

Local towns meet to learn from each other

Officials from villages all over the Thumb converged on Caseville last week, when the bayside village hosted a Municipalities Banquet.

The banquet was held instead of a Mayors' Exchange Day to allow village officials to exchange ideas to make their governments more effective.

Presidents and elected officials include Caseville Village President Frank Malosky, Caseville Township Supervisor Joseph Cilc, Elkton President Barbara Thompson, Gageton President Mary Anne Tenczer, Owendale President Walter Howard, Jr., Pigeon President Dave Geiger, Pigeon DPW Superintendent/Village Clerk Janet Heckman, Port Hope President R.B. Hunter, Sebewaing President Lloyd Adam, Unionville President Ted Balzer and Harbor Beach Mayor

David Hunter.

The group was entertained by the Shoreline Blend Barbershop Quartet from the Laker Huron Chorus Sweet Adelines, which included Marian Rathje, Ann Crocker, Lorraine Fluegge and Carol Booms. The quartet represented villages from all over the Thumb.

Tore Nilson, Director of Huron County Mental Health, was the featured speaker at the banquet and explained parts of the Michigan Mental Health Code and the responsibilities of the county mental health service.

Nilson said his department has grown from 12 full time staff, four part time and a budget of $350,000 in 1976, to having 76 full time and 56 part time staff, with a gross budget of nearly $4.5 million.

"The Community Mental Health Program has expanded from primarily a counseling service for mentally impaired adults and teenage substance abusers, with a work activity/sheltered employment for developmentally disabled adults and a bi-county day treatment program for mentally impaired adults," Nilson said.

The elected officials outlined ongoing and completed projects in the villages.

In Caseville, village officials noted the new 67-slip marina, completed sewer work, a soon-to-be-built recycling building, street improvements, a new parking lot, the Downtown Development Authority and a proposed boardwalk.

In Caseville Township, officials are negotiating with the Village of Caseville to supply water to the township.

In the back are R. B. Hunter, Port Hope; David Hunter, Harbor Beach; Ted Balzer, Unionville; Lloyd Adam, Sebewaing; Frank Malosky, Caseville; Walter Howard, Jr., Owendale.

Elkton officials noted their new Downtown Development Authority, discussed work on a new neighborhood park, along with the new recycling program and the newly-opened Huron Youth Center.

Gageton officials told of the new water pump and well house the village, a new gazebo and water fountain and park improvements.

In Owendale, officials pointed out a new water tower, 14 new fire hydrants, 6,000 feet of new water lines and looping dead end lines.

Pigeon officials discussed the upcoming downtown beautification project, storm sewers, a grant for recreational properties, and commented on the participation of the communities to help bring speakers to the area from the Michigan Municipal League.

In Port Hope, where R.B. Hunter has been president for 42 years, a new water system is in place.

Officials from Sebewaing discussed a recycling project, a new 48-slip marina, the new County Park, Millerwise Park and a project to widen M-25.

Unionville officials noted streets repairs, while Harbor Beach officials explained their water project and a new campground with 193 sites.

Pigeon Clerk Heckman and council member Neal Eichler told the gathering of their hopes that the communities will work to bring speakers from the Michigan Municipal League.

Owendale forms v-ball league

By AMY HEIDEN

Nearly every week on cable sports channels such as ESPN or PASS, a viewer can find a beach volleyball game being televised. The games have become extremely popular in the past few years, and the competitiveness has grown right along with its popularity.

Now, beach volleyball without the beach is coming to Owendale, courtesy of Wayne Dubs, owner of the Pit Stop Party Store — and father of two sons who love to play volleyball.

Dubs has built two 80' by 40' sand courts behind his party store, both with six inches of sand.

"My kids talked me into it," Dubs said, explaining his reasons for putting in the courts. "They played league volleyball in the winter and they complained there was no place to play in the summer."

At least six teams have already signed up for the new league Dubs is organizing under the auspices of the Owendale Volleyball Association.

He's seeking more volleyball teams to round out the league, which will play on Friday nights during the summer. They'll also play on Sundays if enough teams sign up, Dubs said.

The games will be played

WAYNE DUBS of Owendale's Pit Stop Party Store shows his two beach volleyball courts.

under Michigan high school rules, with a few exceptions such as being able to serve from anywhere behind the back line. Teams will play three games to 15 points each. The teams will be six-person teams, and can be coed, Dubs said. Several students from the area who are certified umpires will act as referees.

