Iranian Embassy seized in London

By MAUREEN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LONDON — Three "Arab power" militants seized the Iranian Embassy on a quiet London back street Wednesday and threatened to kill their 20 hostages unless Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's regime frees 91 political prisoners held in Iran's Arab-populated oil belt. If the Tehran government does not meet their demand by noon Thursday, the terrorists said, they will blow up the building.

A British lawmaker said Britain should demand Khomeini's revolutionary government free the 53 American hostages in Iran along with the Arab prisoners. Patrick Cormack, a Conservative Party member of Parliament, told reporters Britain must not allow Iranian prisoners to be flown here "unless they are accompanied by the American hostages."

The three terrorists, reportedly armed with sub-machine guns or carbines, identified themselves as Arabs from Khuzestan who support autonomy for that region of southwest Iran.

The British Broadcasting Corp., which received the ultimatum in a telephone call from the embassy, said the terrorists reported one of their hostages had been wounded and they wanted a doctor. The victim was not identified.

The only other casualty reported was a woman captive who was released in late afternoon suffering from what police said was severe shock. She was carried out on a stretcher and rushed off by ambulance.

Police said her release left 20 hostages, including a British police guard. The top Iranian diplomat in London, Charge d'Affaires Gholan-Ali Afrouz, also was reported among those held captive.

The BBC said the terrorists also demanded a safe flight out of Britain for themselves and their hostages.

Police later confirmed the terrorists' demands were similar to those reported by the BBC. And "there is certainly a threat of hostages being killed," Deputy Assistant Police Commissioner John Dellow told reporters.

HE ALSO SAID, "Twenty-four hours has been mentioned."

Arabs are an ethnic minority in Iran, concentrated in oil-rich Khuzestan province. Dissidents among the 2 million Arabs there have been agitating for the past year for greater autonomy from the Persian-dominated central government.

Militants in Khuzestan — the Arabs call it Arabistan — have sabotaged pipelines, set off bombs in city streets and attacked government officials and security men. Several have been executed in recent weeks. The London terrorists said the 91 whose freedom they were demanding were all being held in Khuzestan.

STATE LENDS $150 MILLION

Chrysler accepts loan

By GUY DARST
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — The state of Michigan lent $150 million to troubled Chrysler Corp. on Wednesday and the chairperson of the firm called it "a banner day."

Chrysler chairperson Lee A. Iacocca and state Treasurer Loren Monroe signed the agreement.

"The state of Michigan has shown leadership," Iacocca said. "I've had commitments and assurances, but I've never seen a buck of cash until today. This is a banner day."

Iacocca said the company also had received $62.5 million from the sale of its Australian subsidiary earlier in the day.

Monroe had said earlier he would turn over only $65 million, partly because the federal Chrysler Loan Guarantee Board had not acted on the company's request for some of the $1.5 billion in loan guarantees authorized by Congress.

MONROE DID NOT say why the state changed its mind again.

To get the loan from its home state, part of the $1.45 billion Chrysler must raise to qualify for federal loan guarantees, the automaker pledged its newly renovated engine plant in Trenton, south of Detroit, as collateral. The 15-year loan calls for an interest rate of 15 and one-half percent.

The No. 3 automaker last year employed about 80,000 persons in Michigan, most of them in metropolitan Detroit.

According to one informed source in Lansing, Chrysler said "it had to have it all" when told the state planned to reduce its loan.

The state agreed to the larger sum after a telephone conference among Monroe, Attorney General Frank Kelley, Gov. William G. Milliken and House Speaker Bobby Crim.

Just after the call, Crim said the state was "making its full commitment of $150 million," adding, "They were in a cash flow bind. Chrysler had an immediate need for $130 million."

Friday's paychecks, Crim said, "You'll have to ask them."

The automaker apparently had promised its lenders "a one-shot deal" of $150 million and the state, according to Crim, "apparently didn't understand what the commitments were along the way."

Monroe did not explain why he wanted to hold back part of the state loan.

Chrysler also obtained funds from another source Wednesday. Its Australian subsidiary announced the sale of its operations to Chrysler's Japanese affiliate, Mitsubishi Motors Corp., and Mitsubishi's parent company. Negotiations for the sale began early this year.

WITNESSES HAD SAID they heard gunfire as the terrorists forced their way into the building at 11:30 a.m. — 6:30 a.m. EDT.

Bodies of 8 U.S. commandos center of political tug-of-war

By The Associated Press

A leading ayatollah put the bodies of eight U.S. commandos at the center of a new political tug-of-war in Iran Wednesday, saying Ayatollah

Ruhollah Khomeini or the Revolutionary Council, not President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr, must decide whether the Americans' remains should be sent home.

As Ayatollah Mohammad Beheshti set out these conditions, two Catholic clerics were visiting the Tehran morgue where the bodies were being kept.

The two — Greek Catholic Archbishop Hilarion Capudji and papal nuncio Monsignor Annibale Bugnini — prayed and sprinkled holy water over the bodies, remains of eight commandos killed in an aircraft collision when the attempt to rescue the U.S. Embassy hostages was aborted last Friday in the Iranian desert.

Capudji, with the Swiss government and the International Red Cross, has taken on the responsibility for transferring the bodies out of Iran.

TEHRAN RADIO SAID some of the 53 American hostages were transferred Wednesday to the southern Iranian cities of Shiraz, 400 miles south of Tehran, and Jahrom, 50 (continued on page 16)

Carter to campaign; crises 'manageable'

By AP and UPI

WASHINGTON — President Carter, abandoning his Rose Garden campaign strategy, said Wednesday he will begin "limited" campaign travel.

The president, addressing a group of community leaders in the White House, said he could embark on a new course because the crises that he said kept him in Washington "are manageable enough."

Except for a trip Monday to San Antonio, Texas, to visit injured survivors of the aborted hostage rescue mission in Iran, Carter has limited his publicly announced travel to trips to Camp David, the presidential retreat in western Maryland.

The president halted his public travel when Iranian militants took American hostages when they seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran on Nov. 4.

AS THE PRESIDENT SPOKE, a senior White House official said the shift in policy was "something a lot of people wanted to see for a long time."

There was no immediate indication where Carter planned to travel. However, there had been speculation earlier that any trips would not be to states where primary elections are imminent. (continued on page 16)

Carter implies agents watched U.S. Embassy

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON — Perhaps without realizing it, President Carter has indicated publicly that agents were observing the U.S. Embassy compound in Tehran to signal whether conditions were right for a hostage rescue attempt.

At his Tuesday news conference, Carter said the rescue operation would have gone ahead only if "everything was satisfactory."

Among the necessary pre-conditions for such a go-ahead, Carter listed this one: "If there was no apparent change in the circumstances within the compound itself."

His remark startled some officials who have been under strict orders, along with everybody else in the U.S. government, not to discuss any covert relations related to the now-aborted mission.

THE PRESIDENT'S WORDS carried the strong implication that agents for the United States were positioned with radios somewhere close to the embassy compounds, where 50 hostages are being held prisoner by perhaps 150 armed Islamic militants.

How else would the rescue-force commander in a nearby mountain hideout or senior U.S. officials outside Iran be able to learn about circumstances inside the compound so close to the event?

Although still reluctant to talk about covert operations, one high-ranking general acknowledged that "we have some pretty good help outside" the embassy compound.

Officials are much less tense than they were last week about the indicated covert operations. That is because all U.S. agents who were put in place to prepare groundwork for the rescue attempt are now out of Iran and safe.

Sources said Iranians who helped the Americans prepare for the rescue effort also are known to be safe. Officials would not indicate whether they are still inside the country.

A MAJOR MISSION of the undercover agents was to acquire trucks that would have been used to move the commando force from the mountain hideout into Tehran. Some of the operatives also prepared the mountain hideout, which never was used.

Ex-State News manager dies in Muskegon at 76

By KY OWEN
State News Staff Writer

"When I came (to MSU) I told (former MSU President John) Hannah I had a violent temper, I swore a lot and besides, I didn't even know if I liked kids."

"He told me to try it for two weeks. Those two weeks were damn long." Those weeks were the beginning of an 11-year tenure for Louis J. Berman as The State News general manager.

Louis J. Berman

"Louie," as Berman was known, died Wednesday in Muskegon of natural causes. He was 76.

