Surplus cheese this Friday

The Human Development Commission recently announced the distribution of more surplus cheese and butter at three sites in Huron County.

The surplus commodities will be available this Friday, April 29 from 10:30 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. (or until the supply is gone) at the USA Middle School in Sebawaing, the Bad Axe fairgrounds and the American Veteran's Hall in Port Hope.

Surplus Commodity Registration Cards must be presented by individuals before they can receive any surplus foods, says Mary Ann Vandemark, HDC director.

Persons who receive public assistance, Human Development services, unemployment benefits or those living on fixed incomes could qualify to receive the necessary registration cards at the Human Development Commission offices at the Court House in Bad Axe prior to the distribution date.

Persons who are physically unable to get to the distribution site may have someone pick up the surplus commodities ONLY if the Surplus Commodity Registration Card is shown, Vandemark notes.

Inspector Gordo's Minute Mystery THE CASE OF

Overheard killer

Marvin Pohl, the mad-dog killer, was shot to death in a Ferndale boarding house during a gun battle with police, who acted on an anonymous telephone tip.

Two days earlier a man had held up a Utica bank and had slain two cashiers. A guard spotted a scar on the masked gunman's right hand. Within an hour the police had the tell-tale description booming over the loudspeakers of every transportation center within a 50 mile radius of the crime.

Everyone with an eye to collecting the well-publicized $45,000 reward began insisting he was the anonymous tipster. The Ferndale police asked Inspector Gordo to screen the claimants.

The first was Robert Insky, who told his story confidently. "Just as my brother Patrick boarded the bus to Royal Oak, the description came over the bus depot's loudspeaker. Patrick got a seat in the back, and as the bus started, he noticed a man with a scar on his right hand sitting midway up on the bus.

"The man leaned over and said to the red-headed woman across the aisle, 'I better get off at the first stop and head for Ferndale.'"

"Patrick's a deaf-mute and can read lips. He saw the scarred man pass the woman a note and say, 'Meet me in two days at this address.'"

"Patrick had me telephone the police anonymously when he got home. He had seen the red-haired woman crumple the note after reading it and drop it on the floor. Patrick was the last off the bus and he picked it up. Here it is."

"It's the address of the boarding house where the killer was shot by the police, all right," said Gordo. "Just as the newspapers gave it. Bring the next tipster, sergeant!"

What was wrong with Kempton's story?

Land transfer is appealed

The recent decision by the Huron Intermediate School District to deny the transfer of property from the Laker School District to the North Huron School District is being appealed to the State Board of Education.

The appeal by Robert Johnson will be made at a public hearing scheduled on Friday, April 29 at 10:30 a.m. in Lansing.

The hearing will be conducted by Public Hearing Officer Raymond Godmer.

Barbershop singers formed

Singers are sought to establish a Sweet Adelines Chapter in Huron County. The recruitment night is scheduled Monday, May 2 at the First United Methodist Church in Bad Axe, beginning at 7 p.m.

A barbershop quartet from the Bay City chapter will perform and refreshments will be served.

For more information call Elwin Cubitt at 269-9251.

Support hospital by attending dinner

Tickets for the Wednesday, May 11 Scheurer Hospital Annual Dinner are selling quickly, according to members of the planning committee.

Ticket locations have been set up at most towns in Scheurer Hospital's service area, including Pigeon, Sebawaing, Caseville, Bay Port and Port Austin. A limited number may be available at the door, but most people are expected to buy their tickets in advance, according to the committee.

The dinner will feature Chicken Cordon Blue (a large boneless chicken breast filled with ham and cheese), plus a large salad smorgasbord and other side dishes. Following the meal, a very short program is planned. "Smokey and the Bandits," a humorous barbershop quartet from Bay City, will provide after-dinner entertainment. According to several local residents who have heard the group perform, they are well-worth seeing.

The primary purpose of the dinner is to give the community a chance to support the hospital while enjoying a social evening. Administrator George Desmarais hopes that hundreds of residents will turn out to this once-a-year event. Tickets may be purchased at Scheurer Hospital, the Pigeon Clinic, Thumb National Bank & Trust Co., The Progress-Advance, Bay Port

State Bank, Farmers & Merchants Bank and Dast Pharmacy, Sebawaing, Sebawaing Medical Clinic, Community Bank, Caseville, Caseville Medical Clinic, Village Butcher, Port Austin and the North Huron Medical Clinic.

Little time left to save Gillingham house

BAY PORT - Time is running out for the old Gillingham residence in Bay Port, says Glenn Henne, president of Bay Port Chamber of Commerce. There's been small response to the plea for funds which would permit purchase of a lot and moving the historic old structure, he adds.

Henne had hoped that by moving the building from the property purchased recently by the Department of Natural Resources, the Bay Port community could obtain a combination museum and information office to help promote the community's tourist and fishing business.

However, the DNR is anxious to start construction of a boat launching and parking facility on the former Gillingham property, and the old home is directly in the way. The DNR had set May 1 as deadline for the community to decide on whether or not they plan to move the home before it would be razed. "It's not just deciding whether we want to do it or not. It involves a lot of money," Henne explained. That includes moving costs, purchase of a lot, and a $1 million liability insurance policy to cover possible injuries or damage.

Unless there is a substantial offer, or some change in DNR plans, then the DNR could begin demolition next Monday, May 2, and that would be the end of the project, Henne explained. Anyone with ideas or comments is asked to phone Henne immediately, at 656-9972, he stated.

'Fresh Start' offered to area smokers

Residents in the Western Thumb area who would like a "fresh start" in giving up smoking are invited to a series of classes at Scheurer Hospital beginning this Monday, May 2.

The quit-smoking program, sponsored by the American Cancer Society, will begin this Monday, May 2 in the hospital conference room. The three-week series will involve classes twice weekly on Monday and Thursday nights beginning at 6:30 p.m. The dates of the classes are Monday, May 2, 9 and 16 and Thursday, May 5, 12 and 19.

To enroll, call Ben Kuhn at 453-3223 between 12 noon and 4 p.m. A slight fee will be charged to cover the cost of expenses.

VIDEO DISC WINNER: Susan Kladzyk, right, and daughter Kristy of Bad Axe, won a $525-value RCA Video Disc Player and five stereo discs last week, in the McDonald's Restaurant "Million $ Taste" Promotion and "Get It Together" Michigan Sweepstakes.

Pigeon man arrested in break-in Kevin D. Wiechert, 19, of Pigeon, has been charged with breaking and entering the Play House Arcade early Monday morning.

The man was arrested by Huron County Sheriff's Deputies after they received a call about 12:30 a.m. that someone had been observed near the rear door of buildings in that area. Deputies found the rear door open and discovered Wiechert behind the door.

