

Fighting breaks out in Iran

DOCTORS ATTENDING THE 79-year-old revolutionary leader, who suffered a mild heart attack last week, reported his condition Thursday was "entirely satisfactory."

Anti-government violence also was reported in a mountainous area of central Iran populated by Lur and Bakhtiari tribesmembers, who have frequently resisted central government control.

Tehran Radio, in a broadcast monitored in London, reported recent disturbances "incited by counter-revolutionary elements" around the city of Shahre Kord in that area.

The government radio also shed new light on violence Wednesday at Tehran University.

Its earlier reports spoke only of "clashes" at the university, but on Thursday it said that thousands of leftists who had rallied at the university had been attacked by "other groups." The rally had been addressed by Masud Rajavi, head of the Mojahedin Khalq, a radical socialist Islamic group.

THE INTERIOR MINISTRY, apparently trying to ease the tension in Tehran, announced Thursday that organizers of marches must give authorities at least 48 hours notice of such events "so the necessary measures may be taken . . . to prevent the activities of troublemakers and counter-revolutionaries and in order to further provide for the security of embassies."

Clashes between Marxists and anti-Marxists have occurred frequently in Tehran since the Khomeini-led revolution, which incorporated a wide range of ideologies, drove the shah from Iran a year ago.

At Dover Air Force Base, Del., meanwhile, tight security was thrown around the six American diplomats who recently escaped from Tehran with the aid of Canadian Embassy staff members. The six arrived in Dover from a U.S. military base in West Germany, a waystop in their flight from Iran.

President Carter telephoned Canadian Prime Minister Joe Clark on Thursday to offer him America's thanks for what he called a Canadian act of "personal and political courage."

Despite threats by Iran's foreign minister, Carter said he doubted the embassy militants would make things more difficult for their hostages in retaliation for the daring escape.

'Muddy' Waters approved by trustees

As far as recruiting is concerned, however, a "tremendous edge" has been lost due to the late start, Waters said.

Waters added he "can't stay and organize anything," due to the recruiting schedule. The first job of his newly hired assistants would be to help recruit, he said.

Sherman Lewis, the only member of Rogers' staff to remain at MSU, will be the assistant head coach and defensive coordinator, Waters said.

Mat Means, a graduate assistant, will become the receiver's coach and recruiting coordinator, he added.

Waters said he also hoped to hire Buck Nystrom, of Northern Michigan University, as the offensive coordinator.

But Waters said he didn't know if the coaching assistant who had been with him the longest, his son Frank "Murky" Waters III, would be able to join him at MSU due to the University's policy concerning nepotism.

However, Waters was optimistic about the 1980 football season, predicting that we're "gonna win 'em all."

Businesses eligible for SBA loans

Federal aid has been approved for Michigan businesses hurt by the lack of snowfall this winter.

The Small Business Administration announced Tuesday it will be accepting applications from stricken businesses in Michigan and seven other states for eight and one-quarter percent interest loans.

The other states in which businesses will be eligible to receive the loans are Minnesota, Wisconsin, New York, Massachusetts, Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine.

"The ski industry and all other small businesses suffering economic injury due to lack of snow" could qualify for the loans, according to the SBA.

Applications will not be accepted until at least the middle of next week, in order to give the Michigan Tourist Council offices throughout the state time to get things ready, said Dave Morris, a consultant for the Michigan Tourist Council.

The deadline for filing applications will be October 1980.

"The loans will be granted to only those people that have no other opportunity to save their business," said Bruce McComb, deputy director of the Michigan Travel Bureau.

"If the losses are severe enough we can build a case," he said. The low-interest loan can cover up to $100,000 of losses, depending on the severity of the case, McComb said.

The businesses most likely to get the loans are those in the ski industry and shops in the communities where the resorts are located, McComb said. The snowmobile industry will also be in top running for the loans, he added.

Graduate students urged to broaden perspectives

By LOUISE WHALL
State News Staff Writer

Business, industry and engineering will be the strongest fields open to graduate students for the next few years, said panel members at the Sixth Annual Forum on Graduate Student Employment Thursday afternoon.

The Council of Graduate Students, along with the graduate school and Placement Services, sponsored the panel discussion and workshops held at the Kellogg Center.

Herbert J. Oyer, dean of the graduate school, opened the panel discussion by citing the increasing enrollment of graduate students across the country, mainly on a part-time basis.

The first speaker, Clare Duncan, told graduate students they must begin to develop a broader range of competencies outside of their particular field.

"THE UNIVERSITY MUST assist the candidate to think in terms of skills and competencies related to business as opposed to degree-related," said Duncan, coordinator of recruitment and placement for the Exxon Corp. in Houston, Texas.

"Candidates must realistically evaluate their chances to get a job in academia," Duncan said.

Lansing Community College President Phillip Gannon said students must be "willing to scramble" and give of themselves in order to find a job.

"If you're not familiar with the computer, you're not ready for anything," Gannon said, citing a report from the Carnegie Council.

"Clearly the two hottest areas for graduate student employment are in business and engineering," Gannon said.

GANNON SAID STUDENTS should take a more "global perspective" in higher education and seek guidance in the use of new electronic technology.

"Where they're putting their emphasis is where they're putting their dollars," Gannon said, referring to student job hunting.

Roger Seamon, area director of the Social Security Administration, said the outlook for federal employment is comparable to the general economy.

Students should find out which are the growth agencies, Seamon said. There are good opportunities in labor relations, energy, environmental protection, the Internal Revenue Service and the Food and Drug Administration, he added.

Neil Thornburn, dean of faculty at Albion College, said that students seeking careers in academia have to be willing to accept the different role of small colleges.

Most small colleges place more emphasis on teaching and learning than on research and dissertations, Thornburn said. The opportunities in economics, business management and accounting are the best but there are still some opportunities in English, he said.

"Sure, there are fewer jobs with stiffer competition," Thornburn said. "But there are still jobs."

ACTIVE, AGGRESSIVE PERSON

VP Stewart is pioneering woman

By DEBBIE CREAMERS
State News Staff Writer

Connie Stewart is a self-professed "pioneer." But the new vice president for University relations said she did not realize how unusual her career was until she started working in Washington, D.C., as director of policy communication for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Stewart, the only female vice president in the Big Ten, said she did not become aware of the "plight" of most women until she started working with Title IX guidelines.

Title IX of the Federal Education Amendments requires all federally funded educational programs to provide equal opportunities for men and women.

Congress passed the statement of affirmative action in 1972 in response to the growing realization that women were being denied equal opportunities.

YET THE 41-YEAR-OLD petite blonde from Georgia has been forging her way through a "man's" world for years.

Before she took the political appointment at HEW, Stewart's posts included director of orientation at the University of Georgia, public information and dissemination consultant with Atlanta Public Schools, editor of a weekly newspaper and board member of the State Scholarship Commission in Georgia.

"I've been fortunate in that everything I've done I really wanted to do at the time," Stewart said. "Time and circumstances were really in my favor."

Stewart said she probably was mistreated and underpaid in past jobs, but added she was successful at what she did. She also said she was never excluded from the decision-making process.

"I was always active, either making decisions or sitting in on them," she said. "I have a good track record of having people agree with me."

Connie Stewart

STEWART SAID MSU President Cecil Mackey "found her" among 35,000 other employees at HEW, and talked her into coming to Michigan.

Stewart, who has been involved in Democratic party activities since the 1960s, participated in President Carter's campaigns for governor of Georgia and the presidency.

Carter appointed Stewart director of policy communication at HEW in 1977, and Stewart said she had planned on settling down in Washington for at least eight years.

"I'd planned on staying in Washington through Carter's next administration," Stewart recalled, "but President Mackey got my phone number from another college president who knew me."

Stewart said when Mackey came to Washington, she interviewed him as much as he interviewed her.

interviewed him as much as he interviewed her.

AFTER THE INTERVIEW, Stewart said she picked up the phone to find out as much about Mackey as she could.

"I didn't know much about MSU, but Mackey described the University's potential," Stewart said. "He has good, solid ideas, and was very persuasive."

Stewart moved in on Jan. 4, and jetted to Washington almost immediately to attend a series of workshops on legislative relations sponsored by the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education.

Stewart said her three years with HEW will help her enormously in terms of the University's federal relations.

ASMSU fund depleting

May expire by June if spending continues

If the ASMSU Student Board continues to spend the money in its special projects fund at its current rate, the fund will be depleted by the end of May, ASMSU comptroller Terry Buckley said.

