

MYSTERY TRUNK ENTERS QUIZ ON HEIRESS' DEATH

Officials Trace Reason for Delayed Voyage.

TORONTO, Ont., July 23.—[Special.]—A mysterious trunk which Ontario inheritance tax officials are trying to trace in Montreal and in Belfast, Ireland, today became a factor in the investigation into the death and financial affairs of Mrs. Mabelle Horlick Sidley, malted milk heiress.

The tax authorities have asked the help of Belfast police and of officials of the Canadian Pacific Steamship line in the hunt for the lost piece of luggage. The trunk supposedly was shipped to England from Canada about July 15.

Just how the trunk fits into the strange case the Canadian investigators refused to say. It was reported here that Thomas Henry Bull, youngest son of W. Perkins Bull, Toronto attorney and financier, left Montreal on July 15, bound for England aboard the steamer Duchess of Bedford, a Canadian Pacific vessel.

Heiress Dies in Bull Home.

Thomas, however, did not continue the voyage to Europe. He left the steamer by pilot boat at Father Point and returned on July 16 to Toronto in response to a radio message from Toronto asking him to appear at the inquest into Mrs. Sidley's death. The elder Bull also is to be a witness at the inquest.

For years he was the friend and adviser to Mrs. Sidley. She died in the Bull home here on last July 6. She had been a guest there for a year prior to her death.

Her will, which was filed for probate in Racine, Wis., a few days ago, disposed of an estate estimated at from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000. Her only son, William Horlick Sidley, and W. Perkins Bull each are given $250,000 directly, plus a one-third interest in the residual estate. Most of the remaining third goes to various charities and to St. John's Military academy.

Quiz Thomas Bull.

A second Bull son, W. Perkins Bull Jr., who now is in England, is to receive the income from a $250,000 trust set up under the terms of Mrs. Sidley's will.

For two hours last night Douglas Peck, king's counselor, and Kirby Hannan of the treasury department subjected Thomas Bull to questioning at Queen's Park here. Sitting with them was W. B. Common, K. C., senior solicitor to the attorney general and as such the province's police representative.

After young Bull's departure they let it be known they had examined him about matters pertaining to his interrupted sailing. They also disclosed that they now are attempting to trace certain telephone calls made between the ship and shore after the vessel passed Father Point.

AWAIT RECOVERY OF EX-CHIEF FOR SHOOTING CLEWS

Calumet City police were waiting yesterday for the recovery of their former chief, Jack Shupryt, to get his story of an attack on him Friday night by two or three gunmen. Shupryt is in St. Margaret's hospital in Hammond, suffering from a slight gunshot wound, a leg broken above the knee, concussion of the brain, and numerous bruises.

Shupryt, now employed by the state, was attacked outside a tavern at Michigan City road and Burnham road, in Calumet City, shortly before midnight. When found in a semi-conscious condition he said his assailants told him they were going to "take him for a ride" and that he resisted. The reason for the attack was clouded as hospital attaches would not permit him to be questioned yesterday.

Shupryt was head of the Calumet City police for ten years prior to 1935.

$7,500 Punch

Arthur Jurs (right), who sprained thumb in thwarting $7,500 holdup with left hand blow, showing injured member to Stanley Kuhns, who was with him when confronted by bandits.

Two robbers armed with a revolver and a saved off shotgun were thwarted in an attempted holdup yesterday by one swift blow from an intended victim. The punch saved $7,500 in cash and bonds. It cost only a sprained thumb.

Arthur Jurs, a collector for the Geissler Realty company, 2749 West 63d street, and Stanley Kuhns, manager of a currency exchange at the same address, were returning from a south side bank. In Jurs' pocket was $1,500 he had just withdrawn and Kuhns was carrying a package containing $5,000 in negotiable bonds.

Two men leaped from an automobile. One, carrying the revolver, snatched the bonds from Kuhns. The other pointed the shotgun at Jurs and muttered, "Stick 'em up or I'll blow your head off."

Instead, Jurs lashed out and struck the robber on the jaw. The other robber then dropped the bonds, dragged his companion into the car, and sped away. Jurs lives at 3522 South Wells street.

SWEDEN'S CROWN PRINCE AND PARTY SAIL FOR HOME

(An illustrated sketch of Sweden's history will be found in today's Graphic Section.)

New York, July 23.—(P)—Smiling farewell to 1,000 admirers, Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf of Sweden sailed for his homeland today on the Swedish-American liner Gripsholm, ending a twenty-six day visit to the United States.

With him went the Crown Princess Louise and his third son, Prince Bertil, a speed loving young man made happy by the gift of an automobile from Henry Ford.

In a farewell radio address the heir to Gustav V. praised the "community of interest and ideals" which he said was "the surest token of an everlasting friendship between the Swedish and the American people." The crown prince came here to attend the tercentenary celebration of the landing of Swedish settlers in Delaware.

SMOKE HIDES SUN AS FOREST FIRES BURN WIDE AREA

Seattle, Wash., July 23.—(P)—Forest fires, spreading with almost explosive force across sun baked north-west timberland, blackened great areas of the earth and sky and endangered more communities today.

A deepening smoke pall covered the entire Pacific northwest. Over Puget sound it was so dense in some places that ships were forced to use their foghorns as they moved about.

Wind drove British Columbia's 100,000 acre Vancouver Island fire toward the town of Bevan, a tiny mining settlement, and into one of the island's finest commercial timber stands. Trains stood by ready to evacuate the inhabitants.

In northern Idaho and western Montana, where loss has been confined to a few hundred acres, threatened lightning storms held the promise of new outbreaks in forests that have sizzled under a long heat wave.

The 40,000 acre Ryderwood-Mount Abernethy fire, northeast of Longview, Wash., spread before winds, but the 1,000 fighters believed they could hold their newly built lines.

A report of a fast spreading new fire on logged over areas in Cowlitz county, Wash., sent all available WPA workers from Kalama to the front. T. S. Goodyear, Washington forest supervisor, said fighting was made difficult by its inaccessibility.

Lee Muck, chief forester for the service, said the Indians had at least $30,000,000 at stake in the danger area and that their interests might easily be reduced to ashes.

SWEDISH PRINCE AND PRESIDENT EXCHANGE GREETINGS AT SEA

ABOARD CRUISER HOUSTON, en route to Galapagos islands, July 23.—(P)—President Roosevelt today exchanged wireless felicitations with Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf of Sweden while the Houston approached the equator on its move to a new fishing area near the Galapagos islands for the chief executive.

Gustaf Adolf, homeward bound aboard a ship in the Atlantic after concluding a visit to the United States, sent a message of thanks to the President, and Mr. Roosevelt answered it immediately.

Numerous messages also were exchanged between the President and Washington government officials during the day.

Holiday routine for all hands aboard the Houston and the accompanying destroyer McDougal was declared at 1 p. m. ship's time, when the cruiser was only a few miles north of the equator.