Caseville and Sebawaing Police Departments assisted at the scene.

U.S. kids will live longer

If your baby was born last year, he or she can expect to live 74.5 years -- the longest-ever life expectancy in the United States, according to a new study.

Experts at the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company said last week that newborn baby girls can expect to live 78.2 years -- 16 weeks longer than girls born in 1981, just one short year before.

Boys, too are better off this year. Those youngsters comprised of "snakes and snails and puppy-dog tails" born in 1982 should live an average of 70.7 years, 21 weeks longer than the 1981 models.

Between them, the average is nearly three-quarters of a century of average life -- remarkable, when you consider the fine folks who founded our nation had odds of living less than 40 years, barely two centuries ago!

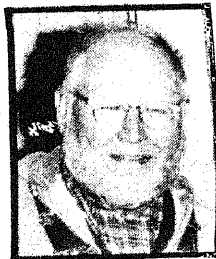

That 7½-year difference in life expectancy between boys and girls in 1982 is the narrowest in 15 years -- and it says something about steadily-improving health care aiding us all.

The insurance study has good news for those of us past the diaper stage, too.

Women now 25 years of age can expect to live 54.6 more years. Ladies 35 or so have more years ahead than behind, with 44.9 years expected. And gals age 45 (even though they won't admit to that age) should have 35.5 more years, provided they take proper care of themselves.

The study didn't forget about guys, either. Men now 25 years of age are just barely one-third through their lives, with 47.8 years remaining. Men age 35 have 38.6 more years ahead, while 45-year-old males can expect to live 29.5 more years.

These studies are no guarantees, of course. And the findings can be shortened or lengthened by poor or good diet, adequate health care, proper sleep and all those other good things we're supposed to do, such as exercising and drinking plenty of water. But averages are indeed averages.

of by-gone
days

By GEORGE KEIM

Dear Editor:

When we lived east of Elkton on the corner of M-142 and Grassmere Road in the early 1940s it was getting time to sow oats. I went out in the field on a Thursday morning and saw that a 10-acre field would be ready the next day.

I didn't have a tractor so I got my harrow ready and got the eveners and whippers trees all lined up and the harness fixed up and went to the Grassmere Elevator where Milton Knechtel was manager. I ordered my seed oats and fertilizer which they delivered yet that day. So on Friday morning at 7 a.m. I was in the field harrowing.

Those of us who used horses will tell you that the first few rounds in the spring they went pretty fast and 'til 1 p.m. they would be pretty tame. At noon I fed them and fixed on my drill, then went at it again. I got over those 10 acres 2½ times that day which was pretty good. We used to figure you walked 10 miles per acre so I must have walked 25 miles that day. I was tired, but after a delicious supper made by my good wife and a good night's rest, I was ready to go again on Saturday morning. By 10 I was done, then got the seed oats out in the field and fertilizer and started to sow a little yet before dinner.

I put my small team on the drill. One was a bronco and the other a three year old mare that was only broke to go and stop. I had an 11-hoe Oliver Superior drill, the fertilizer came in 125 lbs. bags, and as the oats were pretty heavy, I had to set my drill pretty high so I got enough seed on. By night I had the field planted. I was glad that the next day was Sunday because I was pretty sore and stiff.

Today a person wouldn't think that putting 10 acres of oats in two days would be very good, but back then it was very good. In Ecclesiastes 11:4 it says: He that observeth the wind shall not sow and he that regardeth the clouds shall not reap.

In my farming experiences I found out that when it was time to plant, and if you sat back and watched the wind and clouds you often missed a good time.

Some people will live far, far past 74.5 or more years. Others, naturally, won't get near that figure for a multitude of foreseeable or unexpected reasons. Americans, this study shows, are truly blessed among the world's people. Others around the globe have much shorter expectancies, even when there is so much in the world needing to be done.

Generally, however, U.S. trends are soon emulated around the world. Some of the technology and health improvements begun here are exported elsewhere, and millions of other people benefit, too.

For instance, infant mortality dropped to an all-time U.S. low in 1982 with 11.2 deaths per 1000 births. That figure was 12.5 deaths in 1980, and was 11.7 deaths in 1981. That's something that other nations are steadily improving, too.

The pleasures or good points of a long life urge responsibility, too. We have responsibilities to our families, communities, state, nation and world. If the Good Lord gives us more time on this earth than past generations had, we should use more of that time to benefit others. That's the duty we have, and which we must never forget.

Have you ever received a mimeographed letter in the mail? I think everybody has, but I know every college student receives at least one mimeographed letter every two weeks. All the major publishing companies, credit card companies and IOU companies prey on college students.

My favorite printout letters are the ones that go on and on about how wonderful this product or that product is that they're trying to sell you. The product is usually available at a dirt-cheap price as the company realizes college students are a little short of funds most of the time. Funny thing is, these companies only send letters to college students. So you can assume quite a few college students think they're getting a better deal than the rest of the public-at-large.

After a while you can spot the garbage letters at a glance, but don't get me wrong. I love getting mail -- the junk mail just gives me a good laugh. Junk mail envelopes are usually gold, have red writing informing the occupant to open immediately, and are as fat as a rotund piglet, and these window envelopes always have your named spelled wrong. Unless they're ad-work in bringing the "fishing" idea to the forefront of the Caseville Perch Festival parade. Our thanks also to the many spectators who stood on both shores of the Main Street River through Caseville, cheering us on.

Yes, your one of the few -- the proud -- the college student. You have just thrown away a chance to buy a gold-filled toenail clipper by not opening a letter addressed: Dear college students.

Be sure to have a super week.

Battling
the breeze

How strong is the wind? This morning the birds in the neighborhood are finding out as they battle the breeze.

A robin in the apple tree disdains the top-most branches and moves in closer to the protection of the sturdy trunk.

A mourning dove swings on the wire, feathers ruffled by the gusts that sweep over the rooftop.

A killdeer seeks protection at a lower level. He is huddled into himself at the edge of the road, the taller grass of the lawn serving as a windbreak for the bird who very seldom stays that still.

The sparrows feed on the leeward side of the feeder. Some have discovered that most of the feed is scattered on the ground, blown out of the container by the wind.

"Who has seen the wind? Neither you nor I..." Like Stevenson, we can't see the wind. But we certainly know when it is about and passing by.

The branches of the trees bend and twist in all directions. The wires lining the roads do their own dance. Scraps of paper whirl about the countryside. And even the countryside moves about as the wind picks up clouds of dust and dirt from fields.

