Cuban captains may be jailed

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — The U.S. government threatened heavy fines and prison terms Thursday for boat captains defying its order to halt the illegal "Freedom flotilla" from Cuba. Dozens of boats were seized as refugees still streamed into Florida on crowded ships.

Customs agents reported that 58 boats carrying about 2,300 refugees had been ordered seized by late in the day. That brought the total number of refugees arriving here in the last three weeks to 44,839.

In an effort to enforce President Carter's ban on the boatlift of refugees from Cuba, the Treasury Department on Thursday said any person caught assisting Cuban nationals could face a $50,000 fine and a 10-year prison sentence.

Treasury moved to prohibit all "transactions related to the transportation of Cuban nationals to the United States" by amending the Cuban Asset Control Regulations.

The regulations were put in place in July 1963, four years after Fidel Castro assumed power in Cuba and two years after diplomatic relations were broken.

The government began moving against boat owners and captains after Carter declared the United States could not be used as a "dumping ground" for Cuban criminals and refugees.

In his statement Wednesday, the president said the ragtag boatlift was too dangerous, and ordered that no more boats leave Florida and that those in the Cuban port of Mariel return empty.

His order was mocked by the official Cuban newspaper Granma.

"Carter governs in Florida but in Mariel, Cuba governs," the newspaper said in an editorial broadcast by Havana radio and monitored in Miami.

The editorial said Cuba would not interfere with any boat captain who wished to take people to the United States.

Curious sounds

The drone of bagpipes was lilting across the fields behind the Music Building Thursday as Jim Harrington of Lansing entertained passersby with mysterious sounds from his Highland bagpipes. Harrington is preparing for the Alma Highland Festival Memorial Day weekend.

MAY GIVE UP RACE

Ted asks for debate

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said Thursday he would give up his race for the Democratic presidential nomination if President Carter meets him in a campaign debate and then beats him in the delegate-rich June 3 primary elections.

Saying a Carter-Kennedy debate would make the final day of the primary season "the truest test of the campaign," the Massachusetts senator declared, "If I prevail, I will continue in the race and I expect to win the nomination."

The initial White House response made it clear that Carter would not debate Kennedy.

"Our position regarding the conduct of the campaign is well-known and remains unchanged," said deputy press secretary Rex Granum. "We certainly agree with Senator Kennedy that the June 3 primaries are important.

"IT IS ESSENTIAL to keep in mind, however, that this is a political process which began Jan. 21 in Iowa and that the voters in the vast majority of states have so far indicated a clear and unmistakable preference for President Carter's continued leadership."

When told of Granum's statement, Kennedy responded: "I would think that the people of California and the other states would be extremely disappointed." The senator said his offer stands.

In his address to supporters at the Los Angeles Press Club, Kennedy coupled his offer with a veiled threat to seek a floor fight at the Democratic National Convention this summer if Carter refuses to debate him.

"I know the Democratic Party. I know that if a debate is not held in the primaries, it will be heard at the convention," he said.

KENNEDY AIDES EXPLAINED that he would base his withdrawal decision on the total popular vote case in eight states holding primaries June 3. If Carter bests him in that vote, and already has debated him by then, Kennedy would withdraw, they said.

In a speech that aides said was intended to state his reasons for persisting in his long-shot drive for the nomination, Kennedy said, "I have my shortcomings; I have made my share of mistakes."

But declaring that the charter of the Democratic Party and the nation are the real issues, he said.

Kennedy renewed his taunting of the president for his refusal to debate him. "If the president is so afraid to defend his record now, how can he hope to defend it if he is the nominee against Ronald Reagan and John Anderson?" Kennedy asked, referring to the Republican front-runner and the Illinois Congress member who is running as an independent.

Kennedy is far behind Carter in delegates to the Democratic convention, and the president is within hailing distance of the 1,666 delegates he needs for renomination. According to most delegate counts, the president will go over the top in the June 3 primaries.

ON THAT DAY, 696 Democratic delegates — more than one-fifth the total attending the convention — are at stake in eight states — California, New Jersey, Ohio, Montana, New Mexico, Rhode Island, South Dakota and West Virginia.

Economy worst since 1974-1975

By United Press International

New figures reveal an economic slump twice as severe as the 1974-75 recession with nearly 10 percent of the state's population receiving some kind of assistance, Budget Director Gerald Miller said Thursday.

In addition, Miller told a House Republican caucus unemployment in the state — now at 12.4 percent — is likely to hit 15 or 16 percent this month.

Statistics for March show the state is shouldering 84,000 general assistance cases and 221,000 under the Aid to Dependent Children program. This translates to about 3 million persons, or 10 percent of the state's population, Miller said.

Particularly alarming is a statistic showing that caseloads were up 3,500 in April — a month which traditionally shows a downturn because people are finding jobs.

The Department of "Social Services is having an explosion — if you could buy stock, you'd be making money," said assistant budget director Douglas Roberts.

While caseloads are rising, state revenue is plunging. The amount of money received from employers through withholding taxes was down 6 percent in March — double the worst drop experienced during the depth of the last recession.

"We didn't have a month like that then — we didn't even come close," Miller said. "This is the worst month in the history of the income tax" which has been in effect since 1967.

Miller said preliminary figures for April show collections even lower than the month before.

At the root of the problem is the state's floundering auto industry. While the national inventory of cars is about 61 days, compared with the normal 60, Michigan plants have 88-day inventories. Chrysler Corp.'s backlog is 170 days.

To solve the immediate economic crisis, Miller said Gov. William G. Milliken probably will issue an executive order slashing the 1979-80 budget — perhaps within 10 days.

"It will come quickly and it will be large and substantial," Miller said.

While Miller would not predict how large the order would be, a Milliken aide had said the cuts could be around $100 million.

He rejected suggestions by GOP lawmakers that the state try various accounting tricks, such as borrowing from "cookie jars" such as the veterans' trust fund.

"There are no cookie jars left," Miller said flatly.

"There is no money in the veterans' trust fund — except the $2 million which we paid back" after borrowing it in 1975.

COMMITTEE VOTES 'NO'

W. Germans out

DUESSELDORF, West Germany (AP) — The West German Olympic Committee voted Thursday not to send a team to the 1980 Moscow Olympics, the strongest endorsement yet of President Carter's call for an international boycott.

Carter termed the 59-40 vote "a courageous decision," but a spokesman for the Soviet organizers said it would have "no effect."

"The committee, the West German government, and the people of West Germany deserve the admiration of all those throughout the world who believe in peace and freedom and who recognize that the achievement of these goals sometimes requires painful sacrifices," Carter said in a statement released in Washington.

The West German government, in thanking the committee for its endorsement of the official position, noted the sacrifices of athletes who have trained only to see their Olympic hopes shattered by the world reaction to the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

SPOKESPERSON KLAUS BOELLING said the government of

Chancellor Helmut Schmidt recognized the boycott was a severe blow to the "athletes who have trained for years and made numerous personal sacrifices."

The vote followed a four-hour, nationally televised debate. Committee chairperson Willi Daume, in announcing the secret vote, said: "We must carry it out together. We must live with it together."

Governments generally have been more favorable to the boycott idea than their national Olympic committees, and the German decision could carry much weight with Olympic committees that have not decided on whether to attend the Games.

The committees of Australia, Japan, the Netherlands and Portugal are among those that have said they would follow the German lead. They have until May 24 to notify the organizing committee if they plan to send a team.

F. Don Miller, executive director of the U.S. Olympic Committee, said the German vote could convince committees like those of Britain and Puerto Rico to change their decisions to attend.

Son of Bush Jeb stumping for dad George

By SUSAN TOMPOR
State News Staff Writer

After a short speech touting the talents of his father, John Ellis "Jeb" Bush asks the women of Kappa Delta if they have any questions.

Silence.

"What do you think of the Doonesbury cartoons?" asks the first brave inquirer.

"Funny," the 27-year-old Bush quickly admits, referring to a series of Garry Trudeau cartoons in which father/presidential contender George Bush is found campaigning before a group of blazer-clad preppies.

IN A SETTING quite similar to the one Jeb found himself in Thursday, cartoon figures ask the candidate such questions as: "Ambassador Bush, has being a prep hurt your career?"