Buckley said that, including a $2,200 loan to the Cabin Committee, the board has spent more than $6,000 of the $15,000 it had in the fund, in less than one month.

The fund must last until the end of December, Buckley said. "I'm upset that we're spending so much money," he said.

Buckley said most of ASMSU's funding of student organizations come from the special projects fund.

Bob Carr, College of Business representative and chairperson of the budget committee, agreed that the fund was quickly being depleted.

He said the board would not be able to fund any more student groups this year if the fund ran out.

However, he said, funding student groups was not the main duty of ASMSU.

"Our higher priority is funding the student board and executive staff," he said.

Carr explained that the fund is financed through money that was allotted the previous year, but was for some reason, not spent.

Carr said the amount is lower now than in previous years. Most of the money allotted to groups is now spent, because the budget committee is careful in giving groups money the groups will definitely use, he said.

Because of that, "less and less money is coming into special projects," he said. The budget committee will have to tighten up the guidelines for funding student groups, Carr said.

Chamber of Commerce says businesses confident

By ROLAND WILKERSON
State News Staff Writer

Despite double-digit inflation and an expected recession, the outlook for business in Lansing is still positive, says the Lansing Regional Chamber of Commerce.

According to Michael D. Seward, executive vice president of the chamber, the "vast majority" of area businesses surveyed last week predict that their dollar volume would be greater in 1980 than in 1979.

Dollar volume, which is the total amount of dollars coming into a business, should not be confused with profit, however, Seward said.

He noted that profit is actually 1 percent or less of a business' total income.

BUSINESSES SURVEYED INCLUDED industry, wholesalers, construction companies, finance corporations and small businesses.

Seward declined to predict what the actual profit for area businesses would be because it is "extremely hard" to determine.

Profits are difficult to predict because they often fluctuate, Seward said. He added that profit is not based on the amount of dollars coming in, but on how much the business is paying out in overhead costs.

Sixty-five of the businesses surveyed expected to be dealing with more dollars this quarter than the similar quarter last year. Twenty-one percent expected a decline in dollar volume while 14 percent thought it would remain the same.

An expected rise in capital investment was noted by Seward as an encouraging statistic that predicts a good year for business.

ABOUT 60 PERCENT of the firms predicted that they would be making more investments in their own business, which would include upgrading building appearance and making additions to present facilities.

Seward said that any type of capital improvement that would include construction or upgrading facilities would boost the economy because construction crews are employed to make those improvements.

Seward added that he was "pleasantly surprised" by the outcome of the survey.

"We expected to go in and find that a lot more businesses would predict that there would be a decline," Seward said. "Many more businesses were positive than we ever expected."

Author lectures on Okemos' history

Okemos residents had a special treat Wednesday night as local historian Ruth Stillman gave a special preview of the third edition of her book—How Okemos Began: A Short History—at the Hope Borbas Okemos Library.

Stillman, 80, recapped segments of her book which describe the early life of Okemos' first settlers. Also provided at the lecture was a visual glimpse of history with authentic artifacts displayed in the library.

Her account contrasted the homelife and hardships of the founders in 1841, the location of the first schools and businesses and their rapid expansion to the community as it is today.

Stillman, a graduate of Michigan Agricultural College (now MSU), was born at the turn of the century in a farmhouse off Hagadorn Road, where MSU's Hubbard Hall stands today. A one-time writer for The State Journal, Stillman compiled the first edition of her book in 1956.

Her 24-page paperback book, complete with photos and maps, is available for $1 at the Hope Borbas Okemos Library, 2142 Clinton St., Okemos.

be held from 9 p.m. to 2 a.m. tonight in the Shaw Hall lower lounge.

The pageant, sponsored by Nouveau Noir Productions, will be held March 1.

Dinner fast planned to aid Cambodians

The MSU Hunger Coalition is asking students to skip dinner Feb. 28 to aid Cambodian relief efforts in a project approved by the Residence Halls Association.

The coalition will receive 95 cents from the University for each meal not eaten that Thursday night. This figure represents the variable cost of a meal. The funds collected will be sent in equal amounts to three relief agencies—the Christian Rural Overseas Program, UNICEF-Red Cross, and OX-FAM.

The coalition hopes to have a student coordinator in each residence hall. This person will provide information about the project and ask students to sign up.

Students may sign up in their individual residence halls. The meal ticket will be marked to indicate that the student will not eat on Feb. 28. Deadline for sign-up is Feb. 4. A list of students not eating will be compiled and given to the University.

Off-campus students may also contribute by making a cash donation at tables set up outside the Union Grill and Crossroads Cafeteria in the International Center during the week of Feb. 24 through 29.

Doug Cross, director of the project, has had to answer critics' questions about the project, including the question whether communist troops are actually receiving the aid meant for the Cambodians. Cross said some of the aid may be going into the wrong hands, but that for the most part the aid is going to the general population.

He said the MSU Hunger Coalition is active in local projects as well as the Cambodian relief project.

OPINION

Carte blanche for the CIA?

It has now been nearly five years since a congressional committee's report revealed a quarter-century of assorted illegal antics by American intelligence agencies. The committee, so it claimed, left no stone unturned, and its findings appeared to be testimony to that fact: among the activities uncovered were unauthorized buggings and telephone taps, chilling assassination plots and a repertoire of tactics ranging from the morose to the openly absurd. Predictably, the committee's revelations led to calls for closer congressional scrutiny of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, which had functioned independently of the legislative branch since its formation at the end of World War II. For a while, the future direction of the agency remained in doubt as Capitol Hill grappled with questions no one had previously thought to ask. How much, lawmakers asked, should the CIA be allowed to do without the approval of Congress or the president? And who would make the rules on what the agency could do or what it could not? Over the last few weeks, however, support for fuller disclosure of CIA activities has been reduced to a trickle by an unprecedented wave of support for the agency. On Capitol Hill, legislators are rushing to defend America's intelligence establishment and support a new CIA charter lessening the agency's obligations to report its activities to members of Congress. And in the White House, President Carter has called for a "revitalization" of CIA activities in the wake of turmoil in Iran and Afghanistan.

While Washington's support for an effective intelligence establishment is quite justified, we would question Carter's willingness to toss aside what has been so many years in the making. The CIA has always guarded its independence with an uncommon vengeance, and Congressional control over the agency has been won only after several years of political haggling. Now, in seeking support on Capitol Hill for repeal of the so-called Hughes-Ryan amendment, which mandates that the CIA disclose its plans for clandestine activities to eight key Congressional committees, Carter seems to have confirmed suspicions that his newborn foreign relations doctrine means a free hand for American intelligence agencies.

If there is anything that the past decade should have taught Capitol Hill and the White House, it is that the American cult of intelligence cannot always be trusted to mind its own affairs. Investigations of the CIA's activities in the '60s and '70s reveal a legacy of abortive and misguided attempts at swaying human minds. On the absurd side, for example, there was serious discussion of using chemicals to make Cuban President Fidel Castro's beard fall out; on the tragic side, an attempt to discredit civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr., and possibly even drive him to suicide.

In its appeal for a new CIA charter, the White House hopes to reduce the number of legislators who will have a right to know of clandestine agency operations before they are put into effect. The move, as key White House aides have pointed out, may well be aimed at discouraging popular dissemination of the agency's plans to subvert the Soviet-backed Marxist government in Afghanistan. The proposed charter would require disclosure of operations to only two Congressional intelligence committees, where security is supposedly tighter than elsewhere. The president, moreover, would be informed of CIA operations only if they were judged to carry "high political risk."

Given the tense state of the world, the eagerness of Congress to fortify the CIA is perhaps understandable. What is baffling, however, is its apparent willingness to give away an important bit of legislative oversight. The Hughes-Ryan amendment, adopted in 1974, was in fact a Congressional response to the CIA's clandestine effort to undermine a Marxist government in Chile in 1973; now legislators seem more than anxious to allow the CIA to do the same thing in Afghanistan. In this instance, it might well be true that those who refuse to remember the past are condemned to repeat it.

Opening the door to popular voting

Michigan's role in the upcoming presidential primaries is still in limbo as it has been for almost a year. The state's Democratic Party, preferring to exercise more political pull than it would in a cross-voting or "open" primary system, decided last summer to close the primary process and leave the work to Michigan's democratic caucuses. Its excuses have ranged from citing the exorbitant costs of an open primary to the claim that since Michigan's primary process does not conform to national party rules, its results will not be formally recognized.

