NIGHT SCENES IN CHICAGO.—First illustration at top showing a storm on lake with steamer in distress, and the life-saving crew to the rescue.—The central scene, showing the Tribune Building, is a glance at the streets after the theatre.—On each side is depicted a glimpse of the great blast furnaces which light up the city for miles around.—Again is a small view showing a fire in the distance with the fire boat Yosemite enroute on the river.—The lower illustration shows the most marvelous night railroad scene in Chicago; a view of the tremendous system of tracks from the Halsted St. viaduct with the thousands of bright lights and a picture of the city in the distance.
