

ON THE EVE OF THE NAVAL CONFERENCE, which convenes in London Tuesday, Premier MacDonald of Britain and his family sought relaxation from the pressure of official and social affairs by visiting their old Scottish home at Lossiemouth. Left to right are Joan, the prime minister, Malcolm, Sheila, and Ishbel.

(Photograph from Associated Press.)

AMERICA'S DELEGATES to the five-power parley on the limitation of naval armament, pictured at the White House after their final conference with President Hoover. Left to right are Secretary of the Navy Charles F. Adams, Senator David A. Reed, Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, President Hoover, Senator Joseph T. Robinson, and Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow. Ambassadors Charles G. Dawes and Hugh S. Gibson are the other two delegates.

(Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)

WINTER WARBIRDS — Pilots of some of the twenty-two planes which participated in the test midwinter cruise of the army's "arctic patrol" from Selfridge field, Mich., to Spokane, Wash. Maj. Ralph Royce, in command of the flight, is fourth from the left in the rear row.

(Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)

PARLEY-BOUND — A "big four" of France en route to The Hague for the second conference on the Young plan for reparations, which continued sessions throughout last week. Left to right, Premier Tardieu; Henri Cheron, minister of finance; Aristide Briand, foreign minister; Louis Loucheur, minister of labor.

(Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)

A SMILING CALVIN COOLIDGE, insurance man, enjoyed a breath of summer in winter when he visited St. Petersburg, Fla., and addressed the annual meeting of the company of which he is a director. Between the former President and Mrs. Coolidge is Darwin P. Kingsley, president of the company.

(Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)

CELEBRATING FREDERICK A. STOCK'S SILVER ANNIVERSARY as conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, prominent Chicagoans gathered at the Palmer House last Sunday evening for the memorial dinner sponsored by the Bohemian club. Left to right, Claire Dux (Mrs. Charles H. Swift), Mr. Stock, Herbert Wither- spoon, and Mrs. Stock.

(Tribune photograph.)

THREE REASONS why skiing is popular, among others, are Norma Pettersen, Dickie Rentz, and Grace Pettersen, members of the Norge Ski club. The club will hold its annual tournament at the Cary slide today.

(Tribune photograph.)

YOUNG HAPSBURG EXILES, Princess Sarmolita and Princess Elizabeth, have taken up domestic science at a tender age in Belgium, where they now live with their mother, Former Empress Zita. Zita moved to Belgium with her family recently in order that her son, Otto, claimant to the throne of Hungary, might enter the University of Louvain.

(Photograph from International.)

BEST OF ALL, for his age. John D. Rockefeller indulging in his daily round of golf at Ormond Beach, Fla., the winter setting of his perennial activities. He is now well on the way to 91, and has his heart set on turning the century.

(Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)