Pleas from some legislators to bring the party in line with the national rules have so far gone unheeded. Now Zolton Ferency, MSU professor of criminal justice and former chairperson of the state's Democratic party, has challenged the closed primary on legal grounds. His case is basically the same view espoused by legislators in favor of an open primary — with a slightly different twist. Ferency claims that membership in the Democratic Party and payment of dues as a condition of eligibility makes economic status a factor in the right to participate in the caucus. That means simply that a member of the caucus must be a member of the party, which means that Democrats will be the only ones allowed to participate in the voting process. The system excludes cross-party voting and the opportunity for the entire electorate to freely choose between the Democratic or Republican candidates.

A closed primary would not only bar the public from direct participation, it would mislead the results of each candidate's success in the state. As the Iowa closed caucus pointed out, candidates do not really emerge as winners or losers; their success is representative of only a microcosm of the state. Carter's margin had not so much to do with public satisfaction with his presidency as it did with the number of caucus members who were Carter advocates. Similarly, George Bush's triumph, while it was an upset, is not really an accurate reflection of the country's leading Republican endorsement, indeed, even Iowa's.

Besides the closed caucus, Iowa and Michigan have another thing in common. Neither is a one-party state. A primary that allows cross-party voting would be more interesting in Michigan, a state that has a healthy percentage of Democrats, Republicans and moderates who could alter the momentum of any candidate if allowed to vote freely. Ferency's challenge of the closed caucus may just pave the way for such a primary.

VIEWPOINT: MILITARY AGGRESSION

United States must change policy

By JEFF BURGESS

I've been thinking lately, if I were drafted is there anything worth fighting for?

Certainly, 40 years ago the destruction of the Nazi regime was worth it. Today, what if the Soviet Union invaded Iran? Would that be worth it? Many people think a Soviet invasion of Iran would be another clearcut case of totalitarian aggression.

I would disagree. The turmoil in the Middle East is the result of the continuing power struggle between the world's competing empires, the United States and the Soviet Union. Afghanistan and Vietnam are two examples of this struggle.

In Afghanistan the Soviets saw a buffer state between themselves and the increasingly militant Islamic states to the south. Many Moslems live in the southern Soviet Union and could become caught up in the Islamic movement.

Also, Afghanistan is a bridgehead to the Persian Gulf.

In Vietnam, the United States saw a chance to stop the spread of Soviet influence into Southeast Asia, the domino theory. We didn't want the western coast of the Pacific Ocean, an ocean we consider ours, to be all communist.

In Afghanistan the Soviets engineered a coup and installed their own man. They sent in troops and are trying to subdue the populace. In Vietnam, we sent in troops and engineered a coup which installed our own man. We sent in troops to try to subdue the populace.

The Soviets are using nerve gas, we used napalm and B-52s.

The difference between Afghanistan and Vietnam is oil. We now control the oil rich Middle East, and the Soviets, who are dedicated to the disruption of capitalism and to their own imperial expansion, see a chance to gain a foothold in the area. Their plans may include an invasion of Iran so they may also try to suggest that Iran, in its present condition, could be easily divided between us.

There would be little opportunity for Soviet expansion in the area if our past foreign policy had been sound.

The United States now controls the Middle East because it has made a conscious effort to do so. Israel was our first friend in the area, but Arab opposition to Zionism negated much of the value of that friendship. So we made, and installed, other friends in the Arab nations. We Americanized and armed their countries, and we got their oil.

There were reactions to our moving into the area. To regain control over their resources, the Arabs nationalized oil companies and participated in OPEC. In reaction to our economic and cultural imperialism, the ancient and proud Islamic culture revolted. The fall of our puppet, the shah, and the rise of Khomeini were a direct result of our policy.

The people of the Middle East are not stupid; they are aware of the fact that they are caught in the middle of a gigantic power struggle. Our exploitive foreign policy has left a bad taste in their mouths. We have made it easier for the Soviets to convince them we are the bad guys. If you are hungry you don't really care if you can vote.

In exchange for their oil we should be offering the people of the Middle East the American ideals of justice and prosperity, not capitalist exploitation.

Still, we don't learn our lessons. Our next move seems to be the arming and propping up of a shaky military dictatorship in Pakistan. Foreign policy "expert" Henry Kissinger said that this is what the United States should do.

I believe the United States must cease to treat Third World countries as subjects and begin to treat them as friends and allies; no more CIA directed coups, no more Americanization, no more exploitation of their resources and no more propping up unpopular dictators because they allow us to the country. A friendly alliance against the Soviet Union would be more effective than a large U.S. military presence in the Middle East. China has suggested such an alliance but no one seems to listen.

The oil companies have something to lose because an increased American military presence in the Middle East would give the oil companies security. They have so convinced Americans we cannot live without Arab oil that we have begun to see their interests as our own.

We could get by without Arab oil, though the economic turmoil would be severe. I think this is the "crisis of confidence" to which President Carter referred. He was trying to tell us we could get by without our new clothes, new car and television.

There would be bonuses from the cutoff of Arab oil: a return to real values, increased alternative energy research and more self-sufficiency.

We face a Soviet threat to be sure. But we are not going to get anywhere playing the same game as the Soviets. The people of the Third World will begin to see no difference between us.

We must make real friends and project the American image as our founding fathers would have had us do. I am ready to fight for the true American ideals.

VIEWPOINT: SOCIETY

Some could use a history lesson

By JESSE GONZALES

One year ago today Gov. William G. Milliken proclaimed the week of Feb. 1 through 7 as Chicano History Week. The purpose of the proclamation was to commemorate the cultural, economic, social and political achievements of Michigan's Mexican Americans, who make up the largest segment of the state's Hispanic population. Chief lobbyist behind the effort was Jessie Guzman, director of the Raza Alliance of Substance Abuse Services, Inc., in Lansing.

This week, Chicano Students for Progressive Action (CHISPA) is endeavoring to bring community members into a social, media and organizational discovery of "raices" (roots).

With the pervasive signals of Hispanic racial/ethnic demographic ascendancy in the late 1980s, one can argue that the time is ripe for a true renaissance of historical unfoldings.

What are the historical antecedents of which some 200,000 Michiganders should be cognizant? Most Hispanic experts cite the 1920s, '30s and '40s as the benchmarks. While in a sense this is correct as far as a physical presence goes, there are other events and factors which also can stand the scrutiny of historical dating.

One example — Bernal Castillo Diaz, chronicler of the Spanish Conquest of the Aztecs in 1520-21, mentions the copper armaments of the Indians Copper purity of the kind mentioned and the technology for forging only existed in the Michigan Lake Superior region! Could there have been trading between Mexican and Michigan Native Americans centuries before the Europeans arrived?

Other events such as the Spanish conquest of Ft. Joseph (Niles) in 1781; the advisory role of Sen. Lewis Cass in urging President James K. Polk to support Manifest Destiny; the sizable number of Michigan volunteers coupled with extensive newspaper coverage in the Mexican War; and the leadership played by another Michigan governor in the California Land Claims Court of the 1850s (which divested millions of acres of land from Chicanos to Anglos) are all examples of an uncovered history which greatly colored Michigan's perspective of Raza long before the great agricultural migrations brought Chicanos from Texas to Michigan.

The latest phase in this history is the access of Chicanos to Michigan's colleges and universities during the late 1960s. (U-M appears to have the historical edge with the graduation of Texas-born Jose Canales from the Law School in 1899!)

Chicano history as an academic discipline and a focused research effort is a recent phenomenon. The strongest, richest and most active programs are located in the Southwest, the traditional locus of Chicano historical activity.

Few knowledgeable scholars, inadequate public and private funding, and scanty library sources inhibit Michigan Chicano studies. No educational, community or cultural group has come forth with a program to rectify the situation. Neither the Michigan Historical Commission nor the Michigan Council for the Humanities (located at MSU) has been responsive to Hispanic needs. The University as a generator of knowledge should be in the forefront of such drives.

Hopefully, this week's initial efforts will spur area residents to a more concerted thrust in bringing Chicano history to society's attention.

Gonzales is the Director of the Chicano Latino Aide Program

Social inequalities are ignored

It should be understood that I am personally against the draft, but since registration has recently been proposed for men, I find it necessary to warn all women of the upcoming proposal for a unisex draft program.