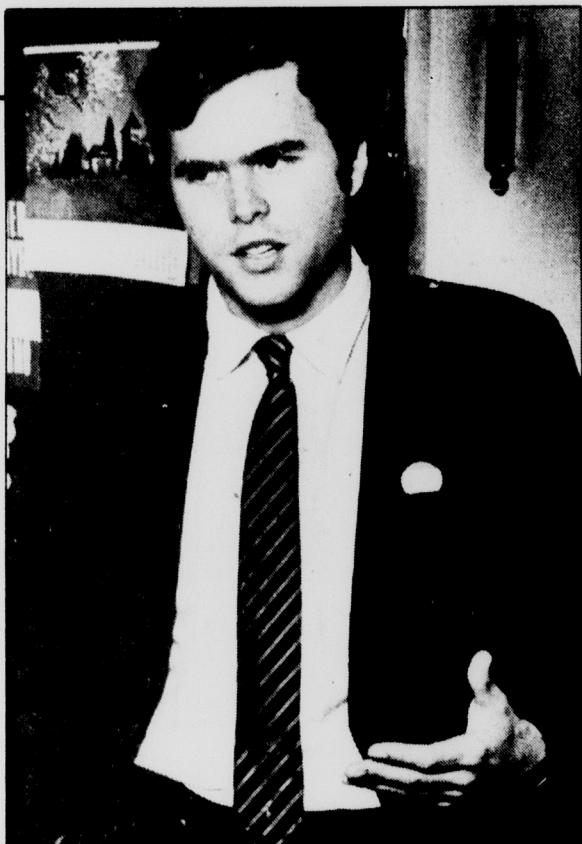

Jeb concedes that Trudeau has most definitely focused in on a trait of his father's and capitalized on it to the fullest.

He adds, however: "I like the other ones better — the ones on Carter and Reagan."

After a morning speech at a Warren High School and a quick visit to downtown Detroit, Jeb began the afternoon in East Lansing on his 370th day of campaigning for his father.

The tall, dark-haired banker quit his job in Venezuela on May 1, 1979, and immediately began campaigning for the then-unknown Republican presidential contender.

HE HAS BEEN on the road telling folks about his dad ever since.

John Ellis "Jeb" Bush

Jeb says it was that lack of early recognition coupled with an early "underdog" labeling that has caused the greatest setbacks in the campaign.

"We went from 'George who?' to 'George what?' too late," he says.

He says even now the media often lose sight of what his father has to say on the issues and chooses to concentrate on such never-ending questions as "Why are you still campaigning?" and "Will you accept the vice-presidential nomination?"

But Jeb quickly adds that his father is no quitter.

HE CONTINUES THE campaign, Jeb says, because he still has a chance of winning.

The odds, which stack up to about 800 committed delegates for Republican opponent Ronald Reagan to Bush's 200-some, may say Bush has no logical chance of mustering up the necessary 998 delegates by the last primary June 3.

But Jeb quickly adds: "Politics are not always logical."

Ferency will continue battle to open democratic caucuses

By SUSAN TOMPOR
State News Staff Writer

Maverick Democrat Zolton Ferency Thursday filed a notice that he will appeal a U.S. District judge's decision which rejected his claim that state Democratic caucuses are unconstitutional.

Ferency contends that the state Democratic party should be forced to participate in the state's open primary system in which people do not have to vote according to party preference.

The notice, which was required to be filed before May 21, is the first step in appealing an earlier ruling by U.S. District Judge Douglass Hillman.

The appeal is expected to be filed within the next few weeks in the Sixth U.S. District Court of Appeals in Cincinnati.

BECAUSE STATE DEMOCRATS have already chosen their presidential candidates and delegates in closed caucuses, the appeal will have no effect on the 1980 presidential election.

Ferency said Thursday, however, that Hillman's decision poses questions that must be answered before the next presidential primary.

He objected to Hillman's ruling which stated that Democrats do not have to participate in an open primary if that type of primary violates National Democratic Party rules.

Hillman ruled that national party rules supersede state laws concerning selection of delegates to presidential nominating conventions.

FERENCY SAID HILLMAN'S decision would permit any political party to avoid participating in an open primary.

Ferency added the appeal would also address Hillman's ruling that the state has no authority to regulate state Democratic party caucuses.

Ferency contends if caucuses cannot be regulated by the secretary of state, political parties may be able to institute discriminatory practices to eliminate individuals by race, sex or creed.

In February, Ferency called upon state election officials to either declare that the May 20 primary was the only legal procedure for selecting delegates to the national convention, or demand that Democratic caucuses are open to everyone and not controlled by any artificial requirements.

Ferency, after not receiving a favorable response, filed suit March 20 against the Secretary of State's Office and election officials.

Assassin's grenade kills one

DAKAR, Senegal (AP) — Ahmed Sekou Toure, president of Guinea, escaped uninjured in an assassination attempt carried out with a hand grenade, according to a radio Conakry broadcast monitored here Thursday.

One person was killed and 30 others were injured in the Wednesday night attack, the broadcast said.

Guinea, a former French territory located in West Africa between Portuguese Guinea and Sierra Leone, has been governed by Sekou Toure since 1961. He is both president and prime minister of the country of 5.5 million people.

Radio Conakry, from the Guinea capital, made no mention of any arrests or claims of responsibility for the grenade attack.

Korean protest continues

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Student demonstrators in a growing protest against the government clashed with police Thursday for the third day, leaving at least 14 police officers injured. As demonstrations spread from Seoul to five other cities, the prime minister warned in a nationwide broadcast that further such protests could result in "economic bankruptcy."

In his first public reaction to the demonstrations that began two weeks ago, Prime Minister Shin Hyon-hwak said the government would try to advance its political development timetable as much as possible "to meet the people's expectation."

One of the students' major complaints is the government has moved too slowly toward greater democracy.

There were no reports on injuries or arrests involving the demonstrators.

Khomeini calls for purge

(AP) — Iran's revolutionary leader called Thursday for a purge of "deviationist groups" from the broadcast media.

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini told Taqi Farahi, the new managing director of Iran's radio and television "it is both your religious and legal duty to purge radio and television" of the deviationist elements, Tehran radio said.

He called for weeding out "groups which had ties with the former regime (of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi) or were in its service and those which are corrupt and cause corruption," the radio reported.

Meanwhile, a White House aide denied that 96 armed Americans had arrived in Iran by helicopter to carry out sabotage. Iranian militants announced a 15th city where the American hostages are being held. And foreign ministers of the European Common Market were reported ready to impose economic sanctions against Iran as requested by the United States in a move to gain release of the 53 Americans held hostage since Nov. 4.

Egypt not to resume talks

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The government of President Anwar Sadat, in a sudden turnaround on Thursday, decided against resuming Palestinian autonomy talks with Israel and called for a new U.S. initiative to break the impasse.

Minister of State for Foreign Affairs Dr. Butros Ghali told a news conference that a proposed Israeli law to make East Jerusalem the capital of the Jewish state had caused the Egyptian change of heart on a quick resumption of talks.

In a speech to Parliament Wednesday Sadat said he had agreed, at the urging of President Carter, to resume the negotiations that Egypt broke off May 8. Delegations from Israel, Egypt and the United States have been trying for almost a year to work out a plan giving a degree of autonomy to 1.2 million Palestinians living in the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and Gaza.

Soviets unveil peace plan

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The Soviet bloc launched an anticipated "peace offensive" Thursday with a series of proposals that include a world conference to defuse "hotbeds of international tension" and freeze the size of military forces in Europe.

In a statement released after a two-day meeting here, Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev and leaders of the six other Warsaw Pact nations stressed "the necessity for a political settlement" of the Afghanistan crisis, which has chilled East-West relations.

"Such a settlement should effectively secure a complete discontinuation and non-recurrence of any forms of outside interference directed against the government and people of Afghanistan," the statement said.

Senate OK's food stamps

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acting right on deadline, Congress gave swift approval Thursday to a $2.56 billion appropriation to provide food stamps for some 21 million Americans beyond this month.

The Senate passed the measure, 57-17, within hours after the bill had also easily cleared the House by a vote of 316-56. It was sent to President Carter to be signed into law along with companion legislation previously passed by both houses.

Atlanta wants Detroit police

DETROIT (AP) — The Atlanta Police Department has a message for laid-off Detroit officers: "You're wanted in Georgia."

Atlanta Police Chief George Napper said Wednesday a team of recruiters would visit Detroit this month to try to lure furloughed officers south. He said Atlanta needs about 200 more officers and may hire 400 more later.

Dooley's suspension postponed for appeal

The suspension of Dooley's liquor license, originally scheduled to begin May 19, will be postponed until an appeal of the suspension is heard, said Dennis Hybarger, the assistant supervisor of the Liquor Control Commission hearings and appeal division.

"We didn't feel the suspension is warranted," said Gary Foltz, an operating partner of Michigan Systems which owns Dooley's, 131 Albert Ave.

The seven-day suspension, ordered against Dooley's April 10 by Liquor Control Commissioner Edward Wiest, was based on his determination that a Dooley's employee sold liquor to a person under the age of 21 on Feb. 20.

"This is the first time in seven years Dooley's has had violations before the LCC (Liquor Control Commission)," Foltz said.

He also said problems with enforcing Michigan's liquor laws should have been a mitigating factor in the decisions.

Dooley's has appealed four of the original seven decisions of Wiest, including the one on which the suspension was based, Hybarger said.

If the decision to suspend the license is upheld during the appeal, the suspension will go into effect some time after the appeal is heard, he said.

However, Foltz noted, Dooley's could further appeal any decisions within Michigan's judicial system.

"If we're not happy with the outcome we may appeal it," he said.

The appeal "will probably be held sometime in July," Hybarger said.