On a windy day, have you heard the expression, "There goes some of that expensive real estate!"? Housewives wish that it would stay put, outside where it belongs and not inside where they have to dust it.

The wind is very evident to those who live along the lakeshore. Some days they can view the gulls, ducks and geese battling the breeze just as my land birds are doing today. Have you ever seen a sea gull hide behind a rock? The development of waves is fascinating to watch. From a gentle flow of water to a swell and roll and then the crashing white caps is a whole series of pictures. What magnificent energy and power is there!

The force, the energy and power, of the wind has been used by mankind down through the ages. From sailing boats to drying clothes we have found it useful. It also plays havoc with mankind... the terrible tornado, the effect of the wind on pop fly balls, lobs in a tennis game, golf balls and oh what it can do to a lady's hair-do!

Clearing up Elkton
old building mix-up

Dear Editor:

Re: "Remembering Elkton" on the front page of The Progress-Advance dated April 20, the first large store to the left in the picture was the "Cornell and Schiele" (not Schible) Drugstore and it was not a dry good store and never was.

My father started working there for Cornell and Dorman when he was 14 years old and still in school. At age 21 he had passed his state board exams and was a registered pharmacist. Later the store became "Cornell and Schiele" and still later it was "Schiele's Drugstore," when Schiele built a new store on the same corner where he was working at age 14. He was on that same corner for 57 years, selling out to Floyd Snider in January, 1948. Laker, Snider sold out to F. Schnider and then it went to McKenzie.

The other stores in the picture are the tailor shop of Chris Beaver, the millinery shop by Mrs. Hutchinsons and the big store is a dry goods store and grocery of Rod Dew, and then the big hotel with all the beside the drugstore was the first post office. Later Schiele built the office. Later Schiele built the office. Later Schiele built the office.

Snider also started out on his drug career on that same corner with Schiele, while he was still in high school. He worked for Schiele off and on for years before buying him out.

Food prices in the U.S. rose only 4% last year, says a USDA Economic Research Service Report. That's about half the 7.9% increase recorded in 1981 and the smallest percentage increase since 1976.

The food price increase was smaller than other items, such as medical care (prices rose 11.6%), housing (7.2%), transportation (4.1%) and the overall Consumer Price Index increase of 6.1%.

You've seen these figures before, but they're still amazing: The farmer gets an average of 35 cents of each dollar spent for domestic foods purchased at the supermarket. But he only gets 28 cents of the overall-food dollar, which also includes fish, imports and food purchased away from home, says the Michigan Farm Bureau.

Of the remaining 65 cents of the imaginary "food dollar," eight cents goes for packaging, five cents for intercity transportation of the food, four cents for rent and depreciation, four cents for fuels and electricity, two cents for advertising, two cents for interest, nearly two cents for repairs and almost nine cents for "other costs" (such as taxes, insurance, promotion, bad debts and more).

The balance - about 32 cents, when everything's rounded off - is paid for labor after food leaves the farm.

Administrative rules for the Michigan Family Farm Development Authority (also known as the Beginning Farmer Loan Program) have been approved and the authority should be in full operation within the week, says State Ag Director Dean Pridgeon.

The rules govern loan applications for eligible beginning farmers to purchase ag land, make capital improvements, buy farm equipment and breeding stock. Persons seeking information about the program should contact the authority through MDA's Soil Conservation Division, at P.O. Box 30017, Lansing, 48909, or by calling 373-3898.

Farmers may be given additional time to sell some of their surplus grain to the government, so that the Ag Department can meet its obligations under the 1983 Payment-In-Kind program. John Ochs, Ag Secretary John Block's aide, said Friday he can't confirm or deny the report from Washington.

Ochs said department officials are reviewing farmers' offers to sell their grain to the department's Commodity Credit Corp., and that a decision would be made soon. On March 29, the agency announced that farmers who have grain under regular price support loan or stored under loan in the reserve program could liquidate their loans by turning the grain over to the CCC.

Farmers were given until April 15 to sell that grain to the CCC, which the agency hoped would provide enough wheat, corn and sorghum to meet the PIK obligations. But farmers were also given the option of asking a higher price from the CCC than they normally would get if the loans were simply cancelled.

Enough farmers have requested the higher prices that not enough grain is available to meet obligations, forcing officials to consider taking new offers, experts say.

Looking at PIK further, the original goal for acreage idled was 30 million acres. But farmers committed 69.1 million acres to PIK instead. Another 13.2 million acres are idled this year through existing set-aside programs.

Of that 69.1 million-acre figure, 39.4 million acres of corn and sorghum are not being planted this year. Another 32.1 million wheat acres are idled, while 6.8 million acres of cotton, 2.3 million of barley or oats and 1.7 million rice acres won't be grown.

Texas has the most acres idled via PIK, says the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The Lone Star State has 9.3 million PIK acres, while Kansas, Iowa and North Dakota each have more than 6 million acres idled. In the Midwest, Minnesota has 5.2 million set aside, Illinois has 4.9 million, Indiana 2.8 million, Ohio 2 million, Wisconsin 1.6 million and Michigan has 1.5 million acres idled via PIK this year.

Michigan farmers say yes to water, as groups are lining up behind legislation that would save them a spot at the watering hole if supplies get tight.

"We all take water for granted," warned Donald Schaner, chief of the state Ag Department's Soil Conservation Division. "There's only a certain amount of water out there. Who knows what's going to happen to the supply?"

Rep. Lou Dodak (D-Montrose) has introduced the right-to-water bill, worried that farmers don't have the same claim to water as industry and local governments. "This gives farmers a fair shot at it," he says. The water bill is opposed by the state Department of Natural Resources and the Michigan United Conservation Clubs, saying it is unneeded and potentially dangerous.

State fruit trees were definitely effected by December's warm temperatures, which cut their chances of withstanding cold weather, says MSU Extension Service horticulture agent Charles Kesner. But he sees an abundant harvest as a good possibility this year.

Proper snack use is important

Nutritionists and other food authorities contend that the United States is becoming a nation of snackers.

There is a lot of evidence to support this claim. Snacking is more prevalent than breakfast in many homes. Entire aisles in many supermarkets are devoted to carbonated beverages and non-fruit drinks. And, sales of snack foods continue to increase in spite of the current economic slump.

The dollar value of the snack food market is estimated at $8 billion to $25 billion, depending on the items that are included, says Ada Shinabarger, Extension Food Marketing Agent for Michigan State University's Co-op Extension Service.

Sales of potato chips, corn chips, nuts, meat snacks, popped corn, pretzels and other fabricated (extruded) snacks alone added up to $5.5 billion in 1981. Other important categories not included in this figure are cookies, snack crackers, carbonated beverages and beer.

