Islamic Party wins the majority

By The Associated Press

The Islamic Republican Party and its hardline clerical allies have won a majority in the runoff round of the Iranian parliamentary election, Tehran radio said Sunday. Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini appeared to be tightening controls over the military and the press.

The Iranian revolutionary leader has said the new Parliament will decide the fate of the American hostages. Many Islamic Republicans say the captives should go on trial as spies if deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, in exile in Egypt, is not returned to Iran to face charges of murder and corruption.

The Islamic Republican Party won 50 of 98 seats in the Parliament that were decided in the first round of voting March 14. Returns from Friday's second round showed that the IRP had won 60 of the 124 seats decided as of midday Sunday. Most of the other winners were independents, including Moslem fundamentalists expected to support the IRP. The radio report of a majority appeared to include some of these fundamentalists winners in the count.

The second round of voting in 23 districts has been postponed because of anti-government unrest in those areas. But the constitution allows the 270-seat Parliament to convene once 180 members are elected.

A Beirut-based newsletter reported Sunday that Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh expressed fears to Arab leaders that a long economic blockade by the West could force Tehran to turn to Moscow for help.

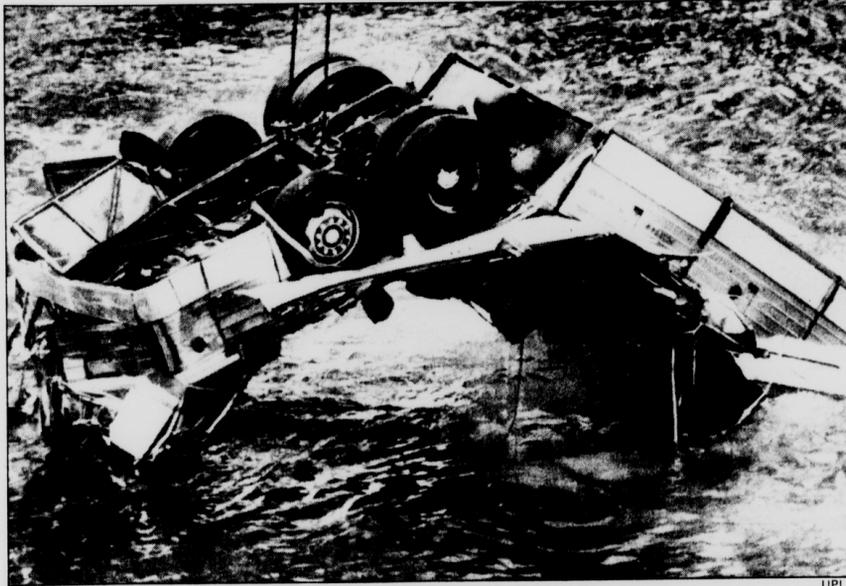

An-Hahar Arab Report said that during a recent Mideast tour, "Ghotbzadeh belied the air of self-confidence which he assumed in public one has with his Arab hosts. The Arab leaders adopted an ambiguous attitude to Ghotbzadeh's pleas for help."

The United States has cut diplomatic and economic ties with Iran to pressure it into releasing the 53 American hostages. America's allies have promised to step up pressure on Iran by May 17 if "decisive progress" is not made toward releasing the captives.

Irish diplomat Sean MacBride was quoted by the Sunday Times of London as saying a secret draft agreement for the hostages' release was all but ready in late March when it was wrecked by Ghotbzadeh and White House aide Hamilton Jordan, who were holding their own secret talks.

The Iranian Foreign Ministry denied that Ghotbzadeh and Jordan held secret talks in Europe.

The hostages, reportedly scattered among 13 Iranian cities after the mission, spent their 190th day in captivity Sunday.

The ill-fated Greyhound bus is pulled from the waters under the main span of the Sunshine Skyway Bridge Sunday. Twenty-five bodies and one survivor have been recovered since Friday night when the bus plummeted into the water after a tanker hit the bridge, knocking out the main span. Officials estimate the death toll to be 33.

More bodies found under Fla. bridge

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The shattered wreckage of a Greyhound bus and a mangled automobile were pulled out of Tampa Bay on Sunday, revealing yet another submerged vehicle as workers searched grimly for more victims of the Sunshine Skyway Bridge disaster.

As wreckage was pulled to the surface, divers recovered six bodies — two that floated out of the bus, two from a submerged car that had to be cut open after being raised to a barge, and two others from a car which divers discovered buried beneath the bus. Authorities said the latest victims were three men and three women.

They raised to 25 the number of bodies recovered by Sunday afternoon.

"An additional car that we didn't know about was spotted when the bus was moved," said Hillsborough County sheriff's Maj. Cal Henderson.

A crane hooked to the rear axle of the bus lifted it from 50 feet of water to the deck of a barge, officials said.

The six bodies were taken to an operations center on Mullet Key. There, they were given last rites by a Roman Catholic priest.

Eighteen bodies, all believed from the bus — which carried 23 persons — were recovered within hours of the accident Friday morning, but 55 hours passed before more could be pulled to the surface. Swift currents and a 40-foot section of bridge dangling overhead hampered efforts to pry loose bodies the divers could see trapped inside.

The crane and a crew of hard-hat divers continued to probe tons of wreckage that plunged into the bay when a 1,400-foot section of the towering structure collapsed Friday after being struck by a freighter. The bus, several cars and a pickup truck were known to have tumbled 15 stories into the murky waters below.

Officials had said at least 30 persons were killed when the center span of the bridge gave way after it was rammed by the Summit Venture, a 609-foot phosphate freighter heading into port in a violent, blinding squall. The two bodies in the car under the bus had not been seen before and would raise the count to 32.

Before the lifting operation, it was known that the bus, a pickup truck and three other cars had tumbled off the broken bridge in the blinding rain.

Sheriff's deputies said they had no clues to the identities of at least five victims.

Twenty-three people were aboard the Chicago-to-Miami bus.

The bus came to rest upside down atop a pile of bent steel and chunks of concrete which plummeted to the water from the 15-mile long bridge linking St. Petersburg and Terra Ceia along Florida's central Gulf Coast.

Tampa Bay harbor pilot John Lerro was guiding the Summit Venture through the 600-foot wide shipping channel when it hit the bridge. The Coast Guard said Lerro was involved in two other accidents in the past five months.

Democrats finish slate of delegates

By SUSAN TOMPOR
State News Staff Writer

Michigan Democrats Saturday put the finishing touches on their slate of delegates to the 1980 presidential convention, adding such Lansing notables as Sixth District U.S. Rep. Bob Carr.

Carr, who will be an at-large delegate for President Carter, was selected by district delegates and members of the State Central Committee. Carr's selection was part of a process which included the naming of 13 add-on delegates from the ranks of party leaders, and 32 at-large delegates from across the state.

At-large delegates are selected to guarantee women, minorities and special interest groups adequate representation at the convention.

Add-on delegates, being used for the first time at the 1980 convention, are reserved spots for state party officials and influential party members.

The 141-member delegation, which will be headed by Michigan Democratic Party Chairperson Libby Maynard, is apportioned according to the April 26 caucus vote of 71-70, in favor of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy. Party rules mandate that delegates will be committed to their presidential candidate for the first convention ballot this August in New York City.

Also selected Saturday were Kennedy add-on party delegates; including Attorney General Frank J. Kelly; state House Speaker Bobby Crim, D-Davidson; and former state Democratic Chairperson Morley Winograd of Troy.

Add-on delegates include Secretary of State Richard Austin and Michigan AFL-CIO President William C. Marshall of East Lansing.

FGO will rule on delay

By LOUISE WHALL
State News Staff Writer

Acting Faculty Grievance Official Bruce Miller decided Friday he will determine whether the economics department can carry out its grievance against the provost without delay.

Miller, acting on the advice of the University Committee on Faculty Affairs, decided after a Thursday night hearing that he will rule on the provost's request for a delay.

The department filed the grievance against Provost Clarence L. Winder because he gave John R. Hildebrand an "economics-related" assignment after the department had rejected the appointment.

Miller and UCFA had originally scheduled the hearing Thursday to choose a panel to hear the grievance. Miller delayed the selection after he received a letter from Winder, which questioned the appropriateness of hearing a grievance at this time.