An appeals board of three commissioners will hear the appeal, said Walter Keck, supervisor of the hearing and appeals division.

That board could either rescind, amend or affirm the decisions, or remand them to Wiest for further consideration, Keck said.

Dooley's has already paid $632.40 in fines for the decisions it has not appealed, Vera Foote, a spokesperson for the commission, said. Another $1,073.60 in fines are part of the appealed decisions, she said.

Strike halts construction at MSU

Wayne Fase of Lansing sits idle outside the construction site of the Chatterjee Communication Arts and Sciences Building.

By MIKE VEH
State News Staff Writer

The man sat on the curb surrounded by several small, hand printed signs which proclaimed, "Laborer's Local 998, no contract, no work."

Behind him, the massive concrete structure, destined to become MSU's new Communication Arts and Sciences Building, was unnaturally silent.

The striking members of the Laborers International Union of North America stopped construction on the building for practical reasons.

"There were other people in there doing our work," explained striking laborer Art Zeis, who sat alone at the communications building site waiting to be relieved of his picket duty.

THE UNION DECIDED to picket the communication building site because the work which would normally have been done by laborers was being done by the skilled laborers who are not on strike, Zeis said.

The skilled workers could continue working, as they are at the Performing Arts Center construction site, but once a picket line forms, the workers follow through with their agreement to honor the laborers' strike by not crossing the line.

"As long as no one picks up a shovel and turns over some dirt, they can do what they want," Zeis said.

He pointed out that the work stoppage was effecting a large number of people and that "everybody's feeling it."

The laborers are striking for a wage increase of $2.25 per hour and, unless the contractors approve the (continued on page 10)

Gays plan festive week

Blue jean day is a thing of the past for Gay Pride week this year, as the festivities open at 5:30 p.m. today with a banner-raising rally at the corner of Abbott and Grand River.

The schedule of activities for the rest of the week is as follows:

• Tonight — An evening of dancing and entertainment at Bonnie and Clyde's night club, 316 E. Michigan Ave., Lansing. The club is sponsoring the night to raise funds to continue support for lesbian and gay rights. Admission is $2 at the door.

• Saturday, May 17 — The Theatre Company of Ann Arbor presents "At Second Sight," a gay performance of music, movement and literature. The performance, staged at the Kellogg Center Auditorium, begins at 8 p.m. Admission is $2.50 at the door.

• Sunday, May 18 — A special dignity mass, sponsored by a gay Catholic organization, will be done conducted in St. Johns East, 4828 S. Hagadorn Road, beginning at 2 p.m. There will also be a potluck dinner at 5 p.m. in St. Johns East.

• Monday, May 19 — A seminar and workshop with gay advocate Jim Toy. The topic will be "Fighting Fair," a discussion focusing on interpersonal conflicts and problem-solving in gay relationships. The talk begins at 7 p.m. in 335 Union.

• Tuesday, May 20 — The Annual Jon Yenna Memorial Tea and croquet sporting event takes place at 4 p.m. near Beaumont Tower. Later in the evening, gays are invited to bowl in the Union at 7:30 p.m.

• Wednesday, May 21 — Another seminar and workshop are scheduled, this time with Rep. David Hollister discussing "The Relationship of Community Groups to the Legislative Process." The discussion begins at 8 p.m. in the St. Johns Student Center, 327 M.A.C. Ave. The topic is sponsored by Dignity, a gay Catholic organization.

• Thursday, May 22 — Gays are asking fellow gays to congregate at the main library at 8 p.m. for a "study night" on the third floor.

• Friday, May 23 — Gays will congregate for a residence hall dinner at 5 p.m. in Phillips Hall. Following the dinner Pat Bond will perform in Erickson Kiva at 8 p.m. Tom Wilson will also perform some of his original songs in the kiva. Admission for both events is $1.

• Saturday, May 24 — Cris Williamson, with June Millington, Jackie Robbins and Cam Davis, will perform a mixture of familiar tunes and new songs. The concert begins at 7:30 p.m. in Erickson Kiva.

Also Saturday, the band Flight of the Phoenix will perform at Royal Scott Golf and Bowl, 4722 W. Grand River Ave., Lansing at 9:30 p.m. The rock 'n' roll band is composed of five women.

Protect children's rights with advocacy — Ferency

By RICK MAYDAY
State News Staff Writer

The rights of children should be advocated as actively as those of all people, Zolton Ferency, political activist and MSU associate professor of criminal justice said Thursday.

Ferency spoke to the Michigan Community Co-ordinated Child Care Council (4C) which is currently facing extinction because of legislative budget cuts.

Ferency addressed the meeting's theme, "Effective Child Advocacy — Survival Skills For The '80's."

"Advocacy is more than speaking for someone else. An advocate is an actual physical representative for people who cannot be there," Ferency said. "The 4C Council is an advocate that speaks with knowledge, experience and research for the rights of children.

"A TRUE ADVOCATE does not sit still for the dilettante devices of bureaucracy," Ferency said.

Because of the continuing decline of Michigan's economy, as well as federal budget reductions, Gov. William G. Milliken and his administration have recommended that the 4C Council's $111,700 budget be eliminated and its function transferred to the Department of Social Services.

Making noise about students

The problem of excessive noise in East Lansing's residential areas was the subject of debate again last week, this time during the East Lansing City Council meeting. Aggrieved residents were hard-pressed for solutions, and even mentioned the absurd idea of decibel meters to be used by police to measure noise levels.

Residents who complain about neighborhood noise are carrying on an old city tradition, one that pits the students against the homeowners. The mix of students with permanent residents in East Lansing's neighborhoods has in the past caused a locking of horns between the two parties. The conflicts usually center around whose rights should be placed first: the temporary residents, the life-long ones or neither.

The wide assortment of lifestyles in university towns naturally lends itself to a round-the-clock social atmosphere. One person's morning is another one's evening. East Lansing's neighborhoods are generally inhabited by the young and the restless. But they are also home for the domestic, the families which want to raise their children in a quiet atmosphere undisturbed by late-night parties, blaring stereos and the inevitable confrontations that ensue between those who would force their lifestyle on another.

Setting noise levels is one idea, but enforcement of such levels seems impossible. Currently, East Lansing ambiguously describes noise as that which disturbs the "quiet, comfort or repose" of residents. Any complaints however voiced in a heavily student-populated area are naturally only going to disturb the repose of a minority of residents. A noise ordinance is not such a bad idea, but what needs to be clarified is just whose interests it will serve: the wishes of the transient majority or the permanent minority.

Inevitably, the argument boils down to which groups should have more say in the guidelines set down by the community. Students' versus residents' rights is a touchy business, made touchier by the residents' attempts to disassociate students from the power to vote in an area that quite literally would not even exist without their support.

Establishing some code for regulating noise in the neighborhoods is not an unreasonable demand, nor is it too much to ask of all residents, regardless of status. The City Council might wish to consider everyone's side of the story though, before it starts calling the shots on neighborhood control.

On appeasing with tokenism

Lansing Mayor Gerald Graves has set the concept and spirit of affirmative action back 10 years with his latest appointment to Lansing's Board of Water and Light. Blasted for failing to reappoint the only black member of the city's utility board, "hizzoner" subsequently added one black male to the three white appointees he initially recommended for opening seats on the board.

Although Graves may feel he has done more than enough to appease his critics, his action undermines both the BWL and the city's apathetic affirmative action program. Marvin Ray, the board member Graves rejected on a blatantly trumped-up conflict of interest charge, was one of the better board members. Ray at least, was not afraid to address the rough issues that others on the board were more than willing to duck.

As Ray's name was tossed about more than once as the board's next president, Graves' attempt to dig up any reason to keep him off is less surprising, though hardly less inexcusable. The excuse he pounced on, however, is exceedingly poor. Ray worked for the East Side Drop-In Center under the supervision of the city parks division until he was notified that he had to choose between the board and his job. It seems the old city charter, which did not prohibit city moonlighting, was changed while he held the two positions.

With Ray as president of the BWL, the board, which bickered over appointees for one opening most of last summer, might have seen some positive change — a concept which does not fit in with Graves' operating style. Only after City Council balked at the idea of appointing a white board member to replace Ray, and indicated in fact that it would only approve a minority member, did Graves appoint Charles S. Jones, a state audit officer, for the seat.

Jones, who has never met Graves, admits it is "very possible" there are more qualified blacks available to serve on the board. He also says he will not specifically serve the interests of the black community and does not intend to cause any trouble.

In the midst of this latest barrage of criticism, Graves may be complaining that he is damned if he does and damned if he doesn't. But by plugging another very promising do-nothing board member into the BWL solely on the basis of his skin color and low profile, Graves deserves every bit of criticism he gets.

'LASH' LARROWE

It could've been Nixon

I'm over at the pool, baggin' rays and eye-ballin' the bikinis lyin' out on the meat rack, this student comes hustling on over.

"You OK, Lash?" he asks, real concerned.

"What makes you think I'm not?" I wheezes.

"For one thing, your face is beet-red, you're gasping for breath and your glasses are all fogged up," he says. "From across the pool there, it sure looked like your heart was giving out on you."