There are no biological differences between females and males that would withhold women's eligibility for the draft. It has been medically proven that females are equally as strong as males. Nor are there any psychological inequalities between the sexes that would hinder females' eligibility for the draft. Women have been forced to cope with a lot of anxiety throughout the years. I couldn't see how going out and slaughtering other human beings in the name of "war" could affect a woman any worse than it could a man!

But the proposal for a unisex draft program is in the Senate this week, and women should be aware of who is deciding whether they must enlist or not. How many female members of Congress, presidential aids and foreign policy makers are in office? The percentage is disgustingly small. Men will decide if the United States will go to war, and men will decide if women will be included!

The unisex draft should not even be considered until women are accepted on equal terms in their jobs, their aptitudes and their homes. I cannot conceive of the government or society expecting women to defend the rights of citizens while they are still being forced to live as second class human beings.

Let's not make a travesty of death

This letter is a response to the punk rock party that took place in Mayo Hall on Jan. 26.

Congratulations are in order for the overwhelming success of the event and the diligent and concerted efforts of its organizers. Unfortunately, the decor was loathsome and grotesque. Suspended from the entrance to the dance was the carcass of a chicken.

Irrespective of its form, death is death. It is not a travesty. It is real. It isn't to be mocked in such a baroque, thoughtless manner.

Just as this disembodied chicken was draped from the door, so are cats immersed in gasoline and set afire, and dogs poisoned to experience a convulsive, violent death. We must not forget those animals that are sacrificed in the name of glamour in order to adorn the fashion conscious with furs.

Insolent acts such as these delineate the arrogance of humankind. We laugh at the sight of a lifeless beast in a noose of string. Death, until it slaps us in the face, is meaningless. We have no concept of its intensity until it penetrates the highest of primates. Death displays no hierarchy. There are no degrees to its tragedy.

Hopefully this letter will not exceed the mentality of those involved in this thoughtless act — yet it is doubtful.

U.S. military might questioned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's top defense leaders said Thursday that the United States could not be assured of beating back a Soviet move on the Persian Gulf and would need help from allies and friends.

"We can't assure you we could win a war there," said Defense Secretary Harold Brown, "but to cast doubt on our ability to deter or fight effectively is damaging and unnecessarily damaging to U.S. security."

Gen. David C. Jones, chairperson of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said that "any military action carries risks and uncertainties for both sides. Neither could be confident of the outcome."

Brown and Jones testified before the Senate Armed Services Committee about the administration's proposed $142.7 billion defense budget.

Ali undertakes 'sensitive mission'

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Muhammad Ali, former world heavyweight boxing champion, canceled his tour of India today and said President Carter had asked him to undertake a "sensitive mission" to the Middle East and Africa.

A U.S. Embassy source here said Ali's trip was aimed at persuading five countries in the area to pull out of the Moscow Olympics. The source, who asked not to be identified, said Ali will be "provided transport" by the U.S. government to go to Africa from India, but did not elaborate.

"Every country in the world I call on to stay out of the Olympics to let the Russians know the world is not happy with what they did . . . When do we draw the line?" Ali asked at the New Delhi airport last week at the beginning of a scheduled 12-day tour of India.

In an interview with The Associated Press earlier today, he said he was informed of Carter's decision late Wednesday but did not say how the president's views were conveyed.

"I cannot talk about it until I see the president. It would not be fair or proper," the 38-year-old Ali said then. "But I am going to five Middle East countries."

Textron suit may involve Miller

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary G. William Miller was aware of the improper use of $600,000 to entertain Defense Department employees when he was chairperson of Textron Inc., the Securities and Exchange Commission said Thursday.

The SEC filed a civil complaint Thursday in U.S. District Court against Textron as a result of a two-year investigation of alleged overseas payoffs by the company.

Textron agreed to a settlement of the complaint without admitting or denying guilt. It agreed to a court order requiring it to disclose any future payments to foreign government officials.

Miller was not named in the SEC suit, but the action refers to "chairmen" of the company. Miller was chairperson of Textron from 1974 through 1978, when President Carter appointed him to head the Federal Reserve Board. He became treasury secretary last July.

Snowstorm sweeps through South

(AP) — From Mississippi to Maryland, people shoveled, slipped and shivered Thursday in the throes of a snowstorm that toppled ice-laden trees and power lines and left thousands in the South without heat in a bitter cold.

In the Mexican border town of Tijuana, meanwhile, soldiers and volunteers waded through knee-deep mud in search of people feared drowned by floodwaters unleashed by a burst dam.

The unofficial death toll in Mexico rose to 10, all missing and presumed drowned, as the estimated 12,000 people forced from their homes began returning as skies cleared and the muddy waters receded.

Across the border, five Americans died as flooding hit scattered areas of Southern California on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Heavy snow, ice and blustery winds battered most of the Southeastern states, resulting in widespread power outages, school closings and ice-glazed roads throughout the region.

At least a half-foot of snow was on the ground and temperatures were near- and below-freezing in several states.

Netherlands queen abdicates

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — Queen Juliana, telling the Dutch people her powers faded with age, announced her abdication Thursday after 31 years on the throne.

Her daughter Crown Princess Beatrix will succeed her, carrying on the centuries-old dynasty of the House of Orange.

The 70-year-old Juliana made the surprise announcement in a national television broadcast from Soestdijk Palace, 25 miles outside Amsterdam.

She spoke for four minutes, presenting just the "sober facts" and explaining, "Now is not yet the moment to express the feelings in me."

She said she would step down April 30, her 71st birthday.

Men face life imprisonment

OROVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Two White men, who boasted that they killed a Black man because they failed to find any animals to shoot on a hunting trip, face possible life imprisonment after pleading guilty to murder.

James T. McCarter, 20, and Marvin D. Noor, 19, will be sentenced Feb. 27 after pleading guilty Wednesday to the first-degree murder of Jimmy Lee Campbell, 20.

OFF CAMPUS COUNCIL LEADER SAYS NO

Students getting money's worth at Olin?

By KY OWEN
State News Staff Writer

MSU students are not getting their money's worth from the $18 Olin Health Center fee, the president of Off Campus Council said Thursday.

Greg Shannon said students are not getting enough health care for their money and should not have to pay the fee.

Off Campus Council is a seven-member board which represents students off campus who are not living in fraternity, sorority or cooperative housing. The Council also has a representative on the ASMSU Student Board.

The Off Campus Council has initiated a petition drive calling for a refundable health service fee. The petition drive was implemented so students who wish to see private physicians would not have to pay for services they do not use.

"Many students are dissatisfied with Olin, but use it because they paid for it," Shannon said.

"All students cannot go to private physicians, but many students live off campus and would rather see a private physician," he added.

Shannon said the $18 fee does not cover many costs incurred by students, such as after-hours treatment and medication.

"You get very little for $72 (fees for one year)," Shannon said.

received much criticism since its implementation fall term 1978, the council is not calling for elimination of the fee, Shannon said.

The fee was implemented after the state Legislature said university health services should be paid for by student and user fees.

Prior to that time, the health budget was included in the general fund.

Shannon said approximately 1,200 petitions are being circulated, and will be presented to MSU President Cecil Mackey

April 2.

"If the turnout is good, I think we can make the Olin fee at least refundable," he said. "There's a reasonable chance."

Moses Turner, vice president for student affairs and services declined to comment on the matter.

"I am not familiar with it enough to comment," he said.

Petitions are currently being distributed in residence halls, fraternities and sororities, Shannon said.

Petitions are available in 334 Student Services Bldg.

Group to introduce 'energy crisis' game

Each time something appears in the newspapers regarding the energy crisis, someone inevitably claims to know the solution to the problem.

Now, all those energy wizards will have the opportunity to put their ideas to the test, in the Energy-Environment Simulator Game.

The game, designed by the staff at the Northwest College and University Association for Science, is an analogue computer and will be introduced by the East Lansing Energy Consciousness Team at 1 p.m. Saturday in the East Lansing Public Library, 950 Abbott Road.

The introductory program will consist of a short talk about current energy problems and a discussion period followed by a demonstration of the game.

Players attempt to keep the world functioning for 500 years by manipulating such variables as energy supply, energy pools, energy demands and environmental impact.

Flashing lights signal shortages in fossil fuels and other resources. Those who can keep their world functioning for more than 500 years are judged to have developed an appreciation for the relationships between energy supply and demand.

The U.S. Department of Energy is promoting the game nationwide in an effort to raise energy consciousness.

The number of players can range from 10 to as many as 1,000 people and each person is the absolute ruler of energy supply, demand and use.

