Truck crash kills Westland man

A Westland man was killed Saturday and . another man was critically injured south of East Lansing when the truck they were riding in swerved, flipped on its side and burst into flames, said the Ingham County Sheriff Department.

Kent Plymale, 24, of 32239 Hillsdale Court, Westland, was pronounced dead at the scene, police said.

A passenger, Henry P. Grabiec, 19, of the same address, was taken to Sparrow Hospital and then transferred to the burn unit of University Hospital in Ann Arbor, where he was listed in critical condition Sunday afternoon, a hospital spokesperson

The men were hauling drywall sheets westbound on I-96 east of the M-127 Lansing exit, police said, when the accident exit Saturday. The driver was killed and the passenger remains in critical condition.

Bruce Scutt, a Lansing truck driver who witnessed the accident, said the truck swerved to the left and then back to the right, knocking the reflectors on the shoulder of the highway.

Scutt said the truck then flipped on its side and slid, bursting into flames before it stopped. He estimated the truck was traveling about 60 miles per hour.

"He looked like he might bring it out of the swerve, but he couldn't," he said.

Scutt said he gave his car fire extinguisher to another man who emptied it on the fire. A Consumers Power employee who also stopped at the scene used a larger extinguisher from his truck, Scutt said, but the efforts were in vain.

"The flames were too high and too much,"

"It made me sick. I saw him, (Plymale), and there was nothing I could do."

National Guard storms prison; hostages freed, 27 inmates dead

By PAUL STEVENS Associated Press Writer

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — The National Guard and a police SWAT team recaptured the burning New Mexico State Prison on Sunday to free all the remaining hostages and end a 36-hour bloodbath that left at least 27 inmates dead and 50 persons hospitalized.

State Criminal Justice Secretary Adolph Saenz said the death toll had reached 27 "not counting the gymnasium," which had been burning for more than 12 hours.

"The violence was incredible," Saenz said. One of the prisoners was beheaded.

There were earlier reports that the gym had served as a funeral parlor for a large number of prisoners, but Deputy Warden Robert Montoya said that was an unconfirmed rumor.

A CORRECTIONS OFFICER, Fred Herrera, said some of the dead inmates had been mutilated, making it difficult to identify

"Some of these guys' faces are totally gone," he said. "There's nothing to identify. Asked whether he was talking about disfigurement from fire or rumored mutilation, he said, "It's from the prisoners."

Gov. Bruce King said he agreed with the plan to send in the troops despite threats that the hostages would be killed.

Without firing a shot, about 100 members of the Guard and police officers entered the grounds at 1:45 p.m. MST (3:45 p.m. East Lansing time). When a group of about 25 defiant inmates holed up in the administration building began shouting at the officers, the Guardsmembers fixed their bayonets. "Shoot us," one of the convicts yelled. "We've got no guns."

A short time later, Corrections Commission Chairperson Bud Richards announced, "We're in control right now.

"NOT A SHOT has been fired." Corrections officers said the last three of the 15 prison employees originally taken hostage were found safe. Two guards were found in a gas chamber which is no longer used and a medical technician was found hiding in a vault. "We are totally under control and we have all the hostages," King said. "We are saddened by the number of prisoners that we did lose - some to smoke and some to other things." The governor said the death count may go a little higher, but "not to any of the numbers we have heard."

Montoya dismissed as "rumor" a report that some bodies had been stacked up in the prison gym and burned. He said many of the inmates were "hysterical when they came King said he agreed to try force because, "We just felt we reached that point.

"WE HAVE THE hostages released or we know where they are," he said.

The governor said fire trucks also were sent to the smouldering compound where fires torched by inmates caused an estimated $10 million in damage.

In the Attica, N.Y. riot, inmates took over part of the prison and held it for four days until state police stormed the prison. Forty-three men died during the uprising -39 in the final assault. Almost 10 years later, court cases are still pending in connection with the deaths.

King, who talked with inmates, called in the National Guard and SWAT teams to put the prison under siege after inmates broke into the prison control room and rioting broke out.

Among guards released was Capt. Greg Roybal, the man the convicts had warned would be the first to die if police entered the gates. Roybal was listed in stable condition at a hospital.

STATE PRISON WARDEN Jerry Griffin confirmed seven inmates had died in the disturbance, but he wouldn't guess how many bodies would eventually be found.

Two-way radio conversations between inmates and information gathered by television reporter John Andrews of KGGM-TV. Albuquerque, indicated as many as 20 might be dead. The warden said earlier that some of the inmates who died had been "beaten up pretty badly." Other officials speculated some may have died from smoke inhalation when parts of the prison were put to the

THE GOVERNOR AND State Police Chief Martin Vigil said they believed some of the prisoners had been murdered.

Congress members under FBI inquiry

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - FBI Director William Webster and top Justice Department lawyers closely monitored the bureau's largest political corruption investigation to avert charges of entrapment as the probe implicated eight members of Congress, sources said.

Sources said the FBI never was the first to suggest bribes to the public figures and that videotape evidence will show there was no entrapment.

Code-named Operation Abscam, the investigation used undercover FBI men posing as representatives of an Arab sheik offering bribes to win a casino gambling license and other favors.

At least 20 public officials and 10 lawyers and business executives were implicated over 14 months, a source familiar with the investigation said.

THE SOURCE, WHO asked not to be identified, said that FBI agents paid out almost $500,000 in cash to the officials, although fewer than 10 of them took money. "Some arranged meetings or did other favors," the source said.

In addition to state and local officials in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, the source said those who became subjects of the probe were: U.S. Sen. Harrison A. Williams, Jr., D-N.J., and U.S. Reps. John M. Murphy, D-N.Y.; Frank Thompson, Jr., D-N.J.; Michael O. Myers, D-Pa.; Raymond F. Lederer, D-Pa.; John W. Jenrette, D-S.C.; John P. Murtha, D-Pa.; and Richard Kelly, R-Fla. "My feelings are, having read the newspapers, that I would be very wise to engage counsel, which I've done," Williams said Sunday.

Those contacted denied any wrongdoing. Sources said that Webster and Assistant Attorney General Philip Heymann watched closely to avoid entrapment, which is a frequent risk in undercover investigations and constitutes a defense against convic-

But one source said, "The FBI undercover men never were the first to suggest bribes to the subjects. Originally, they weren't even investigating political corruption, but running a phony fencing operation for stolen art, stocks and bonds. Informants and lawyers who came to them brought in officials seeking bribes."

As another protection against entrapment, the FBI videotaped some of the ostensible bribery transactions, including some in an expensive house in the fashionable Georgetown section of Washington. "When the videotapes are shown, it'll prove there wasn't entrapment," said one source.