The Owendale Volleyball

Association has scheduled a tournament over the Fourth of July weekend, with a guaranteed purse of $100 for the winner, $50 for second, and $25 for third and fourth.

"This is a way to keep the community together with some recreation, to give the kids something to do," Dubs said. "If this takes off, you'll see sand courts everywhere."

Dubs is urging teams to get their applications and fees in as soon as possible, to start play on June 12. Applications can be picked up at the Pit Stop, or for more information call Dubs at 678-4311.

Looking back...

Several recent items in "the Past in Print" have stirred readers' memories enough that they've called The Progress-Advance to add some additional information.

WES MURDOCH of Bay Port brought in this photo after reading an item in "Past in Print" several weeks ago that reminded some memories.

In an item listed under "80 years ago," it was mentioned that "Stanley Murdoch of McKinley now sports a new Oakland Roadster."

When his son Wes read that item, he looked through some of his family's memorabilia and found a picture of his father and his then fiancée, Ida Hefferich, standing in front of that Oakland Roadster in 1912. He and Ida were married two years later.

PIGEON MAYOR DAVE GEIGER had another interesting "PAST IN PRINT" point to make. He read in "80 years ago" on May 31, 1912 that "Hotel Arlington in Pigeon will be moved in two parts by owners McElmurray and Elenbaum and fitted up for a couple of dwelling houses. A fine, modern brick hotel will replace the old one at a cost of between $25,000 and $30,000. The present structure was built about 25 years ago by Herman Kleinschmidt when Pigeon was very small, not over 10 buildings and known as Berne Junction.

Geiger told us that he and his wife Sue live in half of the old Hotel Arlington, in their home located at 7276 Paul St. The two wooden staircases, arches and attic are all original oak hardwood, and the five bedrooms and bath upstairs are "originals" from the hotel.

Don Wichert's home on Ruppert St. is the other half of the original hotel.

DESK-CLEARING: Here are some new products you can see on store shelves in the near future:

We grow more Navy Beans (a/k/a Baked Beans) here in the Upper Thumb than any other region in the country, as we all know. Now, there's at least one more company canning Baked Beans, for all the world to eat.

Green Giant now makes "Something Special!" Beans in three varieties: Mexican Style, Barbecue and Honey Flavor. I haven't seen them yet, although I've seen several ads for them. Mexican Style feature pinto beans, Barbecue are a mix of Navy and kidney beans and Honey Flavor feature Navy beans — and also include bacon bits. Watch for them...

Cola wars are starting to "bubble" again. Pepsi has begun limited sales of a clear soft-drink version of its cola. Now, Coca-Cola USA says it too will expand its test marketing of new Coke II — "real cola taste, plus the sweetness of Pepsi."

Nobody asked me, but if they did, I'd say we drink lots of Diet Faygo Cola. A big 2-liter bottle sells for 69 cents on up to 1.09, depending on the promotion. I also like the Faygo "Cherry Festival" regular and diet varieties. For a home-state bottler, Detroit's Faygo is an innovative company...

A story elsewhere this issue talks about the growing concept of recycling newsprint into animal bedding on the Thuemmel Farms and elsewhere in Port Austin. Now, here's some cow news you haven't "herd" yet! An animal nutrition expert at the University of Illinois has devised a way to feed newspapers to cattle.

Newsprint doesn't have a lot of vitamins, but it does have cellulose which is also found in plants. Cows can easily digest those energy-rich molecules, says Larry Berger.

He boils the paper first and only uses papers printed with soybean oil-based ink, since other inks aren't healthy for cows. He says newspapers could replace as much as 40% of a cow's diet. Now THAT'S recycling!

A LOT OF CASH: The U.S. Mint is 200 years old, and makes a 200% profit in manufacturing coins, says a recent issue of Numismatic News. It cost the mint $226 million to manufacture coins worth $668 million.

Pennies cost .92 cents to make, while nickels cost 4.1c each. Dimes cost just 1.9c each and quarters 4.2c, while half-dollars cost about 8c each. Thanks, Reader Pat Bachler!

NEW COUNTY PARK BIDS IN...

Huron County Parks Supt. Steve Romzek says he is "well pleased" with bids for Phase 1 construction at the new Sebewaing County Park, to be built this summer.