Reservations can be made by contacting Haneline at the planning office in City Hall, 410 Abbott Road.

General ed. workshop

Cynthia Parsons, education editor of the Christian Science Monitor, will speak on "What's Happening to General Education" at a workshop today at 3 p.m. in Erickson Kiva.

The workshop, on the improvement of instruction in general education, is sponsored by MSU's University College.

Anyone wishing additional information should contact Dan Preston, director of the Learning Resource Center in Bessey Hall.

MSU woman assaulted

A 24-year-old MSU woman reported being sexually assaulted Tuesday night near Spartan Village, campus police said.

Police say they have no suspects.

The incident occurred between 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. Tuesday outside of Spartan Village, police said. The woman was examined at Lansing General Hospital, police said.

The man was described by the woman as a college age, white male wearing a brown leather flight jacket, police said.

It's not one of the more graceful means of parking, but it wasn't intended that way in the first place. Jerry Smith of Lansing was driving his rig west on Main Street near Pennsylvania Avenue Thursday afternoon when his brakes failed, causing the rollover. Fortunately Smith was only shaken by the accident.

Board picks chairperson of ASMSU programming

The Programming Board selected a new chairperson Wednesday for the 1980-81 academic year.

Kai Clarke, a junior advertising major, was chosen from a field of four candidates.

"The board felt most comfortable with him," said John Haytol, the board's current chairperson.

The Programming Board chairperson is the "chief administrative officer of the board," according to an ASMSU job description.

The chairperson is responsible for overseeing all board personnel, in addition to chairing all board meetings.

Clarke will serve a one-year term.

There is a place to satisfy the late night appetite. Open Fri & Sat till 3 a.m.

Fingerprintz in town Monday

By JOHN NEILSON
State News Reviewer

Fingerprintz will leave their mark on East Lansing next Monday when they headline the fourth concert in the series of "I Don't Like Mondays" shows at Dooley's.

The British band, which consists of Jimmie O'Neill as songwriter, lead vocalist and guitarist, Cha Burnz on lead guitar, Kenny Alton on bass and Bob Shilling on drums — has been together since 1977. In January 1979 they capped off over a year of gigging in small clubs around South London with the release of their first single, "Dancing With Myself."

Last year also saw them touring extensively, first with Lene Lovich (O'Neill is credited with writing her second single, "I Say When") and later with ex-Be Bop Deluxe guitarist Bill Nelson's new band, Red Noise. They followed this with a stint as Rachel Sweet's backing band (under the pseudonym of "The Escorts") on her recent American tour, where they were often singled out for critical acclaim of their own.

The band's first album The Very Dab displays a variety of influences, ranging from attempts at Jam-like social commentary ("Hey Mr. Smith") to wall of sound themes ("Beam Me Up Scotty"). At their best, as on "Fingerprintz," "Wet Job," "Invisible Seams" and "2.A.T.," the band overlays fractured guitar chops and leads over a throbbing base pulse — a combination that should work very well in concert. Opening for Fingerprintz will be The Lips Are Back (?). Tickets are $3 and the doors will open at 8:30 p.m.

Political morality film on campus

Marcel Ophuls' Memory of Justice, to be shown this weekend by Frontline Cinema, tackles the issues of war and justice and of individual and collective responsibility. Using the Nuremberg trials of Nazi war criminals as his reference point, Ophuls examines the principles established at Nuremberg and applies them to other wars, notably the Vietnam conflict.

Ophuls interviews some 60 people in the course of the film, including Albert Speer (head of armament production for Hitler), former SS officers, present-day Nazis, survivors of Auschwitz, Vietnam deserters and defenders of the Vietnam war. Interwoven is footage of the Nuremberg trials and "March of Time" newsreels from the 1940s.

In Memory of Justice, Ophuls is constantly exploring the question of who is responsible — is it the one who gives the orders, the one who follows the orders, or the society that lets the orders be given in the first place. As Ophuls said, the film is about "the difficulty of judgment, in some cases the impossibility of judgment, but it is also a film about the necessity of judgment." The notion of separating politics from life, Ophuls says, is "totally unrealistic."

Memory of Justice, which is 278 minutes long, will be shown at 7:15 p.m. Friday and Saturday in B-104 Wells.

THIS WEEKEND

I think this weekend will fulfill some needs, it will actualize and subjectify values, it will delineate objectifications and clarify goal awareness. (Geez, I gotta stop hanging around that ASMSU crowd . . .) Anyway:

BIG DEAL DEPT. Hal Holbrook — the renowned and acclaimed stage and screen actor — is bringing his one-man show Mark Twain Tonight! to the University Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. SATURDAY — yes, that's right, Saturday, NOT Friday — Feb. 2. This might just be the Lecture-Concert event of the year. Holbrook is not to be missed by drama, literature or supreme entertainment fans. Tickets are at the Union ticket office (355-3361), and range from $6 to $8.50 with a 50 percent discount for students.

CONCERTS DEPT. Lizard's is doing a fine job of bringing Chicago blues legends to East Lansing, God bless 'em. This weekend go see blues king Bryan Lee, an East Lansing favorite, who never fails to give an audience the kind of high quality, high powered rhythm and blues (in the style of B.B. King) it wants. He'll be at Lizard's Underground this Friday and Saturday, call 351-2286 for times.

Ten Pound Fiddle, meanwhile, presents the Roustabout Stringband in Williams Hall at 8 p.m. Friday night. Admission to this folk concert is $3.

MUSIC DEPT. MUSIC DEPT. What? That heading just means that this is the dept. which tells about the music offered by the music dept. See? Here goes:

A clarinet recital, Cathy McCormick, in the Music Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. Friday. Saturday brings a French horn recital from senior Renee Redman in the Music Auditorium, 8:15 p.m. On Sunday, there's baritone Harlan Jennings (of Space Opera fame) giving a concert with pianist Edith Kraft in the Music Auditorium at 4 p.m. Also on Sunday, at 8 p.m. (same place) is senior Michael Wagner who will give a tuba recital. And should one require more info, then one should call 355-3345.

THE PLAYS THE THING DEPT. Or McThing as the case may be. Mary Chase's sweet and darling Mrs. McThing begins at the Okemos Barn Theatre. If you want tickets or information call 349-4340.

MOVIES DEPT. C'mon guys, get some new films in town.

The only fresh stuff around is Bertolucci's Luna, a film long overdue for this area (I saw it in Detroit in November). It's with Jill Clayburgh as a frazzled, frustrated mom who goes for her own son. Incest! Decadence! Italian films! Unfortunately, it's compromised Bertolucci, but then again, that isn't necessarily such a bad thing.

On the alma mater RHA brings the mildly funny Foul Play, the very funny Little Big Man (with Dustin Hoffman) and the wonderful Hair, a movie this desk — yes, The State News entertainment desk — considers one of the 10 best of last year. Now doesn't that carry a lot of weight with you? Yeah. I thought so. Call 355-0313 for times and places.

If you read Mary Tinney's story yesterday you would know Classic Films is bringing woman's film A Woman's Decision, which she calls "an interesting approach to the subject of female restlessness" (7:30 and 9:30 tonight in 100 Engineering). There's also Art Carney and Lily Tomlin in the almost-great The Late Show, a detective film which just misses being warm or funny or endearing (7:30 and 9:30 p.m. Saturday in 100 Engineering, 8 p.m. Sunday in 336 Union). Admissions are $1.50, or $1 with RHA pass.

Also around is Memory of Justice (see promo). Laura Antonelli — Playboy's sex symbol of the year — is in Wifemistress. There's probably NUDITY!!! (7:30 and 9:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, in 109 Anthony $2 for $2, with RHA pass $1.50) If you really want nudity there's porn film Hot Shots which features 25 ads — the "choice" scenes — of x-rated films (7:30, 9 and 10:30 p.m. and midnight Friday and Saturday nights in B-104 Wells Hall for $2.50 if you're a student, $3.50 otherwise). Cangaço is a Portuguese film about Brazilian outlaws presented by the Latin American Film Series at 8 p.m. in B-102 Wells for $1.

TELEVISION/ROCK 'N ROLL DEPT. Channel 56 (PBS in Detroit) will present a taped interview with the original Motor City madman, Iggy Pop tonight at 9 p.m. on 56 Reports. According to a source at Detroit's WRIF-FM, the show will feature an interview with Iggy filmed after his appearance at Masonic Auditorium in November, in addition to vintage film clips of the Ig performing with the original Stooges at Detroit's Grande Ballroom in 1968. Should be great.