C. Patric "Lash" Larowe, the current FGO, had disqualified himself from his position because he is a professor in the economics department. Larowe, then acting as co-counsel for the department, was also asked to disqualify himself from that because he is still technically the FGO.

Instead of a discussion about whether the FGO is the proper person to act on the provost's request for a delay, much of the hearing Thursday dealt with the validity of the grievance itself.

Winder, stating his case first, said the Interim Faculty Grievance Procedure allows the FGO to delay a grievance for "just and demonstrable cause." He said MSU legal counsel have advised him not to participate in a grievance hearing because the case of John T. Hildebrand versus MSU is still under litigation.

Walter Adams, a distinguished professor of economics acting as counsel for his department, argued that the grievance is a University matter unrelated to the court case. He said the department understands that the provost is responsible to the needs of the entire University.

But the department cannot sit idly by while the provost engages in a "arbitrary, capricious and flagrant violation of hallowed academic tradition," Adams said.

Adams also argued that the grievance is an internal affair and that judicial interference in such matters traditionally has been avoided.

In his closing remarks, Adams said the grievance would be unnecessary if the provost would rescind Hildebrand's reinstatement order and possibly negotiate the matter.

Winder replied that Adams' remarks went well beyond the issue and said the court order to reinstate Hildebrand had necessitated the economics department's grievance.

Adams asked Winder to provide a copy of any formal document from the MSU attorneys suggesting Winder should not take part in the proceedings. He also said the MSU General Counsel could not be asked about Winder's statements because the lawyer was not present. Adams said a University Hearing Board — not the FGO — should decide whether the provost's request to delay should be granted.

Miller has asked both sides to present written arguments by Tuesday to defend their positions on the request for delay. He will hear the oral arguments on Wednesday. The meeting to select the hearing panel was rescheduled for Thursday, pending the outcome of Wednesday's hearing.

MSU grad recovering

The MSU graduate who was being held hostage in the Iranian Embassy in London when it was stormed by commandos last week is recovering from bullet wounds at a British hospital.

Gholam-Ali Afrooz, charge d'affaires at the embassy, told the New York Times Thursday that there "was no parallel at all" between the takeover of the Iranian Embassy and the continued holding of 50 Americans in Tehran.

Afrooz said the American hostages in Iran "have been our guests," the Times reported.

"They know that the students holding them are not going to kill them," he said. "Here, they threatened to kill us every hour. It was terrible, emotionally and physically, for us."

Afrooz, one of two former hostages still hospitalized as of Thursday, said he had tried to escape early in the siege but was pulled back after jumping part of the way out a second-story window. He said he was closely guarded after that.

Afrooz earned his master's and doctorate degrees in special education at MSU between the summers of 1974 and 1978.

BUSH: Stalking the elusive interview while playing in the minor league

By SUSAN TOMPOR
State News Staff Writer

"Bush is going to be at Jim's Tiffany tomorrow. Check it out."

It was a simple enough request from the newly ordained city editor to the former-C.E.-turned-elections-reporter.

After a year of correcting spelling mistakes, the time had come to dust off the nylons, the notebook and the smile, and hit the streets.

Knowing nothing more than presidential hopeful George Bush was to be at the Lansing restaurant at 4:15 p.m. Friday, I prepared a list of questions and jetted out the newsroom with State News photographer Tony Dugal.

Dugal, who had another assignment that day at the Capitol, dropped me off on Michigan Avenue a block away from Jim's and planned to meet me there. Fearful that I wouldn't get a chance to talk to Bush at the restaurant, I combed the streets in hopes that I would see Bush handshaking his way into town.

And while I looked for Bush, I looked for the familiar blue-suited Secret Service agents.

Seeing two such men pacing in front of Jim's, I knew my orders were correct.

Confidently, I went inside and strolled up to the head waiter and proclaimed that I was here to see Bush.

Solemnly, the waiter said: "Up the stairs and make a sharp right."

Following his directions, I met with seven or so very tall, very strong and very straight-faced men in dark blue suits.

"Hi, I'm from The State News."

"What are you here for?"

"Bush."

I had found the secret password and they let me stay.

But Bush was nowhere to be seen and because Secret Service men do not like to talk, I was forced to make conversation with the only photographer present.

"Got a shooter?" he asked.

"He's coming in a minute," I replied, hoping that none of the seven or so men misconstrued that we were talking about anything but a photographer.

We then exchanged identities that included the papers we were representing.

"Hey, I thought this was a meeting just for Panax," he said.

"Guess not," I asserted.

Because the State News isn't connected with that media conglomerate, I began to worry.

I decided to look for Dugal and went outside, simultaneously searching for a man hoping to be president and a man hoping to get his picture.

As I walked back to the restaurant, I saw two Lansing patrol cars, one Ingham County Sheriff's car and a crowd of screaming hands. Bush had arrived and I was a block away.

Bush was soon upstairs and two men in dark suits were stationed at the stairwell.

"Hi, I'm from The State News."

They weren't impressed. "Got any I.D.?"

Well, I had them there — one MSU student I.D. card and one slightly tattered Bush press pass from a Lansing Capital City Airport news conference more than a week ago.

It didn't work — the boss from upstairs said "no" and proclaimed this was a "private" meeting with Panax.

I gazed upstairs in disbelief. I saw Dugal.

Disheartened, I scuffed my way to the phone. Soon to follow was Dugal.

"I was getting ready to take a shot and one of them grabbed my arm," he said.

It didn't matter, though, he got a shot of Bush earlier with the owner of the restaurant.

I had nothing.

"What are you going to do?" he asked. "I didn't know, but I knew I wasn't going home — not empty (continued on page 12)"

Presidential candidate George Bush (right) is greeted by Angelos Vlahakis, owner of Jim's Tiffany restaurant in downtown Lansing Friday.

'Flotilla' claims 8th victim

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Thousands more refugees, including more than 600 in one boat, streamed across the Florida Straits on Sunday as the rejuvenated, ragtag "Freedom Flotilla" claimed its eighth victim.

The Coast Guard rescued 265 refugees from overloaded vessels Sunday and one refugee said as many as 2,000 inmates were released from a prison to come to the United States.

The eighth victim, a man in his late 50s, was picked up by a Coast Guard cutter from a 24-foot boat that was en route to Key West from the Cuban port of Mariel with no refugees, said Coast Guard Lt. J.G. Nimick.

"The boat apparently had lost its way and the crew was disoriented. They saw a tugboat pulling a barge and went over to ask directions," Nimick said. "They accidentally ran into the tow line and the man suffered a severed jugular vein. He had bled to death when we arrived."

The man's identity was withheld pending notification of relatives.

Auto industry to rebound?

DETROIT (AP) — Most U.S. automakers will see "a dramatic industry recovery" by 1983, a new Wall Street analysis predicts.

Over the next three years there will be a "sustained surge" in sales as the companies turn out new fuel-efficient cars "far superior" to present models, according to David Eisenberg, analyst for the brokerage firm of Sanford C. Bernstein & Co. Inc.

Higher prices for all cars and a comeback of larger cars with improved mileage will mean soaring profits for General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. and "fairly large" profit growth at American Motors Corp., according to Eisenberg's analysis distributed recently by the brokerage firm.

"Chrysler's situation is virtually without hope," Eisenberg said, although the company can recover somewhat through the 1981 model year with government help.

By 1983, Chrysler's financial situation should be "far worse than it is today," he said.

"Accordingly, a merger or a joint venture with a foreign automotive company, or perhaps even Ford, seems inevitable."

Church bombing trial begins

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — White supremacist J.B. Stoner goes on trial Monday for a dynamite blast at a black Baptist church almost 22 years ago, a case sure to resurrect ghosts of Birmingham's troubled past.

It was on a summer's night in 1958 that the bomb exploded outside the Bethel Baptist Church, a focal point of the then-fledgling civil rights movement.

No one was injured in the explosion, which was one of more than 50 church bombings that rocked Birmingham in the late 1950s and early '60s, inspiring the nickname "Bombingham."