The park, located on the north side at the mouth of the Sebewaing River, will see sewer, water, electricity and road construction finished, along with restrooms, an office-registration building and storage building, Romzek says.

That construction will complete the campground area with 56 camp sites and full-service hookups, to complete Phase 1 — with the exception of bridges which would connect the various "islands" along the river and nearby Saginaw Bay. Seven bidders entered the competition as excavators and general contractors, with the low bid being $376,874 up to the highest bid of $561,858. Bids were opened Wednesday and are now being analyzed, to be finalized at the June 3 meeting of the Huron Road Commission.

The new park will feature parking and public river bank fishing between the existing road and Sebewaing River, already popular with fishermen each day.

Phase 2 will include the "island bridges" plus fishing stations and boat docking in the old river area. Later there will be permanent docking and launching facilities in the main river, to complete the project.

SEBEWAING MAN SENTENCED

A Sebewaing man received sentence in connection with a shooting incident at a February 2 party at a residence in Sebewaing.

Arnold Frederick Davis, 27, entered a plea of no contest April 14 to a reduced charge of assault with intent to do great bodily harm less than murder in the shooting of Paul Darren Partin, 27, of Sebewaing.

Davis had been charged with open murder. Partin was injured in the shoulder with a 12-gauge shotgun during a fight at the party. Davis turned himself in to authorities shortly after the shooting.

Huron County Circuit Judge M. Richard Knoblock sentenced Davis to serve 2 years for a felony firearms charge and serve 4-10 years for the assault charge, which is to run consecutively.

The state mandates serving the weapons sentence before other charges. Davis was given credit for 106 days served.

COURT PROCEEDINGS

In 73rd District Court (Huron County), Judge Karl Kraus last week heard the pleas of/or passed judgment on:

Jon F. Lenhard, 35 of Crook, guilty of trespassing, following a May 10 incident in Brookfield Township investigated by Michigan State Police; ordered to serve three days in Huron County Jail;

Paul D. Partin, 27 of Flint, pled no contest to charge of assault and battery, following a Dec. 7 incident involving a local man on Kilmannagh Road, Sebewaing Township, investigated by Sebewaing Police; 30 days in jail and ordered to pay $200 fines and costs;

Pamela J. Harmer, 27 of Sebewaing, pled guilty to impaired driving; $350 fines and costs, ordered to perform 30 hours' community service, attend counseling and loses driver's license for 90 days;

Floyd E. Elliott, 18 of Port Austin, pled guilty to attempted possession of a pheasant out of season, following a recent incident investigated by DNR officers; $150 fines and costs and ordered to pay $50 restitution;

Nick Ewald, 23 of Deford, found in contempt of court for failure to appear at a trial as subpoenaed witness; five days in jail;

Daniel K. Whittaker, 22 of Bay Port, pled guilty to impaired driving; four days in jail, $600 fines and costs, placed on 12 months' probation, counseling ordered and loses driver's license for six months;

Kenneth M. Rinnert, 33 of Caseville, pled guilty to drunken driving second offense; 60 days in jail, $800 fines and costs, 24 months' probation, counseling ordered and driver's license revoked;

Gary T. Czekai, 18 of Cass City, guilty of conspiracy to commit simple larceny, following a Feb. 7 incident involving a four-wheeler on Pigeon Road, Colfax Township; $300 fines and costs; ordered to serve seven days on Huron County Sheriff Department Work Program and ordered to make restitution, amount to be determined;

Scott A. Heckroth, 23 of Unionville, pled guilty to no operator's license in possession; $155 fines and costs;

Karen M. Beaver, 32 of Essexville, pled guilty to driving with license suspended and speeding, following a recent incident on Sebewaing Road, Sheridan Township; $200 fines and costs;

Robert C. Harbuck, 34 of Elkton, pled guilty to driving with license suspended; three days on Work Program and $150 fines and costs;

Jason P. Bender, 18 of Port Austin, pled guilty to no operator's license in possession; $90 fines and costs, and Brian J. Kluger, 21 of Capac, pled guilty to impaired driving; $500 fines and costs, counseling ordered and loses driver's license for 90 days.

Needed: true Independent political party

The unthinkable just a few short months ago has finally happened. A presidential candidate who hasn't won one single primary vote has gone ahead of the traditional leaders in each political party.