Students borrow at record rate

By ANNA BROWNE
State News Staff Writer

College students in the state of Michigan borrowed more than $101 million last year under the State Guaranteed Student Loan Program — setting a new record, according to the State Board of Education.

During the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1979, a total of 53,077 loans amounting to $101,785,113 were approved. The new record represents an increase in loan volume of 54 percent compared to the 1978 fiscal year.

Ronald Roderick, associate director of financial aids at MSU, said the number of loans granted by MSU have increased dramatically in the past year.

"In the past six months our number of applications has increased 70 percent," Roderick said, "and very few students are turned down."

RODERICK SAID THE primary reason for the sudden increase in Guaranteed Student Loans is the Middle Income Student Assistance Act. Under the act, any student who receives a loan is eligible to have the federal government pay the interest regardless of the student's family income.

"It's a simple interest loan," Roderick said. "The federal government pays the 7 percent interest up to nine months after graduation."

Roderick said that since the passage of the Student Assistance Act, the GSL has become a "loan of convenience rather than of necessity."

"Students taking out these loans are students who are already here at MSU," he said. Roderick said another reason for the increase in loans was the financial burden placed on parents to provide their children with a college education.

"I SEE IT as another impact of inflation," he said.

Guaranteed Student Loans are made by local banks, savings and loan associations and credit unions. The loans are provided to individual students for college or vocational school with the understanding that the state will pay the loans in case of default.

Since the loan program started in 1962, students have defaulted on only 7 percent of the loans, according to the State Board. Approximately half of the students have repaid the loans or are in the process of repaying them.

Bill gives trustees option to waive tuition for elderly

A bill granting Michigan community college trustees the option of waiving tuition for senior citizens now awaits the signature of Gov. William G. Milliken.

Any student who has been a resident of Michigan for 18 months, is a high school graduate and is more than 61 years old qualifies for the tuition waiver under the bill.

"Now that senior citizens can attend a community college tuition free, it creates an interesting and worthwhile outlet for the energies of a valuable segment of society," said Sen. Jackie Vaughn, D-Detroit, who sponsored the bill.

"Many older citizens wish to continue their education because they feel it helps keep them young and involved," Vaughn said. "However, spiraling educational costs and the fact that most senior citizens live on fixed incomes conspires to keep them out of the classroom."

Vaughn said classroom attendance has declined recently with fewer young people enrolling in colleges. He said he hopes the bill will enable community colleges to fully utilize their facilities.

The bill also grants tuition waivers for students participating in a reciprocal agreement with community colleges if approved by the State Board of Education.

"Perhaps the greatest benefits of this program will accrue to current college students who will be exposed to older classmates and share in their vast experiences," Vaughn said.

Chicanos celebrate during history week

Chicano History Week begins Sunday and CHISPA, Chicano Students for Progressive Action, has planned several programs to mark the occasion.

There will be a party at 3 p.m. Sunday in the Fireside Room of Snyder-Phillips Residence Hall. Festival, the weekly Chicano radio program, will be playing and refreshments, including tamales, will be served.

Tuesday will be game night for the week's celebration. Chalupa, a Mexican game similar to bingo, will be played and the film America Tropical will be shown in the Chicano Culture Room of Wilson Hall starting at 7 p.m.

Jesse Guzman will discuss the significance of Chicano History Week at a special Mexican dinner at 5 p.m. Thursday in the 1962 Room of Wilson Hall. Mexican guitar music will also be performed.

Amer. Cancer Society sponsors workshops

The American Cancer Society is sponsoring two health-related events this month.

"Coping With Cancer" is designed to help cancer patients and their families deal with the disease.

"It will be a sharing and support group," said Darlene Wetzel, director of public information. "The people may express anything that is troubling them or offer suggestions to other group members."

The group will meet 8 p.m. Wednesday and Wednesday, Feb. 20 at the Ingham County Unit, 416 Frandor, Suite 104, Lansing.

The Michigan Oncology Nurses Association will conduct another workshop at 7 p.m., Feb. 13 in the Ingham County Unit.

MSU modernizes its elevators

Elevators in five campus buildings will be out of service starting today through April 30 to make them more accessible to handicappers.

The elevators will undergo modification on alternate schedules so handicappers will not be seriously inconvenienced during the reconstruction.

Elevators being altered are in Bessey Hall, Giltner Hall, the Library, Student Services Building and the Biochemistry Building.

According to Donald Freed, physical plant architect, the elevators were installed in the five buildings before accessibility requirements were enacted. He said the engineering department of the physical plant had not previously undertaken the project because it did not have sufficient funds.

Other buildings may be undertaken at a later date, he said.

Modifications include the lowering of call buttons and cab handrails and the installation of auxiliary control panels, tactile indicators, audible indicator gongs and door safety lights.

'I'm not a boy, I'm not a girl, I'm a hockey player'

"My mother told me the boys would be bigger and stronger," says Ellie Griffith. But those words of wisdom didn't stop the energetic 9-year-old from playing ice hockey. In fact, Ellie is the only girl in Lansing who plays on a boy's team. She loves it.

"I'm not a boy and I'm not a girl," Ellie says. "I'm a hockey player."

At a Lansing Ice Arena power skating clinic, Ellie got her first exposure to ice hockey and the boys who play it. When the boys met her, they had no idea Ellie was a girl because her long sandy hair was tucked neatly under her helmet.

"THERE WAS ONE boy who really became good friends with Ellie," Elma Griffith, Ellie's mother. "But he had no idea she was a girl. When he saw her with her helmet off his jaw hit the floor. He couldn't believe it."

Although Ellie has had a few problems with the boys, she knows how to protect herself.

"One kid kept taking cuts in front of her at one of the practices," says Dan Griffith, Ellie's father. "So I told her she would have to stick up for herself. The next thing I know she's got the kid pinned against the boards and she's waving her fist next to his head."

When Ellie saw that her father was displeased with her tactics, she let the quivering youngster go.

"I told her that that wasn't quite what I had in mind," Mr. Griffith says.

MANY OF THE skaters on the team, including Ellie, come to their games already dressed. That eliminates any locker room problems.

After arriving at one of her first games, however, Ellie forgot her hockey pants. Her father rushed home to get them and returned to the rink. When Ellie entered the locker room to change, the boys were engaged in the usual pre-game chatter.

"But when Ellie undid the strap to her bibs," Mr. Griffith says, "you could have heard a pin drop on the rubber mats."

Ellie casually took off her overalls, and when the boys saw she had on long underwear beneath, one boy blurted out "Gee, Ellie those (bibs) are just like what we wear." Ellie continued to change and the chatter returned.

Ellie has been skating for five years now and proved herself to critics as a capable player. Last year Ellie, nicknamed "Elliot" by her teammates, skated on the Mite (7 to 8-year-olds) travel team in Lansing.

ELLIE LED ALL of the members of the travel squad in playing minutes — an indication of what her coaches thought of her abilities.

This season she is playing on a Squirt (9 to 10-year-olds) house league team in Lansing. A special relationship has developed between Ellie, the boys and the coach, Ellie's parents say.

"She is just like a real member of the team," Mrs. Griffith says. "They treat her like part of the team and play her like part of the team."

Although Ellie attends hockey school every summer to improve her skills, her parents believe her involvement with hockey will have to end someday.

"We decided to let her enjoy it while she's young," Mrs. Griffith says. Ellie's parents say they think she'll have to give it up later when the boys outsize her.

BUT DON'T TELL that to Ellie. Her big dream is to be a Spartan.

At MSU hockey games, Ellie is one of the dozen or so kids wearing "Amo's Army" T-shirts who hang over the MSU tunnel and tap the players on their helmets as they pass.

She has become a special friend to many MSU players. In the lobby after each home game, she greets them with words of encouragement and praise.

The last game on MSU's schedule comes about the same time as the end of Ellie's season. Her parents say that she cried at the end of MSU's final contest last year, and is likely to do the same this year.

But don't fret, Elliot, a new season is just around the corner.

Spartans rise from dead, 74-54

State News Tony Dugal

Ron Charles and the Spartans left Ohio State gaping Thursday night.

By ADAM TEICHER
State News Sports Writer

The MSU basketball team was presumed dead three weeks ago and the Spartans were even lying in the coffin.

But the rest of the Big Ten forgot to nail the box shut and the other nine teams could come to regret it. Now the ghost of days past has arisen and will be a force to be reckoned with as the Big Ten heads into the second half of its schedule.