The almost-forgotten incident was revived in September 1977 by then-Attorney General Bill Baxley, who obtained an indictment from a Jefferson County grand jury charging Stoner with "setting off dynamite dangerously near an inhabited dwelling."

Soviets ask for 'dialogue'

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet press broke months of harsh attacks on the Carter administration Sunday to declare that a "frank and honest dialogue" was needed to normalize Soviet-American relations.

The statement, published by the official news agency Tass, the Communist Party daily Pravda and other important newspapers, came only five days before U.S. Secretary of State Edmund Muskie was to meet in Vienna with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

It was the clearest Soviet call for renewed talks since President Leonid I. Brezhnev blasted President Carter as "an absolutely unreliable partner in interstate ties" last Jan. 12.

Protesters cause damage

NEW YORK (AP) — Two men were charged Sunday with damaging the Statue of Liberty after they descended from the metal robes of the national monument where they had nested for 24 hours to protest the treatment of a California convict.

Edwin Drummond, 35, and Stephen Rutherford, 31, were taken into custody and charged with criminal trespass and damaging government property after leaving the 305-foot-tall statue. The National Park Service said the pair's climb caused $80,000 damage.

'Embargo would hurt Soviet military'

Igor Birman

By DON CALDWELL
State News Staff Writer

The United States should impose a total trade embargo against the Soviet Union to reduce the Soviet military threat, a former Soviet economic planner said Friday.

Igor Birman, who currently works for the U.S. Department of Commerce, said the grain embargo President Carter ordered as a response to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan should only be a first step.

"The real choice of Soviet rulers is how to distribute very limited resources between non-military segments of the population — the task to raise the standard of living — and military expenditures," Birman said in a talk on "The Soviet Economy: Today and Tomorrow."

"If the economy is not growing it's that much harder for them to take money from the Soviet economy," said Birman, who immigrated to the United States in 1974.

THE SOVIET LEADERSHIP could cut military expenditures, withdraw troops from Afghanistan, not try to intervene in Africa and instead, use the country's resources to feed the people, Birman said. It does not, however, choose to do that, he added.

"I'm very unhappy that governments of South America sold the Soviets grain, but I'm happy that they didn't sell enough."

A former member of the Communist Party in the Soviet Union, Birman now considers himself a "hard-liner."

"Their guns are loaded," he said. "I can never forget that there are enough bombs to destroy us."

The Soviet people would live better if the Soviet Union spent less money on armaments, he said.

Birman said the Soviet economy is beset with problems, including very slow technological progress, poor management and lack of incentive for workers.

A lack of skilled labor, along with no unemployment, slows the growth of the Soviet economy, Birman said.

"THIS VERY SIMPLE fact — lack of labor — actually determines that the Soviet Union's economy cannot grow fast enough," he said.

"Unemployment is not bad for the economy," he said "because workers in the Soviet Union do not compete for jobs. He said, "No matter how bad you do it you're not fired."

Workers are not motivated to earn more money because there is nothing to buy with it, Birman maintained. "People do not want to work and the government does not know how to force or stimulate them to."

Birman said the Soviet Union's planned economy is failing because its management depends mostly on common sense. Common sense worked well when the economy was smaller, but an expanding, modern system needs more sophisticated management, he said.

And, while labor and management problems trouble the economy, the real "Achilles' heel" of the Soviet economy is agriculture, Birman added.

"FARMERS WANT TO work less than workers," he charged. "It's a real problem."

Although a vast majority of the farm land in the Soviet Union is collectively owned, the small number of private plots supply almost one-third of the agricultural production, he said.

While Birman said he sympathizes with Soviet dissidents, he added most Soviet people must worry more about what they will get to eat than about their political freedom.

"I think the Soviet dissidents are not the real threat to the Soviet government," he said. "I think the real threat is the condition of the Soviet economy."

"Just living in the Soviet Union is much worse than living in the West."

Birman added that the recent rush of Cuban immigrants to the United States is another example of the failure of economic systems like the Soviet Union's.

"How many people have emigrated from America to the wonderful Soviet economy recently?" he asked. "Name one."

Carr blasts energy mobilization agreement

By MARK FELLOWS
State News Staff Writer

Sixth district U.S. Rep. Bob Carr Friday criticized a compromise House-Senate committee energy mobilization agreement, terming it ultimately ineffective and a debasement of the constitutional protection of states' rights.

The compromise is an outgrowth of President Carter's request last year for a federal mechanism which would speed up energy projects by streamlining bureaucratic decisions involving planning and regulation.

The legislation represents a "power grab" by the federal government, the Michigan Democrat said, as well as perhaps threatening public health and safety.

Projects covered by the legislation would include any projects that can be defined as energy-related, such as coal-fired generation plants. Eliminating red tape through exempting projects from regulation would help get energy to the public more quickly, proponents say.

THE "FAST-TRACK" AGREEMENT reached in late April by the joint committee gives a presidentially-appointed, three-member Energy Mobilization Board power to suspend state and local laws and certain federal regulations affecting energy projects.

Carr said Saturday he objects to the compromise bill on constitutional grounds because in the past legislation to nullify state laws had to be passed by Congress and signed by the president.

"If I were a state attorney general, I would sue to void the bill," Carr said.

The legislation would "give more unbridled power and authority to the board than we have ever given even to the president," including that of wartime domestic authority, Carr said.

Carr also cited pragmatic objections to the bill, saying the "fast-track" would soon become the "slow-track" because more projects would apply for special consideration from the board.

THE RESULT COULD be another bureaucratic mess, Carr said, because the agreement sets no limit on the number of projects eligible for the regulatory fast-track.

The legislation would set up a board and staff to set deadlines for federal, state and local agencies to clear projects and allow the board to enforce them with court injunctions, according to Carr aide Dave Dempsey.

The result, Carr said, would be local governmental units dropping other concerns to meet deadlines.

The board could also force federal regulatory agencies to give fast-track projects higher priority and suspend local regulations, if it decided the action would not endanger public health and safety, he said.

For example, the board could make environmental impact decisions if the Council on Environmental Quality does not meet a deadline set by the board, Dempsey said.

HOWEVER, CERTAIN LAWS enumerated in the agreement would not be subject to waiver by the board.

They include work condition regulations, civil rights laws, primary air quality standards and Native Americans' rights.

Nuclear power is also specifically barred from the fast-track, Carr said.

Although the White House requested Congress to legislate the Energy Mobilization Board concept, conflicting signals from the administration complicated matters on Capitol Hill, Carr said.

This flip-flopping on crucial issues central to the concept of fast-track considerations for energy projects rendered White House efforts meaningless and angered several members of Congress, Carr said.

Carr said the White House had undermined his own version of the bill, which would have coordinated decision making at different levels of government, without overriding federal and state agencies and local laws.

Dempsey said the conference agreement should be submitted by both houses of Congress next month.

'Jewish groups back Bakke decision'

By BILL CORNISH
State News Staff Writer

The Jewish community is a major force attacking the affirmative action movement in the United States, the former labor director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People said Friday.

Herbert Hill, an industrial relations and Afro-American studies professor at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, said that now, when blacks are finally being given their deserved civil rights, major Jewish organizations are charging that affirmative action is creating reverse discrimination.

Affirmative action became "meaningful" with the passing of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, he added. Title VII of the act called for "an affirmative obligation" for equality in the job market.

"Passive nondiscrimination became obsolete," he said, because Title VII forced businesses to give blacks an equal opportunity.

With the 1954 Brown vs. Board of Education case, the courts began to understand that discrimination is a broad issue affecting millions of people, and not just "isolated cases of bigotry or prejudice," Hill stated.

THIS DECISION REQUIRED the establishment of equal educational facilities for blacks and whites.

In the Rhodes vs. Ohio case of 1967, a federal court decision set a precedent for affirmative action. The court ruled that a stated minimum number of non-whites must be hired at every stage of construction done by workers at Ohio State University.

"(This was) the beginning of affirmative action in the judicial form," Hill said.

"Affirmative action is a remedy to right a historic wrong. Relief must go to the whole class (of non-whites)." This is the only answer to the broad problem of discrimination, he said.

Reverse discrimination — affirmative action policies deemed "discriminatory" because they exclude whites — became an issue in the 1970s.