"I'm alright now," I assures him. "I was just concentrating on how I'm going to get the auto industry back on its feet. Solving a problem like that takes a lot out of myself, you know."

"I've often wondered how you do it all," he says admiringly. "What with the consulting you do for big business and the committees you head up, helping the little people who're out of work and all. But I suppose when you're an internationally renowned economist, they push you to the limit, don't they?"

"I just live the land-grant philosophy," I says, blushing. "I don't expect no special reward for it."

"As long as I'm here," he goes on, flopping down beside me, "did you President Nixon's interview with Barbara Walters? Wasn't he just super?"

"Negative," I says. "Nixon hasn't changed one bit since Watergate. He's still the same old Tricky Dick he always was, you want my opinion. I'm just glad he didn't take the presidency here at MSU when the Board of Trustees offered it to him last year."

"You mean to tell me President Nixon was in the running when Mackey was appointed?" he sputters. "I never heard that before."

"That's because you don't pal around with the boys up in the Ad Building, sonny, the way I do," I tells the creep.

"From what I see of the way Mackey's handling things," he says, "State would have been a lot better off if President Nixon had taken the job, Lash. But I know you don't look at it that way, do you?"

"I sure don't," I says. "Here's what you have expected if Nixon'd taken over the 'U':"

"First off, he'd have conned the trustees into bringin' his top gun with him at a fancy salary, OK? He wouldn't have put the job up for no national search, neither, way he's supposed to. Nixon wouldn't take a chance on somebody better qualified showing up, beat out his boy for the job."

"Gee, Lash," he balks. "You're saying he'd have ignored the 'U's' equal employment opportunity plan. Wouldn't that be improper, maybe even get the 'U' in trouble with the feds?"

"Sure it would," I chuckles. "That wouldn't bother Nixon none. He's broke the law before. He knows you can't pussy-foot around, you're gonna put together a hard-hitting management team."

"Next thing he'd do is make up his enemies list, start zappin' folks right and left if they don't fit into his game plan."

"You don't mean he'd just up and fire people who've been loyal to the University for years?" he asks incredulously. "That sounds awful ruthless to me."

"You're too young to remember how macho Nixon was when he was in the White House," I tells him. "Heads rolled like bowling balls in those days, I can tell you. He'd have starting wielding the axe as soon as he got here, too, you bet!"

"I can't believe Nixon would actually do those things," he says. "My parents told me they voted for him because he was big on law and order. He's got a law degree, you know."

"Oh, he claimed to be for law and order, alright," I sneers. "If you read your history you'll find out he resigned when they were fixin' to impeach him for violating the Constitution."

"Sounds to me," he says thoughtfully, his brow furrowing, "if President Nixon had taken the job heading the 'U', he wouldn't have had much use for a faculty grievance procedure either, would he, Lash?"

"Could that be why you didn't want him as our new prexy?" he smirks. "You figure he'd scuttle that scam you're running as FGO, right? You'd lose your cushy job, have to go back in the classroom, take a whopping cut in pay, too, wouldn't you?"

"Now you got it, sonny!" I says approvingly. "It's taken me four years to get the hang of the job, it'd be a real shame if they booted me out now."

"I can see you must've been really relieved when Nixon turned down the presidency here, Lash," he grins. "No wonder you're such a strong booster for our new prexy."

"You better believe it, buster!" I barks.

"Oh, I know your bleeding hearts around here don't agree with me, but I sleep better at night knowing Dr. Mackey's in Cowles House."

VIEWPOINT: WORLD HUNGER

Hard times for indigents

By JANET LAUGHLIN

I'm darting around among the sunbathers sitting behind the administration Building, asking people to sign my petition, when I spot this large mound of belly sticking out from under a familiar blue and white striped T-Shirt.

Lash, you old bum! I greet him. "Don't you have anything better to do during a working day than lie out in the sun?"

"It's lunch time. Everybody's gotta eat, Laughlin," he snaps. "Sides, I'm just taking in the scenery."

I notice he isn't watching the ducks or the river.

"Wha'cha doing now Lauf?" he asks. "Signing people up to walk for hunger again?"

"No... not yet Lash," I answer. "But we are going to have another Walk/Jog Oct. 26 and I want people to start planning for it now. Like you, Lash... You will join us again, won't you?"

"Hey Missy, see these feet?" as he thrusts one toward my nose. "I promised 'em I'd never make 'em carry me 10 miles again. Heck, we've still got blisters!"

"Besides," he says, "I hear the President's Commission on World Hunger has made its report to Jimmy-boy and world hunger will soon be a thing of the past."

"Oh Lash, it's a good report, but it's just a report... a bunch of great words on paper. Basically, it says that we have everything we need to end world hunger by the year 2000, but it won't be done."

"Oh yeah? Why not?" he asks. "Political, Larrowe," I sigh. "Political will. The world hunger scene won't change until we change some of our basic values and priorities and economic structures."

"Don't look at me, sister," he quips. "I ain't changing any of my values."

"It would be hard for you," I toss back, "changing something that you don't have! The report stresses that the government must make a real effort to educate the American people about these things, and, talking to the likes of you, I sure can understand why!"

"So what else does the report say, smartie?" he continues.

"Well, for one thing, it says that hunger is caused by poverty..."

"Yeah, I can see a connection. Geez, I could'a figured that out," he states in a professor-like tone.

"But Lash," I yell, "that's like blaming babies on sex and then not bothering to figure out what causes sex! Poverty is another effect, not the cause of hunger. Both of them are caused by inequality and injustice, exploitation, and multi-national corporations..."

"Now don't go gettin' all steamed, Laughlin, just 'cause you didn't write the report. Besides, if you're trying to become a politician you'd just as well learn to play their games. Does the report make any recommendations?"

"It recommends that the United States triple the amount it gives as foreign aid," I answer.

"Great job! Just what we need, more darn charity! We Americans already give more'n anyone else," he hollers.

"No we don't sir!" I holler back. "Of the richest 15 nations in the world we rank number 11 in the percentage of our GNP that we give in foreign aid! And besides, we don't give charity! Our aid is mostly all tied with strings, military and political."

"Can't see nothin' wrong with that," he contends. "That's bein' smart, I'd say."

"I suppose you don't see anything wrong with the United States supporting oppressive regimes either?" I ask. "Why, with our help the Philippines have become exporters of rice, while, at the same time the poor Philippine people... next to the Cambodians... have become the most malnourished people on earth! And we do the same thing, again and again..."

"Whoa, girl," he interrupts. "That's their business. We're just tryin' ta help poor countries the best we can."

"Of the top 10 countries receiving our aid, only two are on the list of 'poor' countries," I argue. "Egypt and Israel alone get 40 percent of our overseas aid."

"Geez! Here I am tryin' ta get some rest and you're hasslin' me with the troubles of the world," he says with an appropriate yawn. "We all got our problems, Laughlin. Times is tough, ya know. Go talk about it ta somebody else."

"I plan to Lash," I tell him. "Your old political opponent, Bob Carr — the one who trounced you 21,000 to 7,000 in the '74 primary — is having a forum on the Presidential Commission's report at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at the East Lansing Public Library. Why don't you come over and see what he has to say about it?"

"Hey, Laughlin," he says with a wave of his hand, "you're blockin' my sun. I can't go nowhere without a tan."

"Just consider that I've done you a favor, Larrowe," I say as I leave. "Your belly's burnt!"

Laughlin is a graduate of MSU and a candidate for the Ingham County Board of Commissioners.

PIRGIM last of dying breed?

Shock and contempt were my immediate response to the May 8 report in The State News that MSU-PIRGIM may lose its access to voluntary student funds. Having worked closely with PIRGIM in the past, I must testify that it is a small yet dedicated and persistent organization. Erroneous criticisms of ineffectiveness and a failure to reach the majority of students might be attributed to student apathy (fast becoming a cliché), and those who just "don't have time" to get involved in issues affecting their community and their country.

PIRGIM is a student activist organization working before the fact, struggling to prevent disaster before it strikes. Its involvement with nuclear power and weaponry and the draft are two recent examples. Where public reaction usually erupts after the fact, the people at PIRGIM can at least say they tried.

PIRGIM also represents a minority position as evidenced by the small number of supporters at registration. Yet, even if one disagrees with PIRGIM's basic stands, one ought to permit, even promote, the minority voice in conjunction with the basic principles and philosophies of democracy, the American Constitution and the Bill of Rights. When the minority voice disintegrates beneath the will of the majority, the underlying freedoms of our country are in certain jeopardy. At a local level, organizations such as PIRGIM must continue in existence and hopefully will strengthen their voice in the immediate future.

Adams depicts past presidents

By KY OWEN
State News Staff Writer

John Hannah led a far-reaching revolution of higher education . . . Clifton Wharton helped the University settle down after the tumultuous '60s . . . Edgar Harden brought MSU the Triple Crown . . . and Cecil Mackey has the responsibility of coping with a troubled economy.

