative conclusion would have no official standing in the Senate ratification process, it is bound to have a psychological impact on the embattled treaty.

The report, which may be voted on early next week, was made available by a staff member of a senator opposed to the treaty. The aide asked not to be identified by publicly. SOURCES SAID THE vote of Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., is still hanging in the balance. Meanwhile, Frank Moore, the chief White House lobbyist on Capitol Hill, said the Senate will not be able to complete work on the treaty until after the first of the year. He said chances for ultimate ratification are good, although neither supporters nor opponents currently have the votes needed to prevail. Treaty opponents said the pact is not likely to reach the floor at all in 1979 and vowed to mount a filibuster on the motion to proceed. They said the current crisis in Iran has further poisoned the atmosphere against the pact, and one staff aide said, "It's as dead as a doornail."

The majority on the Armed Services Committee disagreed. "In our judgment the SALT II treaty presently before the committee fails to meet the criteria laid down in 1972 when the Congress adopted an amendment . . . that called for equality in any future SALT treaty," the committee's majority said in the report.

Pilot error caused crash

CHRISTCHURCH, New Zealand (AP) — The pilot of the Air New Zealand DC-10 that crashed into a remote Antarctica volcano, killing all 257 persons aboard, apparently made a navigational error that took him to the "wrong" side of the wind-lashed mountain, the head of the recovery operation said Thursday. An airline spokesperson acknowledged that the pilot, Capt. Jim Collins, 45, had never flown the Air New Zealand antarctic sightseeing route before. But spokesperson Jim Berry refused to comment on a possible cause for the crash.

The director of the British Safety Council advised travelers to shun the DC-10, and two lawmakers in Britain and West Germany demanded that their countries ban the plane until after an investigation of the New Zealand crash. Some air-safety experts contend the DC-10 has dangerous design flaws, a charge the manufacturer heatedly disputes. Roy Thomson, New Zealand's chief official for Antarctica and leader of the crash-recovery mission, said it appeared to him that the pilot, not the plane, was to blame.

aircraft, and unpredictable drafts around active volcanoes can be particularly dangerous. The western route past Erebus, off the Antarctica coast on Ross Island, would have taken the plane over the frozen sea of McMurdo Sound. Airline spokesperson Berry said Collins had been with Air New Zealand for 21 years "and was a well-experienced pilot."

An advance team of three mountaineers Thursday reached the crash site, 1,500 feet up the side of 12,400-foot-high Mount Erebus, reported no sign of survivors and said they spotted 60 or 70 bodies, a U.S. Navy spokesperson said. But it appeared that the recovery effort would be an awesome task: the climbers said a polar blizzard was already covering the wreckage and bodies with snow.

Speaking with reporters in Auckland, New Zealand, before heading for the crash area 2,000 miles south of here, he said the plane was supposed to have been flying past the northwest side of Mount Erebus but slammed into the northeast side. The DC-10s normally fly past the smoldering volcano at about 2,000 feet as part of Air New Zealand's aerial tour of spectacular polar sights.

THE DEATH TOLL in Wednesday's crash, including 21 Americans, was the fourth-highest in aviation history. It was the third fatal accident involving a DC-10 this year, and it aroused new demands that the McDonnell Douglas plane be grounded.

"IT WOULD SEEM there has been a substantial error in navigation by the pilot," Thomson said. "In my opinion, the plane was certainly in the wrong place to come down so low." He did not elaborate, but treacherous winds in mountain areas often pose a danger to

Pope, Patriarch begin talks of reuniting Christian churches

INSTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — With an embrace and "a kiss of unity," Pope John Paul II and Patriarch Demetrius I opened talks Thursday aimed at reuniting the Roman Catholic and Eastern Orthodox Churches after nine centuries of discord. "I dare to hope that this day (of unity) is near. Personally I would wish it to be very near," the pope said in the Roman Catholic Cathedral of the Holy Spirit where he sang his first mass on his three-day visit to Turkey. More than 1,000 people packed the cathedral, including Patriarch Demetrius and the 12 members of his Holy Synod, the Orthodox Church's ruling body. The pope said he hoped the leaders of the two largest branches of Christianity could one day celebrate mass at the same altar. The mass climaxed a long day of traveling and papal diplomacy in Turkey, which is 99 percent Moslem. Demetrius, spiritual leader of 200 million Orthodox, greeted the Polish-born pontiff earlier in the day at Istanbul's Yesilkoy airport on his arrival from the Turkish capital of Ankara. Istanbul's chief rabbi and Moslem religious leaders were also on hand. In Ankara, the pope, the spiritual leader of 700 million Roman Catholics called for Christians and the world's Moslems to compete "for the emulation of good." "I wonder whether it is not urgent, precisely today when Christians and Moslems have entered a new period of history, to recognize and develop the spiritual links which unite us to promote and defend together . . . moral values, peace and liberty," John Paul II said. In Istanbul, Demetrius gave the pontiff an emotional welcome to the Orthodox Cathedral of St. George, a ramshackle Byzantine-style church. As the pope entered the church ground, the patriarch rose from his throne, crossed the tiny courtyard and met the visitor midway on a red carpet. "Welcome holy brother," said Demetrius.

Brenda Ramsby of East Lansing was one of many motorists slipping and sliding across area roads following the first substantial snowfall of the year. Ramsby was headed north on Okemos Road when she lost control of her vehicle, struck a tree, and slid 50 feet into a roadside drainage ditch. She escaped serious injury, receiving only a cut on her lip.

Accidents aplenty on icy roads

There may be snow on the ground, but people are still driving like it's summer, police say, resulting in a drastic increase in vehicle accidents.

Lansing police reported more than 80 accidents Wednesday, four times the normal collision rate. Police said that the rate was surprisingly high even considering that Wednesday was the beginning of the slippery season.

Meridian Township police also reported a flurry of accidents.

Thirty-one vehicles were involved in accidents in a six-hour period Wednesday afternoon, police said, including a six-car collision on Grand River Avenue east of Park Lake Road at 4:49 p.m. Wednesday.

Meridian police also responded to two four-car collisions, including one at Farm Lane and Mount Hope Road at 4:38 p.m. Wednesday.

E.L. tenant union needed?

Landlords ask that structure, powers of groups be defined

By ELLA CHOINSKI and SUE ROBACH
State News Staff Writers

Students hassled with landlord problems may want to unionize with other tenants in East Lansing to get results.

Past experience shows that tenants battling for their rights with landlords will be more effective if they unite, said Rena Whitehead, director of the Grand Rapids Tenant Union.