MOST MAJOR JEWISH organizations backed Bakke in the historic Bakke vs. the University of California at Davis case in 1978, Hill said.

"Whites for the first time had to compete with blacks for jobs where for generations there had been no competion." The new laws had an "adverse effect" on the goal of whites, which was to keep blacks in their place, he added.

"Blacks were given what they deserved in the first place, not special preferential treatment as the whites claimed; the whites had the special preferential treatment at the expense of blacks, which the courts now took away."

Jewish organizations were more vocal in their reaction against affirmative action — and their indictment of "reverse discrimination" — than were other white groups, Hill said.

"(This is) a black-white issue. Jewish leadership made a profound mistake" in calling it a Jewish issue, he said.

"AND IT NEEDN'T have been," he added.

"Hypocritical, dishonest, smug racism attacks affirmative action, and the Jewish have taken the leadership in attacking affirmative action in the courts."

The courts have only issued rulings on racial differences, never on religion, Hill said.

"Affirmative action establishes minimums that should be exceeded."

The Jewish "historic involvement with liberalism and the left has come to an end," he added. "The issue of affirmative action is justice."

"I am proud to say" that Jewish people did provide support during the 1960s for a hospital located in a black area of Chicago, Hill said.

DURING THAT TIME, however, black medical students could not get internships at the hospital. When the black community questioned this practice, the Jewish people said that they were also having problems getting jobs, and therefore Jews, should be hired to fill the internships.

The Jewish population charged the blacks with anti-semitism, Hill said, and in their own defense referred to the death of six million Jews in World War Two and their own historical pain.

Jews would be "better served" if they backed affirmative action instead of promoting racism," he added.

CATA plans 'Dime Day'

If the bus driver only charges a dime or hands you a flower next time you ride with Capital Area Transportation Authority, don't be surprised. It is all part of National Transportation Week, being celebrated by CATA May 12 through May 17. "Dime Day," May 14, and "Rider Appreciation Day," May 16, are only two of the week's activities.

The highlight of the week will be the unveiling of the works of art to be on display on CATA's new RTS buses.

The works of local artists will be unveiled at noon today on Allegan Street near the Washington Mall. The works will go on display Tuesday.

Greenhorns learn the ropes

About 50 young wranglers spent most of the day learning the ropes of rodeo skills, MSU style, as the MSU Rodeo Club assisted in a 4-H Rodeo Workshop at the Isabella County Fairgrounds in Mount Pleasant Saturday. Club member Debbie Ferguson noted that rodeo skills need to be promoted at an early age so aspiring rodeo competitors can have a good working knowledge of the sport when they enter their first competitions. CATA to purchase more reliable vans

The Capital Area Transportation Authority will soon be replacing its Spec-Tran vans in hopes that new, more reliable vans will allow the service to handicappers and the elderly to be expanded, said Richard Leonard, manager of planning and grants for CATA.

The service expansion has "been in the works" and the plans center on replacing the existing vans and using taxis during periods of heavy activity.

Paul Green, CATA's marketing manager, said the existing buses are constantly breaking down, making good service difficult.

The new buses, slated to go into operation in June, are better built, more serviceable and generally more reliable than the buses currently in use, Leonard said.

HE SAID the difference between the old and new vans is "like the difference between garbage and a five-course meal."

The vans have had "untold problems," he said, and they were not "good vehicles."

Similar new buses have been successfully used in other cities,

Green said.

CATA officials hope service can be increased because the new buses will be less prone to break-down and because two additional buses will be in operation during peak hours of activity — 7 to 9 a.m. and 4 to 6 p.m.

Leonard added CATA would like to use taxis to back up the vans during periods of high demand and negotiations with the cab companies are already underway.

WE'VE ALREADY BEEN using them in an informal way," he said. He explained that taxis are sometimes called in "crisis situations" if the Spec-Tran vans are unavailable.

"Right now we have a backlog of people who want to use Spec-Tran," Green said. In some cases, he added, rides have to be booked as far as three weeks in advance.

The use of taxis is pending a contract which must be issued by the state and would ease the financial burden of the program, Green said.

He said CATA has no idea when the contract will be approved.

Public hearings held May 1 were beneficial to CATA by providing input from the people who use Spec-Tran vans most often, Green said.

He said CATA had been working on proposals which would expand Spec-Tran service and wanted public input so CATA would not be "planning in a vacuum."

Moratorium declared on late parking tickets

Those who have not paid MSU or East Lansing parking tickets can avoid any late charges or court cost fees during a moratorium set by the East Lansing District Court judge.

During the moratorium, May 12, through May 30, only the original price of parking tickets will be charged, Court Administrator Brian J. Matter said.

Matter said most people will save $8 a ticket during the moratorium. Usually, a $1 late charge and $7 of court costs are added to late tickets, he said.

Matter said the court might make court fees for late tickets higher in the future, and added that people with outstanding tickets could be arrested by police.

The police have become more diligent in arresting people on parking warrants, he said.

About 25,000 parking tickets are now overdue, he said. Crowded court files is a major reason for the moratorium, he said.

The increased volume of tickets paid should make up for the lower amount of money received per ticket, he said.

"It'll probably be a break-even situation," he said.

OPINION

Yugoslavia and its future

Josip Broz Tito was the last of the wartime leaders. As such he symbolized Yugoslavia's successful break from the superpower blocs and the establishment of a truly non-aligned government which could claim more freedom for, and less restrictions on, its people.

Tito's death naturally calls to question the fate of Yugoslavia, which has successfully avoided the arms of the Soviet Union since Tito's break with Stalin in 1948. When Tito finally succumbed to an illness that took months to break his seemingly invincible stamina, analysts immediately speculated on the possibility of heightened tensions between the United States and the Soviet Union, tensions borne of U.S. hope that Yugoslavia remain non-aligned and fears that the Soviets would take care of some unfinished business.

As justified as those fears may be, Yugoslavia's real problems may come from within. The country only recently devised a plan for transfer of power upon Tito's death — a system by which representatives from Yugoslavia's many provinces would assume power on a rotating basis. Such a system may alleviate the possible instability that results when countries lack provisions for political successors. Yugoslavia's only hope is that the country's many nationalities will be able to cooperate and keep the country from falling apart at the seams.

The country Tito shaped after the war is indeed worthy of preservation. In an area surrounded by oppressed Soviet satellites, Yugoslavia functioned as a country of free-market forces, worker self-management and virtually no restrictions on emigration or travel. Tito's biggest problems were nationalistic. The country was formed after World War I out of a small group of Balkan states and several nationalities that suddenly found themselves unified under one state label. The rivalries within were to strain the nation for years to come.

What Tito brought to Yugoslavia will not depart with him. His defiance and independence will hopefully serve as an inspiration to his successors.

New system a boon to jurors

"Jury duty" need not be a pair of four letter words anymore when a new one-week system is instituted within the next 90 days, thanks to a $200,000 federal grant to Michigan.

It is fairly easy, as most professional people know, to get excused by their employers when called to serve jury duty. By decreasing the amount of time a prospective juror must serve, Ingham County Circuit Court administrators hope to attract a "broader cross section" of jurors.

One possible modification is the system currently used in Wayne County — the one-day, one-trial system. This would be a drastic improvement over the current one-month period that may encompass several trials.

Although a new system would greatly benefit potential jurors, it will cause increased paperwork. The court administrators plan to use a portion of the grant to buy sophisticated data processing equipment and hire additional workers. This would ideally eliminate problems associated with a greater workload.

And even though the grant requires matching funds from state and local government, the court administrators have pledged to keep the costs to local government low. Although Ingham and Wayne counties are not comparable in size or the amount of court dockets, we urge the court administrators to seriously consider the system.

In a society where one of the most fundamental principles is the right to a fair trial by an impartial jury, any efforts to improve the less than perfect system must be applauded. The money could undoubtedly be spent on more immediate needs but in the long run few causes are more worthy than upholding our constitutional dictates.