Those were the "thumbnail" sketches of former MSU presidents given to the Society for Study of Midwestern Literature conference Thursday by Walter Adams, an MSU distinguished professor of economics and a former MSU president himself.

"I came here in 1947," Adams told the group. "I could have been described as an Eastern snob." (Adams received his doctorate from Yale University).

Hannah was president at that time, and Adams said when he looked through an MSU catalog he found Hannah's only major accomplishment was a bachelor's degree in poultry science.

Adams said his initial reaction was "Who is this plow-jockey?"

BUT HE SOON LEARNED that Hannah was a "great educational statesman."

Bugs' brothers bite bark

By DAVE VARGA
State News Staff Writer

Everyone knows that rabbits are most well-known for their reproductive activities, that is, capacities.

Along with this aspect of their behavior, some rabbits at MSU are becoming infamous for their strange dietary habits.

While Bugs Bunny can settle for his beloved carrots, rabbits at a wetland area on campus have taken a liking to young trees planted there by the Fisheries and Wildlife Club.

Many of the 2,000 fruit tree seedlings in the area have suffered an early death from rabbits girdling — or chewing, in layperson's terms — the bark, Jim Dexter, chairperson of the club's wildlife management habitat committee says.

"THERE ARE SO MANY RABBITS — it's unbelievable," he says, pointing to one of the many rabbit "highways" that cut through the tall grass in the area.

But the club isn't resorting to Elmer

Fudd's shotgun solutions just yet.

The Outdoor Classroom in Conservation, the official name of the area behind Natural Resources Building, is used to practice and experiment on wetland management techniques.

One solution to the rabbit problem is to spray the trees with chemicals to ward off the furry varmints.

Last winter Dexter sprayed several trees with two chemicals as part of an experiment he's conducting. Although all the results are not yet analyzed, he says that many of the rabbits were forced, as a result of the spraying, to munch on trees they normally wouldn't touch.

Another wildlife management challenge at the Outdoor Classroom, also called area "B," is a one-acre pond situated in the middle of the five-acre area.

Plans for this pond include re-stocking it with northern pike, bluegill and bass, says Dexter.

"Someone dumped in some goldfish," he

ADDRESSES COGS

Jack Kinney speaks

By LOUISE WHALL
State News Staff Writer

The MSU Alumni Association must serve the needs of the entire University rather than the needs of the president or the Board of Trustees, Jack Kinney, president of the Alumni Association said Wednesday.

Kinney, speaking to the Council of Graduate Students, said the alumni association's magazine must have the right and the responsibility to honestly and objectively report the events of the University.

"The president and the Board of Trustees are almost 180 degrees to the opposite philosophically," said Kinney.

The conflict between the association and the University began when MSU President Cecil Mackey indicated that an independent alumni association does not fit in with his plans for the University.

Kinney traced the development of the association from the time it was a separate entity in the early 1900s. He said the association incorporated with the university in the 1930s because of financial problems during the depression.

THE ALUMNI ASSOCIATION was chartered in 1967 to operate as an essentially autonomous entity with the understanding it would be a separate entity for a few years later, Kinney said.

He said the organization did not become separate immediately because it wanted to establish a firm financial base.

The president, the provost, two trustees and two faculty members are voting members of the association's Executive Board. Kinney said that interlocking with the University would provide an adequate system of checks and balances.

"It is not the role of the alumni association to exhibit the dirty linen of the University," Kinney said. "But it is their role to provide the checks and balances."

KINNEY SAID THE association provides constancy within the University

PAC's 'Pippin' only fair

By MARY TINNEY
State News Staff Writer

PAC's Pippin, another in a series of extremely ambitious productions this year by PAC, appears to have been too ambitious. Pippin, while hardly a flop, suffers, more in the second half than in the first, from an acute lack of inspiration.

First of all, it must be noted that Pippin is a very difficult production for a college cast to attempt. The show lasts approximately 2 and one-half hours with no intermission and is made up mostly of singing. It's no wonder, then, when by the end of the show the energy level is running a little low.

PAC's production certainly doesn't suffer from a lack of talent — some of the theater department's best show up in Pippin. The problem with the play is more a matter of polish and consistency. For a play of this length to be successful, it must move very quickly from scene to scene and the action within each scene must be rapid and brilliantly staged. Bob Fosse was the perfect person to direct it on Broadway, but then he had the resources to make the production as flashy as it was intended. In PAC's version the flashiness seems almost arbitrary. The stage goes from empty to brilliant in a matter of seconds and then back again. The players, too, dressed in bright, garish costumes (much to the credit of costume designer Gretel Geist) come and go en masse seemingly whenever the director feels the stage needs a little excitement. The result is a play a little too choppy, a little too long and just generally, a little uninspired.

The star of the show is Richard Major, who plays the part of the Leading Player (Ben Vereen's role on Broadway). Major has an extraordinary amount of talent and charisma. If there's a problem with his part it is the same problem from which most of the parts suffer — the choreography is basically boring. Major, despite his obvious talent, just doesn't have enough dancing to do. Curtis Osmun is the perfect character to portray Pippin. He's got a fine sense of comic timing and a voice that is generally strong enough to carry him through the show. Still his character is given little to do choreographically. Jack Hexum is great as Pippin's father, Charlemagne. Hexum is a disc-jockey at WVIC and his voice and presence are magnificent.

Bob Fosse was the perfect person to direct Pippin on Broadway, but then he had the resources to make the production as flashy as it was intended. In PAC's version the flashiness seems almost arbitrary.

Another example of perfect typecasting is Ken Rose as Pippin's athletic brother. Ken is an MSU cheerleader appropriately limber and attractive. Shawn M. Dale plays his mother, Fastrada, with rather disconcerting indifference. Her scene is too dispassionate to be very funny. Especially good in her small part as Catherine, the widow with whom Pippin eventually falls in love, is Jennifer Marx, a sophomore theater major making her debut on the MSU stage. She has a strong, accurate voice, an appealing stage presence, and she comes onto the scene just in time to save the play from increasing lethargy.

All in all, Pippin isn't a bad play. It is, in fact, despite its flaws, quite entertaining most of the way through. But in the end it suffers from lack of inspiration both in choreography and staging.

Pippin continues through Saturday, at 8:15 p.m. in Fairchild Theater.

A jazz concert debut tonight

By BOB FONOROFF

State News Special Writer
The Prismatic Band will make its East Lansing concert debut tonight at Erickson Kiva, with special guests artists Griot Galaxy.

The Prismatic Band is an Ann Arbor-based six-piece group that has been making the bar rounds on a regional basis since 1977. During this time the band has played anywhere and everywhere from prisons to parks, from street fairs to ski lodges.

Prismatic's music is a progressive multi-dimensional sound that ranges from avant-garde to mainstream. The band appeared with The Friends Road Show for a number of years, before the show moved on to Europe where it now enjoys phenomenal success as one of the hottest acts in Amsterdam.

However, the big story with the Prismatic Band is what's happening behind the scenes. There is a woman named Carol Ann Payne who is planning to parlay Prismatic into one of the hottest musical items this side of Spyro Gyra. She is a stockbroker by day and a musical entrepreneur by night. Through her recent efforts, the Prismatic Band recorded its second LP, a live effort performed at the Birmingham Theatre. The band opened for Stanley Clark and Jean-Luc Ponty's recent Detroit performances as well. Prismatic is Michael Colone, guitar; David Reinstein, saxophones; Crafty Kalep, drums; Joe Braus, bass; Penny Kuypers, percussion; and Roberto Kuypers, congas.

Appearing with Prismatic will be Griot Galaxy, which received a fantastic response last year when it performed in Erickson Kiva with the Detroit Jazz Artists on Tour. Named after the African "griot" (gree-oh), carrier and trustee of the oral tradition, Griot Galaxy (continued on page 12)

Dual

How to make your records sound better, even if they're warped! You'll also make them last longer with a ULM tonearm/cartridge system.

Dual Model 506 Turntable

An ultra low mass tonearm and cartridge system is the most direct way of eliminating tracking problems and excessive record wear. As is often true, the most direct way is less complicated, therefore, less costly and less likely to need repair.

It's obvious that records will last longer if a stylus isn't digging into their grooves with unnecessary force. Having a total effective mass of only 8 grams, Dual's ULM system exerts only a half to a third of the force of most conventional designs. That also makes for more accurate tracking — even over warps. And most records are warped to some small extent. But warped or not, all of your records will sound better.

The Dual Model 506 semi-automatic turntable also has belt drive, four-point, aerospace-analogue tonearm suspension, and more outstanding features.

'Northern Lights' a masterpiece

By MARY TINNEY
State News Reviewer

Northern Lights, brought to campus this weekend by Frontline Cinema, is a small masterpiece. The film, made by two American independent filmmakers on a budget of just $330,000, is testimony to the fact that low-budget, independent films can and do work. Northern Lights won the "Golden Camera Award" last year for best first feature film at the Cannes International Film Festival.