The long-time newspaper publisher served as general manager from 1961 to 1972, earning this collegiate newspaper seven Pacemaker awards — one of the most prestigious honors a college newspaper can receive. The award is given annually to college publications by the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

REGARDING THE FIRST Pacemaker, Berman once said: "That was a thrill too, I suppose. I didn't even know what a Pacemaker was."

In 1971 he was named Distinguished Newspaper Advisor by the National Council of College Publications.

"Louie Berman took the lead in gaining for students at Michigan State University and all over this nation an independent right to publish their newspapers under constitutional rights," said Gerald H. Coy, State News general manager.

"He was an exciting and tough taskmaster," Coy said, "which resulted in award-winning newspapers for The State News in worldwide competition."

The former publisher, who was appointed by then-MSU President John A. Hannah, was a key figure in the 1971 incorporation of The State News, Coy said.

WHEN HE RETIRED in July 1972, nearly 100 former State News staff members, representing a decade of student journalists, returned to MSU for a dinner honoring their former advisor.

Born in Chicago in 1903, Berman was the son of Jewish-Russian immigrants. In 1915, the family moved to Muskegon, where Berman attended high school.

Berman was educated at Northwestern University, and worked on the Chicago Evening Journal and the Muskegon Chronicle. In 1935 he bought the Whitehall (Mich.) Forum, a weekly newspaper, which he published for 25 years.

Berman also served as a member of the Michigan Press Association, as its president in 1954; the Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi; and the National Citizen's Council for Better Schools, serving as vice president in 1959.

His other activities included participation in the Muskegon County Urban League, the Whitehall Chamber of Commerce, the Whitehall Board of Education, the Whitehall Community Fund, the Muskegon County United Fund and B'Nai Brith.

He is survived by his wife, Harriet; two sons, Kenneth and Bill; three daughters, Mary, Latie McLean, and July Nyberg, all of East Lansing; and nine grandchildren.

Services will be at 11 a.m. Friday in Clock's Funeral Home in Whitehall.

Two members of the East Lansing Fire Department work on bringing this engine fire under control. The truck engine ignited as a result of carburetor backfire Wednesday morning on East Grand River Avenue. There were no injuries.

Intruders throw paint in U.N.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Two young men walked into the U.N. Security Council chamber Wednesday, shouted radical slogans and threw red paint on American and Soviet diplomats, witnesses said.

The intruders splashed the paint on U.S. Deputy Chief Delegate William vanden Heuvel and Soviet Ambassador Oleg A. Troyanovsky, reddening vanden Heuvel's neck and shirt and almost completely covering Troyanovsky's face.

Witnesses said they shouted, "May Day!" and "Our flag is red, not red, white and blue! Down with Soviet-American war moves!"

Witnesses said the intruders appeared to be Oriental. U.N. guards seized both and rushed them off for questioning.

Primary repeal effort lagging

LANSING (UPI) — Last week's legislative enthusiasm to get rid of Michigan's presidential primary once and for all appeared Wednesday to have faded into apathy and indecision.

The matter lay dormant since last fall, but was resurrected last week when hopeful primary foes believed they had succeeded in winning support from two key supporters of the election — Senate Democratic Leader William Faust of Westland and Gov. William G. Milliken.

UPI Stone-throwing rioters marched through police lines Wednesday in order to reach Dam Square in Amsterdam, as police try to contain them with water cannons and tear gas.

Rioters interrupt coronation

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — Queen Beatrix assumed the Dutch throne from her mother Juliana Wednesday as battle raged a few hundred yards away between club-swinging police and rock-throwing rioters protesting an acute housing shortage.

Rioters failed to break through a wall of police officers cordoning off Dam Square. In the Royal Palace and the Nieuwe Kerk (New Church) on the square, Juliana abdicated and Beatrix was inaugurated in six hours of festivities.

Bands of squatters, anarchists and radicals clashed with riot squads in several locations. Tear gas filled the air. Cars were overturned and set on fire. Officials said 50 police officers were injured, and hospitals reported 136 other persons were treated for injuries suffered in the fighting.

Lance found innocent

ATLANTA (AP) — Former budget director Bert Lance, whose forced departure from the federal government left President Carter close to tears, was found innocent Wednesday on nine counts of bank fraud.

The jury deliberated nine days. At one time, as many as 10 of the 12 jurors voted to convict Lance on two counts of making false financial statements to a bank, one juror said after the acquittal.

Jurors were unable to agree on those charges and one other. U.S. District Judge Charles Moye Jr. declared a mistrial on the three counts but said he would consider entering acquittals after both sides submit briefs.

Lance was "delighted" by the outcome but said the two-year investigation and 16-week trial were "a total, abject and ridiculous waste of taxpayers' money."

More Cubans swarm Florida

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — More waves of refugees mixed with convicts released from Cuban prisons swarmed ashore here Wednesday as the Carter administration worked to negotiate an airlift to replace the illegal boat convoy between the United States and Cuba.

More than 5,000 Cuban refugees have sailed to Florida since the "Freedom Float" began last week. In the past two days alone, about 1,500 refugees checked in at the swamped processing center here.

Coast Guard air surveillance Wednesday showed that dozens of ships had set out from the Cuban port of Mariel to take advantage of calm waters in the Florida Straits after three days of rough weather. An additional 200 boats left Key West on Wednesday, bound for Cuba.

FTC funding comes to a halt

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress failed Wednesday to provide funds to keep the Federal Trade Commission solvent, apparently forcing the agency to shut down.

The shutdown, to begin at midnight, apparently will last until Congress and President Carter approve new FTC legislation or short-term funding to keep the agency alive.

Members of a House-Senate conference committee agreed Wednesday on a compromise bill reducing the FTC's authority and allocation funds for three years of operation.

County board OK's pay cut

By ROLAND WILKERSON
State News Staff Writer

While many are asking for pay raises, the Ingham County Commissioners voted Tuesday to cut their salaries.

The commissioners voted unanimously to cut their annual 1981 base salaries from $7,500, a figure they decided upon last fall, to $7,100. They are currently making $5,500.

The cut in pay was initiated by several commissioners who said they felt "uncomfortable" about the pay hike.

Commissioner Thomas Brennan, R-East Lansing, said he wanted the pay cut because the original raise had been "pushed through with no forethought or deliberation."

But commissioners Mark Grebner and Jess Sobel, both East Lansing Democrats, said Brennan initiated the pay cut as a political move because he is running for judge in the 55th District.

"THE PAY CUT was because of election year politics," Grebner said. "Brennan just wanted to make himself look good."

Brennan denied the claim, however, saying, "well, that's really hilarious."

"This was a total county commission effort. It's probably the first time we've seen the county commissioners agree on something," Brennan said.

"I'm not taking credit for this," he said. "There was nobody patting me on the back after the meeting."

Sobel said the pay scale, which was established last fall and altered Tuesday, will substantially reduce the amount of paperwork that is required to fill out (continued on page 16)

So. African exile urges divestiture

By DON CALDWELL
State News Staff Writer

The myth persists that American corporations in South Africa aid the general welfare of Blacks there, an exile from the segregated country said Wednesday.

Dumisani Kumalo, who fled South Africa in 1977 after working 10 years as a journalist there, was in Lansing to encourage Michigan legislators to support a bill which would require the state to divest its investments in corporations that operate in South Africa.

"We say in simple English language that corporations must get out of South Africa, because they support apartheid," Kumalo told about 25 persons attending a talk on "Trends Toward Liberalization" in South Africa.

Apartheid is the policy of racial segregation and political and economic discrimination against non-European groups in South Africa.

"SOUTH AFRICA DESERVES attention because it has a system of institutional and legalized racism," Kumalo said.

He said he is not opposing corporations operating in South Africa because of how they treat Black workers and the low wages they pay Black workers. That is a problem of workers the world over, he said.

His concern in South Africa is the money that banks and corporations invest supports a government whose official position is apartheid.

Kumalo currently lives in New York and works for the American Committee on Africa. In the last two years, he has traveled to 42 states and talked everywhere from grade schools to universities about the plight of Blacks in South Africa.

"South Africa is so bad, it is unique," he said. "South Africa is the only country which still has a Race Classification Board."

Workers in South Africa approach their employers, and not their doctors, to be excused from work because of illness, he said.

"SOUTH AFRICA HANGS more people than all other countries combined," he said. If a Black driver blocks automobile traffic and more of the cars held up are driven by White drivers than Black, the Black driver can be hanged, he said.

Moves by corporations that operate in South Africa to improve the conditions of Black workers are only "cosmetic changes" which do not go far enough, he said.