The Spartans played their best basketball of the season Thursday night in Jenison Fieldhouse and whipped the Big Ten-leading and fourth-ranked Ohio State University Buckeyes 74-54. Now the defending NCAA champions, who were winless through their first four conference games, are 4-5 in the league while the Buckeyes slipped to 6-3.

"I definitely think this was our best performance of the season," said Spartan coach Jud Heathcote. "We are starting to play better and smarter. The kids are already talking about revenge on Saturday night (when MSU hosts the University of Illinois at 8 p.m.)" The Illini beat the Spartans a week ago 74-65 in Champaign, Ill.

"Michigan State beat the heck out of us," said a disappointed Eldon Miller, the Ohio State coach. "They beat us every way you can get beat. I can't find anything we did right, but I don't want to take anything away from them."

MSU center Jay Vincent was the leading scorer with 21 points, but the credit for the win goes to the entire team for its defense on the Buckeyes, who averaged 74 points an outing before Thursday's game. Ohio State shot just 33 percent from the field. The epitome of the night came when 6-foot-11 Buckeye center Herb Williams missed a slam dunk midway through the second half.

Ohio State's All-American guard, Kelvin Ransey, had a string of 80 games in which he had scored in double figures snapped. Ransey was one-of-ten from the floor.

"Anytime a player as good as Kelvin Ransey has only six points, he's had an off night, but Terry Donnelly did a super job defensively," Heathcote said. "He looked at this as a challenge."

"I don't think that Kelvin was penetrating like he has in other games," Donnelly explained. "Ohio State was trying to get the ball under to their big men, but Kelvin didn't play to his ability tonight."

Ohio State has lost to the Spartans the last 14 times the teams have met. The Buckeyes were led by Williams' 13 points, despite his 5-for-15 shooting.

HOST MINNESOTA FOR TWO

Icers open homestand

By BILL TEMPLETON
State News Sports Writer

The MSU hockey team begins an important seven-game league homestand tonight, as the icers take on the University of Minnesota in the first of a two-game weekend series.

Tonight's game is slated to start at 7:30, before both teams return to face-off against each other again at 3 p.m. Saturday.

Last weekend's split against the University of Wisconsin in Madison marked the end of the weekend-long traveling which the team has been forced to do so often this season. Thirteen of MSU's 20 Western Collegiate Hockey Association games have been played on the road.

But now the icers come home. With nine games left on the overall schedule, eight are at Munn Ice Arena. The one game the Spartans will play on the road will be March 1 in Ann Arbor against the University of Michigan.

Regardless of who lies waiting in the wings for the MSU squad, however, all eyes must now focus on the opponent at hand — Minnesota.

The Golden Gophers have two of the WCHA's top four leading scorers on their team in senior winger Tim Harrer and freshman winger Aaron Broten.

Harrer is currently second in the league's scoring race with 25 goals and 18 assists for 43 points. Broten has been enjoying a fine first season in the WCHA and is fourth in scoring with 12 goals and 24 assists for 36 points.

Minnesota also boasts two of the league's top 10 goalies in freshman Paul Butters and sophomore Jim Jetland.

Butters ranks fourth among WCHA netminders with a 5-5-0 record and a 4.12 goals against average. Jetland occupies the 10 spot with a 7-5-0 tally and a 4.93 goals against mark.

Although the Golden Gophers seemingly have a pair of high-caliber goaltenders, MSU coach Ron Mason named that position and the Minnesota defense as the team's weaknesses.

Mason has a renewed sense of confidence in the Spartans after last weekend's split, and it appears that sophomore goalie Doug Belland could be ready to play again if he is needed.

"We have two lines now that are capable of scoring every game," Mason said, "and Belland's been working out all week and I think he'd be ready to play if we really needed him."

Belland has been out of the lineup since the end of December with a knee injury.

The Spartans are now 10-18-0 overall, with a 8-12-0 mark in WCHA play, good for eighth place at this point. Minnesota is 16-10-0 overall and 12-10-0 in the league, which puts the Gophers in fourth place.

Fetters expects meet 'to go down to wire'

MSU's swimming coach Dick Fetters says his team's meet with Ohio State University is too close to call.

The Spartans host the Buckeyes at 2 p.m. Saturday, in the IM Sports West pool.

Both teams have identical 5-3 dual meet records. MSU is 3-2 in the Big Ten, while Ohio State lost its only conference meet of the season to Indiana University.

The home team has come out the winner the last three years of this matchup. Last year Ohio State beat the Spartans 60-53 at Columbus.

"Right now it looks close," Fetters said when asked to predict the meet's outcome. "It should go right down to the wire."

Gymnasts in final tuneup

By WILL KOWALSKI
State News Sports Writer

The MSU women's gymnastics team makes its final Sunday afternoon home appearance of the year this weekend, giving the Spartans one last meet to prepare for the upcoming Big Ten Championships.

Jenison Fieldhouse will be the place for the 1 p.m. encounter with the University of Illinois at Chicago Circle squad, and MSU coach Michael Kasavana plans to show the crowd some new routines from his gymnasts.

Bonnie Ellis, Kit Bunker and Pam Swing have all revised their bar routines and Colleen Smith has put some different and difficult tumbles added to her floor exercise act.

The reason for the juggling, Kasavana said, is now that the team is finally past the powerhouses, the time has come to work on a few new things which could be used in routines at the Big Ten Championships Feb. 8 and 9 at Champaign, Ill.

"The Big Ten trophy and title is very valuable to us and we're looking at every aspect of our team performance to insure it remains here," Kasavana said.

"Chicago Circle has some good individual performers but they aren't super strong as a team, so we're using the meet to see how the changes in our routines will work out."

THE SPARTANS HAVE won the Big Ten title the past two years and go into the championships seeded a close second behind host University of Illinois. Also in the top four are Indian University and the University of Minnesota.

Kasavana hopes to see Ellis have a good day against Chicago Circle so she will be mentally ready for the Big Ten weekend. He believes the freshman is ready to take over the top all-around spot in the conference and can prove it to everyone by a good performance at Champaign.

"Because she's a freshman there's a lot of pressure on her," Kasavana said.

"But I think Bonnie's the most talented all-around gymnast in the region and performance-wise she's definitely ready to step in as the premier competitor."

Chicago Circle finished in the top 10 at the regional meet last year, but this season is averaging only 130 points a meet compared to the Spartans average of approximately 133.

PIWINSKI LOOKING TO NATIONALS

Tracksters at WMU Relays

The MSU men's indoor track team gets back into action again this Saturday afternoon at the Western Michigan University Relays.

Spartan coach Jim Bibbs is hoping to see more of his performers make the qualifying times needed for the Nationals, which will be held in March.

The tracksters have been on a rampage lately, dominating both the Eastern Michigan University and the University of Michigan invitationals the past two weeks, and Bibbs foresees much the same results in Kalamazoo.

"We're hoping for continued improvement and consistency this weekend," Bibbs said.

One outstanding prospect is freshman high jumper Paul Piwinski from Warren Cousino High School. Piwinski made it over the 7-foot, one-quarter inch level and placed first at both the Eastern and U-M invitationals. He has his sights set at 7-foot-1 or over this weekend.

"That's my goal for the year — to qualify for the Nationals," Piwinski said.

"The qualifying height is 7-foot-1 and three-quarter inches, and I know if I continue to do as well as I have been I should hit that mark very soon."

Piwinski was the Class A state high school champ in the high jump with a mark of 6-feet, 10 and one-half inches as a junior and planned to attend MSU since that time.

Piwinski credits Spartan field events coach Bruce Waha with teaching him the finer points of high jumping and embedding self confidence in him.

"I've really learned a lot about style from coach Waha and have a better self attitude," Piwinski said. "He's made it easy to adjust to competing against major competition."

When the Spartans travel to the Western Michigan Invitational they will be leaving without senior All-American Keith Moore.

IM NOTES

Wrestlers take on the nation's best

By JIM MITZELFELD
State News Sports Writer

The MSU wrestling team's task this weekend could be given no better name than "Mission Impossible."

Coach Grady Peninger's Spartans won't exactly be vacationing this weekend when they travel to the wrestling mad state of Iowa. And their task, whether they choose to accept it or not, is to take on the No. 1 and No. 2 wrestling teams in the nation on two consecutive nights.

The grapplers take their 8-4 overall and 4-0-1 Big Ten marks to Iowa State University tonight and then take on the nation's best, the University of Iowa, Saturday night.