To help combat landlord problems, tenant unions can act as agents that mediate, protect and advise.

"Anything an individual tenant can do, a group can do more effectively," said Yvonne Nanasi, director of Tenants' Resource Center, 855 Grove St.

THE ACTION TENANTS take may be accomplished by as simple confrontation with the landlord, or it may require a long-term organization such as a tenant union.

Tenant unions are loosely defined, with no regulations guiding their formation, Nanasi said.

Basically, tenant unions are organized as an advisory and mediating source for tenants and landlords, or as a coalition of several apartment complexes in an area, Whitehead said.

One example of an advisory tenant union is in Ann Arbor.

This union, which is mostly staffed by students, acts as an information resource center for area tenants.

THE PRIMARY AIM of the union is to support tenants, but it also acts as a mediator between the tenants and their landlords, said Carol Brown, a member of the Ann Arbor Tenants Union.

She said that the union aids in organizing tenants who want to take action against their landlord, such as rent strikes.

Such an organization would be helpful in East Lansing because of the city's housing shortage, she said.

"A union in East Lansing is probably very necessary, but due to the amount of off-campus housing," Brown said.

Whitehead agreed by saying that a tenants union in East Lansing would be good, because it would show people in the area that something could be done about landlord problems.

"A UNION USUALLY starts from an issue that's common among all," Whitehead said.

The most common complaint is that landlords keep security deposits after tenants leave, she said.

Fighting this first issue is usually accomplished by a small group of tenants. If they are successful, more tenants in the area may be willing to cooperate to correct other problems.

Even though this issue is common among many tenants, several tenants union organizers said it usually takes one or two tenants to get things going.

Publicity is the key tool used to generate support, Whitehead said.

DISTRIBUTING NEWS-LETTERS, POSTING signs and door knocking are often helpful in organizing a first meeting.

The purpose of this first meeting is to outline the major areas of concern with the landlord. Usually a petition is formed at the first meeting.

"This petition should have as many signatures as possible," Whitehead said.

The petition should state that the landlord will have a reasonable amount of time to correct the situation, or that tenants will take matters into their own hands, Whitehead said.

"A reasonable amount of time is usually until the next month's rent is due," she said.

HOWEVER, PETITIONS MUST be certified before they are presented to the landlord for legal purposes.

One method tenants can use against landlords is by withholding their rent through rent strikes, Brown said.

In a written document, the tenants state that they will withhold their rent unless their complaints are rectified.

Landlords' compliance with tenant union requests may depend on their attitude towards the union.

Many landlords object to the fact that there are no definite guidelines structuring the membership and the authority of the unions.

MAINLY WE WANT a definition of what is meant by tenant unions," said Ellen Moore, of Michigan Landlords Association, 520 S. Washington Ave.

This is the main argument used by several landlords fighting portions of a state bill concerning tenant eviction. The bill, which was already passed by the Senate, will be introduced in the state House Tuesday.

The bill would specifically protect tenants who form unions from being evicted by their landlords, but would not give tenants any new rights.

Even though eviction based on union activities is illegal, many landlords often evict or threaten to evict tenants who have sought help from tenant unions.

Passing a Michigan law, would "put it in black and white" that landlords cannot evict for such activities, Nanasi said.

Council accepts ideas for class gift

Suggestions for a 1979-80 senior class gift are currently being considered by the MSU Senior Class Council.

Students are encouraged to submit their ideas in a survey the council will be distributing during winter registration. Students can also stop by the council office, 24 Student Services Bldg. to discuss their ideas.

Each year at MSU, the graduating class presents a gift to the University, purchased with money from fund raising projects and donations taken during cap and gown sales.

Past classes have given a kiosk to Wells Hall (class of 1977), a bronze block "S" in front of the Administration Building (class of 1978), and park benches along the Red Cedar River (class of 1979).

Trustees meeting

The MSU Board of Trustees will consider affiliation agreements between the University's medical schools and medical facilities in Battle Creek and Midland during the board meeting at 9:30 a.m. in the Administration Building.

Other items under consideration include: renovation of 301 Natural Sciences Bldg., and barrier-free modification to elevators in five buildings, as well as construction of field laboratories at the Kellogg Biological Station and Russ Forest.

minority students, said the assistant director of the counseling center.

Lee June said the University is not providing the additional support needed for improving the support services that are offered to educationally disadvantaged students.

"All things that need to be done to expand the services and improve retention rates have not been done," he said.

In a report to Provost Clarence L. Winder, the Ad Hoc Commission on Supportive Services for Minority and Disadvantaged Students said broadening the accessibility of supportive services would improve the retention of minority students.

THE COMMITTEE REPORTED that the retention of minority students who enter MSU as freshmen is no better than the retention of students admitted in the Developmental Program of Admissions.

The report suggested that tutorial services of the Office of Supportive Services be broadened to include all minority students.

Florence Harris, director of the Office of Supportive Services, said the criticism the program has been receiving about its inability to effectively meet the needs of the minority students stems from the limited responsibilities given to the office.

"We try to serve any student who comes to us for help, but we are directly responsible for those students admitted in the developmental program," she said.

This year 350 students were enrolled in the developmental program which was established to assist educationally disadvantaged students.

Students are recommended into the Developmental Program when their high school grade point average or college test scores are lower than admissions requirements. The program also serves those students who show exceptional need for financial assistance.

Not all students admitted into the program are minorities, Harris said.

THE AD HOC committee report stated that since 1971 the percentages of White students entering in the developmental program has increased while enrollment for some minorities has been consistently low.

The report stated most minority students are denied access to the Office of Supportive Services because it is limited to students enrolled through the Developmental Program.

June said the responsibility of minority retention should not entirely be placed on the Office of Supportive Services. The Winter term early registration offered

Students wishing to extend their winter break may attend early registration Monday through Friday in the Sports West Building Dec. 3 through 7 from 8 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 4:30 p.m.

All continuing and readmitted students are encouraged to complete the early registration, which includes fee payment.

Excluded from early registration are students on academic probation or whose grade point average is below the Minimum Academic Progress Scale.

Because registration is traditionally crowded on the first two days, students registering during this time may need to obtain a time reservation card. These will be available in the northwest lobby of the IM Sports West.

There will be a special drop and add period during evening registration on Jan. 2.

The definition of celebrity

"The celebrity is a person who is known for his well-knownness. He is neither good nor bad, great nor petty; he is the human pseudo-event."