"Affirmative action will never work, because it is an attempt to improve racism, not destroy racism," he said.

"South Africa is a rotten piece of cake. Trying to cut a piece of cake for Black people is not what we want. We want to bake a new cake."

He said corporations which operate in the country are invited by one segment of the population and perpetuate racism by keeping an apartheid government powerful.

"WE'RE FIGHTING FOR power, we're fighting for self-determination, we're fighting for the right to decide our destiny," Kumalo said. "We're not fighting for cosmetic changes."

Born and raised in South Africa, Kumalo was encouraged by his parents to get the education for which they never had a chance. He said the letters he receives from his parents are first intercepted and read by South African police. Lately, letters from his mother are describing greater courage Blacks are showing in fighting their oppression.

Kumalo said the move by MSU to divest its stock was an encouraging step in moves to free South African Blacks.

"More and more Americans are becoming aware of what's happening in South Africa," he said.

Student assaulted in campus holdup

Two men, one armed with a straight-edge razor, robbed an MSU student of $25 and cut his left arm at 9:50 a.m. Wednesday in the IM Sports-West parking lot, the Department of Public Safety reported.

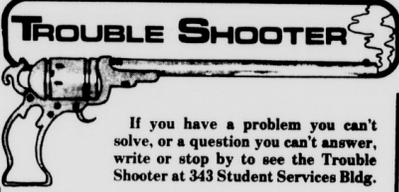

The student, who was not identified by police, was taken to Olin Health Center and released Wednesday, police said.

One of the robbers said he had a handgun, but it was not seen by the victim, police said.

The assailants were described as White males. One was described as being from 22 to 25 years old, 5-foot-10 weighing 165 pounds, and with dark hair. The other was described as being in his early 20s, 6-foot-2 with a heavy build and light brown hair.

They left the scene of the crime in a late-model white Buick Skylark, police said.

Anderson coalition gets petition support

By MARK FELLOWS
State News Staff Writer

Efforts to place independent candidate John Anderson on the August primary ballot are gaining "amazing" support despite a late start, the state coordinator for the petition drive said Wednesday.

The Anderson coalition must collect 18,339 valid signatures to be filed with the Michigan Secretary of State by May 5, said former state Sen. N. Lorraine Beebe.

Beebe said she did not know how many signatures have been collected since the petition drive started a week ago, but added she expected to give Anderson a tentative count when he arrived Wednesday night in Detroit.

Anderson will speak in the MSU Auditorium at 3 p.m. today as part of a two-day swing through the state. Beebe said he will probably speak on economic issues and will "pull no punches."

MICHIGAN LAW OBLIGATES minor parties to show public support with petitions before they are placed on the ballot. Major parties are exempt because they can show public support by citing voter turnout in the last general election.

In addition, at least nine congressional districts must supply 100 signatures each, with no more than 35 percent coming from one district.

In order to get on the November general election ballot, Anderson must garner between 4,000 and 5,000 signatures in the August statewide primary, said Anderson spokesperson Scott McKinley.

ANDERSON IS CURRENTLY listed on the May 20 presidential primary ballot as a Republican, but Beebe said the state Republican Party may file to remove Anderson's name.

Beebe said she was encouraged by the calls to the coalition state headquarters in Lansing which resulted from radio advertisements which started Tuesday.

Regarding Anderson's national campaign outlook, Beebe said the candidate should be able to get on the ballots in 45 states and will challenge early filing dates in five states as "unrealistic and unconstitutional."

Asked if she thought Anderson's candidacy as an independent may help Ronald Reagan in November at the expense of President Carter, Beebe replied that support should come from members of both parties.

She added that more Republicans will come out in support of Anderson after the Republican national convention in July in Detroit. She declined to name particular persons, however.

Diane Algra, newly chosen acting director of Women's Programs at MSU.

Open communication is new director's goal

By LESA DOLL
State News Staff Writer

Opening up communications within the University and community is the primary goal of the recently selected acting director of MSU Women's Programs.

Diane Algra, who will officially take the position on May 19, indicated her first goal on campus would be to contact women and familiarize herself with the University.

"I don't plan to come in there gung ho and say what the women's program is going to be," she said.

Algra, currently director of the Lansing Women's Bureau, was selected for the position by a committee of women and the Department of Human Relations after a three-month search that ended last week. She will be acting director for 18 months while the department searches for a permanent director.

ALGRA'S SELECTION IS the most recent attempt by the administration to fill the rather inconsistent position of director of women's programs. The previous permanent director, Mary Pollock, known for her vocal opinion on Title IX and affirmative action, was fired by the University in June 1978.

Karen Cottledge served as acting director until she resigned in March 1979 and the duties have been performed by student and University assistants since that time.

Algra admits she will have to find a place for herself and reestablish the position. She has a positive attitude about the position, however, and hopes that within time she can make a mark on the University.

Algra, described by a member of the search committee as a "high-energy" person, said that her accomplishments during her tenure at the Lansing Women's Bureau will assist her in the new position.

"I am a fairly action-oriented person," she said. "I will bring that part of myself into the job."

"I THINK I have to try it," she said. (continued on page 16)

A third party for the voters

By the time he defected from the Republican party, the news that John Anderson had decided to run as an independent candidate in the 1980 presidential election was almost passe. Anderson had been deciding the issue for months, while many voters disenchanted with President Carter and in disdain of Ronald Reagan hoped all along he would make the move. His decision to run independent may spark new life into an otherwise dull presidential race, and hopefully prompt the other candidates to get out of flashy politicking and get down to the issues at hand.

Anderson's challenge provides an intriguing glimpse into the strategies of presidential candidates. Unlike other candidates, his stance on the issue does not fit him into any single political category. If he did not exist, political analysts would have had to invent him as the touted answer to a country racked by fiscal mismanagement and crying for social reform.

Perhaps that is Anderson's strategy. The disillusioning atmosphere of the nation's 1980 campaign is ripe for opportunists, be they chameleons or simply honest dark horses concerned with offering voters a clearly different choice. Anderson is clearly an alternative to all presidential frontrunners in 1980. And we find that to be the best reason for supporting his defection to an independent candidacy.

Anderson may not prove to be the solution to nearly all of the ills he has brought to the electorate's attention. But his outspokenness on some issues has already placed into the limelight ideas and attitudes worthy of public review. His 50-cent gas tax proposal may not win him votes, but it is an idea that honestly addresses the country's need to curtail its energy use. And his fiscal policies are precisely what the Carter administration is imposing as the answer to inflation.

While it is not our intention at this time to endorse Anderson for president, we applaud his decision to continue the race. Anderson's past voting record in Congress makes us suspicious as to whether he would institute the proposals he hawks. As a candidate he is just as suspect as the rest. But there is a certain honesty in his approach to politics. No one knows if the John Anderson speaking on campus today will retain his appealing persona should he reach the White House. But that is for the voters to decide. Anderson's decision to discontinue the race would have cost many voters that opportunity.

VIEWPOINT: ENERGY

Nuclear issue isn't one-sided

By TED PRZYBOCKI

Most MSU students are familiar with and are critical of authoritarian and absolutist ideas that have changed the course of history: Hitler and his superior race; Archie Bunker and his superior everything. And, most of these same students would surely agree the United States is a monument to the school of reasoning and open-mindedness.

Unfortunately, these same people continually don their own selfish little set of blinders when voicing their opinion of nuclear power.

Wayne David Smith sums up this trend in uninformed selfishness in his letter, reminiscent of some nuclear power Moses, printed in The State News, April 24. "Nuclear power," wrote Smith, "is the best energy alternative for our lifestyle."

It is easy for any literate individual to see the futility of this statement, just as it is easy to get angry at "No Nukes" emblazoned in spray paint on the sidewalks and buildings of campus. Only a fraction of the American population knows the acute fear of unseen radioactivity permeating the air that enters the lungs of their children. The fear of the unknown, that seemingly uncontrollable beast called nuclear power, cannot be mollified by extremists who fail to see the opposite side of the coin while pursuing his or her own interests.

In retrospect, my experiences have never caused me great hunger or cold temperatures which I could not control with the help of our taken-for-granted energy supply. I also realize that 12 to 14 percent of that supply is fed by nuclear power plants across the country. Not until a tragic crisis envelops our country can anyone know the intense sacrifices that a 12 to 14 percent cut in energy will demand.

Thus, the issue of nuclear power or any form of energy cannot be one-sided. Whether discussing campaigns, Iranians or Olympics, the focus always turns to energy. The stakes are all-encompassing.