VIEWPOINT: CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

Turning back clock of justice

By SEN. JACKIE VAUGHN III

In 1846 Michigan led the nation as the first state to abolish the death penalty and was hailed for its human and progressive action. Since that time there have been more than 40 attempts to restore this heinous and outrageous assault on human dignity. Despite repeated failures to reinstate the barbarism of the death penalty, including six attempts in 1977, we are once again faced with the vagaries and emotionalism of a petition which is based on the pretense that the death penalty would protect society from criminals in our midst.

A recent survey conducted by Gov. William G. Milliken showed the number of people who would support a proposal to reinstate the death penalty has escalated to 67 percent. This increase has demonstrated the death penalty has become a popular issue. The problem is too many people will be drawn to this issue for irrational reasons.

Repeatedly it has been shown the death penalty is not a deterrent to violent crimes. Those people who continuously engage in such action are not discouraged by the death penalty. The only thing the death penalty does is allow various people to seek revenge through legal murder. No matter how we look at it, the premeditated taking of a life is murder, regardless of whether it is sanctioned by the state.

Instead of killing people who commit crimes, we should provide rehabilitation facilities and programs. The recidivism rate of those convicted of first-degree murder is lower than any other category. From 1938 to 1959, there were 164 paroled murderers in Michigan — none of whom were brought back for trial again during the 21-year span. These statistics reflect the fact that not all people guilty of violent crimes will continue to perpetuate such action upon other members of society.

One of the major problems with the drive to reinstate the death penalty is its emotional rhetoric. We must not allow a revenge motive to take precedence over justice and humane treatment, particularly as justice is still measured by income with poor people far more likely to suffer injustice than those who can afford the expense of lawyers and long appeals processes. I question the sincerity of those reactionary lawmakers who demand the death penalty in Michigan. Decent people everywhere are concerned about crime, and they should be. But those who are advocating the death penalty are exploiting that concern and often legitimate fear of many for electioneering purposes. The advocates of the death penalty are eliminating any rational debate on this issue. Too often, such emotional issues are decided not on rational, logical facts but rather on the whimsical appeals of hatred and fear.

If we turn back the clock of justice by reinstating the death penalty, how long will it take before an attempt is made to restore vigilante justice, hanging and the horrors of medieval times? I urge all citizens to refrain from signing any petition to reinstate the death penalty as it constitutes a threat to our society and an immoral assault on human dignity, as well as a return to the barbarism which prompted the Commandment: "Thou shalt not kill."

As Clarence Darrow once observed, "From the beginning, a procession of the poor, the weak, the unfit, have gone through our jails and prisons to their deaths." This occurred not because of their guilt, but because of their inability to appeal unjust sentences. History has already demonstrated that we have executed many "criminals" who were later found innocent. By reinstating the death penalty we will once again be striking a blow against justice.

LETTERS

Gay adventure ridiculed us

This letter is in response to the April 28 article, POLITICS OF CULTURE.

How brave of you, Mr. Humphrey. I sincerely hope your little adventure proved worthwhile. Although your article seemed slightly sarcastic, there was some content. You are right, who are you to ridicule us? I am a freshman and "came out" shortly after I arrived at MSU. I have had my fill of homophobias and am tired of the general ridicule toward gays. My God, we are people. I for one am proud to say I finally know who I am. It was hell in the "closet" and I am happy now that I am out. No one can destroy this happiness.

The ignorance of the gay scene is disturbing. We are not the sex-crazed, flaming faggots stereotyped by the majority. A previous letter on the dangers of (heterosexual) sex toys is a case in point. Vacuum cleaners? Water hoses? And gays are considered kinky?

You, Mr. Humphrey, invaded our privacy when you went to the gay bar. It is called a gay bar for one reason. Thrill seekers can go to an amusement park for kicks. I am sure you were surprised; you were not raped, groped or even fondled. Was it a shock to see a classmate, professor, or maybe even an R.A.? As a recent television program stated, "We are some of your best friends, some of your best relatives." It is futile to attempt to degrade and humiliate 10 percent of the population. Acceptance may be too much to ask for... but is tolerance?

Pop ignorance is the problem

According to Bill Holdship, the reason the people on this campus do not share his enthusiasm for "Eight-A-Day-For-The-Eighties," is our "basic musical ignorance." I submit the lack of interest could have been forecasted, and if the promotion is a financial failure, it will be due to Pop Entertainment's "basic marketing ignorance."

Was any acceptable research done to determine student interest in this type of extravaganza? In his editorial (plea), Holdship relates the attitude of the students. "I'm not going to see that punk rock crap" and "I'm not going to pay $10 to see a band I never heard of." Why does Holdship, and especially Pop Entertainment, choose to ignore such enlightening product comments, and barge headlong into disaster?

Holdship states philosophically that the biggest problem with today's "young" generation is that it is afraid to take chances. Obviously the staff of Pop Entertainment does not share our phobia. I wonder how daring and innovative they would be if it was their own money on the line?

It is my sincere hope that "Eight-A-Day" is a huge success; if so, I am confident Pop Entertainment will take full credit, and rightly so. However, if it does flop, I would hope that the staff re-evaluates its marketing technique and takes steps to give the students of MSU what they really want, whatever it may be. After all, is not that Pop Entertainment's responsibility?

Protection plus during concert

I applaud strongly and hardly those erudite quixotic men, a bastion just to protect me from the nihilistic trend setters at the Eight-A-Day concert. You see, my date and I were afraid of being trampled by the 2,000 people in the 9,000-seat Jenison Fieldhouse, but when those hunks gleefully greeted us and graciously escorted us to our seats we knew we were secure, safe, and within conforms.

I could see and hear everything just dandy. When the Textones went wild I sat and thought of just what a joy it was to be there. My date and I glowed with excitement throughout MI-Sex's performance. The band members seemed to really appreciate the audience's salient happiness. The show's only low point was when the Ramones came on and the rowdies ran right up near the stage forcing my date and I to go up to the balcony just so we could see. Can you imagine!

And I would like to also just say a big MSU "thanks" to the DPS and the first-aid man who helped me when I fell and hit my elbow.

VIEWPOINT: POP

Concert not in spirit of music

By KAREN LAWSON

I have worked on the chair crew for Pop Entertainment many times in the past three years and have always enjoyed the organization and the shows, and I had never looked forward to a show as much as I had the Eight-A-Day-For-The-Eighties concert. I was proud that Pop was finally taking a chance with some of today's more progressive, less commercial rock music. The musicians turned out to be excellent, though the "Jenison sound" was even worse than usual. I only regret that the spirit with which Pop promoted the concert (Monterey, Woodstock...) was not the same spirit with which it was run (The Third Reich).

It seems that Pop agreed with the University before the show was OK'd to keep people "in their seats" during the acts; I suppose the purpose was to ward off the chaos and violence that would inevitably arise from the mob of "punks" that would be drawn to such an event. Security ran the show like a prison performance, singling people out and making them sit down if they had the nerve to dance in front of their chairs (how radical!). Admittedly, my apprehension grew over the course of the day, when I noticed that several of the upper-level workers for Pop had in ear plugs. Then, a short time later, another security worker informed me that it did not matter if people were not enjoying themselves, because "once they're in, we've already got their money."

This kind of behavior and attitudes, both on the level of the University and of Pop Entertainment, have no place anywhere, let alone on a college campus. This type of security has never been enforced at previous MSU concerts. For example, I worked the Beach Boys concert earlier this term and had a great time dancing in the aisles during the entire show. I guess it was assumed that people at the Beach Boys can get crazy and not hurt anything because they would be the safe, "all-American" type, not like the punks that would come see the Ramones.

I am used to disagreeing with University opinions, but to know that the student organization that supposedly represents my interests would agree to such security procedures indicates to me that something, or someone, needs to be changed.

I was an object of this "behavior control" all day, and talked to many people who shared my feelings. During Wreckless Eric's performance, I was informed that if I would not stop dancing in front of my seat and "causing a disturbance," I would be made to leave, even though everyone around me said that I was not disturbing them in any way. Needless to say, I left. I feel angry — as a concert-attendant that I was treated so rudely, and I would like to apologize, as a Pop employee, to both the concert goers and to the performers, for the practices that managed to ruin a potentially fantastic event.