Iran agrees to commission

By The Associated Press

Iran has agreed to set up an international commission that will consider alleged crimes of the deposed shah and "will be effective in solving the hostage crisis," a Foreign Ministry spokesperson said Sunday.

Establishment of the commission, proposed by U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim, has been approved by Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini as well as the ruling Revolutionary Council, said the Foreign Ministry spokesperson Nassirosadat

A spokesperson for the militants, reached by telephone at the embassy, said he was aware of the council's decision, announced Saturday night, but declined immediate comment. A statement might be issued later, the spokesperson for the militants said. Sunday was the 92nd day of captivity for approximately 50 Americans held by Islamic militants at the U.S. Embassy since it was seized Nov. 4. Three other U.S. diplomats have been held since then under virtual house arrest at the Foreign Ministry.

THE FOREIGN MINISTRY spokesperson did not say when the commission would come to Tehran nor when hearings would begin. Its members would be selected by Waldheim and would include Iranian and foreign representatives, Salami said.

He said it would be Waldheim's decision whether to include U.S. representatives among the group. He refused to confirm or deny reports that Waldheim soon would visit Iran. Added the Foreign Ministry spokesperson: "The international commission will be effective in solving the hostage crisis." News of the commission came late Saturday following a lengthy meeting of Iran's ruling Revolutionary Council. After the session, council spokesperson Hassan Habibi said "the international investigation commission will consider the shah's crimes, his violation of human rights and the return of his wealth to Iran."

The militants announced Saturday they had invited a special American delegation to Tehran this week to hear Iran's grievances against the shah and the U.S. government. The State Department in Washington said it knew nothing of such a trip.

IN GENEVA, SWITZERLAND, Iran's Ambassador to the United Nations, Mansour Farhang, described the delegation as a "socio-political" group of about 50 Americans. Their trip was "strictly private," he said, adding they were not connected with Farhang said he had no knowledge of a report in a British newspaper that the Americans might be handed over to a third party in Tehran. "I do not know where such a rumor originated," he said, adding that he was in Geneva only to attend a U.N. Human Rights Commission meeting.

Writing in London's Sunday Times, Egyptian journalist Muhammed Heikal said that after the commission arrives in Iran, the hostages would be "kept in Tehran in the custody of a third party. The United States would have access to them and be responsible for their health and welfare."

Waldheim has spoken of a "package solution" to the hostage standoff that would involve releasing the Americans to a third party in Iran, such as the International Red Cross, while an international commission investigated allegations against the

THE MILITANTS, MEANWHILE, released what they said was a transcript of a telephone conversation between one of the hostages, Elizabeth Ann Swift, and her mother in the United States. # Student rep dismissed for not paying tax

By MIKE CHAUDHURI State News Staff Writer

Henry Sosa, College of Arts and Letters representative, was dismissed Thursday because he failed to pay the ASMSU tax for winter term.

The repsentative to the Student Board was dismissed because he is no longer a member of ASMSU, Bruce Studer, chairperson of the student board said.

The ASMSU constitution states that "Every officer of . . . ASMSU . . . must be a member of ASMSU."

SOSA, WHO IS not enrolled as a student this term, did not pay his tax until the day after Studer decided to remove him.

"I made a decision - the only decision open to me," Studer said.

'All board members are responsible for the constitution," he said. Sosa said Studer had "purely personal" reasons for removing him from the board.

Sosa said Studer might have wanted to remove him from the board because of questions Sosa had raised about Studer's actions on the space allocations and personnel committee - actions which Sosa said may have been biased.

STUDER SAID PERSONAL differences between he and Sosa had nothing to do with his decision. "I would dismiss anybody" for the same

"I could just kick myself for giving anybody the opportunity to do this to me, he said.

Rep. Charles E. Bennett, D-Fla., chairperson of the House ethics committee, said Sunday the panel will expand an investigation already under way to cover the FBI allega-

"We've already had a continuing investigation of one or more of those people going on for months," Bennett said.

"The accusations that were made were similar to those investigated by the FBI, but the FBI was not involved (in the committee's work)," he said. Bennett declined to give any details of his panel's investigation.

The FBI investigation was conducted in five cities and several points in between, according to several sources. The cities were Washington, New York, Philadelphia, Miami, and Neward, N.J.

One source familiar with the investigation gave this account

The FBI did not begin the operation as a political corruption investigation. Its New York office proposed nearly two years ago a complicated undercover "sting" probe in which agents posed as fences willing to buy stolen art and financial instruments.

The fencing operation went undercover in the summer of 1978. In order to give it legitimacy in the eyes of criminals, the FBI agents asked an informant for a favor.

TO THE SURPRISE of the FBI, the informant volunteered the names of lawyers, local officials and congressmembers who might help. This turned the probe toward political corruption in November 1978.

As more and more figures were lured by the bait of cash bribes, the probe "grew like Topsy" during 1979, eventually involving seven undercover FBI agents and 100 other agents backing them up.

The FBI and others helping them posed as business executives and even as Arabs representing a wealthy sheik who wanted a gambling license in Atlantic City and assurance he could live in this country permanently if he fell into disfavor in his homeland.

One agent operated out of the Georgetown house where a number of the transactions were videotaped.

One source said the undercover political corruption side of the inquiry was closed now, but that the fencing operation, which already has led to one criminal charge, might con-

Aid to Pakistan 'only the beginning'

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP)

U.S. national security advisor Zbigniew Brzezinski said Sunday the proposed $400 million ir U.S. economic and military aid to Pakistan is "only the beginning of the United States response to the threat posed" by Soviet troops in Afghanistan.

The United States is committed to safeguarding Pakistan in terms of the 1959 (mutual security) agreement against the (Soviet) danger from the north," he said.

After two days of talks here with Pakistan President Zia ul-Haq, Brzezinski told reporters "Pakistan faces a serious threat" from the Soviet Brzezinski did not indicate if the two sides had reached agreement on the size of the U.S. aid package to Pakistan.

Last week, Zia called the $400 million in military and economic aid "peanuts." Pakistan and the United States have had strained relations in recent years over a cutoff in U.S. military supplies and American criticism of Islamabad's nuclear ambitions.

Brzezinski said while the United States is willing to provide a sizable amount of aid to Pakistan, "We hope that other countries also will indicate what they wish to contribute."