— Daniel J. Boorstin, author of THE IMAGE

The celebrity is a living farce, a human sham preying on the ignorance of the American public. For celebrities are merely tautologies — needless repetitions of the same in different words and images. The celebrity is a person who is produced, made to order. He is a "fabrication brought about by honest, industrious men of high professional ethics doing their jobs," namely press agents, PR men and other celebrities.

Because the celebrity is produced artificially and by special effort, he is therefore factitious. "The celebrity is created by the media; he is a big name. He is distinguished by his image or trademark." And it is this trademark, or image, that singles a celebrity out from all others and consequently makes him unique in the American public's myopic eye. Where would Howard Cosell be without his obnoxious pompousness and verbosity, Kirk Douglas without his cleft, Jimmy Carter without his teeth, Truman Capote without his lisp, Farrah Fawcett without her hair, Dolly Parton without her massive mammaries, Linda Lovelace without her voracious

In addition to the media, celebrities themselves tend to breed more celebrities. "By a kind of symbiosis, they live off each other." And so, virtually every fighter who fights Muhammed Ali becomes a quasi-celebrity for a few fleeting moments. "The hat, the rabbit, and the magician are all equally news." Among others, Ali publicized the bartender from Wisconsin, the counter-punching Jimmy Young, the jaw-breaking Ken Norton, and the toothless wonder — Leon Spinks (former heavyweight image of the world). Even Ali's wife and mistress became news, or rather "celebrities," during the time of the Thrilla in Manila.

But none of these creations compare to Ali's masterful manufacturing of Howard Cosell. Ali made Cosell what he is today, which is admittedly one of his most regretted mistakes. Ali kept Cosell in the limelight until Cosell no longer needed him; now, Howard Cosell is a human pseudo-event, a true, talentless celebrity, capable of producing other pseudo-events.

But, says Boorstin, "while we have given others great power to deceive us, to create pseudo-events, celebrities, and images, they could not have done so without our collaboration." The American public has willingly and happily helped to create celebrities by raving over them and consequently prolonging their careers. Americans like movie stars or other celebrities more when they think they have had a hand in making them a celebrity. Having made celebrities, Americans then see it as their duty to worship them by keeping them alive, by perpetuating their well-knownness.

The American public contributes so much to the creation and maintenance of celebrities that in reality, "they are nothing but ourselves seen in a magnifying mirror." In fact, "wherever we turn we see the mirror, and in it (though we like to pretend we are seeing someone else) we see ourselves." And though most people hold celebrities in high esteem, a close examination of John Travolta and the rest of his talentless, illusionary ilk will reveal that "the celebrity is usually nothing greater than a more publicized version of us; in imitating him . . . we are simply imitating ourselves."

Alas, the American people are not satisfied with simply creating pseudo-events; they want to mimic them as well. Hence, the American, man-made manifestations reflect each and every one of their creators; celebrities are facsimiles — mere larger-than-life images — of those who produce them. No more, no less.

From the State News entertainment staff. See ya in the '80s.

Merry Christmas & Happy New Year

Politics Of Culture

cious deep throat, or Cheryl Tiegs without her make-up? They would be anywhere but in the public's eye and anything but true, talentless celebrities.

Indeed, the celebrity is a life-like, motorized doll in the hands of that giant puppeteer, the mass media, without which the celebrity simply cannot survive. They are like infants nursing off the massive, metaphorical breast supplied by their creator — the media.

Celebrities strive to remain in the public's eye, to be recognized and known. "Their chief claim to fame is their fame itself; they are notorious for their notoriety." Without constant recognition, exposure and publicity, the celebrity will soon fade back into that hellish abyss of obscurity. Take away the facade that is manufactured by the media and the celebrity will be no more. But with the aid of media coverage, miracles can be worked. "In the democracy of pseudo-events, anyone can become a celebrity, if only he can get in the news and stay there." Indeed, the mass media can transform nobodies into somebodies, unknowns into knowns.

Bob Marley's 'Survival'

During the early '70s, Johnny Nash scored several American hits with a sound that was a slightly diminished form of reggae. Nash — best remembered for his hits "Hold Me Tight" and "Stir It Up" — is said to have learned everything he knew from Bob Marley. In fact, Marley wrote the latter song for Nash, and it reached the No. 1 position on the American charts.

Bob Marley is the poet laureate king of reggae and the Rastafarian brotherhood. His political influence is evident from the fact that he was shot during an assassination attempt on Dec. 6, 1976. (How's that for rock star as revolutionary?) That's how strong Marley's influence is in Jamaica.

Marley and his Wailers (Peter Tosh was an original member) rose from the Kingston shantytowns and their music illustrated the lives of Jamaica's poor and down-trodden, in addition to reaffirming the Rastafarian faith. However, as Marley grew to become an international superstar, he began to sing less and less about the poor life on the island. As a result, many initial fans feel that Marley has recently sold out.

I disagree. Just because Marley is somewhat wealthier than he was at the beginning, that doesn't mean that he has forsaken politics and his strong religious ethics. This is evident on his new LP, Survival (Island ILPS 9542) — one of Marley's strongest albums in quite some time.

In 1978, the African Delegation to the United Nations presented Marley with the Third World Peace Medal. On Survival, Marley reciprocates. The message of the LP, according to Marley, is the unity of Black people around the world, and the cover of the LP depicts the flags of the independent African nations. On songs like "Africa Unite," "Babylon System," "Zimbabwe" and the pacifist's prayer of "Wake Up And Live," Marley demonstrates that his social, political, and religious convictions are as strong as ever.

What's more, Survival may well be the most accessible LP Marley & the Wailers have ever recorded. Every cut is a gem, and each has a genuine poppy feel. An analogy might be drawn here with Elvis Costello who also combines strong political/social messages with brilliant pop music. The R&B on Survival is so pure that it sometimes seems to reach the level of classic '50s-like Doo-wop. Survival stands with Marley's first live LP and the soundtrack to The Harder They Come as a brilliant and perfect introduction to reggae for those yet uninitiated.

The folks at the Disc Shop put a card on Survival that reads: "Buy this! (Marley's) our hero!" I couldn't have expressed it better myself.

SPORTS

Icers battle Wolverines

By JEFF HITTLER
State News Sports Writer

The MSU hockey team has been cast into a familiar role for this weekend's home and home series with the University of Michigan — the underdog.

It's a role the Spartans have been assigned in every WCHA series this season. But if the current trend continues, they will unstage the weekend favorite for at least one night.