To the staff of Pop Entertainment (and you know who you are): please do us all a favor. Until you can stop and listen to the words of the music you were hearing Saturday, and understand the energy and rebellion that today's music is about, stick to your commercial groups that will give you a package profit without problems. They won't do anything that can offend anyone, because they won't say anything that really matters anyway.

Parking area opposed

By MATT PERRY
State News Staff Writer

A proposal to turn a vacant building into a parking area as part of Lansing's downtown renovation project met opposition from a City Council member at Thursday's Committee of the Whole meeting.

James Blair, Councilmember-at-Large, said the president of Stok Corp., the developer of Lansing's reconstruction, and fellow council members are taking "a big step backward" in turning the empty Poxson Building into an extension of the South Grand Parking ramp.

Blair opposed the extension's size, saying it would hinder the view from street level of the Grand River and its Riverwalk. Michigan Avenue and the Capitol would also be blocked from pedestrians' view on the riverwalk, Blair added. The Grand River runs next to the Poxson Building and the proposed extension.

Canoers promote bike-hike route

A combination biking/hiking route, proposed to run along the Red Cedar River, was promoted Saturday as 200 people canoed from Okemos to Lansing's Potter Park.

Lansing City Councilmember Jim Blair, the organizer of the tour, said the trip was intended partially to increase waning enthusiasm for the bike route.

Enthusiasm over the path has waned a bit over the last two years because of problems Lansing has had with acquiring land owned by the Con-Rail railroad, which runs along part of the path.

But few finance problems have arisen, Blair said, despite the delay. Funding is available from both state and federal sources, and the State Highway Department is still saying it will pay part of the costs, Blair said.

The route would be an eight-foot wide asphalt road for cyclists, and a four-foot wide path of wood chips for hikers. It would run from Brody Complex to Potter Park. Blair said in the future Potter Park would become a recreational center for the Lansing area.

"We wanted a way to get there safely and off the major streets," Blair said. "A hiking and biking route that's close to campus should be the safest way."

Blair said he hopes the path will be completed within five or six years. Plans for the path began in the early '70s, he said.

"I'm still optimistic," he said. Blair said a second purpose of the tour was to point out problems in the Red Cedar River, such as log jams and debris.

"People are still using the river as a dump," he said. "People should see it as an asset and not as a drainage ditch."

Shopping carts were seen in the river, Blair said. He added that one family found $4 worth of returnable cans in the water.

Problems seen along the tour will be reported to authorities, he said.

Pat Lindemann, Lansing City Councilmember, said Potter Park and the river area, including the proposed bike path, could become a "first class" park.

"We should have started 20 years ago cleaning the river up," he said.

"I'd like to see us keep the extension 30 to 40 feet back from Michigan Avenue so they (the public) can see the river," Blair said.

Wout Coster, president of Stok Corp., said the extension was an answer to a complex federal law regarding expenses for the city's $40 million "100 Block" development.

Under the law, if parking was established on the 100 Block, the bonds sold to finance the development would lose its tax-exempt status, making the project unfeasible.

COSTER SAID ALTERNATE parking sites were considered, and demolishing the Poxson Building to put in the 378 parking spaces seemed to be the answer.

"This is a solution. I need more parking and I thought this was a way to do it," Coster said.

The general plan for the South Grand parking extension, as well as the hotel addition, will be voted on at City Council's meeting at 7 tonight on the 10th floor of City Hall.

Questions aimed at Blair by Councilmember Sid Worthington, chairperson of the council's Physical Development Committee, centered on what exactly Blair hoped to see if the extension was set back from Michigan Avenue.

"Right now we've got walls on our bridge and we can't see the river," Blair said. Building up to the street would make it even less visible, he said.

BLAIR ALSO OPPOSED the plan because of what he felt was an unnecessary small office area that would front the parking extension on Michigan Avenue.

The small office area was proposed, Coster said, so the parking ramp would not be as visible on Michigan Avenue. The plan calls for a 35-foot deep office area.

Blair asked whether the office space was absolutely necessary. He said if aesthetics were the problem, he could show the council pictures of murals on parking ramps that beautify the area without an office front.

Panel of Chinese scholars claims acupuncture works

By DON CALDWELL
State News Staff Writer

American television has too many commercials, you shouldn't knock acupuncture until you've tried it and people in the United States are basically friendly.

These were a few of the comments five scholars visiting MSU from the People's Republic of China made Friday at an informal China Week panel discussion.

Participating were Chen Mao-pai, of the Chinese Academy of Science and a visiting scholar at the Cyclotron; Li Gang-lie, Xinjiang Agricultural Academy of Science, horticulture; Li Chi-fen, Peking University, chemistry; Hu Qing-yu, Chinese Academy of Science, biophysics; and Xu Saho-ying, Peking Agricultural University, horticulture.

Chen said he underwent acupuncture while being operated on for a stomach ailment. For two and one-half hours he had needles stuck in his ears and knees, all the while being able to talk to the doctor, he said.

"I DIDN'T BELIEVE in acupuncture until I myself experienced it," Chen said. "At first I was very nervous," he conceded.

Whatever the combination of traditional and Western medicine the Chinese use, the visiting scholars agreed it works.

"I'm very much afraid of getting sick here," Li Gang-li said. "If I get a headache I take a pill at once. In China I'm never afraid of it."

Li Chi-fen said Chinese medicine works very well for viral diseases. Acupuncture also worked very well for her husband's tuberculosis, she added.

Research in China is hindered by the lack of technologically advanced instruments, the panelists agreed.

"THE PRIMARY DIFFERENCE here is you almost use a computer for everything," Chen said. "China is still a developing country."

"The big problem about developing science is we have no good instruments," Hu said, adding the Chinese are advanced in mathematics because modern instruments are not as necessary in that field.

Xu said television programming in China includes children's shows, symposiums and daily lectures to teach English to the Chinese.

"In Peking a lot of families have televisions," she said. "Every brigade has a big television so commune members can watch television," she added.

"When I watch television in the U.S. I see too many advertisements," Chen said. "I don't like it."

XU SAID ONE thing she was impressed with was the independence of American youth. She said her daughter will probably live with her for the rest of her life, because in China the old and the young live together.

Xu said she likes to see young people here say they want to make their own decisions about their lives.

"I would like to teach my daughter to be a little bit independent," she said.

Xu said she expected that Americans would give her a cool reception when she came here because of the long period of strained relations between China and the United States.

"I was wrong," she said. "American people treat us very, very friendly."

Short Cuts: rock roundup

By BILL HOLDSHIP
State News Reviewer

If you're in the market for a new rock LP, your best bet would be the new one from either Lou Reed or Pete Townshend (to be reviewed together real soon). Still, just to catch up a bit, here's a very short version of Short Cuts...

Angel City — Face To Face (Epic NJE 36344): When reviewing the second Cheap Trick album several years ago, I wrote something to the effect of "Move over, Blue Oyster Cult! Cheap Trick is here." It just may be time to write "move over Cheap Trick 'cause Angel City has arrived." This group is one of the most interesting bands the heavy metal genre has produced in quite some time.

Angel City synthesizes most of the popular rock devices of the past decade, including punk, heavy metal and power pop, to create a hardly original but stylish form of hard rock. The band is one of Australia's most popular (Angel City took first place in nearly every category for two consecutive years in that country's RAM poll), and Face To Face is a compilation of the band's first two Australian LPs. The album isn't nearly as exciting or interesting as the band is live (demonstrated during Angel City's recent opening date here with the Joe Perry Project), but it's still quite good, nonetheless.

The band has often been compared to AC/DC, but the intelligent and timely lyrics place Angel City far above that band. In fact, the lyrics may be one of the reasons the band is one of David Bowie's current favorites. Angel City will probably be very big in America. Like early Cheap Trick, the band is capable of attracting a large cross-over of rock fan types.

Greg Kihn Band — Glass House Rock (Beserkely BZ 100068): Kihn is sometimes called a folk-rock version of Bruce Springsteen or a folk-rock power pop rocker. The folk-rock label (perhaps directly related to Kihn's California roots) is rather misleading because it makes one think of a mellow genre. And Kihn is far from mellow.