Congressional action on the aid was being delayed about a week, he said, while Washington consults with other nations in the region - apparently a reference to Indian concern over the prospect of a heavily armed Pakistan, its traditional foe. India and Pakistan have fought three wars in the last 33

Brzezinski is scheduled to leave Monday for Saudi Arabia. Zia's foreign affairs advisor, Agha Shahi, read a statement from the delegations, saying: "The two nations agreed that the Soviet armed intervention in Afghanistan is a flagrant violation of international covenants and norms, and a serious threat to the peace and security of Pakistan, the region, and the Earlier Sunday, Brzezinski visited a refugee camp inside Pakistan and told hundreds of cheering Afghans: "You will prevail . . . because your cause is right. God is on your side."

"History bears testimony that no one has ever crushed the brave Afghan people. Remember, you are not alone," he told the refugees, who responded with slogans of welcome and chants of "Allah-oakbar" - God is great.

Brzezinski spoke at Sadda, 80 miles southwest of Peshawar. Sadda is a strategic post on the 800-mile Afghan-Pakistan

Porno and sexual assault: ls there a connection?

By MARK FELLOWS State News Staff Writer

Although a correlation between pornography and sexual assault has long been suspected by some law enforcement officials and psychologists, no clear relationship has ever been empirically proven. The President's Commission on Obscenity and Pornography reported in 1970 that studies dealing with the effects of pornography had only been conducted in recent years, so any conclusions that are drawn may be tenuous. The commission concluded "... extensive empirical investigation, both by the commission and by others, provides no evidence

Because of that finding the commission recommended repealing legislation pro-that exposure to or use of explicit sexual hibiting sale, exhibition or distribution of sexual materials to consenting adults.

TEN YEARS LATER, opinions are still divided among police and psychologists who deal with sexual assault.

Even if a positive causal correlation can't be found linking pornography to sexual assault, porno movies should be moved off campus, according to some Department of Public Safety officers.

DPS Capt. Ferman Badgley said the porno movies, shown in Wells Hall by Beal Films, may draw potential attackers to causation of social or individual harms such Badgley recalled a series of sexual assaults on campus in the early 1970s, when a suspect confessed to several assaults, and said he was "turned on" by "Deep Throat" when it was shown in Lansing.

"Porno," Bagley said, "attracts persons who are not a desirable part of the materials play a significant role in the community.'

> BADGLEY SAID HIS opinion was reinforced by two sexual assaults that occurred last fall term. Both occurred within 20 minutes after the porno movies in Wells Hall ended, he said, and both happened in that immediate area.

> State Police Lt. Darrell Pope asserts that there is a positive relationship between pornography and sexual assault. Pope supervises the computerized records of 35,000 sexual assault case histories dating to 1956.

State police records, he says, combine psychology and statistics to help Michigan police find the identity or at least the psychological profile of sex criminals.

According to Pope, 41 percent of all sex criminals, "from indecent exposure to lust murder," used pornography during or neat the time of their crimes. "Most police investigators in the U.S. and at least two prison psychologists think that's shooting low," he said. "PORNO MAY BE A catalyst that pushes them over the edge," he said. "I haven't found one sadistic killer that wasn't heavily into porno," he said. Although many psychologists agree that there may be a correlation between pornography and sex crimes, opinion is would reduce the assault problem.

John Prelesnik, superintendent of the Reception Diagnostic Center at Jackson State Prison, doubts if banning porno movies will solve the problem.

"They would go out and get (porno) anyway," he said.

PRELESNIK SAID THAT in his dealings with sex criminals, pornography was not the reason they came to a college campus. Rather, he said, they were attracted by the concentration of women and an idea of looser sexual mores on

He added that of the five basic types of sex offenders, only the sado-masochistic types were aroused by pornography, and they account for only about 10 percent of all offenders.

However, he said, this type of sex offender is more often caught by police because he is often illogical and careless about how he commits crimes. For that reason, police think pornography causes more sexual assaults than it probably does, he said.

"We are not a society that has as part of its evolution an uninhibited sexual life," said Donald Rossi, Michigan State Police staff psychologist and head of the behavioral science division of the state

"Rape is an expression of a person who is extremely frustrated and hostile," he said.

"IF PORNO IS banned, it may solve immediate practical ends," he said, "but I wouldn't be surprised if sexual assaults increased. It may just frustrate them Rossie said he is more concerned about how to define pornography, because porno "is in the eye of the beholder." Pornography should be defined by what it is used for, he added, rather than what it looks like.

Steven Sunshine, who runs Beal Films. said he sees the problem as a matter of definition and censorship.

"There may be some social problems with porno," he said, "but there are definite problems connect with censorship."

"It's a chicken or the egg question," he continued, "Does porno cause sex crimes or divided on whether banning pornography do a lot of criminals just use it?"

Women unite against pornography

By LESA DOLL

State News Staff Writer

The magazine covers proclaim "Sorority Slavegirls," "Beauties in Lingerie Bondage"

A melange of bodies bombard patrons and magazine titles reach out to seduce buyers. Titles differ, but the themes remain constant at many of the adult bookstores in the Lansing area. Depictions of women in bondage, rape, torture and murder situations, including exploitation of lesbians, reappear consistently.

Many women have united against pornography, which is "anti-female propaganda," according to Susan Brownmiller, a leading feminist activist in the nation.

A NATIONAL ORGANIZATION, Women Against Pornography, has united women concerned with the issue. The objective of the group is to rewrite Clause 3 of the federal obscenity law, which states that if an article is to be considered obscene, it must "appeal to prurient interest." Pornography opponents believe the clause should include the phrase "images that promote or encourage violence against women." Federal laws have been vague on the issue and much of the problem has been left up to the discretion of individual communities. Proponents of the right to publish pornography insist restrictions on obscenity are in violation of the first amendment. Ruelaine Stokes, an MSU graduate who is doing research "That's the traditional male argument," she said. "When doing something involves violating the freedom of other people, that's exploitation. With pornography, exploitation

"PORNOGRAPHY INHERENTLY, IN and of itself, is an attack on a woman's freedom and dignity," she added. "In addition, it breeds a culture in which women are seen as not

Although no study has established a direct link between pornography and violence against women, many believe it sets the climate for these actions.

"When all this stuff gets drummed into people's minds, it starts to seem real," Stokes

"I think it (the violence in pornography) is in part a reflection of this society's attitude about women," said Kate Young, a staff person for the Council Against Domestic Assault in Lansing. "At the same time, young men just learning about sex through pornography are getting a real unhealthy and warped picture of sex."

Mike, an MSU sophomore, recently had his first exposure to hardcore pornography when some of his friends gave him several pornographic magazines. Although he said they didn't arouse him, he added that they had that effect on some of his friends.

WAS THE PORNOGRAPHY harmful? Did it instigate thoughts of rape and violence? "Sure, I've had those thoughts," he said. "If a guy reads enough of those magazines, he thinks a woman should be like that and that it should all be physical.'