Whether anyone truly thinks H. Ross Perot can use several hundred million of the billions of dollars at his disposal to win the presidency is irrelevant. He cannot win — but the concept behind his very candidacy should cause everyone to reassess why political "business as usual" is allowed to continue.

When it gets down to the wire, when push comes to shove and when you're standing alone in that voting booth, you and millions of other U.S. voters will go with the familiar and the known quantity of our Democratic or Republican parties... even though we often question the quality of those candidates. And, as in most recent elections, you'll end up choosing the lesser of two mediocre choices.

Perot has been named as the leading candidate in three major polls this month, and that tells us all our current political system is destitute of ideas, ideals and honesty. It's time for a chance, and Perot represents change — but he's too much of an unknown to win our highest political office this November.

He's the tip of the iceberg of discontent this year. When we see nearly 50 top federal lawmakers step down in the same year, we should realize even those within the system realize it can't work... and doesn't work.

Any alternative sounds good, and Perot is a breath of fresh air in that regard. He even sounds good because we don't KNOW exactly what he stands for. We feel we know our traditional candidates too well. And we don't like what we know.

So many legislators are leaving office because too many issues come down to party-line votes, to paying back favors, previous votes, donations or other "L.O.U.s" instead of voting on the issues.

That's why a new, non-aligned political "party" is needed. We must elect persons who will simply MAKE THE BEST DECISION POSSIBLE on each subject, at the time. We need leaders who vote what's GOOD FOR THE PEOPLE, rather than which special-interest group got to him/her last.

We need to change our political system immediately and permanently, or one day an H. Ross Perot WILL win... and make such changes permanently.

EVERYDAY THE LAST?

There's a song on the radio, a beautiful song, sung by a new duo called "The Williams Brothers." It's entitled "I Can't Cry Hard Enough," and you don't need to know much more beyond that to figure out it's a rather melancholy little ditty (though impeccably performed.)

Now, while I do not have a problem with the lead singer bemoaning his broken heart (I've been there) I do have a small problem with the declaration that he intends to "live his life as if each day's the last."

We get this same advice quite a lot as the assumption is you cannot possibly treasure precious moments or loved ones properly unless you view every moment as fleeting and every human as mortal. Apparently the prescribed formula is: "Keep in mind you may not live till tomorrow, you may never pass this way again, and that every human being stands on the brink of death, and you'll have an infinitely greater appreciation for life."

Huh? I believe that if I began to feel this way, and to carry these morbid thoughts with me every minute, I would find myself enjoying very little indeed!

Horsemen know that each time you swing your leg up over the saddle there's an undeniable factor of risk, but if that's all that was considered each time I saddled up, I'd have missed a out on zillions of priceless moments, and some very important personal therapy.

We should be insulted by the notion that we are incapable of sincere emotion unless we surround the emotion with finality and death. Like, you can't be nice to the check-out girl unless you think you may never see her again?

If your outlook is that you're only "leasing" this life, you will never commit yourself to the foresight and planning required to properly care for it. Ask anyone who has ever loaned something out — things that are leased, borrowed, or used temporarily always comes back used and abused, shoddy and uncared for.

We had an old mare who, for a long time, was stretching the expected life-span of the average horse. As soon as she began to sag a little here, or plod a little more slowly there, we began to expect and plan for her inevitable demise. It came of course — but about 10 years later than we had expected. Now the only regrets I have are that we were sad for so long while she was still alive, and that we treated her as if every day were her last, rather than working to nurture, care for and enrich the life that remained in her.

Every day the last? Don't you buy it! You recycle your glass and paper goods, recycle your soul everyday as well! Feel free to marvel at all of creation even if you intend to live past 100. Show those you love how you feel right now regardless of how many days you may or may not have left. Courtesy, compassion, sympathy, happiness — they need not be reserved for the closing act. Use and employ them at every turn, be as fresh and open-minded as newborn baby, and live every day as if it is the last, NOT!

WE'RE LEARNING

It's here! At last! Finally! For Once-and-For-All. For at least five years our household has been charting a course toward the day called "graduation." Actually, as I'm finding out, graduation is a period of time, only partly represented by the day itself.