The Spartans have gained a split in their last four series outings, including that stunning 5-4 overtime win over the University of North Dakota last Saturday night at Munn Ice Arena.

The first game of this weekend's series will be played at 7:30 p.m. Friday at Yost Ice Arena in Ann Arbor. The two teams meet at 8 p.m. Saturday in Munn Arena.

MSU HOCKEY COACH Ron Mason said he expects the momentum from the Spartans' win over North Dakota to carry into the series with the Wolverines.

"We really needed that win," Mason said. "We might have lost our next three or four games if we hadn't beaten North Dakota after playing so well. It was an emotional lift for us."

Mason added that the rivalry between MSU and U-M could give the Spartans an edge.

"Rivalries tend to play into the hands of the underdogs, and that may help us," Mason commented. "If they beat us, it will be because their talent is better than ours."

The Spartans occupy eighth place in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association with a 4-6 mark and 5-7 overall.

JUNIOR CENTER LEO LYNETT continues to lead the MSU squad in scoring with 25 points on 13 goals and 12 assists. Senior right wing Russ Welch is second with nine goals and 12 assists for 21 points. They tied for fourth in the WCHA scoring race with 20 points in league games.

Sophomore goaltender Doug Belland improved his overall record to 3-5 with his fine performance in the nets for MSU last Saturday. But he will probably split duties this weekend with senior Mark Mazzoleni.

"Goaltending is the key for us right now," Mason said. "When we're playing bad, our goaltenders have to come up with the big saves. Belland came in and did it for us Saturday after the team played poorly the night before."

Mason should have a healthy squad this weekend as freshman center Bob Martin was given the OK Thursday to return to action.

MARTIN BROKE HIS wrist in the first game of the University of Wisconsin series and has been out ever since. In his first five games, he scored three goals and three assists.

Junior left wing Mike Stoltzner, however, will miss Friday's game as disciplinary action for receiving an unwarranted 10 minute game misconduct penalty at the end of last Saturday's game.

Freshman Nigel Thomas, who has seen action in eight games but has not scored, will play the left wing position on the Lynett-Welch line.

The series with the Wolverines has been known to get a little rough, but the two-game set with North Dakota was MSU's most penalty-filled weekend of all time.

The Spartans set team records Saturday with 20 penalties and 54 penalty minutes. They also set team records for a series with 31 penalties and 78 penalty minutes. Three of the broken records were set against U-M.

THE WOLVERINES WILL open the series with a 9-3 record overall and 5-3 mark in the WCHA — good for a tie with North Dakota for second place.

The story behind the Wolverines complete turn around of last season's last place finish in the WCHA is due, in part, to a healthy squad.

Sophomore Murray Eaves and senior Dan Lerg, who each missed 13 games last year, are having excellent seasons.

Eaves leads the U-M squad in scoring with 17 goals and 19 assists for 36 points. His 22 points in league play is second on the WCHA scoring list.

LERG IS THIRD on the Wolverines' team in scoring with 27 points on 12 goals and 15 assists.

A pair of freshmen have also played a major role in the Wolverines' early season success story.

Center Bruno Baseotto is second in the point column with 15 goals and 13 assists for 28 points.

Paul Fricker is the other newcomer with impressive statistics.

MSU WILL GET RESPECT WITH TITLE

Cagers in Lapchick Tourney

By ADAM TEICHER
State News Sports Writer

The MSU basketball team hasn't been getting much respect from the experts in the pre-season ratings. In its roundup of mid-east basketball teams, Sports Illustrated simply says, "As for defending national champion Michigan State, well, the magic is gone."

But by winning this weekend's Lapchick Tournament in Jamaica, N.Y., MSU can change all that. The Spartans will be playing in the Big Apple and a tournament championship most likely won't come about without a victory over St. John's University, losers in the finals of the NCAA Eastern Regional a year ago and rated in the top ten by many at the start of this season and in the top 20 by nearly all.

Tonight in the tournament's first round, St. John's, hosting the tournament in its 6,000-seat Alumni Hall, will meet Oral Roberts University at 7 p.m. At 9 p.m., the Spartans will face Princeton University. The losers of those two matches will clash in the consolation game Saturday at 7 p.m. and the winners will battle for the championship at 9 p.m.

Princeton, like the Spartans, is small. Its probable starting lineup includes 6-foot-8 freshman Rich Simkus at center and two 6-foot-5 forwards, Neil Christel and Randy Melville.

"They're not big, but they are well disciplined," said MSU coach Jud Heathcote. "They have led the nation in defense three of the last four years, including last year, so they are always a good defensive team and on offense are very patient. I'd hate to be behind them six or eight points because we may never get the ball back. We plan to try and speed up the tempo and they probably will try to slow down the pace."

The Spartans and St. John's are expected to meet in a showdown for the championship on Saturday. "I'd have to say St. John's is the favorite because they are playing in their home gym," Heathcote said. "We're going to have to play super to win, but that's what we're going there (New York) for."

MSU played a super game Tuesday night and beat the Athletes in Action, 85-67. "I'd have to say I'm surprised that we won as easily as we did because Athletes in Action is a very good team," Heathcote noted.

The Spartans opened up leads as big as 22 points in the first half and coasted home with the win. "I'm also pleasantly surprised that we could rebound a team of that size," Heathcote remarked, referring to the 42-25 rebounding advantage the smaller Spartans enjoyed.

Ron Charles was MSU's leading scorer with 17 points on 7-for-7 shooting from the floor and 3-of-3 from the free throw line. In addition, the 6-foot-7 senior forward had 11 rebounds and five blocked shots before fouling out late in the game. "That's not bad," Heathcote deadpanned.

Starting forwards Jay Vincent and Mike Brkovich had 15 and 14 points respectively and freshman forward Derek Perry had 10 off the bench.

"Our guards will have to shoot better and score better," (continued on page 10)

DAVE JANSSEN

Big Ten conference is stronger, even Northwestern Wildcats

Iowa basketball coach Lute Olson was the last of the Big Ten coaches to go before the media at the Big Ten's annual press conference held recently in Chicago. "It's very difficult to be the last liar on stage," were his opening remarks.

It's true that most coaches, in the Big Ten or in any other league, like to promote their teams at least a little bit more than they should be promoted. The problem for most Big Ten coaches this season is that their opposing coaches are not exaggerating when they say how good their teams are going to be. Every one of the coaches that voiced opinions on the subject of the conference's strength, agree that the Big Ten is the toughest college basketball conference in the country.