Stokes said a lesser effect of pornography is that it creates an unreal illusion of sexuality.

"It offers a concept of sexuality that is plastic and unreal," she said. "They are substituting the mythology of sex for real sex. As a result, people have trouble achieving She said there is a difference between erotica, such as Playboy magazine, and hardcore pornography. Although erotica still creates false images, she said, it is not inherently violent or destructive. Stokes said men will never end pornography, because they are "conditioned to defend it" in the name of defending sexual freedom. She said women need to unite to stop pornography, and added that no group exists in the Lansing area which deals specifically with the problem of pornography and its relationship to violence against women.

Mix-up brings jazz band to 'canceled' concert | Turner proposes

By MIKE CHAUDHURI

State News Staff Writer A group of 15 jazz musicians arrived in East Lansing Friday to give two MSU concerts, which they thought had been arranged through Showcasejazz.

Two members of the band went to Erickson Kiva, where they expected to find an electric piano set up. What they found, however, was that nobody in East Lansing was expecting the band. "I was totally shocked, of course," said Scott Hanson, co-director of Showcasejazz.

when he realized that the band had shown been canceled. Hanson said Showcasejazz felt it would not have enough time to publicize the concerts, since they were still not definitely scheduled only a week before the shows were supposed to occur. The band was to earn $2,000 for the two concerts, according to the verbal agreement they had made with Showcasejazz, Sun Ra said.

"There was never a contract made," said Ron Stump, assistant director for student affairs.

"We could not in good conscience give them any money," he said. Sun Ra said that he frequently does not use contracts, especially in Europe.

"You don't need one with me," he said. "I got used to the idea that people keep their word."

John Betagole, also a co-director of Showcasejazz, said he was responsible for making the arrangements with the band, and that the concerts were never definitely scheduled.

conversation, Betagole said, so he assumed that Sun Ra would not be able to do the concerts in East Lansing.

Thompson said Friday the last time he and Betagole talked "was when we said we'd do the gig."

judicial changes State News Staff Writer

Moses Turner, vice president for student affairs and services, said his office should continue to be the final appellate authority in the campus judicial system.

Turner proposed several changes in the judicial system at Friday's meeting of the University Committee on Student Affairs (UCSA), which is reviewing the proposed Student Rights and Responsibilities document.

The document is a compilation of the Academic Freedom Report, the Graduate Rights and Responsibilities document and the medical students' rights document. Under the proposal, the vice president could ask a judiciary to reconsider a decision, but would not have final appellate authority (authority to change a decision).

UNDER THE CURRENT system, cases from the Student Faculty Judiciary may be appealed to the vice president, who has final appellate authority. Frank Blatt, professor of physics, said he was troubled by Turner's proposal.

"There's no appeal (under Turner's proposal) if the vice president modifies a decision," Turner, however, said he believes the vice president needs to have some prerogative. "I don't see that as a crucial point," Turner said. "I don't think what we're suggesting is all that unreasonable.' Turner asked the committee what would happen if a student's case was reconsidered by the Student-Faculty Judiciary at the request of the vice president, and the student was still not satisfied.

"IN THE PROCESS there's a final decision somewhere," he said. "In any system there

Turner's plan also calls for elimination of the Residence Halls Association Judiciary, replacing it with individual residence hall complex judiciaries. The major governing groups 8 the Interfraternity Council, the Panhellenic Council, the National PanHellenic Council and the Intercooperative Council - would retain separate judiciaries under Turner's plan. Steve Politowicz, Student Media Appropriations Board chairperson, objected to the proposal, saying RHAJ should be kept and hall judiciaries eliminated. "I was expecting a recommendation eliminating residence hall judiciaries," Politowicz said. "Have RHAJ do it all." TURNER SAID THERE would be too much responsibility for RHAJ to handle, and thus advocates hall complex judiciaries. Another change Turner proposes is that all cases be brought to a staff member in the student affairs office, instead of officials within living units or major governing groups. Ruth Renaud, director of judiciaries, said that such a system would centralize actions. Dorothy Arata, assistant provost for undergraduate education, said the provost's office has several concerns about the student rights document. One of these concerns is that the Code of Teaching Responsibility and the Student Instructional Rating System are included in the proposed document.

SHE SAID THESE did not belong there because Academic Council, rather than UCSA, is responsible for these documents.

"Including it (the code) opens it to amendment through a process which does not include UCAP (the University Committee on Academic Policy, which originally approved the code)," she said.

"I can see all kinds of problems arising because of the jurisdiction," she added. Blatt said such problems will arise whenever students and faculty interact.

definitive steps to bring the state's abortion clinics into compliance with state laws. An emergency ruling from the attorney general has effectively shut a long-standing loophole which allowed clinics to operate without licenses. Armed with that new parcel of legal clout, state authorities have been quick to crack down on those clinics — among them the Okemos branch of the Women's Counseling Center — which have hesitated to comply with state regulation.

In hindsight, the events of the past few years may well serve as a reminder of the ingenuity of unethical businesspersons when the business at hand is skirting the law. In this case, the law was never meant to imply that abortion facilities were exempt from state regulation; the substance of the law, however, was somehow distorted by the businesses themselves, the end result being that an abortion facility could call itself a "doctor's office" and operate independently of state scrutiny.

The human costs of such manipulation of the law are still being paid. From the very day the U.S. Supreme Court legalized abortion in 1972, unlicensed facilities have often downplayed the physical and Investigations, including a State News probe of operations at two local abortion clinics including the Women's Counseling Center, have revealed a number of abuses. Taken together, these abuses constitute a substantial threat to the wellbeing of women who have a right to conduct their lives without fear of medical malfeasance.

> The key to maintenance of standards is periodic inspection by the state, and the key to inspection is licensing. Now that loopholes in the law have been closed, the state has the necessary ammunition to force those heretofore unlicensed facilities into compliance. At this point, we can only hope that it moves with all available haste.

> Judging by the threats of Attorney General Frank Kelley to issue temporary injunctions to cease operations at the offending clinics, the state is willing to use its full powers to see that the letter of the law is enforced. It is unfortunate that state officials should be forced to resort to such tactics in order to see that the most basic of human rights are upheld. Nonetheless, Kelley's action is commendable, and it should serve to grant women the basic right to carry out their lives in safety.

Civil rights put to the test

No one likes to beat a dead horse, but there are a few points that still need to be raised concerning the Delta Tau Delta-Ben Lowery and Dan Jones dance marathon

It is obvious (to me at least — where have all the "liberals" gone?) this is a clear-cut case of discrimination on the basis of sexual preference. Jones and Lowery have not been allowed to register for the multiple sclerosis marathon solely because they are two men who wish to dance with each other.