We're learning. We're learning lots about graduation. There are all kinds of things that we said we'd have done by the Day Graduation. Ed was hoping to have the back entranceway finished. He's been laying a red clay tile floor down there. We ran out of steam on the job when we ran out of tile. Now he's located another supplier, but hasn't found the time to complete the job. We always said "it'll be done by the time Willie graduates."

I'm a great procrastinator, too. One of my After-Christmas-I'll-Do-it projects was the sewing of curtains for the family room and the cottage. Neither project, both to be completed by You-Know-When, has been begun.

What we're learning about unfinished floors and curtains this week is that they really don't matter.

Graduation time, you see, is a little like Christmas which is a lot like having a baby. When the time comes, Christmas comes, or the baby comes, or graduation comes. Not much, thank God, can stop any of those events from bringing joyous change into our lives.

We're learning about teenagers whose impending brush with a cap and gown brings on a new sense of adulthood and responsibility.

We're learning that aunts and uncles and friends and grandparents and sister and brother are proud as punch.

We're learning that there are a few tears to be expected, lots of laughter, and bushels of hope to spread around.

By the time most of your readers of The Progress-Advance find my musings of today, the ceremonial graduation will be over. Scheduled for Memorial Day Sunday, the Elkton-Pigeon-Bay Port District's official graduation will be a remembrance.

But in our rural community, in our small town and farm rooted families and churches and businesses, our people will celebrate graduation for several weeks. We'll cluck and coo over these new adults as if we've just given birth to the best kids ever.

Maybe that's what it's all about — welcoming into the world new adults who, ready or not, come tumbling head-long into the nonclassroom reality of day to day life.

Maybe what we're learning most of all is that graduation time is one of those best times of life and that the true secret of life is that best times just keep happening again and again.

So, congratulations, Will and Chad and Tim and Becky and Melissa and Mike and Sherry and Robin and Jennifer and Tricia and Ryan and Paul and David and all the rest of you Laker grads of 1992. Your school and your families and your towns are real proud of you!

RECOLLECTIONS
 Of By-Gone Days
 BY GEORGE KEIM

DEAR EDITOR:

When I was still young and going to country school, we'd always look forward to the last day of school. It was always a big day for all country schools.

On that day, all the people from the district that could get away and came to a picnic.

The girls who were big enough used to get their little brothers and sisters to hold and exchange. The women used to sit around and talk about their gardens and the quilts they made that winter.

The men told what they made on feeding steer and what they were going to plant that summer and about their horses and cows. If they had a tractor, they bragged on them.

Then all the boys knew how to freeze ice cream. The ladies brought the stuff and somebody would bring the ice and the freezers and we boys would have to turn the freezers. Boy, did the people eat that ice cream and cake and potato salad and all that goes with a picnic!

Once, we boys were freezing the ice cream in the coal shed and we were at the last freezer. When it was done, one of us asked if we wanted any ice cream, we'd better get it, so one guy took the lid off, we took our fingers and went at it.

One fellow looked out and saw the teacher coming, so he slapped the lid on and the teacher told us to come in and eat. Well, we went in and of course, a lot of the other kids didn't have enough yet. So the teacher dished it out.

When our turn came, she was very sorry, but it was all gone and there wasn't any left for us boys.

Well, we fellows looked at each other and grinned a little. The teacher said we were big enough to go without.

On the last day of school, the teacher brought a big hay rope and had a tug of war between the north and south. So all the men and boys took a hold and pulled.

We pulled with all we had and we could only go a little ways and the other side only got a little. We were just equal and one guy from the South called his wife to come and help.

Well, she was a little woman, but her little bit of weight helped and she pulled all of us northside. Everybody laughed and told her husband he better watch out, because he had the strongest woman in the district!

When I was in the eighth grade, there were only three of us boys and I was the only one that passed. We were supposed to come to Bad Axe to get our diploma, which I still have. We were supposed to come on the platform and get it.

I stumbled over some wires and some kids from the Snell School laughed at me.

In Eccle. 12:12 it says "Of the making of books there is no end. Much study is a weariness of the flesh."

Well, I've got more books than I'll ever get read, but when I was still going to school a long time ago, I wish I would have studied more. But as old as I am, I still learn a lot.

SINCERELY YOURS,
 GEORGE KEIM

Marcia Jurek of Elkton graduated from Saginaw Valley State University during commencement exercises on May 2. Jurek received her BA in Elementary Education, Cum Laude.