The story of the making of Northern Lights is the kind that inspiring filmmakers fantasize about. John Hanson and Rob Nilsson are two filmmakers who helped form Cine Manifest in the early '70s, a base for making socially progressive narrative film. The organization was initially highly collective: members worked at commercial jobs by turns, pooled their earnings, and shared both technical facilities and experience. They had developed three or four feature scripts when Nilsson and Hanson became interested in the Nonpartisan League, a farmer's organization in North Dakota which formed in 1916 to take control of the state government, to eradicate oppressive practices of middleman and absentee Eastern tycoons. Hanson's grandfather was one of the original organizers of the movement and Nilsson's grandfather was the first filmmaker in North Dakota. Together Hanson and Nilsson decided to make a 30-minute documentary detailing this largely ignored piece of American history.

Northern Lights is an important film both aesthetically and politically. It documents more than the struggle of Dakota farmers — it documents the progress and potential of independent filmmaking in this country.

The two, along with Susan Lynch, an actress with Cine Manifest who stars in Northern Lights, traveled around the state, talking to farmers who remembered the League and digging through old journals for material for the film. Hanson and Nilsson became so immersed in the project and the people that the script gradually grew until it became feature film length. Fundraising became a chief concern, but with generous financial support from the North Dakota Committee for the Humanities and Public Issues and the donation of clothing, props, farm machinery and old cars by the Divide County Historical Society in Crosby, N.D., the project was on its way to being realized. The cast is made up mostly of Dakota farmers and residents. Only three actors, Susan Lynch, Robert Behling and Joe Spano were taken from Cine Manifest.

Northern Lights is filmed in black and white and was originally 16 mm. Later it was blown up to 35 mm for distribution. The film has an authentic grainy quality, like an old daguerrotype, and the images the camera captures are truly haunting (the cinematography was done by Judy Irola). The dispassionate, stark cinematography of Northern Lights reminds one of techniques of American director Terrence Malick — there is the same hypnotizing rhythm to Northern Lights as to Malick's

Days of Heaven.

Although Northern Lights deals with a political subject, the joy of the film is that it is not overtly political. It is never preachy; the emphasis of the film, in fact, is not political doctrine but rather the conflict between political and personal lives. The story is of Ray Sorenson (Behling), a poor Dakota farmer who is reluctant to give up his independence and sign with the League. Lynch plays his girlfriend, Inge. When her family's farm is foreclosed on, Sorenson decides he can sit by no longer. He leaves the farm to his brother John (Spano) and goes on the road for the cause. His relationship with Inge suffers but he continues to consider the League first on his list of priorities. The film documents the quiet struggle of Sorenson, both politically and personally, and the extreme hardship of the farmer's struggling to survive on the Dakota plains.

Northern Lights is an important film both aesthetically and politically. It documents more than the struggle of Dakota farmers — it documents the progress and potential of independent filmmaking in this country.

The film can be seen at 7:15 and 9:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday in B-106 Wells. Admission is $1.75, $1 with RHA pass.

Peter Bogdonovich's most recent and surprisingly good film is Saint Jack, starring Ben Gazzara as the ultimate expatriate entrepreneur in Singapore. This is an excellent and welcome relief from the recent Bogdonovich string of bombs (at 7:15 and 9:30 p.m. Saturday and 8 p.m. Sunday in B-108 Wells Hall).

RHA goes all out too. The Deer Hunter — perhaps the best film of the '70s — is at last coming to campus. Providing the usual dolts who show up to important films DON'T for a change, this might be RHA's finest film presentation of the year. The also-excellent All the President's Men is offered as well as the get-those-degenerate-punks gun-love spectacular Dirty Harry, with Clint Eastwood. The number to call is 355-0313 for times and places.

Beal Cinema presents the cult sci-fi favorite Dark Star, an early John Carpenter effort, at 7:30, 9 and 10:30 p.m. today in 128 Natural Science and Saturday in B-102 Wells Hall. Admission is $1.50. Melts in your mouth, not in your hands. It's Candy Girls, the porno this weekend at 7:30, 9, 10:30 p.m. and midnight Friday in 107 South Kedzie Hall and Saturday in B-104 Wells Hall.

The Union Cafeteria...

The Union Cafeteria is located in the lower level of the Union Building. Open for lunch 11¹⁵-1¹⁵, dinner 5⁰⁰-7⁰⁰ and Sundays from 12⁰⁰-2⁰⁰. The service is quick, friendly and convenient.

Our reputation is built around good, basic, homestyle food. All kinds of delicious dishes are available. The menu is varied with such items as: spinach quiche, souffles, hearty meats, homestyle stews, casseroles and fish, prepared at least two different ways. The Union Cafeteria prides itself in making a different type of soup everyday. We have everything from basics like hamburger vegetable and knockerbocker to Canadian cheese (made with dark beer!) and our popular clam chowder.

Every Tuesday dinner we have a special special. A combination meal is offered at a low price. Wednesday dinner is lasagna and steaming garlic bread. Check out our daily deals every lunch and dinner.

To complement your meal we have a wide selection of salads and a very tempting dessert counter, complete with fresh warm rolls and muffins.

Reasonable prices at the Union Cafeteria welcome the public and the M.S.U. community.

1 P.M. KICKOFF AT STADIUM

Green-White game Saturday

By WILL KOWALSKI
State News Sports Writer

It is finally payoff time for Spartan head football coach "Muddy" Waters and his staff: spring football camp closes this Saturday with the annual Green-White game in Spartan Stadium.

Kickoff is scheduled for 1 p.m., and $2 general admission tickets will be available at the front gate.

Waters is anxious to see just how good the squad will look in a game situation, and envisions a fairly even matchup between the divided squad.

"We tried to make the sides as even as possible, so I think we'll see a great game Saturday," Waters said.

"The players won't be going out to hurt each other, but as soon as the team was divided up the competitive spirit was certainly there."

WATERS WILL NOT be on the field directing either of the teams as he will continue to let his assistants handle the on-field operations while the head man watches from the stands.

Assistant head coach and defensive coordinator Sherm Lewis will lead the Green team while offensive coordinator Joe Pendry will direct the Whites.

Junior Bert Vaughn will start at quarterback for the Green machine and his back-ups will be sophomores-to-be John Leister and Denis Lavelle.

The White's starting quarterback is junior-to-be Brian Clark, while his back-ups are sophomore-to-be Otis Grant and Jon English and freshman Kirk Jacobs.

In the offensive backfield for the Green will be Bruce Reeves, Anthony Ellis and James Hodo at tailback, and Andy Schramm at fullback. The Whites will counter with Derek Hughes and Brad Bache at fullback and Steve

Making up the rest of the White offense should be Ted Jones at split end, Isaac Griffin at tight end, Samson Howard at flanker, tackles Jeff Wiska and Walter Schramm, guards Marvin Mantos and Joe Kolodziej and center Tom Piette.

The big names for the Green defense will be cornerbacks Todd Scarlett and Mike Marshall, outside linebackers Steve Maidlow and Gregg Lauble; tackles Bernard Hay and Johnny Lee Haynes; and strong safety Marcus Toney.

The White defense will center around cornerbacks Van Williams and Jeff Burroughs, free safety Tony Townsend, outside linebacker John McCormick, strong safety Rich Milhizer, middle linebacker James Neely and end Joe Stevens.

Junior quarterback Bert Vaughn and junior defensive back Tom Morris have been named the Spartan offensive and defensive football players of the week.

Vaughn, now healthy again after suffering a kidney injury last season, is a scheduled starter at his position for Saturday's Green-White game.

Morris, a native of Long Beach, Calif., transferred to MSU from Golden West College in Long Beach.

Bert Vaughn

Grabenhorst signed

The New Orleans Saints signed ex-Spartan offensive tackle Ted Grabenhorst to a free agent contract Wednesday.

Also signed by the Saints was ex-University of Michigan guard John Arbezniak and former Purdue University fullback Mike Augustyniak. The team signed eight free agents to contracts this week.

Frustration about to end: baseballers close season

By BILL TEMPLETON
State News Sports Writer

In a single season, the MSU baseball team has gone from the Big Ten's best team to the conference doormat, clinging to a 15-33 overall record and a 3-11 mark in conference play.

But all the frustration comes to a welcome end this weekend as the Spartans travel west for a Saturday double-header with Northwestern University and a Sunday twinbill with the University of Iowa.

"Unfortunately, I don't have an answer," said 17-year head coach Danny Litwhiler about his team's problems. "The players seem to have had the desire to win but we haven't been able to get our pitching, hitting and fielding together at the same time."

"THIS IS MY worst club record-wise, but the attitude is still good and the players are hustling and not bickering among themselves."

Litwhiler has had only two other teams finish in the second division of the Big Ten in his career as Spartan mentor.

Senior Kirk Haines' torrid hitting has been encouraging in recent games, as the Vassar native has raised his conference batting average to .405. Haines nearly defeated Ohio State University by himself last weekend with two home runs and five RBIs in the Spartans' 12-4 victory.