Except maybe one. "I think this is the worst basketball conference in the country," Heathcote said. Why? Because there are too many good teams, too many good players, too many good coaches, which simply makes it too hard to win, quips Jud.

IT'S TRUE THAT most of the teams in the Big Ten are good this season. Some are not just good, however. They are super.

One of those teams is Indiana University which many writers are picking to win the Big Ten title and which some are choosing to win the national title. The Hoosiers, National Invitational Tournament winners last year, return a strong team led by sharpshooting forward Mike Woodson, who promises to make a bid for the conference's player of the year award. Freshman recruit Isiah Thomas, who starred for the U.S. team in the Pan American games this summer, should help Indiana as one of the top first-year players in the conference.

And of course, Indiana will still have coach Bobby Knight, one of the most respected, and at the same time most hated, coaches in the game. Knight hasn't changed a bit, as he proved to all at the Chicago press conference.

"I've heard so goddamn much about what coaches say about our team," Knight said, "but I haven't seen one of those goddamn coaches at one of my practices."

Another of this year's super teams should be Ohio State University. According to Heathcote, the Buckeyes' coach, Eldon Miller, is so happy about his team that he has to fight from breaking into a smile every time he talks about it. Miller has returning stars in Kelvin Ransey and center Herb Williams. He also has a superstar high school recruit in Clark Kellogg, who many have compared to former Spartan 'Magic' Johnson.

"THERE DOESN'T SEEM to be anything he can't do," Ransey says. "He is naturally compared to Magic Johnson because of some of his passing and flair for the game," says Miller.

Indiana and Ohio State are the favorites right now but as any coach will be quick to point out, pre-season polls mean nothing. And as the members of last year's University of Illinois team will attest, a good exhibition season doesn't always mean much once the Big Ten season starts. The Illini won its first 13 games last season but won only seven of its 18 games against Big Ten competition. But the Illini, too, should be an improved bunch. A well-balanced team that returns starters Rob Judson, a guard, forwards Mark Smith and Eddie Johnson and center Derrick Holcomb. They now know how to win, they say, and will be more confident than last season. It will be hard for any team to win in Champaign, where they have already sold 13,000 tickets to some of the noisiest basketball fans in the Big Ten.

Defending co-champs Purdue University, with All-Big Ten center Joe Barry Carroll, and Iowa, with All-American guard Ronnie Lester, also expect continued success in the conference. The Hawkeyes, who recruited Mark Gannon, the best high school player in Iowa, have sold out their season tickets for the first time ever.

Wisconsin returns last season's starting lineup, which includes guards Wes Matthews and Dan Hastings, forwards Claude Gregory and Joe Chmelich and center Larry Petty, and is hungry for more wins after getting a taste of victory in its last four Big Ten games last season.

EVEN NORTHWESTERN, POUNDED upon year after year in most Big Ten games, is confident about the new conference season. Get this: coach Rich Falk expects to have a winning season and expects the Wildcats to move up into the top division in the conference. They have the potential to do that with returning players Brian Jung, Mike Campbell, Jim Stack, Rob Roberson and Brian Gibson.

The universities of Minnesota and Michigan should, however, be a couple of the only teams that could help make Northwestern's dream come true. Minnesota has only one proven player, center Kevin McHale. The rest of the team is young and inexperienced. Michigan too, is loaded with unproven players with the exception of forward Mike McGee, who is reportedly making a comeback from his dismal performance last season. The departure of Phil Hubbard will also take its toll on the Wolverines this season.

It looks like every team in the Big Ten will be improved besides Minnesota, Michigan, and, of course, MSU. No one can dispute that the Spartans will feel the loss of both 'Magic' and 'Special K,' but MSU is eager to see what it can do without its two superstars. The prevailing sentiment among team members is that MSU has been underrated and they are out to prove it. Their first attempt was successful, an 85-67 win over Athletics in Action. Further successful endeavors will require the continued health of center Jay Vincent and continued inspirational play urged along by coach Heathcote. With that, the Spartans could remain a team to contend with in the Big Ten. And that is no lie.

Age limit on NCAA harriers is needed

Four years ago, back when long distance runner Herb Lindsay was an MSU freshman harrier he competed against another freshman collegiate runner, Henry Rono, from Washington State University. Although Lindsay, 20 at the time, ran an exceptional race, he could not match Rono, a Kenyan who was 23 at the time. Presently, at age 25, Lindsay is one of the hottest road racers in the country, having won the East Lansing State Bank race and probably heading for Olympic competition. Rono, at 28, won this year's NCAA national cross country championship in his senior year at Washington State. For the past eight years, this practice of recruiting older, foreign runners has been a technique used by certain universities to unfairly dominate NCAA track events. It's not the fact that the runners are foreign that accounts for this unfair advantage; it's the age difference. Unlike most sports, the athletes that participate in long distance running do not reach their peaks until 27 or 28. These older runners are currently allowed to compete against runners in their first year of NCAA competition. "A kid right from high school faces the toughest part of his running career. The races he competes in are twice as long as in high school and the competition is naturally tougher," said MSU men's cross country coach Jim

Gibbard. Although this recruiting is not condoned or participated in by any of the teams in the Big Ten conference, it still lends an imbalance to the NCAA in general. One of the more notorious practitioners of this ploy is the University of Texas at El Paso, which has four older Kenyans on its harrier squad. UTEP has won four of the last six national cross country championships. Washington State's Rono has accumulated four world track records during his college career. Along with using up scholarship money meant for American students, these American coaches are investing time and money into the development of athletes, that upon graduation from American universities, will return to their native country and compete against the U.S. in Olympic athletics. There has been a lot of discussion among the coaches of the Big Ten about how to deal with this problem. One proposed solution is to take away one year of eligibility from runners who have reached the age of 20, and continually subtract one year of eligibility for each year over 20. This proposal will be suggested to the Big Ten some time in January. If some sort of rules are not set limiting the age of runners, more universities, in order to compete on a national level, will initiate similar recruiting procedures. The number of older runners will rise and the imbalance in NCAA track will worsen.

Five members of the MSU football team will play in post-season all-star games. Tight end Mark Brammer and flanker Eugene Byrd will play in the Hula Bowl in Honolulu. Brammer and tackle Angelo Fields in the Senior Bowl in Mobile, Ala.; linebacker Dan Bass in the Blue-Gray game in Montgomery, Ala.; and Mark Anderson in the Japan Bowl in Tokyo. The possibility of other Spartans playing in some of the games remains open. In addition, MSU coach Darryl Rogers will be an assistant coach on the east squad in the East-West game in Palo Alto, Calif.