Delta Tau Delta marathon chairperson ting of two men instead of the "normal" one man and one women, deprive the marathon of its "neutrality," whatever that is?

Delta Tau Delta members created this issue with their own near-sightedness and bigotry when they initially refused registration to Jones and Lowery. Had they just registered the couple and let them dance like anybody else, this whole issue would never have come to the public eye. It is not Jones and Lowery who created the issue, as many moralistic do-gooders have

Delta Tau Delta clearly - and knowingly, I think — caused this controversy.

Many have asked or demanded that the two explain and justify their motives for entering the contest. This request in itself is discriminatory. Two "straight" people who wish to dance together are not required to justify their motives and explain themselves.

The dance marathon is a charitable event. If two people wish to put in their time and energy to help a charitable cause, it hardly seems fair that they are scrutinized to determine whether they have proper altruistic motives.

The issue presented here seems strikingly similar to that of the Blacks at the lunch counters in Montgomery, Ala. during the early 60s. I'm sure the White owners would have said the same thing that Delta Tau Delta is saying - they're not personally against Blacks, (or gays, as the case may be), but it just wouldn't do to offend their White customers (or sponsors, shall we say?)

This is clearly a case of civil rights which have been violated. If Delta Tau Delta is patted on the back and allowed to smooth this one over, what's next? Now we can't allow Blacks to dance because it would offend some of the elderly White sponsors in the community? Come on, folks. The fraternity is trying to cloud the basic issue with a smokescreen of sentimentality. basing their violation of Jones' and Lowery's rights on the argument that there's no place for controvery in a charitable event.

A final note on the controvery - Delta Tau Delta blew it when President Steve Rennie stated, as another feeble excuse for denying Jones and Lowery equal access to the dance, that two men would have more stamina, and therefore a physical advantage over a man and woman couple. This statement, clearly ignorant and blatantly sexist, does not warrant intelligent response.

The issue at hand here is not what the sponsors will think if gays are allowed to dance together, nor is it the possible though seemingly unlikely - effect allowing Lowery and Jones to dance together will have on potential donors. This is a plain and simple case of discrimination on the basis of sexual preference and a violation of civil rights. Don't let them fool

VIEWPOINT: MOSCOW GAMES

Boycott might serve as most effective response

It is indeed perplexing to witness the tunnel-vision of those who advocate our participation in the Moscow Olympic Games in light of the Soviet aggression in Afghanistan and its implications. According to these individuals, this sporting event supersedes any international attempt to protest the ruthless suppression of a nation of 20 million individuals.

While paying lip service to the Russian perfidy, opponents to a boycott babble that the games should not be politicized. But is there anyone who honestly thinks the Soviets perceive these games as anything other than an opportunity to harvest a propaganda bonanza? A look at some obvious facts should release the naive from this nation. Long ago the eastern bloc countries perverted the definition of "amateur" with their massive state-subsidized sporting industries. And Russia is busily conducting the type of activity that all repressive regimes indulge in when guests come to town. Dissidents (most to inaccessible exiles so that no words of discontent can spoil the festive occasion. Even communist handbooks are touting the games as a legitimate recognition of the Soviet state; an ascent into the realm of worldwide acceptance.

Contrary to the opinion of those who wish boycott, a refusal to participate in Moscow is quite possibly the most potent non-military reprisal that President Carter has in his repertoire of options.

A boycott would cost the Soviets a hefty chunk of hard currency. It would reflect the moral and spiritual isolation that such hegemony entitles them. A boycott would be a profound embarrassment that couldn't be easily explained to Russia's own people. And most important of all, it would deny the Russians a world podium from which they could extoll the virtues of their society. We will be subjected to their bombast anyway; we need not abet their cause by providing the forum from which they spew their bilge.

I find it difficult to go into paroxysms of anguish for the athletes while Afghans are being slaughtered by the Russian juggernaut. And when I hear such statements as those voiced by Olympic aspirant Mike Shine ("Damn right, I'm selfish. The United States is made up of a lot of No. 1s that look for their plight falls to zero. I also won't cry any crocodile tears over NBC's potential loss in the Neilsen ratings, considering the nadir they were willing to reach to obtain the television concessions. ## Some would be willing to fight

There is at least one alternative to the reinstatement of registration and the draft, and I really wish people would consider it for a moment.

Obviously the U.S. Armed Forces need to make military service more attractive to civilians. The military should substantially increase wages and benefits for prospective enlisted personnel. There is definitely a sector of today's society that would be satisfied to serve in a mercenary army or make it a career. An adequate number of people is willing to risk its life daily as police officers and firefighters, and these people are paid a wage comparable to that of the average college graduate.

I suggest taking the estimated $50 million a year needed for reinstating and continuing registration and funneling it back into the military salary budget. This way the military could attain the number of persons needed (both active and reserves waiting for open military positions) for a large and powerful standing army. And for these "possible wars" over questionable "vital interests," the United States could use this mercenary army. The remainder of our defense would be left up to the moral judgment of the U.S. population. We would each have to make the decision as to whether or not we feel our country is being threatened. I believe the American people would proudly rise without hesitation to defend our country under justifiable situations - I truly have faith in "the

A conflict of students' interests?

It seems that at a time when world situations demand unified interest in our country, many students and organizations are reacting too quickly and irresponsibly. Our government's policies should be reviewed and questioned. The point is that criticisms and alternatives should be advocated in a constructive way in support of the best interests of the United States and what it stands for. It is useless and futile to burn the American flag, as was done at a

Before we, as students, take a stand on an ssue, it seems logical to know all the facts and implications of proposed government policy and of possible alternatives. It is not enough to oppose a position and not have a viable alternative to the problems.

I am disappointed to see PIRGIM and other student-supported organizations using student money to advocate their own personal stance on the issues. The issues should be investigated and publicly debated, then conclusions maturely drawn. PIRGIM should be informational but not instrumental in deciding stands on issues. Those who disagree with the current handling of the issues by PIRGIM and other groups should contact them and express

Physicist backs strong defense

NEW YORK (AP) — Edward Teller, known as the father of the hydrogen bomb, says the Soviet Union would win a nuclear exchange with the United States and the United States would be destroyed.

Teller, in an interview published in Forbes magazine's Feb. 18 issue, said he believes the United States is no longer a match for the Soviet Union in advanced technology, particularly lasers.

"If we went into a nuclear war today there is practically no question that the Russians would win that war and the United States would cease to exist,"

Teller, who has been an advocate of a strong nuclear weapons system as a deterrent to nuclear war, said American scientists and engineers are not particularly eager to work on defense projects.

