MISS T. P. CLINTON, IOWA
Sagacity, warm heartedness, and a keen sense of humor are present here. Miss P. is unselfish and affectionate and possesses traits that would fit her well for domesticity, but she can achieve unusual business success if she wishes. She is enterprising and able to work and organize.

MISS L. B. ROCK ISLAND, ILL.
Miss B. is high spirited, intelligent, highly sensitive, and courageous, and she is persevering, a trait unusual in one who is also impulsive. She has a great love of literature and travel and a craving for knowledge of all sorts. She has good discrimination.

MISS M. McI. TERRE HAUTE, IND.
Buoyant good spirits and a strong social sense are Miss McI.'s marked characteristics. She is energetic and adaptable, does her own thinking and makes her own decisions, but is also open-minded. Generosity is evident here.

MISS M. D. LAWTON, OKLA.
Miss D. is rather an easy going person, preferring to gain her point by persuasion rather than force. She is light hearted most of the time, but occasionally a mood of rather petulant discouragement overtakes her. Miss D. appreciates comfort and strives for it.

MISS C. P. JOLIET, ILL.
Miss P. is probably an unusually well balanced person, combining the requisite mental equipment with good spirits, a sense of justice, and will power and vitality. She is open hearted and adaptable and entirely unselfish, but she will never be imposed upon.

MISS I. S. TOLEDO, OHIO
Miss S. is a person of high ideals, considerable ability, and definite views. She is quite ambitious and with her gifts should succeed. She is rather undemonstrative, but fundamentally she is loyal and affectionate and decidedly unselfish.

MISS G. J. FT. WAYNE, IND.
Miss J. is deliberate in thought, speech, and action, and she is extremely tactful. However, she is a bit too sensitive and introspective. Discord is most unpleasant to her. She has an intense love of beauty and natural good taste in art and literature.

MISS M. B. KALAMAZOO, MICH.
Miss B.'s eyes and brows reveal her character quite accurately. Their shape and their direct gaze indicate that she is straightforward, clear thinking, and fairly determined and that she has well controlled emotional depths. She is an understanding person who would make a loyal friend.

MISS M. P. CHICAGO, ILL.
Miss P. can reason well, and she has the gift of judging others accurately. She is a person of discriminating tastes and acute sensibilities, and polish, refinement, and culture are much prized by her. She also has a taste for luxury.

MISS W. S. BATTLE CREEK, MICH.
Intellect and will power are reflected in this face, but in the possession of these traits Miss S. does not sacrifice the decidedly feminine ones of intuition, imagination, and sympathy. In fact, her sympathy and gentleness are apt to influence her too much where her friends are concerned.