Mason likes underdog role for icers

we can score goals on them." THE SPARTANS WILL break from the WCHA schedule next weekend with a home and home series against Ferris State College. The Dec. 7 game will be played in Munn Arena with the Dec. 8 contest in Big Rapids. MSU's other games over Christmas break include a series with Colorado College Dec. 18-19 in Colorado Springs and the Great Lakes Invitational Dec. 28-29, at Detroit's Joe Louis Arena. Schools in the Great Lakes Invitational will be MSU, Michigan Tech, Wisconsin and U-M. MSUings: The MSU jayvee hockey team took an easy 9-2 victory over Eastern Michigan University Tuesday night at Yost Ice Arena in Ann Arbor. Herb Gardner scored twice for the winners. The Spartans took a 2-0-1 mark in the Mid-Central Collegiate Hockey Association into Thursday night's game with Calvin College.

Varsity meeting

The Varsity 'S' Club will hold an initiation meeting at 6:30 p.m. Sunday in the Varsity 'S' Club room on the south side of Spartan Stadium.

Donnelly and Smith must score more often

(continued from page 8) Heathcote explained. Starting in the backcourt, Terry Donnelly and Kevin Smith were just 6 of 21 from the field and had just 12 points between them. "If we can win that easily against a good club without points from Smith and Donnelly, we will do much better once they begin hitting."

in the new Joe Louis Arena in Detroit, and a trip to Las Vegas for the Las Vegas Holiday Classic, Friday and Saturday, Dec. 28 and 29. MSUINGS: Three games of the Lapchick Tournament will be telecast live over Channel 16 of the National Cable Company. Both games of the first round will be shown and on Saturday, the championship game will be aired.

FOLLOWING THE LAPCHICK Tournament, the Spartans will return for two games in Jenison Fieldhouse, Thursday, Dec. 6, against Long Beach State University and Monday, Dec. 10, versus Portland State University. The Big Ten slate begins Thursday, Jan. 3, the day before classes start for winter quarter, with a home match against Purdue. Highlights of the schedule over winter break include a Thursday, Dec. 20, meeting with the University of Detroit

Students fast to aid Cambodians

By JOHN PATTISON
State News Staff Writer

Approximately 240 Snyder-Phillips residents volunteered to skip dinner Wednesday night to help feed the people of Cambodia. For each resident who fasted, the University donated 95 cents to Oxfam-America, an international relief organization. The fast was sponsored by the MSU Hunger Coalition.

"We got an incredible response, considering the time we had," coalition member Rebecca Gribbs said. "If we had time to advertise, I'm sure we would have gotten at least half of the dorm."

Gribbs said there was little time to sign up students, because the cafeteria had to have a definite number of those fasting so it could plan accordingly.

THE COALITION PLANNED to show a public television film about the plight of Cambodia in the Snyder basement, but a conflict with a Psychology Department experiment forced its cancellation, Gribbs said.

A table was set up to accept cash donations to Oxfam-America near the fireplace in the Snyder lobby during dinner hours, but only $3 was collected, Gribbs said.

Lynda Mann, a Snyder sophomore majoring in advertising, said more people would have fasted if they had been aware of it.

"Most of the people wanted to help out," Mann said. "I don't think enough of them knew about it."

Mann was one of the residents who volunteered to fast.

ERIC JOHNSON, A Snyder resident majoring in landscape architecture, said he did not mind fasting.

"It didn't hurt me to miss one meal," Johnson said. "It was for a good cause, and a lot of people were doing it."

"It was convenient for me, since I never eat on Wednesday nights anyway," said Linda Johengen, a Snyder sophomore majoring in journalism. "But I am concerned about the Cambodian situation."

But not all of the students were favorable towards the fast.

"Not that I don't want to help them, but there's a lot of people here who are pretty bad off," said Bill Gleeson, a junior business major. "Fine, help everyone else, but help yourself first," he added.

"I REALLY JUST don't care about it," said Paul Bidwell, a freshman resource development major. "It's so far away, it doesn't affect me."

"I am skinny enough as it is," complained Tim Bau, a junior studio art major.

Many students commented that it cost the University more than 95 cents to feed each of them, so it should have sent more money for each student who fasted.

China trip offered

The tour is sponsored by the Michigan International Council. The council's executive director, Robert Rentschler, said anyone interested in the trip should contact the council office in 8 Kellogg Center before Dec. 11.

The tour group, which is limited to 25 people, will leave Chicago on Feb. 8, fly to Hong Kong, and spend 16 days in the People's Republic of China. They will visit Canton, Peking, Nanking, Wusih, Shanghai and the Great Wall. English speaking guides will accompany the tour group.

Reservations are still available for the friendship tour of China, scheduled for Feb. 8 through Feb. 28, 1980.

The cost of the trip will be approximately $3,000, with a $300 deposit required by Dec. 11.

Sailing races offer excitement

By MARY MICHAELS

Racing in the wind, charting a course, and dodging currents — if this sounds exciting, the MSU Sailing Club may be just the thing for you.

"I'm an enthusiast of the Sailing Club," said Mary McQueen, past president of the club. "You can never know enough about sailing and in the club, knowledge is gained and exchanged. Also, it's great getting together with people who share the same interests."

The racing teams are an offspring from the club. About one fourth of the club members qualify as racers. Collegiate racing is held in the spring and fall of each year. MSU competes in two divisions, the open racing division, for both sexes, and the women's racing division.

This fall, the predominantly male, open racing division team participated in a regatta every weekend. It was among the 11 teams in the nation to qualify for the National Regatta held Nov. 23, 24, and 25 in Chicago. The team placed seventh overall.

THE WOMEN PLACED second in the Midwest Regatta, their only race of the season, but they anticipate entering more regattas in the spring, said Sandy Schairer, MSU junior and sailing club member.

"Ice boating is offered for recreation in the winter," McQueen added. "We are out there sailing until the lake freezes over."

Inexperienced beginners mainly join in the winter to be ready for sailing in the spring. Members pay a $10 initiation fee and $15 per term or $25 for three terms.

New members attend shore school, a series of lectures, to learn the basics. A Helmsman Rating, which requires a written exam and a demonstration of skill in handling a boat, is required for members to have privileges to the boats.

A Skipper's Rating allows members a key to the site, with full privileges. To gain this, they must pass a more difficult written exam and prove full competency in controlling a boat.