To Wayne David Smith, I say long after you are buried your living descendants will dwell in a world suffocating from the waste products of your prized nuclear power. A year ago, I read in an issue of Popular Mechanics of a development that reduces the consumer cost of solar energy, the cleanest known source of fuel, to commercially competitive prices. Of course we need the nuclear power we have; it may be keeping some of our families alive right now. But the technology exists to reap the benefits of new energy sources in the United States. Cute little ideas may get your name in the paper, but only a direct correspondence to your congressman can help achieve the comprehensive energy research program that will end this hellish crisis.

If Bob Carr received a single letter within a couple of days, urging him to vote in favor of the synthetic fuels bill and to start researching alternative energy sources, he may very well ignore it. However, if 45,000 angry letters from concerned MSU students were dumped on his desk, telling him that it is about time this technologically advanced nation of ours became energy self-sufficient, he might see visions of elections dancing in his head and start working in the interests of you and I, his constituents.

Anyone that uses energy is involved in this issue. Gather your thoughts intelligently and invest 15 cents on a postage stamp. Address your letter to Rep. Bob Carr, Congress of the United States, House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515. Writing a letter will take about 20 minutes. Not writing, well, that may take your life, eventually.

New director's position shaky

Diana Algra deserves congratulations and we wish her lots of luck as she becomes director of MSU's Division of Women's Programs. The current director of the Lansing Women's Bureau will be trading on thin ice as she hopes to keep her new position longer than her predecessors, as well as satisfy the women's community.

The Division of Women's Programs has been plagued with communication problems since its inception. Mary Pollock, the office's first director, ran into trouble with MSU administrators when she began to investigate and criticize the University's stand on Title IX implementation and affirmative action. Pollock once said she felt squeezed between "a rock and a hard place." She was fired from Women's Programs after she refused a request to resign less than a year after she took the position.

After Pollock's dismissal, Karen Cottledge filled the position as acting director until March 1979, when she resigned because she did not feel she could help the program grow with both hands tied. Algra was chosen from a field of 32 candidates after a three-month search for an acting director. She will serve for 18 months, while another search for a permanent director is conducted.

Little has been done in accordance with Title IX since the June 1978 firing of Pollock. As the program has obviously had little direction since then, Algra will have to do a lot of juggling if she wants to keep it. But if she finds the job of appeasing both MSU administrators and the women's community impossible, the search for an acceptable director of Women's Programs will go on.

VIEWPOINT: MARATHONS

The games people play

By KAREN BEAN

The "American Way" of giving aid to others whose situations, physically, financially or otherwise are not as elated as our own, is to donate time and energy to a selected worthy cause. These donated efforts bring in cash to further cancer research, help support St. Jude's Children's Hospital, stop pollution, "fight world hunger" and finance countless other research organizations, all for public benefit. We are, in short, concerned citizens.

A pat on the back for such recognition and involvement. Yes, these are our problems and we all should feel an obligation and motivation to help. But one serious concern we flagrantly ignore, while actually in the process of working for the benefit of other valid causes, is our wastefulness of energy. I do not mean burning too many lights or turning the heat up too high. We are wasting our own energy — human, physical energy.

Dance-a-thons for muscular dystrophy, bike-a-thons for cancer research, telethons, walk-a-thons, skate-a-thons — all are futile expulsions of effort and energy to earn pledged dollars. How can they be "futile" if we are earning money for a useful purpose? My point is, we could still earn money for a cause if marathon efforts were directed at an immediate, tangible problem. Not everyone can directly contribute knowledge or skill to cancer research, but a day's work and applied efforts to earn dollars to support those who can is certainly also a worthwhile donation. But instead of soliciting nickels or quarters for every mile fruitlessly walked, why not earn that money for every trash can liner filled with city or highway litter? A 20-mile pedestrian venture is an admirable effort, and may bring in healthy pledge contributions, but why literally waste that energy? Why not take pledge for muscular dystrophy or the American Heart Association for every five pounds of newspapers collected for recycling? How about a paint-a-thon?

Groups could do marathon painting inside or outside the houses of the elderly, disabled, or handicapped and take pledges for whatever cause for each hour of work. People would be just as willing to sponsor someone who is actually accomplishing something, (for the public or local needy individuals) as to sponsor the most devoted marathon trampoline jumper.

"But dancing is a lot more fun for marathon participants than picking up trash and a marathon of an enjoyable activity draws more participants." How long does the fun last? Any activity performed extensively becomes dull and physically strenuous or painful. Dancing feet get just as tired as painting arms. A party afterwards would be an attraction for participants in a less "play-oriented" marathon.

The irony of exertion in such a "sacrificial" action seems to vouch for the marathon participant's devotion to the cause. Similarly, a fellow who spends $15 on a bouquet for his girl is squandering his (presumably) hard-earned money on a trifle to please her. Somehow, many view that as more sincere or self-denying than overhauling her 10-speed or building her some book shelves. We have a taste for the elaborate or extreme — the more frivolous, the more "noble."

To maximize our giving aid, we need to do some re-evaluating of just where we choose to direct our efforts. This wasting of such valuable commodities as human skills and energy is both hypocritical and wrong. Are we really only willing to help if it is made into a game? We can better focus our exertions to support major causes by integrating in the process work in some of the many smaller areas of need existing in our own communities. Giving help by wasting human resources is a poor trade-off.

Blimp vs. butter

Regarding Mr. Carr's blimp letter of April 16:

Mush-headed liberals indeed! When will myopic hawks like you cease your foolish name-calling and address the real issues? Only a pinhead could support the ASMSU purchase of a blimp for defensive purposes, let alone call for more military build-ups on campus in response to some vague threat from the Badgers of the University of Wisconsin. Such spending only serves to extend the "overkill" capacities now possessed by all Big Ten universities (excluding Northwestern). This presents the classic "blimps vs. butter" argument, and I for one must always side with the butter.

Militaristic undergrads such as yourself always prefer to ignore pressing domestic issues, and would instead have ASMSU funnel all its money into blimps and other defense programs aimed at deterring the dubious menace lurking on Wisconsin's foreign shore. Yet what possible threat could these cheese-makers pose to us? I say ASMSU must steer clear of these foreign entanglements, and first solve the problems in our own backyard. Instead of building a costly cross-campus MX missile system, our student government could use its funds to provide social programs to train and help find jobs for currently unemployed ducks on our campus. Rather than purchase a squadron of F-15 fighters, ASMSU might finance a rehabilitation program for advertising majors. Let ASMSU commence such a program of prudent spending, and so create a Great Society on campus, leading MSU to the forefront of socially responsible student governments.

Design students work on display in Union

By BILL CORNISH
State News Staff Writer

Students from the Department of Human Environment and Design are displaying their best work, both artistically and architecturally, at a showing in the Union through Friday.

About 60 junior and senior interior design students are displaying classroom projects from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and 5 to 8 p.m. in 334 Union.

Drawings include houses, restaurants, airports, hotels, and others, said Mary Ellen Gafford, student co-chairperson for the project.

Most projects have more than one drawing, including floor plans, perspectives, elevations, and architectural rendering, depending on the project, she added.

"Floor plans refer to the arrangement of space," Gafford said. The location of windows, doors, rooms and the like are determined, she added.

Perspectives are three-dimensional drawings with detail and sometimes color, she said.

"THERE ARE TWO types of perspectives — a one-point perspective with the back wall (not three-dimensional), and a two-point perspective with only one corner flat," Gafford said.

Elevations are flat drawings which show the client what the space looks like, she said.

Rendering refers to the color and texture of the project, she said. Color is used to highlight certain areas of the drawing, and does not have to be used extensively to be effective, she added.

The three main sources of color in an interior design project are prisma color using colored pencils, water colors and magic markers, Gafford said.

"It depends on the project which drawing is the most important."

Gafford said, although rendering is usually a frill to impress the client. Renderings are not supposed to be photographs, she said, but are only an indication to the client of what the finished project will look like.

THE INTERIOR DESIGN display has been combined with the department's annual craft display in past years, but this year the displays were separated, allowing more students to submit their work. This is the first annual interior design display, she said.

The MSU interior design department is a member of the Foundation for Interior Design, Education and Research, which provides the department with national accreditation.

Only about 25 schools in the country have accredited programs, which require a display of student projects, Gafford said.

Interior designing is very competitive, she said. Sophomores interested in the program must submit two projects to faculty members in order to be accepted into the program. This year, 42 students were accepted.