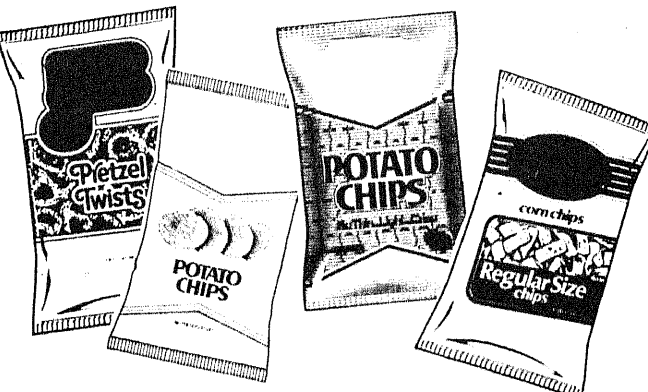

Although there is nothing wrong with any of these snacks when used judiciously, many offer "empty calories" - calories from carbohydrates and fats and few other nutrients - at a very high cost.

Perhaps it's time to take a second look at your snack purchases and try substituting some lower cost, more nutritious fruits and vegetables as snack items. Raisins, other dried fruits, popcorn and yogurt are ideal foods for snacking and are higher in nutritive value than most fabricated snack foods.

How can you tell what's in a fabricated (manufactured) snack food? Look at the list of ingredients. The ingredients must be listed in the order of predominance by weight. Many shoppers would be surprised to learn that their favorite snack foods consist of mainly fat and starch with a generous sprinkling of salt or sugar, she says.

A nutrition writer once made the statement, partly in jest, that to have a snack food sell in the United States, a processor just has to make it crunchy and very salty or very sweet. Jest or not, the writer isn't too far off in his analysis.

What if the claim is made that the snack (or any food, for that matter) is sugarless or sugar free? Is it really sugarless? The word "sugar" by federal Food and Drug Administration standards is synonymous with sucrose, common table sugar. However, there are other sugars, such as glucose and fructose.

In addition, she says, there are related natural sweeteners called sugar alcohols - xylitol, sorbitol and mannitol - that contain as many calories as sugar and break down in the body in a similar way. They do not contribute to the development of cavities in teeth, however, and are often used in sugarless chewing gum and candy.

Nutritious eggs are versatile — a bargain, too!

The American food system can boast another efficiency gain. The size of the nation's laying flock has been reduced by almost eight million hens from year-ago levels, but egg production has declined only slightly.

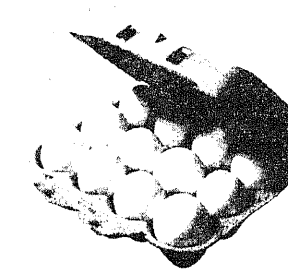

This word comes from Allan Rahn, Extension poultry economist at MSU. According to Rahn, the number of eggs per 100 hens has increased three per cent over comparable 1982 rates.

This might seem like good news for producers, but it isn't. The increased rate of production is sending already depressed post-Easter prices even lower, says Ada Shinabarger, Extension Food Marketing Agent.

Other factors are also contributing to lower overall egg prices. There is less demand for processed eggs (used by bakeries and other processors) because of the sluggish economy. Some of the export market for American eggs has been lost to European Common Market countries that heavily subsidize exported agricultural products.

American consumers can look for low egg prices to continue to edge lower during the next four or five weeks making eggs even more attractive than usual as a main dish alternative. Two eggs are considered equal in protein to a 3 1/2 oz. (cooked) serving of meat. At today's prices, their cost would be a real bargain - 10 to 12 cents per serving, Shinabarger says.

In addition to supply and demand and market behavior such as we're currently experiencing, egg prices are determined by grade and size. Grade is defined as interior quality. The lower-priced, grade A eggs have thick whites and firm yolks, making them excellent for frying and poaching (when appearance is important). Grade A eggs are just as nutritious as grade AA eggs.

The most common egg sizes sold in Michigan are extra large, large and medium. The differential between sizes is three ounces, so a dozen large eggs must weigh a minimum of 24 ounces, while a dozen medium eggs must weigh at least 21 ounces.

Generally, if there is less than an eight cent price spread between one size and the next smaller size in the same grade, you get more for your money buying the larger size, advises Shinabarger.

On a portion basis, medium size is the best value, especially for shoppers with very limited food budgets, because a medium egg is sufficient for one serving. Most recipes and mixes are formulated for medium or large size eggs.

Elementary students experience Japan in Pigeon!

Last Friday, Mrs. Janet Love's fourth grade class from Bay Port Elementary School joined Mrs. Karen Gehrs' third graders from Pigeon to see their Social Science class "come alive." The classes spent the entire school day studying Japan as they viewed slides from different areas of Japan where Mrs. Love resided for a year, learned origami (a technique of paper folding into figures), and tasted Japanese food, a soup called Ramen, for lunch.

Japanese exchange student Takako Nishiyama informed the youngsters about her homeland and presented each student with an origami bird she had made. On each was written the students' name in English and Japanese.

The young students showed their appreciation to Nishiyama by giving her specially framed class pictures of the classes.

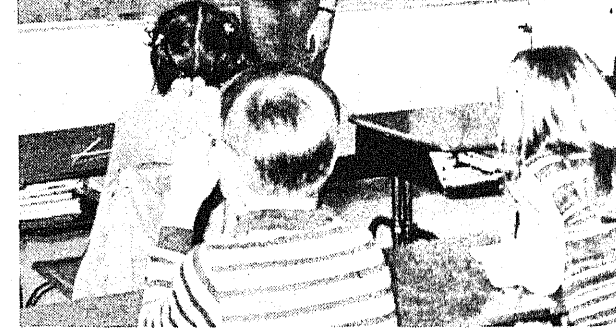

In the afternoon the group visited the Pigeon District Library to observe National Library Week. Assistant Librarian Starla Albrecht read a Japanese story to the group in keeping with the theme of the day. While at the library, the children viewed the arts and crafts display, including demonstrations of needlework, flower making from a bread dough substance and painting.

Teachers Janet Love and Karen Gehrs, along with their third and fourth grade students, enjoy a luncheon of Japanese cuisine, eaten with chopsticks of course!

EYE OPENERS

By Dr. Douglas A. Buehler, Optometrist

A THOROUGH EYE EXAMINATION

Q. What is an optometrist doing when he checks VISUAL ACUITY?

A. An optometrist is measuring how clearly you see from distance and from near. For distance vision, the standard testing distance is 20 feet; for near-vision clarity, a standard distance of 14 to 16 feet is used because most reading and close tasks are encountered at this distance. If a patient's occupation or hobby involves an intermediate or unusual distance, special tests can be given at that range.

