

Let Men You Know Report the Truth to You

PERCY HAMMOND.

Peace has not yet been declared. We are still in a state of war. Two hundred million inhabitants of Europe are in political and economic chaos.

The future of the world is at stake—today more than ever before.

Forces as mighty as those that filled the trenches still front each other—around a conference table.

New forces have swelled to mighty proportions since the armistice was signed—national hates and desires—radical theories—social and political. The United States can no more keep apart from the turmoil than it could keep out of the war.

In fact, the United States may be the deciding influence for or against right or wrong—for or against permanent peace and prosperity.

Unlimited propaganda, therefore, is directed at us from all sides to sway American opinion. Every foreign group seeks to color facts in its own interest. Every imaginable influence is being exerted to use us for this policy or that.

Americans Must Know the Truth—Today and Every Day

Believing this to be the supreme opportunity of The Chicago Tribune to serve the American public, a staff of Chicago Tribune correspondents has been sent to Europe surpassing any group of journalists ever sent across the Atlantic by any American newspaper or magazine.

The Chicago Tribune did not pick European scientists, European diplomats, European journalists to be your agents; neither did The Chicago Tribune pick American public men however notable as politicians or professors.

The Chicago Tribune picked trained American reporters—newspaper men who have proven in the furnace of metropolitan competition their ability to gather and present FACTS. The Chicago Tribune has sent to Europe a staff of trained investigators who can be counted upon to see things from the American viewpoint, to find out and tell us the things we want to know, to be staunchly American in thought, word, and act.

You Know These Men— They're "Home Folks"

You know FLOYD GIBBONS, who was signally honored by both Foch and Pershing for his services as an American war correspondent on the western front.

You know FREDERICK A. SMITH, former city editor of The Chicago Tribune, first American newspaper man into Berlin after the armistice, who achieved his scoop by an airplane flight from the western front.

You know JOHN T. McCUTCHEON, the very embodiment of the Central West, its humor, its ideals, its social, business, and political life.

You know HENRY M. HYDE, whose years on The Chicago Tribune have been devoted to the up-building of the interests of this community, to the study of its agriculture, industry and politics.

You know M. F. MURPHY, native of Iowa, veteran Tribune reporter and publisher of the Paris Edition of The Chicago Tribune.

You know PARKE BROWN and ARTHUR EVANS, both of them in closest touch with the big men and events of the Central West for more than a decade.

You know FRAZIER HUNT, product of Illinois and author of news stories from the Archangel front which are being used to furnish information to the United States Senate.

These members of The Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service will supplement with their special correspondence the news which The Tribune receives from New York Times News Service, the Associated Press, and the United Press.