Student learn the technical skills of designing first with creativity entering into the project only after the skills have been mastered. Without the know-how the skills cannot be applied, she said.

Some seniors could not submit projects for the display because their best projects are in portfolios for interviews, Gafford said.

Most classes require two or three projects, she said, along with some in-class work, sketchbooks, and a job book in certain classes.

Design emphasis today is concerned with the function of space and energy consciousness, as well as aesthetics.

Solar energy seminar tonight

By DAVE VARGA
State News Staff Writer

Urban Options, a community energy conservation group, is sponsoring a free solar hot water seminar at 7 tonight in the East Lansing Public Library, in cooperation with its "hands on" workshops Saturday and Sunday.

The free seminar will present design considerations and an overview of solar hot water systems along with state and federal regulations for tax credits.

The workshops will be in the Energy House, 135 Linden St. beginning at 9 a.m. Saturday and 11 a.m. Sunday. These workshops will be free due to a grant from the Michigan Solar Energy Association.

Workshops will give people a chance to build a thermosiphoning solar hot water system at the Energy House. Covered in the workshop will be collector plate assembly, piping installation and system operation.

PEOPLE INTERESTED IN attending the workshops should register early as space is limited to about 10 persons each day.

The solar hot water system will be constructed on the second floor of the house, said Randy Eveleigh of Urban Options.

Urban Options moved into the city-owned Energy House about one and one-half years ago.

Displays have been set up at the house to show the usefulness of such energy conservation items as insulated shutters, solar curtains and wall insulation. These conservation options have been subjects of past workshops.

Energy House is distinguished by solar panels which adorn its front.

A SOLAR GREENHOUSE was built about a year ago for growing plants and space heating of the house during a series of workshops.

A Department of Energy grant of $10,000 paid for materials and a full-time staff employee during construction of the (continued on page 16)

ASMSU board OK's student loan guidelines

By JIM MITZELFELD
State News Staff Writer

The ASMSU Student Board approved guidelines Tuesday under which it can give out loans to student groups.

The policy, approved at the board's regular meeting, will attempt to change what former budget chairperson Bob Carr called an "abominable" loan record in the past.

The loan policy, which was spelled out in a five-page, 17-point guideline, makes it very difficult for any group to obtain a loan from the board. It also ensures that groups requesting loans prove they are worthy of such loans and provide collateral.

"Loans in the past have been given out haphazardly" (continued on page 16)

Transit forum set for tonight

Recommendations on improving Lansing-area transportation services for the elderly and handicapped will be heard at 7 tonight in the Lions Hall Auditorium at the Michigan School for the Blind, 715 W. Willow St., Lansing.

Results of the hearing will be considered by both the Capital Area Transportation Authority and the Tri-County Regional Planning Commission, the co-sponsors of the hearing.

Both groups are developing a transportation plan aimed at improving access to the CATA bus system.

Midnight Ramblings

By JOHN NEILSON
State News Staff Writer

I'm half asleep. Across the room, Mr. Spock is engaging a quarter pound of hamburger in a Vulcan Patty Melt. The concentration in his face is awesome. Nearby Captain Kirk is falling madly in love with what looks to be a dolphin woman of some sort. The burger is beginning to brown nicely...

...and it really doesn't matter any more. I roll over — stab at the button on the cable box.

The news is on. Another analysis of the Keystone Commandos raid. Dummies! They should've let the Israelis do it. As it is, this is what happens when you send in the cream of the American military after months of intensive training? First Skylab, now this. It's getting to be a bit much.

You can bet this kind of fiasco would never have happened if Reagan had been in office. Instead of pussyfooting around like Jimmy Nice Guy, ol' Ronald would've gone in with the cavalry just like in the movies. (Hey, Iranians are just like Indians with more clothes on, right?) He could clean up in a few sweeps, put Khomeini on a reservation someplace, fall in love with whichever hostage is prettiest, and eventually civilize the whole country by making it the 51st state.

Ahhhh. They don't make movies like that any more.

Click! More news. Hmmm. Looks like George Wallace — is he trying to run again or something? Surgical Nukes Party?! Half asleep or not, I make a mental note to start stocking canned goods in the basement. About 500 years worth. I should probably get a hand-crank generator for my stereo, too. Maybe buy a copy of Finnegans Wake.

Click! It's an ad for the sequel to Oh, God!. I can't believe they're calling it Oh, God! Oh, God! By the time they get to the fourth or fifth sequel, they're gonna have to rate it X just for the title alone.

Speaking of sequels, I wonder how many spin-offs of Little Darlings it's going to take before Tatum O'Neal loses her virginity? Oh, well, I guess there's a market for that someplace — I know Holdship will go to see them. And what about Dallas Does Debbie?

Click! News again. So now they have eight dead hostages as well as 50 or so live ones. I think if they throw in the helicopters we should go ahead and give 'em back the shah. Better yet, maybe we can compromise and give 'em back half the shah. We could keep the half that needs the operations, and they could put the other half on trial or whatever, and everybody would be happy.

Click! "... eans, whitens, brightens ..."

Click! Another commercial. Are they really advertising a new super glue to stick worms to fishhooks with? What will they think of next?

Click! Oh, boy, local news! Now that's something to get excited about. Hey, there's Mackey. How did we ever get someone who looks like Jimmy Stewart with a mean streak? What a neat guy.

Click! "... and you're Number One/Yeah, you're the coolest, Baby/Lookin' up/Lookin' out/Takin' off/Takin' over ..."

Throwin' up, Click!

... ew NBC Mini-Series, The Raid That Wasn't. Starts Monday, May ...

Click! Why do I watch this nonsense? Partly, I guess, because there isn't much else to do. Then, too, you get a certain piece of mind from watching the tube, and realizing that the rest of the world is at least as crazy as you. Or crazier.

Click! There's Kirk talking to the Dolphin People again. That reminds me, I've got some tuna fish in the fridge. I should eat. That always makes me happy.

Nielsen ratings

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS and ABC split the Top 10 in the prime-time ratings race for the week ending April 27, with ABC, runnerup to CBS in the recently completed season, finishing first for the seven-day period by less than half a point.

CBS' 60 Minutes, the top-rated program in the 1979-80 season that ended April 20, was No. 1 for the week, with ABC's news-magazine, 20-20, an impressive fifth, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed.

With reruns common on all three networks, several specials and new programs did well in the ratings.

Baryshnikov on Broadway from ABC, finished 17th for the week, and NBC's new sports-oriented series The Sunday Games, was 19th. ABC's first-ever broadcast of the movie Lady Sings the Blues was No. 29 for the week.

With the aborted attempt to rescue the American hostages in Iran, all three networks cut into regular programming with special coverage. CBS News' report pulled the highest rating, good for a 44th place finish. NBC's program was No. 55 and ABC's finished 68th.

Here are the week's 10 highest-rated shows: 60 Minutes, CBS; That's Incredible and Three's Company, both ABC; M-A-S-H, CBS; 20-20, ABC; Dallas and Dukes of Hazzard, both CBS; Flo, CBS, and Love Boat and Taxi, both ABC.

'Other Half Loves' a witty, fun triumph

By WILLIAM BARNHARDT
State News Reviewer

I'd never been to the Arena Theatre, or for that matter seen a drama (outside of the PAC) produced by the theatre department. But Mary wanted to trade assignments, I agreed, and am I glad I did. The comedy How the Other Half Loves, by British comic playwright Alan Ayckbourn, challenges a director and cast with demands of comic timing and concentration — and they have met this match.

The novelty of Other Half is that two distinct scenes are played on one set. The rich and silly Fosters own some of the better looking furniture, and the common and classless Phillipsees own the dowdier accoutrements. The suspicion of an affair between Mr. Phillipps and Mrs. Foster has both households brimming with discussion simultaneously paced on the same stage. That's where the concentration comes in — epitomized when a third couple, the insufferably dull Detweilers, are invited to supper on different nights and the scenes are played at the same time at the same table, no less. The back-and-forth, here-one-minute, there-the-next script, in addition to the constant British wit, call for professional comic timing and sharp direction.