Q. Why does the optometrist ask so many "which is clearer" questions when he/she has just examined my eyes with instruments?

A. The SUBJECTIVE part of your eye examination is important because it confirms or disputes the objective evaluation of how your brain interprets what you see. It may indicate the need for further testing.

SOUND-OFF!

Call 453-2323 anytime day or night to record your SOUND-OFF message. Selected statements will appear weekly in The Progress-Advance...so watch for yours!

I am amazed at the abled-bodied people I see parking their cars in the spaces marked for the handicapped. Or don't they know what these signs mean? Then we see people in wheel chairs, on crutches, walkers, etc., come from a distance in the parking lots because those spaces are taken.

I have seen on these signs that it is illegal unless you have a sticker on your car which you receive from the Secretary of State, after your doctor fills out a handicapped form. Some signs say you can get a fine of $100 to $500 if you park there illegally. Let's be more considerate of the handicapped persons. They don't choose to be that way. Let's watch those signs and obey them.

I'm sick and tired of hearing certain teachers at the high school using profanity during classes. I thought the teachers were supposed to be setting a good example, not a bad one. If a student uses profanity, he or she gets in trouble. How come the teachers don't? Signed, angry students.

To the people who caused my son to get laid off, I forgive you. I have to ask the Lord for forgiveness. A hurt mother.

Make a memory. Come to the Elktion Elementary School and bring the whole family for the all-new PTO Carnival. It's bigger and better than ever. Super prizes are planned, too. Have supper with us, including hot dogs, sloppy joes, pizza. Attend this Saturday, April 30 from 6 to 9 p.m. Fun for one and all, bring the whole family for an evening to remember.

Happy birthday to the world's greatest Mom. Don't worry Mom, you still look young. Lots of love, Stacey.

Happy belated 56th Anniversary to my neighbors and friends, Harold and Bea Gregor.

ELKTON SENIOR CITIZENS

The Elkton Senior Citizens met with 49 present for the weekly luncheon meeting at the Civic Center.

Harold Gregor led in singing the Doxology before the meal. The chairman welcomed Rev. Hurley, George Shaw Sr., Elizabeth Schelke and Hal and Christine Conkey, who recently returned from Florida. Kay Walker was in charge of the program, a dramatic portrayal of "The Great Fire of '81." Lillian Bettinger wrote the script which her husband Earl, a former actor, performed. Mrs. Bettinger is a novelist and well-known retired journalist, having written a column for the Detroit Free Press for many years.

Following the program, a business session took place. Harold and Bea Gregor led in group singing. The anniversaries of the Sherman Days and the Harold Gregors were celebrated with the Anniversary Song. Alvina Walsh reported that Ossa Wilson is in a Mayville Nursing Home. Skip Miller is in Huron Memorial Hospital, while Jean Kellermann and Laura Jimpkowski are improving. The secretary gave the weekly report.

Thumb Area Outdoor Report

By DUANE GUENTHER

The smelt run is all but over. Dippers experienced some good nights during the spring, but the cold snaps did not let the run materialize as it normally does. Last Thursday was excellent on the north shore of Sand Point, and at McGraw Park. Friday was a complete bust for those who were in the water. The east side of the Thumb had the better of this spring's spawning runs, but nothing compared to the fish that migrate into the streams on the west side of Saginaw Bay.

Perch fishing is beginning to return after a sharp decline due to the cold weather. Nice fish were picked up in the Sebawaing.

Bay Port and Caseville area throughout the week. The fish have moved out a little, and the best action was reported by those who were offshore in small boats. The fish will continue to be close to shore for a least another month.

Salmon and trout continue to evade us. A good indicator of the fishing conditions is mirrored by the fact that the Thumb Steelheaders cancelled their first tournament last weekend, and will have it on May 7.

Some fish have been reported in the Lexington, Port Sanilac area, and a few fish have been picked up at the mouths of streams in the Thumb. The water needs to warm up a little, but keep your eyes and ears open.

They will move into the area very soon, and provide some of the year's most exciting fishing.

The first hunting period of the 1983 Spring Turkey Hunt opened on Monday. There are six different periods this year, with the only two rule changes being that you can't use live decoys, and you can hunt until 4 p.m. this year, rather than noon.

The general trout season opens next Saturday, with most northern streams being at their normal spring temperature and height. If you are looking for good fishing, your best bet would be on the main stream of the AuSable and the upper reaches of the Manistee. Both waters are in good shape and have had some hatches reported.

Mutual Savings plan '83 growth

BAY CITY -- Amid bad economic times, Mutual Savings and Loan Association continued to grow, according to President Bruce Cook.

Total assets increased nearly $30 million during the 1982 year, to $482.9 million, stockholders learned at the Association's annual meeting on March 29. Net loans and contracts increased nearly six percent, or $23.7 million to $429.9 million, Cook said.

Total savings reached a new high at $417,549,390 comprised of a record 95,900 accounts. Earnings on savings accounts total $44,524,792.

"Savings account growth results from popular acceptance of our new money market and cash management accounts and our many services including telephone bill-paying and cash access statewide through a network of automatic teller machines.

"The era of electronic banking is at hand and Mutual Savings will not be left behind in tomorrow's high-tech banking environment," Cook said.

Fuel taxes generate funds for Huron County roads

Although many Michigan motorists are unhappy with increased taxes on fuel this year, some of the revenue generated by the increase will benefit Huron County.

Figures recently released by the Michigan Department of Transportation show a 9% increase in funds paid to the Huron County Road Commission and to local towns and villages.

The road commission amount of $1,736 million from the Transportation Department in fiscal 1982 will be increased to $1,904 million in '83 and $2,304 in '84.

Pigeon's transportation funds will jump from $27,000 to '82 to $29,900 in '83 and $36,200 in '84.

Elktion's amount of $21,100 in '82 will increase to $23,100 in '83 and $28,000 in '84. Caseville will see an increase from $22,000 in '82 to $24,100 in '83 and $29,200 in '84.

Owendale's funds of $11,800 in '82 will increase to $12,900

Cook commented. "If economists and government officials are correct and 1983 is to be year of significant expansion in the economy, Mutual's healthy position will result in a very good year for us and our many customers."

Mutual Savings has 27 Michigan offices including offices in Pigeon, Sebawaing and Cass City.

Old trophies sought

The Elktion Woman's Civic Club is collecting old trophies to be refurbished and used for the Huron County Special Olympics games.

