Lauds Steindel Concert Heard at Grant Park

Critic Praises Musicianship of Conductor.

BY CECIL M. SMITH. Just before sunset, as the slanting rays of the sun flooded Grant park with warm, yellow light, Walter Steindel, at the head of his 75 piece orchestra raised his baton to start the fifth of the nightly series of free outdoor concerts given in the band shell at the foot of Eleventh street.

The most challenging items on Mr. Steindel's program were the "unfamiliar" symphony of Schubert, Liszt's "Les Préludes," and the prelude to Wagner's "Die Meistersinger." As one who had not heard Mr. Steindel conduct before, I was delighted at all times by his judicious and sensitive feeling for just the correct tempo, and by the serious musicianship which marked his approach to everything he chose to play.

Mary Ann Kaufman, Chicago dramatic soprano, appeared as soloist in the prayer from Weber's "Der Freischütz" and Bohm's "Calm as the Night." Miss Kaufman is one of the most gratifying of our Chicago sopranos, and much of her singing was of velvet loveliness.

Ernest Ansermet, Swiss conductor who is to lead the Chicago Symphony orchestra in four concerts at Ravinia park beginning Thursday, has sent in a revised list of programs. They are as follows:

- Thursday at 8:30: Overture to "News of the Day"..... Hindemith "Mother Goose"..... Ravel "La Mer"..... Debussy Suite, "Scherzade"..... Rimski-Korsakov Friday at 8:30: Symphony No. 5, E Minor..... Tchaikovsky Dances of Galina (new)..... Kodaly Suite from "Petroushka"..... Stravinsky Saturday at 8:30: Fragments from "Apollon Musagète" (new)..... Stravinsky Symphony No. 1, Opus 10..... Shostakovich Overture to "La Donna Serpente" (new)..... Casella "Don Juan"..... Richard Strauss Dances from "The Three-Cornered Hat"..... De Falla "The Fountains of Rome"..... Respighi Sunday at 4: Overture to "Benvenuto Cellini"..... Bellini Symphony in D Minor..... Franck Epigraphes Antiques (new)..... Debussy-Ansermet Pictures at an Exhibition..... Moussorgsky-Ravel

English Vicar Who Wed Duke Arrives in U. S.

(Picture on back page.) New York, July 5.—(AP)—The man who defied his church superiors to give the duke and duchess of Windsor a religious wedding arrived here today to tell Americans how to be good Christians.

When he finally was settled in his Fifth avenue hotel, the Rev. Robert Anderson Jardine made it clear that he decided his little parish in Yorkshire, England, was too small for him even before the incurred the wrath of the Church of England.

The Rev. Mr. Jardine revealed that he considers both the duke and duchess of Windsor as "deeply religious people, contrary to the general belief," and that he had long considered performing their marriage ceremony, but volunteered only five days before the wedding, "because I felt I was not the man to officiate."

"I thought it very unfair of the Church of England not to look at the wedding from the spiritual standpoint," he said. "The couple were wedded to religious service and it was refused. The archbishop of Canterbury took a political view of the subject rather than a spiritual view. It is a real lasting match. They are intensely happy and those who say that it will not last are false prophets."

He called himself "a sky pilot" as he posed for pictures with an aviator who is going to fly him on a two months' lecture tour of the United States. He also posed with Hugh C. Ernst, president of the radio organization which is financing his trip, and with Dr. Christian F. Reinsner, who is going to have the English vicar preach in his Methodist Broadway temple here Sunday night.

A ruddy, barrel-chested man, the Rev. Mr. Jardine told how he "always wanted to preach in America." He has big plans for his return to England, too, but said he won't be able to speak on the government-controlled radio.

"There's a worse censorship over there than Hitler's or Mussolini's," he said. He will broadcast sermons from Atlantic City, N. J., and from here Friday and Saturday nights and hopes for more time on the American radio, but he said, "I'm not telling my plans in England."