Daniel Bivens, a May graduate of Concordia College, has been honored as a Division Scholar by the Division of Social Science and Business.

The honor is awarded by the faculty in recognition of high academic achievement. Concordia College is an accredited four-year liberal arts college and one of several colleges and universities which make up the Lutheran Church—Missouri Synod's system of higher education. Bivens is the son of Mr.

and Mrs. John Bivens of Elkton.

Navy Lt. Cmdr. Moni McIntyre, daughter of Cathryn C. McIntyre of Caseville was recently promoted to her present rank.

It's almost time to register the kids for AYSO soccer for the 1992-93 seasons, for new and returning players. Local AYSO officials have set Thursday, May 28, from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. at the Laker soccer fields for registration. Officials said that they may not have spring registration next year, unless it's to fill openings. When the team rosters are full, players will be placed on a waiting list. The registration fee includes a team shirt, and players must have shin guards to protect from wayward kicks. Adults are also needed to volunteer to train as coaches

THERE'S LOTS OF RUNNING in a game of AYSO soccer, and these youngsters really concentrate on getting the ball down the field.

Achievements

Local students named to the Dean's List of Alma College, for outstanding academic performance during the 1992 Winter Term were Andrea Richmond of Caseville and Julee Lepprandt of Pigeon. Richmond, a 1988 graduate of Laker High School, is the daughter of Kurt and Gail Richmond, Caseville. She received a Bachelor of Arts degree cum laude in art and design. Lepprandt is the daughter of D. Charles and Doris Lepprandt and a 1989 graduate of Laker High School. She is a junior majoring in biology. To be eligible for the Dean's List, students must maintain a 3.5 or better grade point average during a term, while carrying a minimum of 13 credits.

Pages from the Past

By DUANE GUENTHER

It happened rather unexpectedly, like most worthwhile events seem to do. I was playing the dutiful son-in-law and delivering several boxes of rummage to the church for their summer sale. The boxes were jammed full and their heaviness caused a few grunts and a lot of grumbles.

After stacking the boxes in the back room, I couldn't pass up the chance to rummage (no fun intended), through the metal bookcases which held the unwanted pages of countless generations.

I had worked on this particular rummage sale for more years than I care to remember, and recall several "finds" at the bookcase. However, it was early in the spring-cleaning season and only a few books and a dozen magazines were scattered helter-skelter on the shelves.

In years past, I had had some great finds at the same shelves, like a February, 1934 issue of National Geographic. My favorite magazine, and my birthday issue at that! What could be better?

I flipped the pages of a few old Reader's Digests, some book versions and a few magazines themselves; a couple of old, outdated encyclopedias, and a few "how-to-do-it" books that were tattered and not of interest. Then suddenly I ran into three jewels.

The first was a 1962 copy of Guns and Ammo, nothing rare, just good reading from another era; second was a book entitled The Fireside Book of Guns; and best of all a 1957 copy of Stoeger's famous Shooter's Bible, in near mint condition.

I tucked the three books under my arm, returned the key to the rummage sale manager's home, with a promise to drop off the necessary cash to purchase the same, and headed home.

Snuggled in the security of my blue, recliner I gin-gerly open the faded cover of the Shooter's Bible. It had promised that this 48th edition was the world's greatest gun book, and for countless gun enthusiasts, it certainly was.

This particular "bible" was really the catalog for the Stoeger Arms Corporation located in Long Island City, New York. It was one of the first, large mail-order outlets that dealt with guns and their accessories.

However, you could also buy much of what was listed inside through one of their authorized dealers. When I opened the musty pages I found three that were located in our state at that time.

The first was Williams Gun Sight in Davison, Griswold Sporting Goods in Detroit, and Morley Bros. in Saginaw. Williams is still going strong, Morley's is gone, and I don't know about Griswolds.

The following pages listed ordering instructions, postal and railway rates as well as a parcel post map of the USA. Bulk mailing was pretty cheap in those days, for the Michigan zone cost a mere 23 cents per pound.

There was even a worldwide export service for customers in Argentina, Australia, Ethiopia, Spain, Thailand and the Union of South Africa, to name a few.

The first gun listed on page 10 was a classy-looking Mannlicher-Schoenauer in carbine calibers from .243 through .358. Next were Weihrauch Falling Block Match Rifles in .22 caliber. These were some of the finest match rifles in the world and came complete with hook butt plates and palm-rests.

