

VIRGINIA'S APPLE BLOSSOM PRINCESS—Miss Gertrude Murrell of Richmond was appointed by Gov. John G. Pollard to represent the Old Dominion at the Shenandoah apple blossom festival at Winchester, Va. (Acme photo.)

AT THEIR SOLE STOPPING PLACE BETWEEN LOUISIANA AND BAFFIN LAND these vast flights of blue and lesser snow geese were pictured from a blind with a telescopic camera. Each year in April they leave the bayous and marshes of the south for the arctic wastes, stopping for ten days to rest and feed in the stubble fields twenty miles west of Winnipeg, Man. It is estimated that 500,000 geese visit these fields during the northward migration.

(Photo by C. P. Dettloff.)

OUR MR. PEGLER could find no fault with this boxing match. No boxing commission fixed the rules; no soulless corporation officiated at the gate; no purse rewarded the contenders. These nine-month-old twin tiger cubs, presented to the London zoo by the Nawab Sahib Bahadur Bahawalpur of Punjab, India, started the sparring match as soon as they were placed in their cage in the lion and tiger house at the zoo.

(Associated Press photo.)

UNDER THE CROSSED SABERS of a guard of honor, Maj. M. Burrows of the Inniskilling dragoons and his bride, who was Miss Molly Le Bas, prominent both in London society and artistic circles, left St. Margaret's church after their recent wedding.

(Acme photo.)

A CHICAGO-SAN FRANCISCO AIR EXPRESS circles over Chicago on the start of its transcontinental flight. Before straightening out for its nonstop flight to Cheyenne, Wyo., where the operating personnel is changed, this fourteen passenger air liner flew over the near north side. In the left foreground are the Wrigley building, Tribune Tower, and Medinah Athletic club.

(Tribune photo by Albert Madsen.)

FAIR ROGUES OF SHERWOOD FOREST—Miss Anita Fouilhoux of New York impersonates Little John, Miss Eleanor Stonington of Staten island, New York, Friar Tuck, and Miss Esther Smith, Will Scarlet, in the presentation of "Robin Hood" at Bryn Mawr college, Bryn Mawr, Pa.

(Acme photo.)