LITWHILER HAS TABBED senior right-hander Brian Wolcott and freshman southpaw Terry Johnson as probable starting pitchers against the Wildcats. Wolcott, 4-5 with a 2.80 earned run average, needs one more victory to become the winningest Spartan pitcher ever. He is tied with former Spartan Larry Ike with 23 victories.

Johnson, meanwhile, is 5-4 with a 2.86 ERA.

Right-handers Jay Strother, a senior, and freshman Brian James are slated to go Sunday against the Hawkeyes. Strother is 2-8 on the year with a 3.92 ERA, while James is 1-1 and 3.64.

The Hawkeyes are 29-14 overall and boast a 9-5 Big Ten mark, good for third in the conference. Hitting .304 as a team, Iowa is led by infielder John Hoyman's .398 batting average.

Outfielder Ed Lash is the Hawkeyes' power hitter with six homers, 27 RBIs and a .350 average.

Iowa has not named its starting pitchers for the twinbill.

NORTHWESTERN IS TIED with Ohio State for eighth place in the Big Ten with a 4-10 mark and 19-19 overall.

Freshman right-hander Jon Osborne, 1-0 with a 0.90 ERA, is set to pitch Saturday's first game, and will then come back in game two as the Wildcats' shortstop. Osborne is hitting .343.

The other Northwestern hurler will be either Bruce Ringstrand or Laird Koldyke. Both are right-handers with Ringstrand at 3-5 and 4.64 and Koldyke at 0-1 and 5.00.

MSU dropped two games to Northwestern on the spring trip this year, 6-2 and 2-1. The Spartans swept a pair from the Wildcats last year, 3-2 and 12-6, and were rained out against Iowa.

The Spartans' fortunes hit a new low Wednesday when the team committed 10 errors in losing the second game of a double-header with Wayne State University. MSU won the first game 5-4.

Laxers host Detroit in '80 season finale

By WILL KOWALSKI
State News Sports Writer

Kevin Willits, MSU's all-time leading lacrosse point-scorer, will be making his final appearance for the Green and White this weekend along with eight other seniors when the laxers host the University of Detroit.

Saturday's battle, which will be played on Old College Field beginning at 2 p.m., is an important one for the squad. Co-coach Nevin Kanner believes a season-ending victory over the Titans will give the players a sense of accomplishment and help the team psychologically in preparing for next year.

"We've had a pretty relaxed week of practice but we're really up for this game," Kanner said. "We want to end the season on a positive note so that the seniors can go out in style and the returning players can start thinking about next year."

"PLUS, IT SOUNDS a lot better to end the year with an 8-10 record instead of 7-11."

U-D has a couple of former MSU players on its team, including Andy Oblemick and Rod Hebert, but Kanner said the Titans are still maturing as a club and he really does not know what to expect from them in the game.

The Spartan seniors are making their final appearance along with Willits are Dewey Andersen, Greg Brinkman, Brian Gaggin, Jim Goldrick, Shawn Grady, Ken Horan, Dan Joranko and Mark Pinto.

FOLLOWING SATURDAY'S SEASON-FINALE, the laxers will play their annual alumni game on Saturday at 2 p.m., and Kanner said he is looking forward to putting the equipment back on and mixing it up with his players.

"The fans will finally get to see the return of the fantastic duo of Kanner and Boku (Hendrickson, the other MSU coach)," Kanner said jokingly.

"Seriously, though, it's going to be a fun time. I played my senior year for MSU when Willits just came to the team as a freshman, and it's going to be interesting for the other seniors, too, to see how we've progressed over the years."

MSU soccermen's alumni contest set

The MSU soccer team will play its annual varsity-alumni game at 11 a.m. Saturday on the varsity field.

Soccer coach Joe Baum is expecting a turnout of about 40 alumni at this year's event, including six past Spartan All-Americans and two professional players from the North American Soccer League.

"We have really had an excellent turn out in past years," Baum said. "It's a great opportunity for people to see great soccer and to see some pros play."

Former Spartan soccer greats expected to be in attendance are Tony Keyes, all-time leading scorer for MSU; Guy Busch, second leading career scorer; and "Dutch" Kemeling as well as NASL players Buzz Demling and Steve Twellman.

There is no admission to the game, which is open to the public.

V-Club meets Sunday

The MSU Varsity Club will meet at 6:30 p.m. Sunday in the Varsity Club room at Spartan Stadium. New member initiations are on the agenda. Featured speaker will be Spartan head basketball coach Jud Heathcote.

A picture caption in Tuesday's State News concerning the Central Region Ultimate Frisbee Championships had some information deleted from it due to space considerations.

The Spartan team defeated the University of Michigan in the tournament finals, 26-23. During the two-day tournament, the MSU team defeated six teams from the field of 14 to claim the crown it won last season. The State News regrets the deletion.

Michigan Week kicks off

Advanced runners and occasional plodders alike can celebrate the start of Michigan Week May 17 at the second annual Capitol 10,000-Meter Fitness Run or the One-Mile Fun Run.

Both activities begin at 10 a.m. Saturday, and T-shirts

MSU Parent's Day

The Third Annual MSU Parent's Day is Saturday with a full day of activities scheduled.

The day's events are sponsored by the MSU Student Foundation. Scheduled activities include a 10,000-meter run that will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday behind Munn Ice Arena. The entrance fee is $6, and all participants will receive a T-shirt.

All proceeds of the race will go to benefit MSU intercollegiate athletics.

Other activities will include:

- A parent's luncheon at 10:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. in the Crossroads cafeteria, International Center. Cost is $3.75 per person.
- Campus tours every half-hour Saturday morning. Two more tours will begin at 1 p.m. and 2 p.m. All tours leave from the Administration Building.
- A "Vet-A-Visit" open house in the Veterinary Clinical Center from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.
- An all-day arts and crafts fair on the Union lawn Saturday and Sunday.
- The annual Green-White football game in Spartan Stadium beginning at 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

says, "and there was an overpopulation of carp in the pond. So it had to be drained."

ACROSS FARM LANE from rabbit-infested area "B", the club has built a dam in area "A."

"Actually it's a dyke," Dexter explains.

The 10-foot long and four-foot high pile of sandbags was put up in one day by the club in the six-acre area.

"It's probably the best thing the club has ever done," he says. "The main thing is to keep it wet to attract ducks."

Why ducks, one might ask.

Well, the area is well-suited for ducks and their nesting, says Mark Gillette, director of public relations with the club.

This area was created specifically, by the damming, to study wetland management and ducks under controlled conditions.

will be given to the first 750 entrants. Plaques will be awarded to the top male and female finishers in the mile event, and awards given for the top 12 male and female finishers in eight divisions in the 10,000 meter run.

The deadline for registration for the 10,000-meter race is 5 p.m. today and costs $5. Participants in the Fun Run can pay $2 for advanced registration or $3 the day of the race.

Entry blanks are available at the Lansing YMCA, 301 W. Lenawee St., the Blue Cross and Blue Shield office, 313 S. Washington Ave., and WILS radio, 600 W. Cavanaugh Rd.

Race administrator Rick Murphy said about 430 entries had been received by Wednesday for both events.

Son of Bush

That's why the Michigan primary to be held Tuesday is the campaign's top priority today.

Because 48 percent of the Republican delegates are not bound when they enter the convention hall this July in Detroit, Jeb says, Bush is now faced with convincing Republicans that he is a winner.

If he wins the next batch of primaries — which includes delegate-rich California with the top prize of 168 — Jeb says his father may walk away with the nomination come July.

"But you can't expect us to do well in California without winning Michigan," he says.

Workers strike

raise, the laborers will stay on strike, Zeis said.

The union's negotiator has been meeting with representatives of the Associated General Contractors of America since Wednesday and the laborers could be back on the job by Monday, Zeis said. But he said he doubts they will be.

Zeis said the contractors are hurting more than the workers because of construction deadlines which must be met.

Once the strike is settled, he said, the contractors will be forced to pay a great deal of overtime to meet their contracted deadlines.

'Bills may prevent war'

By MARK FELLOWS
State News Staff Writer

A package of bills introduced by Rep. Perry Bullard could help prevent an eventual bloodbath in South Africa, an advocate of South African liberation movements said Thursday.

The three bills would mandate divestiture of stock from corporations investing in South Africa.

Bill Sutherland, representative of the American Friends Service Committee to South African independence groups, was in Lansing to help publicize the Ann Arbor Democrat's on-going effort to reduce state investment in stocks of corporations investing in South Africa.

Sutherland's involvement in non-violent protest actions dates back to 1934 and includes associating with social justice advocates. An early civil rights demonstrator, he was active in opposition to World War II as well as the Vietnam conflict.

Sutherland now serves as a liaison for African liberation organizations and support groups in the United States. His Lansing visit was part of a four-month U.S. tour promoting divestiture efforts and support for African liberation movements.

"PEOPLE IN AMERICA need to be convinced that South Africa represents a system worse than that of Nazi Germany," he said. "The conditions there are some of the most depraved in the world."