Director Joyce Ramsay, the theatre department's artist in residence, selected and assembled this show and manipulated the drawbacks of the limited Arena Theatre to the play's advantage. The "foil" couple, the Detweilers, were played by a (purposefully) boring Bruce Marr (describing things in terms of their "pleasantness") and an even more hilariously tedious Barbara Nichols (who faked sinus attacks to avoid social conversation). The common — and do I mean common — Phillipsees were a less-amusing Thomas Wiseley and Susan Karsnick. But perhaps the best couple, the perfectly horrid Fosters, were played to the hilt by Martha Terry and Brian O'Sullivan, who by the end of the play had convinced you that they were at least over 40. This cast was 100 percent undergraduate! Wow.

Martha Terry and Brian O'Sullivan (top) and Susan Karsnick and Thomas S. Wisely portray two of the three couples involved in a series of marital mix-ups in How The Other Half Loves, a British comedy currently running in MSU's Arena Theatre.

If there is a reservation, it is this: it takes around 10 minutes to make heads or tails of where this play is set geographically and one is never really sure. It's hard enough deciphering why these couples are sharing the same set oblivious to each other without the compounding problem caused by the conflicting accents. Mrs. Foster seems British, the Phillipsees are definitely American (technically New York, though they don't sound New York), and Mr. Foster is neither British nor American — just sort of endearingly foppish. This accent business is a distraction. Mrs. Foster needs to pour on the Bryn Mawr — one can sound rich and elite without the English dialect.

So, buy your tickets for a fun, witty evening where it is obvious the cast is having as much fun as the audience. Other Half runs through Saturday night, performances at 8:15 p.m.

WEBB, SAVAGE PICKED WEDNESDAY

Five Spartans chosen in NFL draft

By ED BRADLEY
State News Sports Writer

Now there are five . . .
Three more MSU standouts were selected in the National Football League draft late Tuesday and Wednesday.
Wide receiver Eugene Byrd, defensive tackle Tanya Webb and linebacker Larry Savage joined offensive tackle Angelo Fields and tight end Mark Brammer as NFL draftees.

Byrd was chosen by the Miami Dolphins in the sixth round late Tuesday night.

SAVAGE WAS TAKEN by the Dallas Cowboys in the eighth round after the draft resumed Wednesday. Webb was chosen by the New Orleans Saints in the 10th round. Byrd, an All-Big Ten player who set an MSU record for pass receptions his junior season, thought he would be taken earlier in the draft.

"I wasn't expecting the sixth round," he told The State News Wednesday. "Maybe a bit higher."

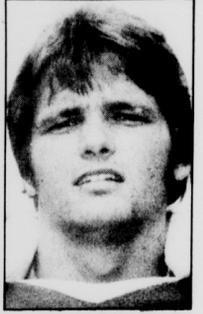

"But I'm happy with being selected by Miami. They have a good system down there, a winning system, and also some good receivers."

Byrd will have to compete with holdover starters Nat Moore and Duriel Harris for a spot in the Dolphins' receiving corps.

Savage was pleased with his selection by the Cowboys, long regarded as having the best scouting system in the pro ranks.

Eugene Byrd

Larry Savage

"THEY (THE COWBOYS) told me they needed linebackers, so I think I have a good opportunity. It's the top organization in the NFL, so I'm just happy to be getting a chance."

Savage, a native of Warren, Ohio, was an All-Big Ten honorable mention in 1979.

Webb, a defensive tackle who switched from the offensive line, was a varsity basketball player at MSU before turning to the gridiron in 1977.

Brammer, the third tight end selected in the draft

(behind the University of Nebraska's Junior Miller and the University of Michigan's Doug Marsh), seemed a little less ecstatic about his lot.

"I figured I'd be taken anywhere from rounds one to three," the 1978 All-America said. "I'm not too positive (about Buffalo). The coaches told me if I work hard enough, there'll be a position for me on the team."

Fields indicated the Oilers may ask him to lose some weight before the season opens. The 6-foot-6 lineman played at 347 pounds in the Senior Bowl last January.

FIVE U-M PLAYERS SELECTED TUESDAY

Familiar faces among draftees

By THE STATE NEWS and UPI

Eleven players from Michigan colleges were among those drafted in the initial eight rounds of the National Football League draft Tuesday and Wednesday.

Three MSU players — Eugene Byrd, Angelo Fields and Mark Brammer — along with five players from the University of Michigan and another from Central Michigan University, were taken in the first six rounds.

Wolverine defensive tackle Curtis Greer was picked by the St. Louis Cardinals in the first round. One round later, St. Louis picked U-M's tight end Doug Marsh.

Wolverine wide receiver Ralph Clayton went to the New York Jets in the second round. The Jets' initial pick in the draft was another wide receiver, the University of Texas' Johnny "Lam" Jones.

Two U-M defensive backs, Mike Jolly and Mike

Harden, were picked, respectively, in the fourth round by the New Orleans Saints and the fifth round by the Denver Broncos.

CMU quarterback Gary Hogeboom went to the Dallas Cowboys in the fifth round.

Another in-state player was among the selections early Wednesday. Northern Michigan University quarterback Todd Krueger was selected by the Buffalo Bills in round eight. Larry Savage of MSU was picked by Dallas in the same round.

The Detroit Lions' second selection (behind top draftee Billy Sims) is a familiar face to MSU fans. The University of Indiana's Mike Friede averaged more than 24 yards per catch as a wide receiver in 1978, but caught only 17 passes last season due to injury problems.

Finally! MSU wins both ends of a twinbill

By ED BRADLEY

State News Sports Writer

"Two in a row! I can't believe it!" senior outfielder Ken Robinson quipped to a teammate.

"Two in a row! It's about time!" was head coach Danny Litwhiler's reaction.

What were these men smiling about? It just was that MSU's baseball team accomplished Wednesday what it could not do all season. It won a doubleheader. Oakland University was the unfortunate victim, falling 4-0 and 2-1 at Kobs Field.

THE HOME TEAM finally put together steady pitching and timely hitting to down the Pioneers, owners of a 10-5-2 record and .321 batting average entering the twinbill.

"We're perked up now. We're playing good ball," said MSU assistant coach Frank Pellerin after his team raised its record to 9-24.

Freshman Terry Johnson, 4-3, and junior Phil Magsig shut off the Pioneers in game one, allowing just four safeties.

Sophomore catcher Eric Payk added the offensive punch. He singled three times in as many at bats, scored two runs, drove in a third and threw out a would-be base stealer. All this after just 14 previous at bats all season.

Heroes for the Spartans in game two were pitcher Jay Strother and infielder Tom Dieters.

DIETERS, WHOSE FATHER and brother coach the Pioneers, went hitless and struck out twice in the first game of the family rivalry. But in the nightcap, he drove in the tying run and scored the winning tally — all on one play.

With MSU down 1-0 entering the last of the fifth, Payk reached base on an error. With two out, Dieters laced a double down the right-field line, scoring pinch-runner Mike Cudnohufsky. When the second baseman's relay throw to third went wild, Dieters scooted home with the tie-breaker.

"I was pressing a bit in the first game," said freshman Dieters. "I was nervous. But (in the second game) I hit a fastball on the outside corner and poked it to the opposite field."

BEFORE AND AFTER the Spartans' winning rally, Strother was mowing down the visitors. He had relieved starter Brian James in the third inning and did not allow a baserunner thereafter.

"He pitched well," said Pellerin of Strother, 2-5. It had been 10 days since the senior appeared in a game.

Three pitchers appeared for Oakland in the second game, but it was freshman Bob Watson, 2-2, who took the loss.

Tigers edge Rangers in 10

DETROIT (UPI) — Lance Parrish grounded reliever Danny Darwin's first pitch into center field with two out in the 10th inning Wednesday to score pinch-runner Tom Brookens from second base and give the Detroit Tigers a 5-4 victory over the Texas Rangers. Reliever Sparky Lyle, 1-1, gave up a one-out single to Richie Hebner and Brookens moved to second on a walk to Dave Stegman. One out later Darwin relieved and Parrish singled.

SMAIAW tourney next for softball Spartans

By BEN WELMERS
State News Sports Writer

Coming off last weekend's four-game sweep, including a shutout victory over Big Ten champion Indiana University, the MSU softball squad heads to Allendale for the 1980 state championships today through Saturday.

The 17-11 Spartans are seeded second in eight teams in Division I, which includes No. 1 seeded defending champion Western Michigan University, Central Michigan University (No. 3) and No. 4 University of Michigan.

THE SPARTANS WERE scheduled to meet WMU twice this season but both twinbills were rained out.

"Western is the team to beat," said Spartan third baseman Michel VanHowe. "They've won it the last two years and they have a strong team again this year."