"I think their ethical values are confused," the 72year-old Teller said. "War is terrible and we want to avoid it. But how do you avoid war? By throwing away arms or having strong arms in the hands of those who want to maintain peace?"

Americans favor defending Gulf

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans say they are willing to send U.S. troops to the Persian Gulf if the Soviets invade that region, the Associated Press-NBC News poll shows.

Sixty-four percent of those questioned Tuesday and Wednesday said they favor sending troops "if the Soviets invade the Persian Gulf, where most of our imported oil comes from."

Twenty-six percent said they oppose such a use of U.S. troops and 10 percent of the 1,600 adults interviewed nationwide by telephone were not sure.

Only a slightly larger percentage — 67 percent favored U.S. troops' fighting off a Soviet attack on Western Europe. U.S. defense of Western Europe has, of course, been a cornerstone of American policy for Twenty-two percent oppose fighting for Western Europe and 11 percent were not sure.

This finding is an increase from that of a late 1978 Gallup Poll, when 54 percent said they would back U.S. troops fighting for Western Europe.

In line with this willingness to use military force is another rise in support for increased defense spending — to yet another high for the decade.

Sixty-nine percent favor a bigger Pentagon budget, 19 percent favor no change and 5 percent want decreases. Seven percent were not sure.

In the AP-NBC News poll taken Jan. 17 and 18, 63 percent favored increases, 21 percent favored the status quo and 8 percent wanted lower military spending. That 63 percent was the highest in a decade — until this latest poll.

Senate considers defense needs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd says "it could well be" that the Senate will approve an increase in defense spending even even greater than that proposed by President Carter.

Byrd, interviewed in U.S. News & World Report, said that even before the crises in Iran and Afghanistan, Congress "was already concerned about the necessity for improving our conventional capabilities, nuclear forces in Europe and maintaining an essential equivalence in strategic nuclear weapons systems. The Senate has been ahead of the administration and ahead of the crises now going on.'

But Byrd said "the important thing is to deal with the needs on a selective basis — not to be concerned with an arbitrary percentage figure."

Bomb explodes in Israel

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — A bomb blast Sunday on the main street of the Tel Aviv suburb of Rehovot injured six persons, one of them seriously, police said. Israeli authorities said the bomb apparently was planted by Arab terrorists outside a police station in Rehovot, 11 miles south of Tel Aviv.

In Damascus, Syria, a note distributed to foreign reporters said the Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine was responsible for the bombing.

The note said the explosion "killed and wounded many (Israeli) enemies and damaged many vehicles and commercial stores." It said the bomb was planted in retaliation for an alleged Israeli attack on people in Nablus, a town in the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan River.

The Israeli state radio said police rounded up 20 Arabs for questioning as bomb disposal experts fanned out to search for additional explosives.

B-57 bomber crash kills pilot

PLATTSBURGH, N.Y. (AP) — An Air National Guard B-57 bomber has crashed in a sparsely populated area near the Canadian border killing the pilot and seriously injuring a crew member.

The pilot, Capt. Robert W. Noble, of Burlington, Vt., died in the Saturday crash, authorities said. A crew member, Lt. Col. Howard E. Travis, also of Burlington, was taken to a hospital in Plattsburgh where he was listed in stable condition.

The vintage bomber of the Vermont Air National Guard went down about 1:40 p.m., just south of the Plattsburgh Air Force Base here, authorities said.

Dorm fire clears building

GREELEY, Colo. (AP) — Investigators say a residence hall fire at the University of Northern Colorado that sent hundreds of students fleeing the building may have been set deliberately.

The Colorado Bureau of Investigation believes the fire began Saturday when flammable liquid was thrown on a couch in the fourth-floor study lounge.

Six persons were treated for smoke inhalation at Weld County General Hospital and released, a hospital spokesperson said.

MAY BUY CONVENTION CENTER SITE

Lansing considers purchasing land

Purchase of land for a proposed convention/exhibition center will be considered by the Lansing City Council at 7 tonight on the 10th floor of City Hall.

The council may take $357,000 of city funds to purchase a portion of land where the facility will be located.

The development site is bordered by Michigan Avenue, Grand Avenue, Ottawa Street and the Washington Square

The proposed facility, which is to be constructed in conjunction with the city's 100 Block Project, awaits a $10.3 million Urban Development Action Grant from the federal

The grant would be used to pay for the facility, which would be used for conventions, trade shows and similar events. The construction of the center is the first phase of a project that includes construction of an 18,000-seat sports arena which may be used by the MSU basketball team.

City officials maintain, however, that the arena will not be constructed unless MSU agrees to become the primary tenant of the facility.

The arena and exhibition center will "compliment" the 100 Block Project, and will include a 300-room hotel, a 12-story office building, a shopping center and parking facilities.

If all goes as planned, officials say, groundbreaking on the project will begin in October.

Hal Holbrook discusses the actor's role

By WILLIAM BARNHARDT State News Staff Writer

"How did I get started in acting? Well, it's really sort of strange . . ." Hal Holbrook is on his hands and knees trying to find how to turn the heat off in the kitchen. He discovers the radiator in the bedroom, but it's already on low. "Guess we'll have to open the door," he says. He opens it and a TV crew is standing outside.

"C'mon in, c'mon in," he smiles. He ushers the crew to a back room and they begin to set up. "Let's see, what was I saying? Oh yeah, acting. Well, it was an accident. Here I was dying to graduate from this military school - I'd flunked algebra or something, wanted to get out. I needed just ONE MORE CREDIT, so I wanted something easy. One of my friends in dramatics suggested theater. Of course, I said 'Me? What? On stage? Gee, I'll have to act, or something!' He told me that they'd just give me a walk-on, so I said 'All right.' So I ended up with this little character part and I got out on stage and . . . God, I loved it. There everyone was - looking at me, paying attention to me, listening to whatever I had to say, applauding, approving of me. I said to myself, 'This is it. This, this is wonderful!"

The phone rings; Holbrook answers it. It's a group of sailing buddies. Holbrook's road manager, Bennett Thomson, pulls me aside.

"Y'know, Hal is a fanatic when it comes to sailing - I'm surprised we got him to make this tour. His 40-foot sloop is getting a new mast. Twain had his riverboats and Hal has his sailboats." Holbrook has sailed from Hawaii to Los Angeles and back again. He still refuses to see the movie Jaws.