In fact, Greg Kihn has written some of the very best archetypal hard guitar riffs and hooks this reviewer has heard in the past several years. "Castaway" and "Desire Me" follow in the same vein, and both are faintly reminiscent of the powerhouse "In The Naked Eye" from his last release. There is a nice sentimental and romantic love ballad in "Serenade Her." The one weak point is a cover of Burt Bacharach's "The Man Who Shot Liberty Valance" (who could ever top Gene Pitney's immortal bravado version?), but the band makes up for it on the LP's other cover, a live recording of Graham Gouldman's "The Yardbirds' "For Your Love."

Kihn has yet to make a great album. Still, all of his albums have numerous great moments, and this one is no exception. Glass House Rock is one of the most enjoyable recent light-weight rock LPs this reviewer has heard. Recommended.

Matchbox — Rockabilly Rebel (Sire SRK 6087): I've been writing a lot lately about the recent punk-rockabilly revival in England. Matchbox (the name is from a Carl Perkins title) is the first such band to release an American LP, and what a disappointment it is!

Whereas I was expecting something like the Clash's

"Brand New Cadillac," Rockabilly Rebel offers only diluted Buddy Holly. In fact, the band's cover of Holly's "Tell Me How" is a virtual impersonation of the Crickets right down to the vocals. So why not listen to the real thing?

Matchbox's originals couldn't hold a candle to the golden rockabilly classics, while the vocals couldn't hold a candle to Elvis, Gene Vincent, Eddie Cochran, the Killer, etc. Hell, it doesn't even hold a candle to Robert Gordon or Ann Arbor's own Steve Nardella. This isn't so much a return to the roots as it is impersonation, and there is little talent involved in the latter. One of the biggest disappointments of the year. Pick up Elvis Presley's Sun Sessions instead. Now, that's rockabilly.

The Reels — The Reels (Polydor PD-1-6275): This band's press material states that the Reels "combine the sprightly instrumentation of the Talking Heads with the musical innovation of DEVO." Sounds real original, right? Actually it's more of the same "Pop Muzik" type stuff we've been getting since that tune's phenomenal success. Sorta like the Buggles. Sounds real boring, right? There's a few nice melody lines, but it's pretty much a waste. Like above, why not listen to the real thing?

Jerry Lee Lewis — When Two Worlds Collide (Elektra 6E-254): The man who once had his feet kissed by John Lennon is still rockin' at the age of 45, as "Rockin' Jerry Lee" will surely testify. This LP is more of a return to the Killer's C&W style, however, and there is nothing that compares to "Rockin' My Life Away" from last year's monumental Jerry Lee Lewis. There's honky tonk, bar-room ballads, and even some ragtime with "Toot Tootsie, Goodbye" and "Alabama Jubilee."

Eddie Kilroy's muddy production is disappointing and inappropriate for Jerry Lee. (What happened to Bones Howe?) Still, nobody — and I mean NOBODY — delivers a country song (or any type of song) like Jerry Lee Lewis does. The self-professed "original punk rocker" is still alive and well, even in the C&W ballads, but I hope he rocks out a little more on the next one. This one's for the die-hards only.

SPARTAN WOMEN WIN MAIAW MEET

Tracksters sweep regional

MSU's Judi Brown clears a hurdle on her way to victory in the 400-meter event in the MAIAW track meet Saturday. Amy Dunlop of the University of Wisconsin (right) was the runnerup. MSU won the regional.

By BEN WELMERS
State News Staff Writer

Cool, clear weather and a crisp performance combined to make a perfect weekend for the Spartan women tracksters as they captured the regional title in the second annual Midwest Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women tournament.

The Spartans, hosts of the 27-team meet, dominated the two-day affair, scoring 136 points and setting several MAIAW records en route.

Defending regional champion Ohio State University was runner up with 94 points followed by Big Ten champs University of Wisconsin with 74.

THE MSU SQUAD also broke three MAIAW meet records and added Barb Douglas' name to the list of Spartans who have qualified for the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women national meet to be held at Eugene, Ore., May 21 through 24.

Douglas qualified for the nationals in the 800-meter run, setting a new MAIAW record with a time of 2:09.5.

Junior sprinter Cheryl Gilliam, who previously qualified in the 100-meter dash, qualified for the nationals in the 200-meter dash as she broke the old MAIAW mark with a time of :24.3. Gilliam's best time in that event is :23.77, which she recorded in 1978.

MSU's mile relay team of Tesa Anderson, Gilliam, Judi Brown, and Pam Sedwick also contributed a record-breaking effort shaving better than 10 seconds off of the old MAIAW mark with a time of 3:46.7.

Other first-place finishers for the Spartans include: Diane Williams, 100-meter dash; Ann Pewe, 1,500-meter run; Judy Brown, 400-meter hurdles; Kelly Spatz, 3,000 meter run; Lynn Barber for the shot put; the 440-yard relay team of Williams, Carol Charles, Kathy Miller and Gilliam; and the 880-yard medley relay squad of Williams, Dexter Chapman, Charles, and Gilliam.

One of head coach Nell Jackson's goals for the regional meet was to get a few more Spartans to qualify for the nationals as that meet draws near.

A RUNNER CAN qualify for the AIAW competition at any time during the season by equaling or bettering a prescribed time in a given event.

In addition to Gilliam and Douglas, other Spartans who have earned the opportunity to represent MSU in the nationals are Brown, 400-meter hurdles; Cynthia Wadsworth, 5,000-meter run; Spatz, 3,000-meter; Lisa Berry, 3,000 and 5,000-meter events; and Williams in the 100-meter dash.

Williams holds the MSU outdoor record in that event with a time of :11.35.

Smith, Flowers pace MSU men's victory

By WILL KOWALSKI
State News Sports Writer

Senior All-America Randy Smith set a new Ralph Young Field record in the 100-meter dash and senior Ricky Flowers tied the field record in the 400-meter dash Saturday afternoon, helping the MSU men's track team beat Eastern Michigan University, 82-63.

Smith's time of :10.1 surpassed the mark of :10.2 that Smith himself set in 1979. The time was good enough to qualify the Jackson native for the NCAA meet to be held June 5 through 7 in Austin, Texas.

Flowers, most outstanding athlete at the Big Ten meet last season and a native of Saginaw, ran a :47.2 for the 400-meters. That was the same time as the field record he set last season.

Spartan coach Jim Bibbs could not come up with any explanation for the great times accomplished by his co-captains. He did say they may have been preparing themselves for the Big Ten meet, May 23 and 24 in Champaign, Ill.

"SINCE WE'RE GETTING closer to the Big Tens, I guess they (Smith and Flowers) ran so well so they will be sharp for the conference meet," Bibbs said. "They're pushing themselves a lot now, and they're motivating themselves according to the situation."

In all, Smith had a hand (or leg) in four first place finishes. Aside from winning the 100 meters, Smith placed first in the 200-meter dash (Flowers was third), and ran the anchor leg for the first-place 440-yard relay and mile relay units.

The score in the meet was very close after the first four events (the Hurons were on top, 21-20), but as soon as the sprint events came up the rest of the meet belonged to the Spartans.

A SURPRISINGLY FINE outing was had by the Spartan field competitors. Junior Jerry Judd placed first in both the long jump and triple jump; Mark Zuerick, Steve Friedrich and Jim Stewart placed 1-2-3 in the pole vault; Dave Prieskorn placed first in the discus and second in the shot put; and Paul Pivinski was second in the high jump.

Other fine finishes included Tyrone Williams' first and Rob Murphy's third in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles; Keith Moore's and Scott Brasington's 1-2 finish in the 3,000-meter steeplechase; Ken Eaton's second in the 110-meter high hurdles and fourth in the 200-meter dash; Calvin Thomas' second in the 400-meter run; Andre Williams' third in the 100-meter dash; Tim Kenney's second and Jeff Lewis' third in the 800-meter run; Martin Schulist's second in the 5,000-meter run; and Daryl Dismond's and Tom Elzinga's tie for fourth in the high jump.

Volleyball team adds 2 recruits

Two volleyball players have announced their intention to attend MSU.

Kelly Becker of Algonquin, Ill., and Beverly Coleman of Pawling, N.Y., are the new additions to coach Annelies Knoppers' team.