"Everyone is fired up after last weekend. Beating Indiana helped. Any time we can beat Indiana we know we're playing well."

but said it would be difficult to predict the outcome.

"EVERYONE IS KEYED UP," Becksford said. "It's the state championships. They (the players) know they have to go out and do the job."

"It's hard to say what will happen, though, because all of the teams in the state have split so far this season so things are pretty even. But we have improved. We seem to be hitting better now."

Division I diamond action begins Thursday with double elimination bracket play featuring Western against Eastern Michigan University and Michigan against the University at Detroit at 1 p.m. The Spartans face Oakland University and Central Michigan plays Wayne State University at 3 p.m. Saturday.

The tournament is sponsored by the State of Michigan Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women and is hosted by Grand Valley State Colleges.

The Spartans defeated Grand Valley, Wayne State and Northern Illinois universities as well as Indiana last weekend. First year coach Gloria Becksford agreed the team is up for the tournament

Golfers
'no worse than 2nd'

By BILL TEMPLETON
State News Sports Writer
With two of her players assured of their spots and four others to be named on the basis of Wednesday playoff scores, MSU women's golf coach Mary Fossum is set to leave today for Columbus, Ohio and the Big Ten championships.

Lisa Speaker

"I really feel strongly that we will be no worse than second," Fossum said about where she feels her squad will finish in the conference tourney. "It is just that Ohio State is the team to beat all the time now."

As it stood Wednesday, senior co-captain Ann Atwood and sophomore Lisa Speaker were the linkswomen to gain exemptions for the 36-hole event to be held Friday and Saturday.

ATWOOD EARNED HER berth via her strong play in the Southern Intercollegiate last weekend in Athens, Ga., while Speaker won her spot by shooting 80 Monday on the Forest Akers West course.

"Lisa had 78 on the OSU course earlier this year and she plays it well," Fossum said. "Behind them, there are a couple of 84s, and 85 and 86 and some 87s, so it's close. We're just looking for our most competitive team."

The Spartans will have to be at their best this weekend to beat the Buckeyes at home. Ohio State's Rosie Jones is "on her way to being an All-American," according to Fossum. Jones won three tournaments this fall.

Besides Jones, the Buckeyes have four other players who average in the mid-70s.

"WE JUST WANNA play well and let the chips fall where they may," Fossum added. "We can stand to be beaten when we play as well as we can."

Fossum said other teams to watch would be Indiana University and the University of Minnesota. "Both schools have a couple of good players," Fossum said, "but neither has the depth that we do."

MSU placed third at the league tourney in 1979, one which the Spartans hosted. Fossum's team won the Big Ten title two years ago.

Tuesday was the first day this spring the linkswomen have been afforded the chance to practice at home, and their coach liked what she saw during the session.

"I was really pleased at how well they are all hitting the ball," Fossum said. "It used to be when there were just a couple of good swings on our team and now there are six or seven."

"Now we've just gotta get them to think better, and I think that's something a lot of us need practice on."

Women
tracksters
recovering

By BEN WELMERS
State News Sports Writer
With two runners returning to the roster from among the injured, the Spartan women tracksters will travel to Minneapolis, Minn., this weekend in an attempt to better last year's third-place finish in the Big Ten Outdoor Championships.

Pam Sedwick

Head coach Nell Jackson said she expects the defending champion University of Wisconsin to provide the toughest competition at the annual meet.

"Based on their indoor performance," Jackson said, "Wisconsin will be strong again. They have a lot of depth. Our goal is to place second."

Jackson also said Ohio State University, which finished second in the Big Ten last year, and the University of Michigan have also fielded good teams this season.

"Traditionally Ohio State has placed well in the Big Ten," Jackson said, and Michigan looked good last weekend in the Becky Boone Relays, which the Wolves won.

"Of course we didn't have our distance runners there," she added. "But they (Michigan) looked good in the events they placed in."

The Spartans sent only their sprinters and middle-distance runners to the Boone relays and finished in second place with 74 points behind Michigan with 80.

Meanwhile the distance runners and shotput, discus and javelin throwers traveled to Mount Pleasant to compete in the Central Michigan Relays.

The Spartans also had five runners on the injured list last week but middle distance specialist Pam Sedwick and distance runner Lisa Berry have returned to action and will make the trip to Minneapolis, Jackson said.

Sedwick holds MSU indoor varsity records in the 400-meter dash, 600-yard run, 600-meter run and shares records in several indoor and outdoor relay events.

She placed third in both the indoor and outdoor Big Ten Championships in the 400-meter dash and placed second in the 800-meter run last year.

Molly Brennen, Cynthia Wadsworth and Debbie Ziehm remain on the injured list.

Gibbs just misses

Marvin Gibbs of the MSU men's gymnastics team competed in the U.S. Gymnastics Federation Nationals over the weekend and placed 24th with a two-day total of 108.25 points.

Gibbs, a junior, scored 53.60 in the compulsories and 54.65 in the optionals. He averaged more than 9.0 for all of his routines.

Diversion pact swaps lock-ups for clean-ups

By MIKE CHAUDHURI
State News Staff Writer

More than 100 people will be avoiding criminal convictions Saturday by cleaning up the downtown Lansing riverfront area.

They are participants in the Ingham County Prosecutor's Diversion Program.

Participants in the program are first-time, non-violent offenders who are given a chance to avoid a criminal conviction by working on community projects, said Gene Matthews, the diversion program director.

The clean-up project will begin this Saturday with a "general clean-up" of the riverfront area, Matthews said.

He said a lot of the work done through the diversion program is menial, but added the program tries to match an individual's talents with a particular job.

One person with a landscape architecture background will be devoting his time to designing a plan to beautify the area, he said.

The project, an idea of Friends of the River, will probably continue through August, Matthews said. Later in the summer, efforts will be made to remove dead trees hanging above the river, he said. Five or six members of Alpha Phi Omega, an MSU service fraternity, will help at the river by supervising the group, said Beth Holmes, publicity chairperson of the fraternity.

She said the fraternity hopes to get about 25 members to assist in the cleanup.

Matthews said most of the people in the diversion program are shoplifters. Many of the participants are MSU or Lansing Community College students, he added.

The program was initiated in 1975. Since that time, about 1,000 people have gone through the diversion program and avoided criminal prosecution, he said.

In the past, participants have worked on many community projects, including painting of municipal buildings in downtown Lansing, he said.

"Our highest-priority projects are working with senior citizens and handicappers," he added.

He said organizations have often offered diversion participants jobs after they completed their initial "obligation" to the program.

He added many participants volunteer to work longer than is required by the program.

U.P. park is topic of public hearing

A public hearing will be held to discuss development alternatives and collect public comment on Pictured Rocks National Lakeshore in Munising at 7 tonight in 221 Natural Resources Bldg.

Pictured Rocks, located in the Upper Peninsula has become the center of a controversy because of a National Park Service Planning Team program for development of the park.

This hearing will give people the chance to change the planned over-development of the area, said Peter Campbell, of the Friends of Pictured Rocks.

The National Park Service plan includes building hundreds of campsites, five parking lots and miles of roads.

Public hearings have been held this week in Munising, Grand Marais and Marquette on this topic.

The hearing will include a summary of the National Park Service plan, a slide program explaining details of alternatives and time for individual and group discussion.

Don Gillespie, superintendent of Pictured Rocks will preside at the hearing.

migrant camp in the areas of health, nutrition, crafts, and personal appearance.

Anyone who enjoys working with children may contribute his or her services part-time or on a continual basis.

"We need volunteers of all ages and skills to teach kids various games and skills," said Program Assistant Denise Shattuck.

Persons interested should contact the Mason 4-H office, 127 E. Maple St., before June 16.

'Tel-An-Alum' raises $70,000

The MSU Student Foundation received nearly $70,000 in pledges in its third annual "Tel-An-Alum" fundraising campaign that ended Tuesday night.

The figure represents a record for the foundation, surpassing previous figures by nearly $45,000.

The foundation spent 27 hours over nine nights in the past three weeks telephoning MSU alumni in Michigan. The foundation concentrated most of its efforts in the Detroit, Kalamazoo and Traverse City areas of the state.

Unless stipulated by the donor, all funds will go to the University's Development Fund, and will help pay for research programs and scholarships for MSU students, said Tom Stelter, Student Foundation coordinator for the event.

"We wanted to show (Alumni that) students do more than just party all the time," he said, adding he was pleased that nearly 400 students were involved in the event.