The Spartans will be going with close to the same lineup that has produced six wins in their last seven meets, giving Peninger hopes for an upset against the highly favored Iowa teams.

"Our lineup is about 99 percent strong," Peninger said. "We're about as tough as we can be."

"Sure it's a tough chore," he added. "But not every team gets a chance at the No. 1 and No. 2 teams. We've just got to let it all hang out and see what we can do."

Peninger said his team's best hopes for an upset will be Friday night against Iowa State.

The No. 2 team in the national polls has lost only to Iowa this season.

The Cyclones' lineup has no less than four nationally ranked wrestlers. Dave Allen, Iowa State's 177-pounder, finished third in his weight class at the NCAA finals. Nationally ranked Tom Pickard has beaten the Spartan's 158-pound entry, Fred Worthem, in the past.

Dave Brown at 142 pounds, Perry Hummel at 167 pounds, and Mike Mann at 190 pounds all are favored in their matches.

The Spartan's 177-pound senior Jim Ellis, will return to action tonight for the first time since he was injured on Dec. 12. Ellis had a 4-1 record before he sustained his knee injury.

Even with two of its starting wrestlers hurt, the University of Iowa lineup is awesome.

The Hawkeyes, who are 11-1 on the season, are led by their 134-pounder, Randy Lewis, who is the returning NCAA champion. Lewis missed the last few Iowa meets because he was wrestling in Russia.

CLASSIC FILMS
A REMARKABLE FILM. A RICH, REWARDING EXPERIENCE FOR ANY ADULT. A high-style work that provides a fascinating exploration of where 'liberation' lies and of the choices women—and men—make in finding it. Zanussi's triumph is that it emerges as the choice of an intelligent, caring adult. As the film unfolds, with its rich and bustling view of contemporary Polish life, we are totally immersed in the brink-of-middle-age crisis. Each thread enmeshes us, the total tapestry overwhelming in its perceptive beauty."
—Judith Crist, New York Post

HOTSHOTS: BEST OF THE GREAT
"And now, the greatest movie ever made... Presenting the world's most beautiful women... Here it is! 'The most erotic film ever made!'... What is it? Cannes? A Hollywood premiere? A Paris debut? Well, not hardly. It's Hot Shots, a compilation of 25 previews of X-rated films from the past 10 years. Previews often contain the most graphic, sexually spectacular and gimmicky segments—the prime moments, if you will. Come see the Circus! Let these teachers teach you how to multiply! You've never been on a flight with stewardesses like these! Then some have social relevance. By the end of this film you'll know everything about Valerie and maybe a little more about yourself too. Sure. There are low budgets, back-rooms, extravaganzas (Misty Beethoven), cult classics (Deep Throat), kinky films (Teenage Twins), and meaningful drama (Andy Warhol's BAD)—everything you want to see or not see from '101 positions' to incest to urologia—and no, we're not going to define that. It's just clips, none of the movie, hi how are you? oh yeah? well just watch, then ZIP! Into the bed. The film is funny, go ready to laugh. The claims of 'the greatest'—the most this, the most that for these $50 made-in-a-garage specials becomes rather amusing. Porn fans should be pleased.

'80 Classified BUSINESS BIOGRAPHY

THE LISTENING EAR

547 1/2 E. Grand River
337-1717

We were the first crisis center in Michigan and one of the first four in the nation. All directors, coordinators and staff are volunteer except secretary and maintenance persons. We're open 24 hours a day, seven days a week, and have been since we began. We provide free, anonymous and confidential phone and walk-in service. We also provide the only rape-counseling and advocacy in the tri-county area. We provide referrals when appropriate, and also have a speakers' service. The Listening Ear is licensed by the Michigan Department of Public Health, Office of Substance Abuse Services.

Cook-Herriman VW, Inc.

6135 W. Saginaw

This business, founded in 1969 by Glenn Herriman, began with a single franchise - Volkswagen. The addition of a luxury car was next with Volvo. Soon after Volvo, business was expanded with the addition of a body shop. The Mazda franchise and Budget Lease followed. Don Cook was made a partner and the name changed from Glenn Herriman to Cook - Herriman.

BUSINESS BIOGRAPHY

Eight years ago the State News Classified Dept. created the Business Biography. It has enabled local businesses to tell our readers about their past histories and what makes them special to the MSU community.

Leon G Jewelry

Your Campus Jewelers

Mr. Gudelsky purchased the East Lansing Color Center, a paint store on May 13th, 1965. It was converted into the jewelry operation over the next year. It has been successful in dealing with the students as well as the Greater Lansing adult market, carrying fine quality jewelry and gifts.

Pro Comp

It was August of 1979 when the doors of ProComp opened for business. Two very creative ladies, Diana and Harriett, had decided to make use of their graphic arts talent and serve their community at the same time. Specializing in anything typeset from resumes to posters to tickets, they can be found at Smithsonian Place Suite 1, 610 Abbott, East Lansing. Or phone 332-8447. They're open from 9 to 4:30 weekdays.

HOBIE'S RESTAURANTS

Began in 1968 by Ernie St. Pierre (HRI '71) on Trowbridge Rd. and has grown into 4 Restaurants in the Lansing Area. A variety of Unique sandwiches, hearty soups, salads and specialty desserts have been featured at all of these restaurants. In E. Lansing, Hobie's and The Olde World have provided a relaxed and unique meeting place within the East Lansing and University community. Both Restaurants were among the first to promote the talents of local musicians and student artists and continue to feature live entertainment. Over the years the management of Hobie's and The Olde World developed primarily from MSU grads and students who have shared in the growth and spirit of these restaurants.

UNIFORM CITY

Frondor Mall

Being part of this rapidly growing chain known as Uniform World in other states, our primary goal is to satisfy our customers and sell only the highest quality in uniforms and accessories. We offer a substantial discount to students and give special attention and consideration to group orders. We are open 7 days a week and 5 nights until 8:30 p.m. for your convenience. Stop in and tell us what you need.

Present management - Nancy Falk

Since the opening of PanTree Restaurant in Fall of 1976, they have doubled their sales volume. In 1979 alone, they served 370,000 meals. PanTree has become one of Institution Magazine's top 300 independent restaurants in the United States.

Besides the East Lansing location, owners Paul Kacer and Jim Wade have interest in the PanTree Restaurant in San Bernadino, CA. This spring a PanTree will open in Ann Arbor on Liberty St., using the same menu used in East Lansing.

The PanTree has enjoyed serving the residents and students of the Lansing area, and will continue their fine service with pleasure.

The PanTree is a restaurant on Abbott Road open 24 hours

VILLAGE HAIR SHOPPE

4663 Ardmore, Okemos
349-0430

The Village Hair Shoppe was first established in the lower level of the Shoemsmith Bldg. on Albert St. in East Lansing as a small 6 stylist salon. Open 3 years later at the present address in Okemos. In 1973 an addition was added on to make more personal services for our clients. As of September 1979 we became an Orlane Institute. We are now a full service salon featuring personalized hair styling, manicuring, nail wrapping, pedicures and hair removal (waxing). European facials are given by our Estheticians with a full line of retail, including Lancome and Orlane make-up from Paris. Our staff at the present time is 35 cooperative individuals to serve all your needs from head to toe.

Founded by—Douglas and Sharon Weaver.
Current manager—Ron Hall
(with establishment 7 years.)

The State News first started publication on March 10, 1909. The paper was at first called the Meloced, and was apparently started after a group of students felt Lansing journalists had maligned MAC students. The name was changed to the State News a few years later.

No state tax dollars or university funds are used to operate the newspaper. A dollar and a half per student subscription plus advertising pays the newspaper's way. Prior to 1961, the paper had received a $45,000 per year subsidy from the university. That spring the state legislature cut University appropriations by $1 million, and the State News subsidy was cut from the University budget.

Left with a debt of $32,000, the State News had to support itself or die. At that time Louis Berman, the owner of a weekly newspaper took over as general manager. Through careful management and realistic advertising sales the State News erased its debt and substantially raised its balance. The State News was incorporated by the University. It is managed by a general manager and is governed by a board of directors which consists of 2 professional newspapermen, 2 MSU faculty members and 4 MSU students. Mr. Berman retired in 1972, and the present general manager is Gerald H. Coy, a professional newspaperman from New Jersey.

The State News, during its time of publication has seven times received the Pacemaker Award for excellence as a college newspaper. There are eleven full-time staff members and approximately 190 students employed by the State News.