Holbrook finishes his phone call and plops down in a pile of luggage on his bed, continuing -

"After a war and more college I worked on an honors project. the Mark Twain idea came out of that. After I graduated, my first wife and I went on the circuit doing a two-person show of all sorts of literary characters. Packed all the junk in a station wagon, toured the South and Southwest - audiences that didn't know what theater was.

We played churches and school auditoriums, two and three shows a day, starting at 8 in the morning, till we'd done near 300 shows and traveled over 40,000 miles. All we got was $21.60 a show. In '52 we moved on to New York. Did soap operas." I ask him which one. He

"It was called . . . The Brighter Day . . . I was the son of a minister - the show was about this minister's horrible family. I was an alcoholic, reformed twice within one year. Had all sorts of affairs with lovely women. Had to quit the soaps though, got too busy. By that time I had developed Mark Twain into a full show which was running off-Broadway."

Critics and audiences noticed the tiny production. Newspapers and magazines reported it. the White House requested a performance, the State Department sent him overseas to tour with it. The one-of-many characterizations from a college project had become Holbrook's ticket to national exposure. After producers and casting agents learned Holbrook was not 70 years old, he began to expand to other roles. Controversial roles. The lead in the Emmy-winning The Senator, the daring political series quickly yanked off the air in one season. Then there was That Certain Summer - television's first attempt to treat the topic of homosexuality. Holbrook played a homosexual father who had to deal with a wife and a son and their handling of the truth.

"I turned it down at first." Was it the subject matter? "No, not at all - I thought the script was weak. It didn't seem to develop well, it didn't seem powerful. Given the nature of it, I figured it better be powerful. That afternoon I was driving with my wife to Long Island, she wanted to know the plot. I told her, and as I was telling her, I bad story,' and my wife couldn't believe I turned it down. When I got to the house, I called them up, accepted the part, found out Marty (Martin Sheen) was going to be in it, and that the project was going to be treated in an intelligent and sensitive manner.

Channel 6 people were at the door; Holbrook squeezed them

He laid back on the bed using a flight bag for a pillow. We talked about some of his favorite roles; Lincoln in Sandburg's Lincoln, the hero of the Emmywinning Pueblo, and of course certain things, what selections the anonymous "Deep Throat" of All the President's Men. How does one play someone real but unknown?

"Well, Redford and Alan Pakula had done some research. They figured Deep Throat was an alumnus of Yale like Woodward was, members of the same club perhaps. That's why they cooperated. Oh, I read the book and tried to figure it out. I'd say, 'It's gotta be so-and-so' and then I'd read on to the next page and I'd say, 'No, it must be him' - it doesn't matter a damn of course to an actor. I figured Deep Throat had to be arrogant - not an offensive arrogance - an arrogance of power, an impatience with ignorance, a cultured man who one would probably like and admire. He had a . . . a distaste for informing on his president, least of all in a parking deck. Very distasteful for him. I played him that way."

'Hal Holbrook also likes to live out occasional dreams.

"All my life I wanted to be in a Western, ever since I was a kid. And they offered me this script for The Legend of John Hammer where I was to play an aging gunfighter. This script was no world-beater - pretty thin stuff. The world champion Monty Laird trained me to gunfight so I could teach the kid in the film. I got to where I could draw, cock, and shoot within a half-second. When I saw the show it was disappointing, for they shot it so damn far away you couldn't tell, I kept saying, That's it?' But there I was ridin' the horses and shootin' the guns - that's Hollywood!"

I wanted to "talk Twain;" Holbrook gladly agreed.

"It takes about three and one-half hours to put the makeup for Twain on - I usually take four so as not to be rushed."

After nearly 2,000 shows, is it too easy to be Twain?

"Oh, I can be Twain anytime, the character comes naturally by this time. But the actual performance takes preparation. Oh, I could just - snap - and perform, but there's a kind of preparation one needs in order to feel right about it for the three and four hours I'm out there. You gotta think about am I going to use. (Holbrook makes up the show from Twain's materials as he goes along.) You've got to get your emotional vault unlocked enough so that things can

Is Twain just comedy for

"No. No. I've never thought of the Twain show as a funny thing. I never go out there and think, 'I'm going to be funny tonight.' At first, I always started off funny when I played these farm towns where the women have dragged their husbands off the field and I damn well better be funny. That's good drama anyway to start comic and get more serious. Of course more often than not, Twain made his more black or serious points through hu-

Is there more Holbrook in Twain or vice-versa?

"There's a tremendous amount of me in Twain - you can't play a role that long and not get more relaxed and end up letting yourself in. When you create the externals and the internals of the part, then all that remains is to let yourself into the role. It was not until after I let myself in that the show began to take off, become

Will he ever quit Twain?

"I've never stopped doing Twain yet. This is the - believe it or not - the 26th year I've done Twain. I've got a little record going. I never had any kind of success as an actor before this Twain thing; it's something I don't intend to quit doing. I'm proud of it."

Holbrook's Twain: a legend lives again

State News Reviewer Twain on humanity:

"It sometimes seems a shame that Noah and his party did not miss the boat . . ."

Twain was on campus Saturday night — Hal Holbrook, too, from what I hear. Though one can't be too sure. Every, gesture, every expression, every laughing wheeze, every puff of the cigar was Samuel Langhorne Clemens, alias Mark Twain, who honored us with his presence for a two and one-half hour forum Saturday night in the University Auditorium - a special event from the Lecture-Concert Series.

Hal Holbrook as Mark Twain — his first and foremost role entertained a packed-full house with reminiscences of Jim Blaine, the storyteller who couldn't tell a coherent story. And then there was the insurance company that did its best to provide accidents for its clients. Oh, and what about that night in a wild Western hotel where Mr. Twain was incapable of finding the WC or his room. And he just couldn't resist telling about the long dog he saw on a slow train. And of course, Twain had a captive audience when he discussed his "indelicacies" of smoking, drinking, lying and

Of course, America's most colorful writer was rather a dark man, dismally deprecating about the human race. In a more philisophical second act, after a moving and delightful excerpt from his Huckleberry Finn, Mr. Twain began on a harangue that included politicians, ministers, White Suprematists, President Theodore Roosevelt, and even the Almighty. If it left a bad taste in anyone's mouth, it was Twain's doing, not Holbrook's.

Hal Holbrook had so completely convinced East Lansing that he was Mark Twain, that the audience was applauding Twain for his outspokenness; it was Twain stirring the crowd to cheer one minute and think deeply the next. Holbrook as Twain achieves a rare excellence, a character so consistent that when Twain himself does other voices, Huck or Jim for instance, there is no doubt that it is an old man's voice that is being altered. Few dramatic presentations today rival the professionalism and skill that Holbrook brings to his performance.

