

A. M. A. APPROVES FIRST 2 YRS. OF CHICAGO SCHOOL

May Gain Full Status if Hospitals Aid

BY ROY GIBBONS
(Chicago Tribune Press Service)
Atlantic City, N. J., June 9.—The council on medical education and hospitals of the American Medical Association today voted to approve the first two years of instruction given by the Chicago Medical School, 710 S. Wolcott st.

That institution, since its organization in 1912 as a night medical school, has been on the A. M. A. blacklist and its graduates have been barred from practice in all except a few states, including Illinois. Until today it had been the only unrecognized medical school operating in the United States.

Action taken by the A. M. A. accrediting body in authorizing partial recognition for the school, it was pointed out, now paves the way for the institution to work its way to full approval of its four year course.

Hospital Teaching Is Issue

To achieve that status the council, in commending the school on the great progress it has made in administrative reorganization, financial support, and quality of instruction, ruled the school now must take steps to perfect its hospital teaching facilities.

These facilities, according to Chicago physicians who have come here to attend the A. M. A.'s centennial celebration meeting which opened today, have been limited to bedside instruction and clinical teaching opportunities afforded principally in municipal and county hospitals in the Chicago area. Because of the school's unrecognized position accredited private hospitals in Chicago, with few exceptions, have had only remote affiliations with the institution, the physicians explained.

Dean Sheinin Given Credit

Credit for the school's reformation, according to Chicago physicians, belongs to Dr. John J. Sheinin, 47, dean of the school who lives with his wife, Ruth, and son, James, 10, at 221 S. Central Park av., Chicago. Dr. Sheinin is an honor graduate of Northwestern university medical school thru which he helped pay his way by working as a painter in the Pullman car shops in South Chicago.

He fled to this country in 1920 to escape the terror of the Red revolution in Russia where he was born in the town of Minsk.

Dr. Sheinin appeared before the council here Saturday to petition for his school's recognition.

Trustees Attend Session

He was accompanied by Lester M. Selig, 179 Lake Shore dr., chairman of the Chicago Medical school's board of trustees and vice chairman of the board of the General American Transportation corporation. Other school trustees present were Hamilton Loeb, president of Elief and Loeb Insurance company, Chicago, and Judge Louis Leventhal of the Superior court, Philadelphia, Pa.

From well informed sources it was learned the school in a recent drive has accumulated $200,000 to guarantee its continued support during the next five years, independent of student tuitions and laboratory fees.

Assail Sen. Murray

The A. M. A. house of delegates issued a formal statement condemning Sen. Murray (D., Mont.) for a "crude attempt to inject into the centenary proceedings propaganda for his compulsory sickness tax bill" pending in congress.

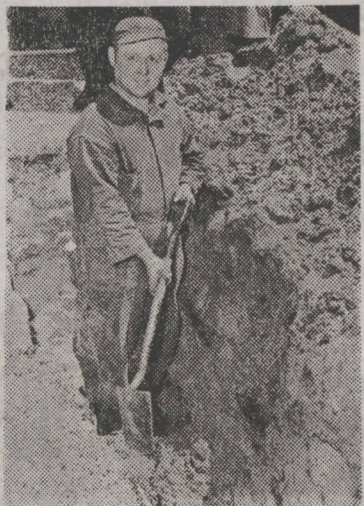

Murray is a collaborator in the Wagner-Murray-Dingell national health measure which would tax wage earners for an additional payroll deduction to carry out its provisions.

The A. M. A. board voted to accept the resignations of Raymond Rich associates, a New York publicity firm, and Charles M. Swart, a representative of that company employed in 1946 to act as public relations counsel. It was understood here that the public relations post will be given to John L. Bach, 7107 Bennett av., Chicago, who now heads the A. M. A.'s news service.

Finds Skeleton

The skeleton of a man, buried face downward about 18 inches below the ground, was discovered yesterday in a courtyard at 1520 State pkwy. by a plumber probing for a broken water main.

The bones were turned over to Dr. Wilton Krogman, University of Chicago anthropologist, for examination. The only part of the skull discovered was the jaw bone.

The bones were found by William T. Varg, of 1722 Hudson av. He said that water pipes, which were beneath the skeleton, appeared to have been in the ground about 10 years.

The building at 1520 State pkwy. is the former home of the late Henry Holmes Porter, financier and former chairman of the board of the Chicago Transfer and Clearing company, who died in 1933. It is now owned by the Peabody estate, and is managed by the real estate firm of Hogan and Farwell.

GI FUGITIVES FLEE TO FRENCH ZONE; 2 CAUGHT

FRANKFURT, Germany, June 9 (AP)—A new escape of soldier-prisoners from a United States army hospital was partly thwarted today as a man hunt for six rifle armed G. I. fugitives spread to the French zone of Germany.

The United States constabulary reported that two soldiers were captured scaling the fence of the station hospital at Heidelberg after a third had broken out of the hospital grounds in a jeep.

Hundreds of constabulary troops and military police throught the American zone were alerted to watch for a speeding black sedan, formerly stolen from an army officer and his family by four of eight soldiers who broke out of Mannheim stockade yesterday. Two were recaptured.

The sedan raced at 70 miles an hour this afternoon thru the frontier station between the American and French zones near Karlsruhe.

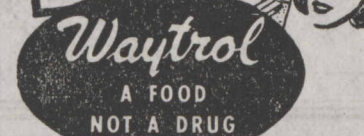

One of the original eight fugitives, Richard J. Kent, 20, serving a five year sentence, was picked up by military police near Heidelberg. The second prisoner, Charles B. Bond, Negro, of Birmingham, Ala., was captured by a patrol of the 15th constabulary squadron near Hockenheim.

NEW METHODS TO AID CANCER SUFFERERS TOLD

Atlantic City, N. J., June 9 (AP)—A new examination technique which may save more lives among women suffering from a highly-fatal cancerous condition of the womb was reported to the centennial convention of the American Medical Association today.

The malady is cancer of the cervix. Every year, 17,000 American women die of uterus cancer, and a large proportion of deaths are from cancers of the cervix. Approximately four of every 1,000 women in the country suffer from cervix cancer, and it strikes particularly at women in the prime of life.

Describe New Method

The new technique, described by cancer researchers of Massachusetts General Hospital, consists of a method of rapid determination of the effect of X-ray or radium radiation on the cancer, so that methods of treatment might be changed if it is indicated that the radiation treatment is ineffective.

Early cases of cervix cancer often can be cured by surgery. But as the condition advances, radiation is the treatment usually given. Up to now, doctors have had no test of the effectiveness of radiation. If they had, and found that it was unlikely to aid the patient, they might then switch to radical surgery in cases that were "borderline surgical risks," or possibly increase the dosage of radiation.

Speed Saves Lives

The Boston researchers said that in those borderline cases the life-saving rate might be appreciably increased if it were determined quickly enough that radiation was ineffective.

The new technique for evaluating the effect of radiation was devised by Mrs. Ruth Graham, a research assistant at the hospital.

Two Georgia doctors, describing a "two hour pregnancy test" they've developed, said today it was faster and more accurate than older tests for diagnosing pregnancy and that its prime value was in surgical emergencies where "the more lengthy tests cannot be employed."

Drs. Herbert Kupperman and Robert B. Greenblatt of the University of Georgia school of medicine said their method consists of injecting bodily secretions of women under study into an immature female rat. If the woman is pregnant, the ovaries of the rat become reddened with blood in two hours, due to a dilation of blood vessels.