The Rev. Mr. Jardine revealed that forty years ago when he was a boy of 19 he was an atheist—his father was head of an atheist organization. One night he wandered into a Methodist meeting in Liverpool, England, and was converted. He became a Methodist street corner preacher and later a missionary on the Shetland Islands. Then he joined the Protestant Free Church movement before he joined the Anglican Church in 1923.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

One of Worth's mannequins, whose very light hair is tinted a soft pink, a fashion increasingly popular in Paris. The rosy tint of her hair dramatizes her small hat made of faggoted bands of narrow black ribbon.

PARIS.—[Special.]—It may sound coveckey by Chicago standards—and no one is more surprised than we are—but we see hair tinted pink, purple, and blue every day in Paris and we LIKE it! Wherever the ultrafashionable women congregate you'll see tinted heads and if the women are smartly dressed you'll react surprisingly well.

We've seen purple and blue rinses before, of course—conservative ones, with bluish tinge used to dramatize snowy white hair. Over here women who are dramatically chic don't stop with a faint tint. They take it big and the effect on certain women isn't nearly as theatrical as a word picture must make it sound. They're women set apart anyway by their clothes, their jewelry, their air of sophistication.

Wide-Set Eye Appearance Is Desirable One

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY. (Copyright, 1937, By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.) A certain fashion show recently conducted in New York, in its advertised invitations appealed to young women to be sure to appear in the audience because movie scouts would be on hand to do their well known picking and choosing in their own undercover way. It was suggested, to this invited young audience, that a movie contract might await the girl with wide-set eyes and "clothes shoulders."

Of wide-set eyes we'd speak today. We'll leave the "clothes shoulders" until tomorrow. There was a time when the girl with eyes set closely together had to go through life grinning and bearing it; or, perhaps not even aware that this formation of eye was not to the good. But today, she hears so much about the beauty of wide-set eyes, she is not likely to remain in ignorance about close-set ones being a liability. And being today's girl on a quest for every single improvement possible, she studies those eyes of hers, and studies and puts into effect means of widening the distance of which we speak.

Rarely today does one find the close-set appearance due to eyebrows meeting. I don't recall seeing such a sight for ages. This is because of the tweezing ease with which they are disposed of, or other modern means of this superfluous hair removal.

It's amazing—what shortening the eyebrow line will do. That is, plucking out the hairs toward the nose a fraction of an inch, I've seen great improvement with this simple feat. Then if you carry your eyeshadow out toward the temples, omitting it from the inner corners of the eyes completely, you'll lend more of the width you want.

Another little aid, although a little distance removed, is to brush the hair back off the temples. Don't pull hair forward for it adds to the close-set, cramped look. And keep the full area above and around the eyes free of wild hairs.

New Golf Togs Are Smart and Easy to Wear

Hunt for Sport Clothes Bears Fruit.

BY RHEA SEEGER. Shoppers searching for a faultless golf outfit will cheer a certain winner we've found in a Chicago shop that really goes in for correct and comfortable sports clothes with high fashion emphasis. Usually golf dresses are so well designed that the snap and style is designed right out, or else they are so complicated to get into that you give up in disgust. This new find, we hasten to proclaim, is different.

The material is a stunning natural tone roughish linen, supercol and unquestionably the nicest of all summer fabrics. Down the front are silver metal removable studs. The sleeves are short, and the tops cut for freedom and comfort. The front of the smart skirt has a couple of umbrella rib tucks, but the action blouse back is the big news. Cleverly set in to the back section, just where it's needed, is a panel of linen colored latex that will stretch from here to there and back again. Covering this latex is a loose panel of the linen of the dress.

The way this linen panel covers the latex panel is the telling magic of the entire outfit. Sewed securely into the shoulder seams only, it is then fastened smoothly at the waist with the belt that ties in front. Every inch of the latex is concealed, by the upper linen panel, nothing binds or pulls, and you play the most strenuous of games with complete freedom and comfort.

This new invention tube as only linen can, and it's good looking enough to wear at the country club or even into town.

While you're inspecting the golf dress take a look at the new length one piece tennis dresses in the same shop. They are made of angel skin sharkskin, smoother but not any whiter than ordinary sharkskin, and are grand tennis outfits because of the Spartan simplicity, high neckline, and comfortable sleeveless tops. A minimum of deep blue braid is the contrast trim.