However, leaders of most liberation movements in South Africa remain committed to non-violent actions to achieve liberation, he said.

But as long as the "structure of violence" remains, he said, repressed Africans will feel less inclined to use non-violent means to achieve change. This may encourage armed conflict with the government, he added.

Speaking of the effects of reduced investment of American firms, Sutherland said the South African people are "ready to suffer to live in dignity and freedom."

Americans must play a special role in helping to liberate South Africans, Sutherland said, because the United States has a "key role in undergirding of the apartheid system."

Specifically, Sutherland mentioned American technical aid to South Africa in computers, automobiles and nuclear engineering — areas that give the minority government power over its citizens, he said.

SUTHERLAND SAID he had no doubt that a move by the state Legislature mandating divestiture of such stock would send a message of disapproval to the South African government as well as encourage those seeking liberation there.

"There's no question that change will come to South Africa one way or another," he said.

Bullard's three divestiture bills are in various stages of consideration by the Legislature.

One bill, prohibiting state universities from investing in corporations with operations in South Africa, is encountering some resistance, Bullard said, by legislators attempting to keep broad and vague language in the bill, rather than substituting more specific language.

Another bill seeking to prohibit the state from depositing surplus funds in banks loaning money to corporations operating in South Africa is pending, as supporters defeated two weakening amendments this week, Bullard said.

The final bill seeks to keep pension funds managed by the treasury department from investing in those corporations. This bill remains in committee while supporters try to make its language more specific, Bullard said.

Money swim

State News/Deborah J. Borin
Junior Dave Tighe and sophomore Dave Peterson of Alpha Tau Omega weren't just having a relaxing swim Thursday; they and other fraternity members took part in the second annual ATO All-Campus Swim to raise money for the American Cancer Society. A total 47 swimmers raised about $3,200 from the event.

Youth workshop slated

A recreation and youth leadership workshop will be held from 1 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday at the Lansing International YMCA, 301 W. Lenawee St., Lansing.

The workshop will cover seven topics, including "Aquatics and Water Safety in Recreation." Paula Dirke, youth and aquatic supervisor at the YMCA, said the workshops will involve "group participation."

Participants are requested to bring swim suits, towels and gym shoes. The registration fee for the workshop is $3. The event is open to the public.

Past presidents

"Hannah understood Michigan Agricultural College and led the most far-reaching revolution of higher education," he said.

"Hannah said the original purpose of Michigan State was to prepare for education of a new kind... education for all, not just the privileged," Adams continued.

Hannah wanted MSU to be an institution good enough for the finest, and cheap enough for the poorest, Adams added.

When Hannah resigned in 1969, the MSU Board of Trustees, "in a moment of impetuosity," appointed Adams acting president.

As president, Adams said he had three ambitions — to preside over the best football team, have the shortest term and to be the Millard Fillmore of MSU presidents — the one nobody remembers. "I got two out of three," he told the group.

In 1970, Wharton was selected as president.

Kinney speaks

because presidents, trustees and faculty members come and go, whereas alumni are more permanent.

He said the alumni association, unlike the MSU Development Fund, is not primarily involved in fund raising.

"Our role is friend raising," Kinney said. Members of COGS also elected officers for the 1980-81 school year. They are Tom Hocking, president; Joel Dean, vice president for internal affairs; Catherine Adams, vice president for University relations; Madeline Trimby, vice president for graduate welfare; Brad Eft, treasurer; Jeanne Klein, recording secretary; and John Katona, corresponding secretary.

Ferency on children's rights

councils, but it would be less direct," said Henry Altling, committee chairperson to the council.

"If we go to the DSS, the 4C will become buried in bureaucracy," he said. "The DSS will not advocate for children as we have — it would not be as concentrated a voice for children."

The executive committee of the 4C met in April and decided to retaliate and fight for its cause all the way through the legislature, Altling said.

"We are willing to take a cut because of the economic conditions," Altling said, "but hope the state will keep the 4C council and give it a reasonable budget."

The council has been instrumental in the development of a strong network of professionals, public sector representatives, parents and interested citizens who are concerned with the well-being of children, Altling said.

During this fiscal year, the 4C council is funding 10 local 4C agencies with federal funds. These agencies provide services to families in 30 of Michigan's 83 counties, Altling said.

In addition to abolishing the council, Milliken would return these federal funds to the Department of Social Services, thus jeopardizing the entire 4C network, Altling said.

"WE ARE COMMITTED to maintain the 4C network in Michigan,"

Altling said. "We are, however, sensitive to the fiscal condition of the state and we all have been grappling with the realities of shrinking budgets and in addition the increasing need for human services."

The 4C council has consistently advocated that a choice of quality child care services available to all citizens. This advocacy has been directed at the governor, the Legislature, state departments, child care providers and parents, Altling said.

The state 4C council has more than 300 individuals and organizational members who are committed to improving the care of children, Altling said.

Dance to benefit disease research

A dance to benefit the Sickle Cell Anemia Research Foundation in Detroit will be held from 9 p.m. Saturday until 2 a.m. Sunday in Shaw Hall's lower lounge.

The disco dance is sponsored by Non-stop Enterprises, a newly formed student organization for charitable causes.

The dance is free before 9:30 p.m. and thereafter a $1.50 admission fee will be charged. Non-stop Enterprises will also allow anyone with a pledge card from Delta Sigma Theta's sickle cell anemia walk-a-thon to be admitted for half price.

The dance features two live bands, Most Valuable Players of Lansing and Primo of Battle Creek. Rhonda Hughes, Ms. Black MSU, will perform at the dance as well as Lora Larkins, Nate Calhoun, Jimmy Watt, Precisions and Solid Gold.

Prismatic band's jazz

combines a wide spectrum of melodic and rhythmic effects that has been called "as haunting as Debussy." Griot Galaxy has changed in its size and scope since its first 1976 recording "Vibes From The Tribe." Since then the group has evolved from a trio into a full-blown eight-piece avant-garde jazz ensemble, which featured renowned guitarist Spencer Barefield, and two of the finest jazz women in the area: Elrita Dodds, clarinet and bass clarinet, and Kati Patrice Nassoma on flute and harp.

Now Griot Galaxy has reshaped into a quartet that bills itself as "the new science fiction band." The band features Tani Tabbal, drums; Jaribu Shahid, bass; and Faruq Z. Bey and Dave McMurray on saxophones.

It should be an interesting concert featuring the music of two of the Detroit area's most innovative and progressive bands. Showtime is at 9 p.m. Tickets are $3 until noon today at the MSU Union ticket office, WhereHouse Records, and Flat, Black and Circular and are $3.50 at the door.

Art on display

Artists from throughout the Midwest will exhibit paintings, prints, ceramics, weavings, sculptures, photographs, glass work and other crafts on the streets of East Lansing this weekend at the city's 17th Annual Arts Festival.

The exhibits will be in the alley behind Grand River Avenue between Abbott Road and Charles Street.

M.A.C. Avenue and Charles Street will be closed off during the festival hours — between 10 a.m. and 9 p.m. today, and between 10 a.m. and 8 p.m. Saturday.

Performing arts will be featured on a stage on M.A.C. Avenue. Performances will begin at 11 a.m. today and Saturday and will include theater, dance, music and voice artists.

The East Lansing Fine Arts Commission will present cash awards tonight for the best show and display.

The Central East Lansing Business Association will also present cash awards tonight for excellence in two-dimensional and three-dimensional works.

Crafts this weekend

The Union Activities Board will sponsor the MSU Spring Arts and Crafts show this weekend between the Union and Human Ecology Building.

More than 150 East Lansing artists will exhibit their work at the affair. The show will run from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday.

PIRGIM will meet

An orientation meeting for PIRGIM members interested in being on the PIRGIM-MSU Board of Directors beginning summer or fall term will be held at 3 p.m. today in 22 Student Services Bldg.

Seven positions are open to students who have paid their $1 membership fee at spring term registration.

The Board of Directors decides the viewpoints and actions PIRGIM takes on issues affecting students. Final applications are due no later than 2 p.m. Monday in 22 Student Services Bldg.

Elections will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday in the MSU Union. Only PIRGIM members are eligible to vote.

Hong Kong Rattan: Ancient yet fresh.

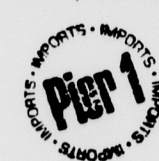

Still an innovation in seating the rattan swing is an Oriental gem. Surely the first maker had an eye for the setting of a moment's meditation? Ages ago he sought this symmetry of form and substance to hang beneath a banyan tree.

Today, the proportions sing as clearly. In the garden, on the porch, in your family room.

The graceful shape of this natural rattan chair results from the craft of the master weavers in Hong Kong. Each piece of rattan is steamed and bent by hand, then bound with peel from the same tough vine.

The journey: From the workshops of Kowloon to Victoria harbor, then aboard ship for the 41-day crossing of the Pacific by way of Chilung, Nagoya, Guam, and Honolulu to West Coast ports. Then by rail or truck to Pier 1.

23 Rattan swing chairs: Reg. $59.99, $49.88