The trophies may be taken to Polewach's Store of Pigeon, McKenzie's Drugs of Elktion, The Carriage House Flowers of Bad Axe and First National Bank in Bad Axe and Harbor Beach between now and Saturday, May 7.

Personalized name plates should be removed if you wish to keep them.

Caseville club presents $1,000 to Scheurer Hospital!

The Caseville Library Club held an evening of unexpected treats at their annual Spring Fling last Thursday at the Buccaneer Den in Port Austin.

Most surprised Thursday was Scheurer Hospital Administrator George Desmarais, who was presented with a check for $1,000, bringing the total to $3,000 that the club has donated to the hospital in recent years.

Club President Marion Watterworth expressed gratitude for the fine facilities Scheurer Hospital offers and presented the check to Desmarais saying, "We want Scheurer Hospital to be able to purchase the equipment the hospital and the doctors need to continue to be an 'A-1' health care facility in this area." The Caseville Medical Clinic, a satellite of the Pigeon Clinic both serviced by Scheurer Hospital, is in its second year of operation in the Caseville area.

In receiving the check, Desmarais thanked the club, expressing appreciation for the hours of work and devotion club members have given for the hospital.

Providing entertainment for the evening was elementary school dancer Sony Kamlapurker, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Kamlapurker of Pigeon, who did a native dance dressed in traditional garb.

Keynote speaker was Kathy Hardy of Royal Oak, who spoke on "The Growing Crisis of American Families." She earned her master's degree in social work from the University of Michigan and is a social worker in the Utica School System. Her talk was geared to the many grandparents in attendance and she spoke of the stages children go through from preschoolers to teenagers, touching on the special relationship grandparents have with their grandchildren.

Mrs. Hardy has designed and implemented several family aid programs in the Utica area, including "Kids Care About Kids," "Hand in Hand" and other support groups for children and adults.

Over 100 Caseville Library Club members, spouses and guests were in attendance at Thursday's dinner.

Surprise trout opener

The small stream tumbled out of the meadow, passed under a sprawling willow tree that guarded its left bank, and made a sharp right turn as it entered the main branch of the river. Here, protected from the sun's light, by roots and overhanging branches, a deep pool had formed. It was the perfect sanctuary for hiding trout.

I had maneuvered quietly to the tail of the pool, and now false casting the tiny nymph attached to the end of my leader, judged the precise spot where I wanted the fly to land. Snapping the rod forward, I watched the line uncoil from the familiar U-shape, and when it had extended to its fullest length, dropped the rod to allow line, leader and fly to settle gently on the surface of the water.

The stream quickly swallowed up my offering and with my heart pounding in my ears, the nymph began its invisible journey through the bottom of the pool.

The line hesitated, as if striking something, and then stopped. In the instant that followed, my instincts had a minor argument with my logical mind. My mind said that it probably was a snag and the line would have to be retrieved and cast again like I had done so many times that morning. My instincts caused me to jerk the rod upward in a swift, almost violent motion, and I was immediately rewarded by the satisfying throb of a fish.

The trout, feeling the sting of the hook, headed for the safety of the tangled tree roots that lined the opposite side of the bank. I held the rod high, thumbing the reel to stop the escape of any line, and was instantly treated to a dazzling, tail-walking display of fish acrobatics that sent tiny droplets of water spraying in all directions.

After a few more jumps, each a little less spectacular than the one before, mingled with some frantic dashes for freedom, the fish grudgingly came to me. Tired, frightened, it wallowed slightly as it approached my hip boots. One last twist, a short struggle, and the fight was over.

Slipping my thumb into its mouth, I pinched the lower jaw with my forefinger, and held the trout aloft. It was a rainbow, about 17 inches long and weighed between a pound and a half and two pounds. Dark in color, from spending its entire life in the deep pools of this limestone stream, the contrasting, iridescent flanks shimmered in the winking rays of the morning sun.

It was a beautiful fish. One that would make any opening day fisherman happy. But in my case, this fish, along with this stream, were the most beautiful and spectacular of all my trout fishing openers.

I trembled with excitement as I scrambled up the bank and proudly showed off my prize to my friend.

"It's a fine trout," she said in her deep Irish brogue as I approached the blanket she was sitting on. "I'm so glad you caught one."

What made this trout so special, was that two days earlier one of the furthest things from my mind was trout fishing. As a matter of fact, a year ago, when I entered the U.S. Army, I had all but given up any possibility of hunting or fishing for the duration of my enlistment.

Soon after entering the service and completing basic training, I was shipped off to Europe and spent two years in southern Germany. I and three of my army buddies took a whirlwind, 15-day leave to France and the British Isles. After a week in Paris and the surrounding French countryside, we proceeded to London and made our temporary headquarters in a large, but rather stuffy hotel. While touring the usual tourist spots we happened upon a gigantic dance hall, and in the tradition of all red-blooded servicemen, managed to meet and befriend a couple of girls.

In the early spring of my first year overseas, I and three of my army buddies took a whirlwind, 15-day leave to France and the British Isles. After a week in Paris and the surrounding French countryside, we proceeded to London and made our temporary headquarters in a large, but rather stuffy hotel. While touring the usual tourist spots we happened upon a gigantic dance hall, and in the tradition of all red-blooded servicemen, managed to meet and befriend a couple of girls.

When dates were made for the next day, my new found friend, an Irish nurse named Shelly, casually asked what I would be doing if I were back home. When I answered, "probably fishing," her face broke out in an understanding smile. She explained that her father, who still lived in Ireland, was an avid fly-fisherman, and when he and her mother came to visit, he would always drag them out to some stream where she and her Mom would catch up on the gossip while he fished.

"Would you like me to take you to one of his favorite spots?" she questioned somewhat hesitantly. My smile was answer enough and we began to make plans.

Hardly able to sleep that night, I arrived at her dormitory a half hour before our scheduled meeting time. She also was early, and laughing we ran to catch a tube (English for subway) that would take us out of the city in a southwest direction.

After traveling some 15 miles, the train surfaced into the bright sunshine and we switched trains for a small town by the name of Basingstoke. The town was located on the upper reaches of the River Test, which just happens to be the most famous trout stream in all of England. The river meanders southward through a rolling, picturesque, English countryside, and enters the English Channel at Southampton.

We arrived at the Basingstoke depot about 9 a.m. and after renting bicycles, found a market and filled a picnic basket with bread, sausage, rat cheese, fruit and a small bottle of wine. A half hour later, we pedaled into a quaint streamside Inn where I was able to pay my stream fees and rent a flyrod, creel, assorted flies and some ancient, heavily patched hip boots.