Midnight Ramblings

Click! Still more news. Hey, there's Walter. What a great vice president he'd make. Instead of being invisible for four years like all of our other VPs, Cronkite could give us a State Of The World message every night at 11. And, hey, you know something? I'd believe him. Everything he said — no questions asked. Walter wouldn't lie to us. No way. And wouldn't it be great to have him there every night to tuck us all in real comfy like?

In fact, if Anderson were smart, the minute he got into office he would kick out all the idiots and start from scratch. He could put Mister Rogers in as Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare ("Do you know how to spell welfare?" I know you do.), and Lou Grant would make a great Secretary of State. Let's see, what's left? Secretary of the Interior? You could get what's his name from Wild Kingdom to do that. Secretary of Housing and Urban Development? How about Mr. Belvedere? Mr. Ed would make a great Secretary of Agriculture, and he wouldn't make a bad Secretary of Transportation, either. Anderson could even get Don Pardo to make all those announcements about Iran.

Sleep. Photon Shields Down. All Systems Off.

... and that's the way it is, Thursday, May 1, 1980. For President Anderson and the government of the United States, this has been Walter Cronkite. Good night, America."

Carter to begin campaigning

Carter's challenger for the Democratic presidential nomination, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, has demanded repeatedly that the president "get out of the Rose Garden" and debate the campaign issues with him.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said the decision does not mean Carter will debate Kennedy, his chief rival for the nomination, because "he sees no purpose to be gained by a debate at this point in the campaign."

But Powell said, "He does intend, if he is the Democratic nominee, to debate the nominee of the Republican party, if the Republican nominee will do that."

CARTER WAS ASKED by a Democratic National Committee official who was in the audience whether he was about to "get out into the countryside." Carter replied, "Yes, and explained that he had stayed in the White House "a long time . . . under extraordinary circumstances."

He said "a lot of responsibilities" that had been on his shoulders "now have been alleviated to some degree."

Citing recent accomplishments, the president observed that an effort to rescue the American hostages in Tehran had been attempted and that the administration's case for support has made to the Western allies and Japan.

He said that economic sanctions against Iran are in place and that he will keep the plight of the hostages before the American public.

"We've also completed our anti-inflation proposals to Congress and they seem well on the way to being accepted," he said.

Carter also said his energy program, including the tax on "windfall profits" and the Energy Mobilization Board is "in good shape."

Bodies center of political controversy

Iranian assets ordered frozen by President Carter last November.

In another development, the Iranian news agency Pars reported clashes between Iranian and Iraqi forces at six locations on the Iran-Iraq border, including an area near Paveh, 300 miles west of Tehran. There were no reports on casualties.

Border tensions between Iran and Iraq erupted into hostilities earlier this month.

Beheshti, who is justice minister and first secretary of the ruling Revolutionary Council, heads the Islamic Republican Party, which is trying to undercut the strength of Bani-Sadr in order to solidify the dominance of the Moslem clergy in Iran.

After the Americans' bodies were recovered over the weekend, Beheshti said the council would decide their disposition. His party's newspaper called for a barter — the bodies in exchange for the release of some $8 billion in

Iranian assets ordered frozen by President Carter last November.

But Bani-Sadr later said the bodies would be handed over to the intermediaries without precondition.

Addressing a Tehran news conference Wednesday, Beheshti said Iran does not want money for the bodies. But he said the repatriation of the remains "must be decided either by the Imam (Khomeini) or the Revolutionary Council.

WHEN A REPORTER suggested that keeping bodies is against Islamic morality, Beheshti replies, "Islam is based on the morality of humanity and nothing has been conducted but Islamic morality."

The bearded cleric did not elaborate on the plans for the bodies, but he left the clear impression that the transfer might be held up.

greatly reduce the chance of making mistakes when tabulating the pay of each commissioner, Sobel said.

In other action, the board approved the next step in the construction of an addition to the Ingham Medical Center.

IN ADDITION, IT will greatly reduce the chance of making mistakes when tabulating the pay of each commissioner, Sobel said.

The board approved the next step in the construction of an addition to the Ingham Medical Center.

The Board voted to give tentative approval to the medical center, declaring its intent to issue revenue bonds to fund the project.

John Soderholm, executive vice president of Ingham Medical Center, said the center wants to increase intensive care facilities as well as improve the emergency room.

Construction is expected to begin this fall and open sometime in 1982.

Solar

Currently one-third of the heating for the house is provided by the greenhouse, according to Charley Ipear of Urban Options.

The sun's heat is transmitted to rocks in the greenhouse which heat the air in the house. Drums of water cool the room during the day, storing the heat, which is released during the night, Ipear said.

More greenhouse workshops are planned for this summer, Eveleigh said.

Women's programs

"There has come a point in my life and my career when I have to do that."

Algra said there will be problems and issues that will take "longer to resolve."

One of these may be determining the role of the women's program director in affirmative action and Title IX concerns. Since Pollock was fired, these duties have been transferred from the Office of Women's Programs to a separate affirmative action official, Lou Anna Simon, who serves as an assistant to the president.

Although Algra said she will have to find out "who is responsible for what," her role in these concerns might be advisory.

"This is not to say we (Algra and Simon) will not work together," she said. "Women may find it easier to talk to me with affirmative action concerns."

"I might be able to intervene — start the process going," she said.

Pollock's firing and the resignation of Cottledge do not appear to discourage Algra. She said it is important to distinguish between the role of the director now and the role Pollock had before she was fired.

"THE GREATEST FEAR I have had has been that people would be unable to differentiate from the individual woman and the job at that time," Algra said. "The job has changed from the time that she was there and what I'm entering now. That has an impact too."

"I'm not going to be Mary Pollock and they can't expect that from me," she said. "I might not have the same style she did handling problems as they came up."

Algra's primary goals, in addition to re-establishment of communication channels, are directed at education of students, faculty and employees on women's issues. She said on-going seminars and conferences are in her plans for the program.

Algra stressed the importance of communication in her position within the University and the women's community. She said women come to her with their concerns.

ASMSU OK's plan

ly," ASMSU Comptroller Terry Buckley told the board at its previous meeting.

BUCKLEY TOLD THE board ASMSU had taken a $350 loss on a loan made to a coffeehouse. That loan was made without ASMSU securing any collateral. He also said the MSU Sailing Club still owes $2,800 on a $7,000 loan taken out several years ago and the Interooperative Council owes ASMSU $846.

"We are using the loan policy as a guideline for the loan we are given the MSU Crew Club," Buckley said.

The board approved a $4,000 loan to the Crew Club for a racing shell, Buckley said.

Social science representative Paul Schwartz said he favored the new policy because he said a business-like approach is necessary in handing out loans so students' tax money can be protected.

Arts and letters representative Henry Sosa attempted to have the bill amended so it contained the words "should" in four places instead of the worlds "shall."

SOSA SAID THE language in the policy was too strict and that it should be set up more as guidelines than regulations.

"I think the present Student Board should have the right to allocate money to who they want to," Sosa said. Sosa and Off-Campus Council representative Ken Parrish were the only board members who opposed the policy.

A bill to give the Senior Class Council $250 to fund their 1980 banquet was passed by a large margin. An amendment by Sosa to increase the funding by $100 failed by a 5-6 vote.

RHA representative Loretta Brichen opposed the increased amount of funding and blasted the SCC for poor planning.

"IF YOU ARE going to have an event in the spring, you should start planning on it in the fall," Brichen said. "So the 25 top seniors don't get $10.25 dinners. You can still honor them with a buffet," Brichen said.

"I think they need to learn a lesson this year," she added.

ASMSU had awarded SCC $250 earlier in the term. In other action, the board voted unanimously to allocate $700 so ASMSU could begin its own newspaper — The Impact.

After board secretary Scott Johnston announced that the vote was unanimous, Sosa attempted to change his vote on the measure. Sosa cited his policy against unanimous votes as the reason for his vote change. When Chairperson Bruce Studer would not allow Sosa to change his vote, Sosa complained.

"I'll vote no on everything for the next month if you don't let me change my vote," Sosa said.

Impact will come out with its first and only issue of the term on May 22. ASMSU Information Director Raean Watts will serve as editor of the newspaper.

Watts said ASMSU will print 4,000 copies of the 16-page issue and distribute them in several buildings around campus. The board voted by a two-thirds majority to rescind the bill calling for the proposed ASMSU blimp and passed a bill that would suggest to the All-University Elections Commission some ways of increasing the visibility of ASMSU elections.