The evening left me, as Twain would say, "happy as a martyr when the fire won't burn." And it left Hal Holbrook with one of the most appreciative standing ovations the Auditorium has seen in some time.

CAGERS TIED FOR FIFTH WITH IOWA, U-M

MSU reaches .500 with 68-59 win

By ADAM TEICHER State News Sports Writer

The MSU basketball team knew it had to sweep its two home games this weekend to re-enter the Big Ten race and completed the task by defeating the University of Illinois, 68-59, Saturday night.

"I figure we are back in the race, not just for the first division, but for the title," said MSU coach Jud Heathcote. whose team was 0-4 and in last place in the conference just three weeks ago.

But now the Spartans have won five of their last six and stand at 5-5, good for a fifthplace tie with the universities of Michigan and Iowa. The league leader, Purdue University, is 7-3, two games up on

The game was a rematch of last Saturday's 74-65 Illini victory at Champaign, Ill., when the Spartans shot just 33 percent from the floor and Illinois canned 34 of 43 free throws. This time around it was different.

"Anytime you play Illinois, it is a physical game," Heathcote explained. "They're good at muscling around underneath and we're not the most physical team so we decided to spread out the offense, kill some time and take the good shot."

AND IT WORKED. The Spartans put up 26 fewer shots than they did at Illinois, but made two more of their at-

"Jay played just super tonight because he didn't force things," Heathcote said. "I told him to be more under control and he listened. He's getting two men on him a lot and we tell him when that happens. somebody else is open. He can score with two men on him, but it's better when he hits the open man."

Heathcote had praise for MSU guards Terry Donnelly, Kevin Smith and Mike Brkovich, who began to get their games together just when the Spartans began their streak that brought them back into the chase for the league crown.

"Our guards are not only playing better, but more under control," the coach pointed out. "Now they seem to be playing within themselves, not forcing things when they aren't there. Terry tuned in the best back-toback games of the year Thursday night and then again tonight," he said afterwards.

DONNELLY HAD 12 points on 4-of-5 from the floor against the Buckeyes Thursday and then nine on Saturday before leaving with a charlie horse

"We'll give him limited work this week and I hope he can play Thursday (at Iowa)," Heathcote said.

Illinois scored the first seven times downcourt in the first half to shoot out to a 14-8 lead. From there, though, MSU went on a 11-2 spree, taking the lead on a Donnelly three-point play and the Spartans never trailed

The Illini, trailing 36-29 at the half, sliced MSU's lead twice to three midway through the final 20 minutes and to four with seven minutes to play, but the Spartans pulled away and led by as much as 13 with a minute remaining. "We had a chance to get ahead several times, but we missed a couple of free throws and didn't cash in our chances,' said Henson. When they got their lead was on the break. We just didn't get back on the break fast enough."

"I told our kids to be conscientious in the zone of (Rob) Judson and (Eddie) Johnson,' Heathcote said. "Judson got open a lot, but we kept Johnson from driving to the basket."

Johnson, Illinois' leading scorer on the year, had 14 points, all but one coming in the first half. He took just three shots in the second half and missed them all. Judson kept the Illini close with his 12 points, 10 after the intermis-

Sophomore goaltender Doug Belland returned to the Spartan lineup Saturday afternoon after a month's absence due to injury, but was replaced by Mazzoleni after two periods.

No less than 49 penalties were called against the two teams during the series, as MSU was afforded 19 power play chances. The Golden Gophers were allowed 11 tries with the extra man.

MSU is now 11-19 overall and 9-13 in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association.

MSUings: Junior Leo Lynett was credited with two goals and two assists in the weekend series with Minnesota, giving him a total of 47 points thus far this season. Lynett's point total is the highest by a Spartan since the 1975-76 season.

IOWA TRIP TAKES ITS TOLL

Wrestlers lose to best

By JIM MITZELFELD

State News Sports Writer MSU's wrestling team battled the two best teams in the nation this past weekend and almost beat one of them, giving coach Grady Peninger high hopes for the rest of the

The Spartans were narrowly defeated Friday night by No. 2 ranked Iowa State University, 20-17, before being handled by the nation's best, the University of Iowa, 35-9.

"The kids looked fantastic," he said. "We should've won the meet. At the worse it should've been a 19-19 draw."

CHUCK JOSEPH LOST his match at 126 pounds by a 4-2 decision, which Peninger said should have been a 2-2 draw, claiming a draw in that match

Harrel Milhouse won his sixth match in seven contests over nationally ranked Mike Picozzi by a 8-6 margin to start the Spartans off on the right note against the Cyclones.

After 158-pounder Fred Worthem upset No. 3 ranked Tom Pickard 13-6, the Spartans were up 14-6. But they dropped the next three matches and lost

Jeff Therrian defeated Dave Brown, 5-3, to up his record to 17-2, while Dave Rodriguez decisioned Mike Ferrino 13-6 in what Peninger called a "tremendous victory."

Jeff Thomas and Steve Foley were both even with their opponents 5-5 late in their matches before being taken down with seconds left to each to 16-2 after Foley, Jim Ellis and Scott Shepard all lost their matches to give Iowa State the meet, 20-17.

Peninger said his team did not perform well against Iowa the next night.

"It's kind of funny," he said. "One night we showed what we could do, and the next night we showed what we didn't do."

"It's (the Iowa trip) the kind of thing you have to go through to get your kids ready for the tough part of the season," he added.

MSU's loss to the Hawkeyes was the first Big Ten defeat of the season for the Spartans, giving them a 4-1-1 conference mark.

Worthem decisioned Mark Stevenson 4-1 for MSU's only win other than Milhouse's victory at 118 pounds due to an Iowa forfeit. It was Worthem's second victory of the week upping his dual meet record to

Buckeyes race away from MSU swimmers

In what was expected to be a close meet, the MSU men's swimming team was defeated by Ohio State University 75-38 Saturday.

Spartan coach Dick Fetters figured the score would be much closer than that before the meet, but he was not counting on outstanding individual performances by Ohio State's Jim Loesch, Axel Birnbrich and Kevin Wright.

"They swam a lot better than I thought they were capable of," Fetters said. "Those three guys put it to us, winning eight events" between themselves.'

Loesch took first place in the 200, 500 and 1,000-yard freestyle events to dominate the meet for the Buckeyes.

Ohio State's Kevin Wright took first in both the one and three-meter diving as the Buckeyes swept both diving events. Birnbrich took both the 50 and 100-yard freestyle events. Spartan swimmers Mike Borre, George Kruggel and Bob Lundquist took the only three firsts for MSU. The loss drops MSU's record to 5-4 overall and 3-3 in the Big