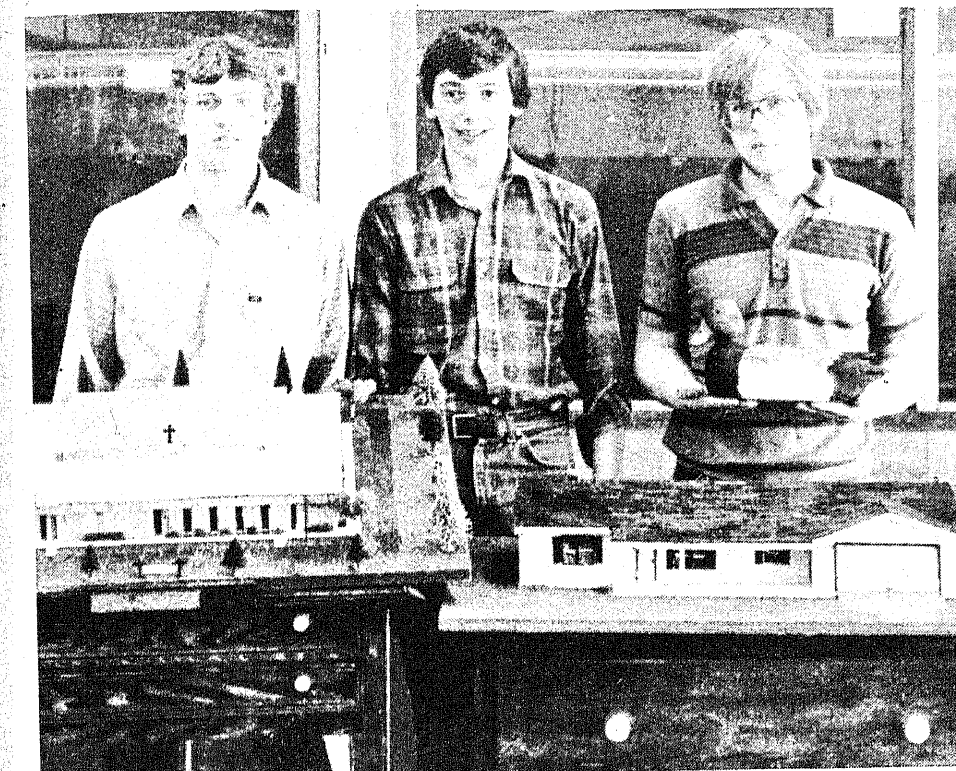

Unlike the United States, where water is public domain and belongs to everyone, the streams in Europe are owned by those who own the land surrounding them. This day I would be fishing a piece of water that allowed no more than 15 rods at any one time. I was lucky that when I checked in only seven other fishermen were on this part of the river.

Besides the one mentioned earlier in the story, I caught three more trout that day. All were smaller than the first, and by most standards would not be considered very important fish. But to a small town boy from Michigan, the chance to fish on the famous River Test, was a surprise trout opener that I will never forget.

IF WE LOVE GOD,
WE SHOULD LOVE ALL HIS CREATURES

He prayeth well who loveth well
Both man and bird and beast.

— Samuel T. Coleridge

"A righteous man
regardeth the life of his beast."

— Proverbs 12:10

Some people are born to love animals. Others are destined to develop this feeling by accident, often late in life; and then they make the shocking discovery that all too many of their fellow citizens care little or nothing for animals and have some remarkably short-sighted notions about their relative importance. We learn through our faith that God made all living creatures, including the animals; and that whether they be our own pets or nameless denizens of the wild, He expects us to be as kind and protective toward them as we would be toward less fortunate human beings: the old, the poor, the handicapped. Moreover, we should teach our children this lesson in character and unselfishness, so that they will conduct their lives with love and respect for all of God's creatures, whatever they may be.

Women invited to seminar

Interested in being a more effective mother or grandmother? The Christian Mothering Day planned for Thursday, May 12 at Cross Lutheran Church, Pigeon will stress how the Word of God can be an effective tool for doing just that, according to Bernice Shupe, organizer for the second annual event.

Paul Hoyer of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Linkville, and father of two preschoolers; "The Elementary Child," presented by Florence Engler, Beaverton, former teacher and mother of five elementary age children; "The Teenager," will be guided by Eleanor Kar, Bad Axe, a registered nurse and mother of five teens; "Christian Grandmothering," led by Jean Bauman, Elkton, mother of seven, grandmother of 13, an evangelist since the age of 15 and Michigan Mother of the Year in 1978; "The Working Mother," will be covered by Elise Arndt, Troy, mother of four teenagers and a seven month old baby, pastor's wife and former missionary to New Guinea, author of her first book, "The Mother's Touch."

The morning session starts at 9:15 a.m. with registration beginning at 8:45 a.m. Closing will be at 2:45 p.m.

No registration fee is required but a free-will offering will be accepted. Hot lunch will be available in the school cafeteria.

Babysitting services for nursing babies and infants will be available at the church and for preschoolers at the school gym.

Cross Lutheran Church Women invite all area women to attend and request pre-registration by May 5 for planning purposes. Register by calling either Cross Lutheran School at 453-3331, or Mrs. Tom (Bernice) Shupe at 269-8443, Joyce Bergman at 453-2945, Linda Fritz at 678-4457 or Nadine Barbret at 856-2135.

Elkton pastor accepts U.P. posts

Mary L. Kuhn

Keynote speaker for the morning will be Mrs. Henry H. (Mary L.) Kuhn of Detroit, national president of American Mothers, Inc. She is the mother of four children and grandmother of two. In addition to being a wife and mother, she works as an office assistant to her husband, a medical doctor and also works as a professional volunteer. She has been actively involved in the United Methodist Church for 30 years as well as serving with the Birmingham Study Club, Salvation Army Auxiliary, YWCA and Michigan Mothers' Association of American Mothers, Inc.

Her topic will be "Say It With Love."

The afternoon address, "Forgiveness in Family Relationships," will be delivered by Goldie Bristol, Sand Point. Formerly of Dearborn, she and her husband, Bob, have two married sons, four grandchildren and one great-grandchild. Her first book, "These Tears Are For Diane," tells of the life and death of her daughter, and how the family learned to cope with tragedy. Her second book, "When It's Hard to Forgive," tells about forgiveness in the family setting. She will make a guest appearance on CBN's "700 Club" viewing in our area on Monday, May 2.

Those attending "Mother's Day" will be able to attend two sessions addressing individual needs: "The Preschooler," led by Pastor

Rev. Joel Hurley, pastor of Elkton United Methodist Church since 1978, will say good-bye to the Western Thumb area this June, following his appointment to several Upper Peninsula posts.