Coleman was a high school All-America in the sport.

Bird's hypnotism works?

DETROIT (UPI) — Detroit Tigers pitcher Mark "The Bird" Fidrych reportedly is seeing a hypnotist as part of his bid to come back from more than two seasons of virtually constant arm trouble.

And it looks like the treatment might be having an effect.

Fidrych was sent to Detroit's Evansville, Ind., farm club as part of his rehabilitation, but he was making little progress.

But Thursday, in an abrupt change, Fidrych asked to pitch. And his performance was like that of the Fidrych of 1976.

Fidrych allowed just one hit and struck out five batters in a three-inning stint with the Triplets. But he was clowning around on the field and appeared happy for the first time in recent memory.

"It's the damndest thing," said General Manager Jim Campbell Saturday.

MAY QUALIFY FOR REGIONALS

Netters fall in state final

By JIM MASON
State News Sports Writer

It was a weekend of ups and downs for the Spartan women's net squad as it competed in the Michigan Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women championships at the Varsity Courts.

MSU lost the coveted team title, but as a result of the individual competition, the Spartans qualified Jill Grinberg in singles and the doubles team of Grinberg and Monty Gettys for next week's regional competition.

The University of Michigan upset the No. 1-seeded Spartans in the team event on Friday, 6-3, to take the title for the fourth consecutive year. The win eased the Wolverines' pain of two regular season defeats at the hands of the Spartans. Coach Earl Rutz Jr. was making no alibis for his team's poor performance.

"IT WASN'T A matter of us being overconfident or taking them too lightly," he said. "We just got hell beat out of us."

Grinberg, Cindy Bogdonas and Jennifer Tewes won their singles matches to account for the MSU scoring. It was a direct reversal for the Spartans as they were beaten in all three doubles contests. In last weekend's dual meet with Michigan, it was MSU which swept the doubles to take the match.

Despite the loss, Rutz is confident his team will get an at-large berth in the regionals, as will Gettys, the No. 1 seed who withdrew from the individual singles competition due to illness.

Playing in the shadow of Gettys all season, Grinberg finally got her due glory with some sparkling play in the individual singles competition that saw her brush aside three opponents on her way to an automatic regional berth.

The culmination of the tournament came on Sunday afternoon with the playing of the individual doubles finals. The Spartan team of Gettys and Grinberg was pitted against Michigan's Kathy Karzen and Robbie Risdon for the fourth time this season.

State News/Mark A. Deremo

Freshman Jill Grinberg goes low for a return during the MAIAW tennis tournament Friday at the Varsity Courts. Grinberg was one of four automatic qualifiers to the regionals.

BATSMEN WIN 1 OF 4

Wolcott equals victory mark

By BILL TEMPLETON
State News Sports Writer

Brian Wolcott supplied the finesse and Kirk Haines added the muscle to save the MSU baseball team from being shut out in its four weekend games at Kobs Field.

The Spartans, two-time losers to Indiana University Saturday, 7-4 and 12-10, split with Ohio State University Sunday, winning the opener 12-4, before dropping the nightcap, 9-3.

Wolcott tied former Spartan Larry Ike's record for most wins in a career with his 23rd, and Haines drilled two home runs for five RBIs in the first game against the Buckeyes.

Freshman Steve Barnes and sophomore Al Dankovich were credited with two RBIs in the game, with Barnes collecting the eventual game-winning hit on his single in the third inning.

WOLCOTT RAISED HIS record to 4-5 on the year, allowing just one earned run. Wolcott fanned three in his record-tying game.

The rest of the weekend was more of the same for the 14-31 Spartans, however. MSU saw its Big Ten record fall to 3-11 in losing three of four, and the weekend marked the end of the Spartans' Big Ten season at home.

The Spartan batsmen took a 3-2 lead into the top of the seventh inning in Saturday's opener against the Hoosiers, only to watch Indiana tie the game and go on to score four times in the top half of the eighth.

Senior Ken Robinson and junior Mark Russ each collected a pair of RBIs in the game, while senior Jay Strother set a new MSU record by losing his eighth game of the season.

In the second game against the Hoosiers, a grand-slam homer in the third by Larry Blackwell gave Indiana a quick 4-0 lead, before MSU lashed back with six runs of its own in the bottom of the third frame.

FIVE STRAIGHT HITS, including a two-run round-tripper by Russ, put the Spartans back in the game and kept freshman hurler Brian James on the mound.

Indiana then scored three in the sixth and five more in the seventh to assume a 12-6 lead going into the bottom of the seventh.

But MSU got run-scoring doubles from senior Tom Schultz and Barnes and went on to shake the Hoosiers for four runs of its own, with the rally falling a bit short.

In all, there were 22 runs scored and 31 safeties in the game, with freshman pitcher Mike Patterson taking the loss for MSU.

Following the Spartans' single win against OSU, the Buckeyes struck for three runs in the first inning of game two, and scored two in the fifth and one in the sixth on wild pitches.

Schultz lashed a double to left center field in the third inning to draw MSU to within a run, 3-2, but the Spartans managed just five hits in the game.

Freshman Terry Johnson suffered his fourth loss against five victories on the year.

THE WOLVERINE

DUO had come out on top in two of the previous meetings. At stake was the tournament championship and a bid for the regionals.

It looked as though it was going to be a relatively short contest as the Spartan tandem took the first set 7-6 and was up 4-1 in the second before the Wolverine counterparts came to life and battled back to win the set, 7-6.

It was all MSU in the third set, however, as the two Spartans broke Risdon's serve early and forced their opponents to make many errors as Grinberg and Gettys took the match 7-6, 6-7, 6-3.

This weekend's regionals will be held at the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Dawkins, Sixers square series

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Philadelphia 76ers

Coach Billy Cunningham says there should be no more doubts about Darryl Dawkins' ability and his desire to win.

Dawkins bulled and battered inside for 26 points Sunday and teamed with Maurice Cheeks to key a third-quarter rally that helped the 76ers to a 105-102 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers, squaring their NBA championship series at two games apiece.

Working on Jim Chones, who had four personal fouls at the time, Dawkins scored eight points and Cheeks six in a 20-7 surge that enabled the 76ers to take the lead for good and go back to Inglewood, Calif., for Wednesday night's fifth game all even.

Softball team out

Hopes of a shot at the national softball title were abandoned Friday as the Spartan team suffered its second defeat at the hands of Ball State University in the Midwest Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women double-elimination tournament.

The Spartans won their opener Thursday in the regional tourney against Western Illinois University with a 2-0 tally, before falling to No. 1 seed Indiana University, 5-4, which sent them into the loser's bracket.

More details of the tournament in Tuesday's State News.

Democrats finish delegate slate

Along with Carr, at-large delegates for Carter include Detroit Mayor Coleman Young and State Rep. Raymond Hood, D-Detroit.

In accordance with party affirmative action policies, the final delegate list includes 70 women, 28 blacks, three Hispanics and two Native Americans.

The 96 district delegates from the state's 19 congressional districts were chosen in a May 3 caucus and include five delegates and three alternates from the Sixth District.

The Sixth District includes MSU and most of Ingham County.

The three Carter delegates from the Sixth District are Tom Holcomb, Senate Democratic staffer from Holt; Mary Holmes, Ingham County Chairperson from Lansing; and Herman Shelton, Communications Workers of America official from Okemos.

Elusive Bush

handed. So I waited and waited, carefully formulating my "one" question.

"What do you think of what Mr. Nixon had to say on 20/20 yesterday about your campaign? Do you think, as he does, that Reagan has the Republican nomination sewn up?"

Too long. Bush would be back at the airport by the time I said all that.

Then I saw the Secret Service men make a bee-line to escort Bush out.

"Mr. Bush... I'm from the State News..."

"What do you think of what Nixon had to say yesterday?"

"I don't agree with him," he said, adding that he was going to prove Nixon wrong.

"How?" I blurted.

"By winning in Michigan," he said. "I am going to go in there way behind and win."

And as he dreamed of the Michigan May 20 primary and swung into one of the six or so cars waiting for him, I scribbled down my quote.

I had my quote and had my story.