THE SAILING CLUB has access to a site where it meets for practices, recreation and raceoffs (to see who competes in the races). "It's a really nice site on Lake Lansing, just five minutes away by car," said Schairer. "It's pretty impressive with the floating docks and our fleet lined up."

The club's fleet includes 11 Flying Juniors, a Hobie 16, a Flying Scott, a Rebel and a variety of O'Days.

A charter trip for club members and guests is already organized for spring. Two large fleets to hold eight people have been reserved for a week of sailing in the Florida Keys during spring break.

The club meets Tuesdays at 6:30 p.m. in America's Cup. Prospective members are welcome.

E.L. discusses $2 million housing grant

Open discussion of the proposed 1980-81 Community Development Block Grant budget (CDBG) will be held at a work session of the Housing and Community Development Commission 7 p.m. Monday in the 54-B District Court, 301 M.A.C. Ave.

The funds, amounting to $500,000 for three years, would be allocated to other projects in the CDBG program if the commission approves the staff's recommendation.

The CDBG program, which totals more than $2 million, was given to East Lansing by the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development for aiding low- or moderate-income housing.

Additional activities and their funds recommended for the proposed 1980-81 budget include:

- $14,666 for the Tenant's

Resource Center Code Enforcement:

- $106,000 for improvements on Mount Vernon Street;
- $20,000 for Red Cedar property acquisition;
- $30,000 for Bailey School playground equipment;

- $5,000 for bike racks and lockers on Grand River Avenue; and

- $4,000 for a Spartan Village exercise trail.

PROGRAMMING CHAIRPERSON SOUGHT

Petitioning re-opened

Petitions for the position of ASMSU Programming Board chairperson will be accepted beginning winter term.

Selection of a new chairperson, which was scheduled to take place at the board's meeting Wednesday, was tabled to allow more candidates to petition for the position. Only two persons had previously turned in petitions.

Petitions, which are available to any student, must be turned in by Jan. 17, 1980.

The chairperson must have the ability to communicate with various types of people, such as administrators and student group leaders, said current chairperson, John Haytol. Haytol will be graduating this term. Also, knowledge of university workings is necessary, Haytol said, and leadership is another position is preferable.

The ability to run a simple business meeting is also essential, he added.

The board also passed a bill that would compensate the chairperson. The bill was passed because the number of hours the job requires would not allow the student to seek other employment.

"The Board cannot afford a part time chairperson. The job deserves compensation," Haytol said. "It is a very time-consuming position."

"I think we need to seriously reconsider the chairperson selection process, said Tim Durkin, Student Board Representative. These 25 minute interviews aren't enough to get to know these people," he added.

"I think we have to give consideration to a different way of selecting the chairperson," Durkin said.

In other action, the board passed a bill requiring the chairperson to reside in East Lansing during the summer months and hold off-campus office hours.

This is to facilitate planning for the school year, Haytol said.

Committee passes Chrysler plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Banking Committee Thursday night tossed out a proposal, backed by the administration and Chrysler, to save the failing automaker and instead passed a harsher recovery plan requiring a three-year wage freeze for both management and labor.

The vote was 10-4, although some who voted for sending the bill to the Senate floor said they reserved the right to oppose it later.

With Chairperson William Proxmire, D-Wis., voting against the bill because it "is a precedent for bailing out a corporation," the committee adopted a proposal offered by two freshman senators, Paul Tsongas, D Mass., and Richard Lugar, R-Ind.

The proposal would provide $1.25 billion in federal loan guarantees on the condition that another $2.75 billion is raised from other sources, namely the United Auto Workers, Chrysler suppliers and dealers, local governments affected by the company.

Water, Light interviews continue

By ROLAND WILKERSON
State News Staff Writer

committee quizzed two more candidates. The city council has been trying to fill the seat since last Spring, but has not been able to agree on the candidates.

The interviews have become a hot issue at City Hall, because the board is currently contemplating a nuclear buy-in as an energy source for the future. Energy options being considered by the board are:

- Conservation to offset demand;
- Building an addition to the BWL Erickson coal-fired plant in Delta Township;
- Buying into the Midland or Fermi II nuclear power plants;
- Joining the Michigan Public Power Agency, a group of 18 city-owned utilities banded together to increase purchasing power.

had questions of the candidates, then they should submit them in writing, rather than directly address the candidate. The first board prospect to go before the council was David Nussdorfer, 3500 Inverary Drive.

Nussdorfer, president of APCO Inc., an appliance parts wholesaler company in Lansing, said he still has an open mind when it comes to making the energy supplying decision for the future.

Alvin Smith, 3547 Blue River Drive, was the second candidate to come before the committee.

Smith, security manager at the Motor Wheel Corp. in Lansing, said that he was confident he would be able to handle any fiscal matters that might arise while sitting on the board.

Mackey's past

(continued from page 1) efficient operation," Hardwick said. "He was not inaccessible, however, and it was not uncommon for him to talk to faculty."

However, "the conversation would end," when a policy issue arose that did not affect that particular faculty member, Hardwick said.

"The president is hired by the Board of Regents, and when it comes down to it, the Board of Regents doesn't care a whole hell of a lot what the faculty says," Jones said.

Mackey, however, "is very concerned about faculty well-being and has strong convictions about faculty and presidential prerogatives," he added.

Mackey considered most faculty input as advisory and long range decisions as his responsibility, Jones said.

"TO THE AVERAGE student he (Mackey) was inaccessible," Baier said.

However, Mackey was able to delegate responsibility excellently, he added.

"It is a fact that Mackey can see how academic procedure serves the school," Harewick said. "He never lost track that procedure was used to achieve goals."

An AAUP survey at USF claimed 80 percent of the AAUP members polled in 1973 felt that a broad exchange of information was not the "rule for communication among USF's administration, faculty and student body."

The poll also stated that 57 percent of the responding faculty felt Mackey "did not deserve their confidence."

MACKAY WAS NOT available to The State News for comment concerning the AAUP survey.

MSU will be "by far Mackey's biggest test, but he is up to it," Baier said.