He and his wife Donna will make their new home in Munising, where he will divide his time between two positions. In addition to pastoring the Munising United Methodist Church, he will serve as Associate Program Director for the Upper Peninsula, acting as a consultant to 57 U.P. churches.

According to Hurley, he and Donna will provide a team ministry, ministering to the needs of other ministers and their spouses, in addition to pastoring the 165-member Munising church. He will also serve as a resource person for the District Council on Ministry, District Board of Missions and the District Committee on Future Planning, all boards and agencies of the United Methodist Church.

As representative of the U.P. in the Conference Council on Ministries, Hurley will be traveling to the Detroit area on a monthly basis.

Mrs. Hurley, a remedial reading specialist in the Cass City School district for the past seven years, will work with her husband as a team, also providing women's Bible study groups in her new church home.

The Hurleys have four children, Rebecca, age 22, who has just left for a indefinite mission tour of Greece with her husband, Charles Lokus; Gloria, age 19, who has "fallen in love" with the U.P. following her freshman year at Suomi College in Hancock, only three

Hayes members invited to historical viewing

The Hayes United Methodist Church, Pigeon completed a year of celebration in honor of its 100th anniversary with a family banquet on Friday, April 15.

A chicken dinner, including vegetables, salads and desserts, was served, followed by a special slide presentation of "Hayes History." The pictures, taken between 1954 and 1956, showed local families in Sunday School classes, Bible schools, weddings, picnics and church services, up to the present time.

Those who were not able to see the pictures are invited to a special showing this Saturday, April 30 at 8 p.m. at the Hayes church.

So close

Read Acts 26:24-32

Then Agrippa said unto Paul, "Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian." Acts 26:28.

Almost! Almost a lot of things have happened, but not quite.

Almost the puck went in for the winning goal, but not quite; it hit the post.

Almost Lot's wife made it to safety, but not quite; she looked back and became a pillar of salt.

Recently a couple in a nearby city almost made it to Florida. The man retired on Friday, his last day of work, but on Monday morning he and his wife were found dead in their house, due to fire.

At that, they almost made it out of the house, but not quite; they were found dead, lying right by the door leading to the outside.

Paul preached the saving Gospel to Agrippa. He listened, and when the apostle pushed the king for a commitment to Jesus, he replied: "Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian."

As far as we know, Agrippa was lost, for "he that believeth not shall be damned."

How many wonderful, respectable citizens, full of good deeds, will not be in heaven!

Why? They refused to let Jesus' blood save them. They were proud and counted on their good works.

When we rely on Jesus' merits for salvation and ever walk with Him, we are altogether His.

O God, since not everyone who says, "Lord, Lord," shall enter Your kingdom, grant us genuine faith in Christ, Your Son. Amen.

Electric Toothbrushes

Electric toothbrushes are the 20th century's answer to "toothbrusher's elbow." But you can do just as well manually. Their main advantage is that all you have to do is apply the brush to your teeth and the brush does all the work.

Another advantage of the electric toothbrush is its novelty value. It is a mechanical device and children are more likely to develop regular brushing habits because of their fascination with a brush that "does the work". If an electric toothbrush encourages the habit of brushing teeth on a regular schedule, it is well worth the investment.

The electric toothbrush is definitely a boon to handicapped persons who cannot brush their teeth easily with a regular hand brush.

The late president, Lyndon Johnson was sold on electric toothbrushes. He used to present them (engraved with the presidential seal) as gifts. "I give these toothbrushes to friends," LBJ told his biographer, Doris Kearns. "then I know they will think of me every morning, and every night."

Prepared as a public service to promote better dental health. From the office of Edward P. Holtzhouse, D.D.S., 33 North Wright Street, Elkton. Phone: (517) 375-4255.

Softball team starts season with win

The Laker Softball team started their season on a winning note by sweeping double-headers with Caseville and North Huron.

In their season opener last Thursday, the Lakers swept a double-header at Caseville.

The Lakers won the low-scoring opening game by a score of 4-2. Shelly Baur picked up the win, with Kathy Briesmeister tagged with the loss. Both teams saved their firework for the second game, with Lakers narrowly squeezing out a 12-11 win.

Shelly Ginter started on the mound for Lakers with Shelly Baur taking over pitching duties in relief.

Kathy Briesmeister picked up her second loss in the nightcap.

Kris Engelhardt and Shelly Baur each pounded a double and Gina Mascorro added two singles for Lakers.

Gela Kretschmer paced the Eagles with three singles, followed by Lisa Novak, Kathy Briesmeister and Aileen Simet with two singles each.

Bulletin board donated to Caseville

By JAMES STAHL

Members of the Caseville Fire Department have donated a community bulletin board which is located near Community Bank in Caseville.

The bulletin board will be used to announce Caseville activities sponsored by the Caseville High School, Chamber of Commerce, Caseville churches and other Caseville community organizations.

Caseville lost all four contests to the visiting Lakers - two in baseball and two in softball. Three students, one from each the sixth, seventh and eighth grades, represented Caseville School at the MCTM Mathematics Competition at Delta College.

BOYS DUMPED

Caseville dropped a pair of non-league contests to visiting Lakers 12-0 and 7-2.

Brian Gembarski took the loss in the first game. Gembarski received relief from Dan Osentoski.

Freshman Tony Seagraves had the lone Eagles hit - a single.

In Game II, Mike Duffy took the loss by giving up seven hits and walking five. Duffy struck out one. Duffy had the lone Eagle hit.

GIRLS DROPPED

The Eagle girls suffered a double setback by 4-2 and 12-11 scores to the Lakers.

Kathy Briesmeister was the losing pitcher in the opener. She struck out two, walked five and gave up four

The advanced shop class of the high school under the direction of George Bednerek constructed the base support.

Management of the bulletin board will be handled by the Caseville Public School. Those Caseville community organizations wishing to place an announcement on the board may contact the main office at least one week prior to the scheduled announcement.

hits. Miss Briesmeister had two singles for the Eagles.

In the nightcap, Miss Briesmeister was again the loser relinquishing seven hits and eight walks while striking out one.

Gela Kretzschmer had three singles, Miss Briesmeister banded two singles, and Aileen Simet notched two base hits.

THREE TAKE PART IN MATH COMPETITION

Sixth grader Tom Fibranz, seventh grader Pam Crane and eighth grader Jim Pionk participated in the semi-finals of the Michigan Council of Teachers of Mathematics competition test at Delta College on Saturday, April 23.

The three qualifiers had the highest scores in respective classes on Part I.

The students were accompanied by Mrs. Janet Watts, sixth grade teacher; Mrs. Barbara Quinn, head of the math department at Caseville High School and Mrs. Fibranz.