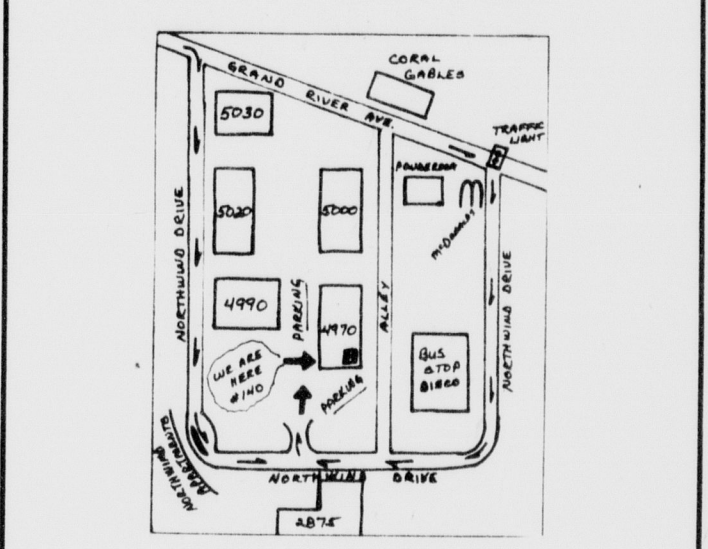

Mackey is the kind of person who finds a challenge, meets it and then tires of it, Baier added.

"I don't think you will find him in any position for long," he said.

When Mackey left Texas Tech for MSU, there was some resentment because he had only remained there for about three years and had possible "used" his position, said Carolyn Jordan, Lubbock City Council member and attorney.

The Turner-Dodge Mansion, located at 100 E. North St., Lansing, will be the scene of this year's "Family Christmas."

Days of Christmas past relived

By MELANIE J. KOTOWICZ
State News Staff Writer

The aroma of freshly baked breads, cakes and cookies will fill the air of the Turner-Dodge mansion as Lansing celebrates a "Family Christmas."

The Department of Parks and Recreation in cooperation with several Lansing businesses and community organizations will decorate and furnish the estate to capture the Christmas spirit of the early 20th century.

The German Bakery, 4976 Northwind Drive, will sell the pastries as part of the annual holiday event which will take place at the mansion this year, 100 E. North St.

For the past five years, Family Christmas was held at the Lansing Civic Center where carols, Christmas tree lighting and Santa were part of the celebration.

after Turner's death.

MSU Building Supervisor Frank Dodge McLean, is the grandson of Frank Dodge and great grandson of James Turner and lived in the house for most of his life. He said the estate was a gathering place for the entire family during Christmas with music being sounded from the ballroom on the third floor as family and friends danced the Virginia Reel and Cotillions.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN was one of many guests to visit at the house, he said.

In 1958, the Great Lakes Bible College bought the house to use as a dormitory and for classrooms.

But since the city bought the house, organizations such as the Lansing Jaycees and the Green Thumb Club have helped to renovate the mansion, Cantlon said.

During the Christmas celebration, visitors will enter into an atmosphere reminiscent of the Victorian era, while local artists demonstrate crafts such as pottery, doll-making and making stained glass throughout the house.

"It is an opportunity to bring the community together to see what Christmas may have been like back then," Cantlon said. "I wanted to romanticize Christmas as in the days of Charles Dickens."

OF THE 20 rooms in the mansion, 18 will be decorated; each room presenting a different aspect of Victorian lifestyle and each containing a different exhibit or demonstration.

The Historical Society of Greater Lansing will display old toys, Christmas ornaments and photographs of the Turner-Dodge family and Thomas Nast Prints, said Jack Thompson, past president of the historical society.

Nast was a political cartoonist who invented the Democratic donkey, the Republican elephant and our conception of Santa Claus, Thompson said. Many of his Christmas drawings will be on display.

To add to the assortment of displays, the MSU Museum will exhibit Victorian Christmas cards and a carousel horse, he said.

The Christmas celebration will add new life to the old house which has been vacant since the city purchased it in 1974. Before then, the mansion had a series of owners.

The mansion will be open to the public Friday Dec. 7 from noon to 9 p.m., Saturday Dec. 8 from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Dec. 9 from noon to 6 p.m. Tickets are $1 for adults and 50 cents for children under 12.

Post office now in the black

Although the U.S. Postal Service broke even for the first time in 34 years this year, the service will be $600 million in the red next year and will have to raise its rates in 1981 the Assistant Postmaster General said Thursday.

Edward J. McCaffrey, speaking at the State Law Building in Lansing, attributed this year's success to higher postal rates, higher productivity and better management.

He said postal rates have been holding steady, but will face an increase of several cents in 1981 to catch up with inflation.

Eighty-five percent of postal costs are labor related, he said. Because of an increased use of machines, postal workers who leave their jobs or retire may not be replaced.

When the service had a larger number of employees a few years ago, 8 billion pieces of mail were moved per year. Now, with fewer employees, costs are cut, but only 100 million pieces were moved this year.

Prior to 1971, the postal service was part of the government.

Since that time, the service has become an independent branch of the government or a semi-corporation which no longer asks Congress for appropriations and must live within income expectations, McCaffrey said.

"Even though the phone company is doing more business," he said, "the postal volume has increased 3 percent."

"Normally after a rate increase, the volume goes down," he said.

To become more efficient, he said, the postal service plans to offer an optional nine-digit zip code, as opposed to the current five-digit zip code.

THOUGH SANTA WILL also be a part of this year's agenda, the theme of the celebration is "Turn-of-the-Century Christmas," said Susan Cantlon, cultural arts coordinator for the Department of Parks and Recreation.

A 4 and one-half-foot long electronic shaggy dog will welcome visitors to the house, giving them a brief presentation about the history of the mansion, Cantlon said.

The house is named after James Turner, a prominent business person who built the house in 1853. Turner's daughter Abbey married Frank Dodge, a lawyer and political figure who purchased the house

Black author discusses civil rights

A history of Black involvement in the civil rights and labor movements will be discussed by a civil rights activist today at 1 p.m. in 326 Natural Science Bldg.

Charles Denby, a retired auto worker and author of Indignant Heart: A Black Workers Journal, will discuss his experiences in the 1943 civil rights strikes in the Detroit automobile plants and his participation in the Montgomery Bus Boycott of 1955.

The event is sponsored by the Office of Black Affairs, the Department of Racial and Ethnic Studies, Labor Studies, Sociology and the School of Social Work.

responsibility of curriculum development and academic actions were also the responsibility of the faculty and colleges, he said.

The commission said in spite of long standing University commitments, colleges have not assumed or accepted special responsibility or accountability for the educational experiences of minority students. The commission recommended that each undergraduate college commit itself to work closely with the Office of Supportive Services through the student academic affairs office within each department.

Columbus Day

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The president of the Leif Ericson Society says he thinks "eventually they'll do away with Columbus Day."

"You can't have two guys discovering the same thing," insists Ivar Christensen, who says he received a proclamation from President Carter last week designating Tuesday as Leif Ericson Day.