There were also Steyrs, and Anschutz, and Franchi shotguns, Bernardelli double shotguns and even a J.P. Sauer drilling gun, a company who made three barrel guns long before the first World War.

This unique firing piece came with a pair of 16 Ga. barrels above and lower barrel rifled for an 8 X 57 rim fired cartridge below.

In later pages came the Winchesters, Remingtons, Marlin, and Savage. They showed Poly-Chokes, and Cutts Compensator, household words for shooters of the 50's.

There were scopes, gun bluing, books, and parts for all the rifles and shotguns mentioned, cleaning kits, recoil pads and much, much more.

So much, in fact, I became tired and dozed for a spell, dreaming of a young man in his mid-20's, fresh out of the Army who would have given his right arm for any gun in the book. Hmmm — I wonder how good I would have shot one handed.....

KIWANIS CLUB OF CASEVILLE

By CHARLIE KIRK

Wednesday's meeting was well attended and after the Pledge of Allegiance, the singing of America and Praise God, our guests were introduced to the membership.

As this was President Exchange Day, Bay City Kiwanis Club President Dave Corcoran introduced his interclub traveling companions Dick Nelson, Bryan Dugan, Dan McCarthy and Arnold Blummer. Also introduced were Paul Holmgren, Don Johnston, Bob Granning, Ken Kraus and Jack Parr (remember him?) from the Saginaw Riverside Kiwanis Club.

Guest speaker Barbara Neuman, Jack Hopkins and Jane Schoenberg (Bob's mother) were also welcomed.

President Len Watchowski had little to say for he was busily involved in preparing his retaliatory speech for the Bay City Club when he completes the exchange of presidents Thursday.

Humble pie is apparently not his dish yet he graciously accepted a banner patch on behalf of our club for its participation in the first worldwide Super Interclub. Joe "Thimble" Christy agreed to sew it on the banner.

Bob Schoenberg donated a Happy Dollar in celebration of a new granddaughter while one of the visitors donated a quarter to celebrate the fact that his wife was not pregnant. (Evidently the difference between fact and hope is 75 cents!)

Pigmaster Joe made these fun-loving visitors pay as many fines as he could get away with. He then conducted the 50/50 drawing and found the winners to be our own Lois Everingham and visitor Arnold Blummer. Barbara Neuman, from Michigan State's Cooperative Extension Service, was introduced as today's speaker. Her topic concerned proper nutrition and better health through informed food selection.

The fact that our country has an abundant food supply is not all positive since most of us tend to overeat and give little consideration to the disservice we are doing to our health. Eating the right foods at the right times and in the right amounts takes concerned planning, discipline and dedication. The key words are "More fiber, less fat!"

President For The Day, Dave invited all to his club then adjourned the meeting. A thank you was extended to the Methodist ladies for a year of excellent food. Richard Stokan spoke on voting in the Aug. 4 Primary and his running for sheriff of Huron County. Theo Cleland, chairman of the Career Shadowing Program, welcomed the young careerists and presented certificates to those present. Congratulations were extended to Lorraine Brandon for being chosen as the club's "Woman of Achievement" for this year. She is a member in good standing, a positive contributor to the local organization and displays a willingness to help other women.

CASEVILLE RETIREMENT CLUB

The Caseville Retirement Club met May 19 at the American Legion Hall with 95 members present.

President Ed White asked all to stand and greet their neighbors. The Lord's Prayer was recited before lunch. White opened the meeting with the Pledge to the Flag. "Earlybird" goodies were donated by Ceil Peyok, Elsa Kerr, Betty Smith and Helen Stiwell. There were 28 blood pressure readings taken by Marion Parent and Rose Koenig assisted by Louise Gerrard.

Ray Gerrard gave information on a trip in October to Sault Ste Marie. Sign-up for the trip has begun to see how many are interested. Celebrating birthdays were George Woiwitz, Rudy Zakay, Ceil Peyok and Helen Thiel. Rudy and Mildred Zakay celebrated their 54th anniversary.

Those reported ill, hospitalized or recuperating at home are Bill Vallance, Tom Caravalla, Jeannie Owen, Jan Colbeck, Goldie Robinette, Tom Beadle, Bob Shaefer and Ed Reynolds.

No business meeting is scheduled for June because of the Fun Night event. Monthly meetings will resume in September and guests are invited to attend.

BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL WOMEN

The Bad Axe Business and Professional Women met Monday, May 11 at the United Methodist Church Fellowship Hall in Bad Axe. The last business meeting of the year was called to order by President Debbie Lersch.

Guests were introduced to the group. A thank you was extended to the Methodist ladies for a year of excellent food. Richard Stokan spoke on voting in the Aug. 4 Primary and his running for sheriff of Huron County.

Theo Cleland, chairman of the Career Shadowing Program, welcomed the young careerists and presented certificates to those present. Congratulations were extended to Lorraine Brandon for being chosen as the club's "Woman of Achievement" for this year. She is a member in good standing, a positive contributor to the local organization and displays a willingness to help other women.

A business meeting was conducted and committee reports given. A committee of "The Port Hope Ladies" was established to plan the June Fun Night. Installation of officers for 1992-1993 was held. Karen Campbell, president of the Caro club and newly elected assistant director of District II, installed the following slate of officers: President Debbie Lersch, First Vice President Joann Yott, Second Vice President Theo Cleland, Treasurer Judy Reimann, Recording Secretary Joy Kerr and Corresponding Secretary Linda Strochein. Each outgoing officer received a gift.

No business meeting is scheduled for June because of the Fun Night event. Monthly meetings will resume in September and guests are invited to attend.

For more information contact President Debbie Lersch 874-5396 or any Bad Axe Business and Professional Women member.

Prostate screening coming May 30

Registrations are coming in for the upcoming Prostate Cancer Screening set for this Saturday, May 30 at the Scheurer Hospital Medical Arts Building.

Sity Girgis, M.D., Urologist and Ali Khan, M.D., members of the Scheurer Hospital Medical Staff, will be on hand to perform the screening, beginning at 9 a.m.

The screening will include a physician exam, as well as a PSA (prostate-specific antigen) blood test.

The minimal charge for the screening — only a third of the normal fee — is to handle processing of the lab test. Dr. Girgis, Dr. Khan and the hospital staff are donating their time so that the small fee charged will cover the processing cost. Physicians recommend that the prostate be examined annually in men over age 40. Research indicates that early detection of prostatic cancer increases the patient's chances of prolonged survival and possible cure of the disease.

About 103,000 men are diagnosed with prostate cancer every year. Approximately one in every 11 men will develop the disease in his lifetime. This ratio is roughly the same as the ratio of breast cancer in women. Fortunately, prostate cancer is very responsive to treatment.

The public can call Scheurer Hospital at 453-3223 to make an appointment.

Those from the area who received recognition are: Jane Christner, Burton Keefer, and Virginia Leipprandt from the Laker School District; Frederick Fortsch who serves on both the Caseville Public School Board and on the Huron Intermediate School Board; and Walter Swiastyn and Jack Brinkman of the Owendale-Gagetown School District.

Michigan Association of School Boards is a non-profit organization that provides leadership and educational services to Michigan's 600 school districts and their 4,200 school board members.

HERE ARE FINAL CANDIDATES

Several races for political seats are guaranteed in the August Primary Election, following last week's deadline for filing nomination petitions.

U.S. REPRESENTATIVE: Three Republicans and three Democrats are seeking the spot of retiring Congressman Bob Traxler (D-Bay City).

Filing for the G.O.P. are State Rep. Keith Muxlow (R-Brown City), former Saginaw Mayor C. Stewart Francke and Joe Wellendorf of Saginaw.

For the Democrats, State Sen. James Barcia (D-Bay City), State Sen. John Cherry (D-Clio) and Traxler's Chief of Staff Don Hare have all filed for the spot.

MUTUAL CONVERTS OWNERSHIP

Mutual Savings Bank, f.s.b., has received approval from the Office of Thrift Supervision to convert from a federally-chartered mutual savings bank to a federally-chartered stock savings bank, according to President and Board Chairman Wendell Evans, Jr.

The institution will offer for sale 1.43 million shares of common stock at prices between $7.50 and $10 per share through a subscription offering and community offering to eligible depositors, employee benefit plans, employees, officers and directors of Mutual and the general public. Offerings will begin soon, to continue through July 7.

Mutual Savings Bank recently announced a $6.2 million profit at its annual meeting. Retail deposits increased by $31.8 million in 1981 and the Lending Division provided more than $87 million in home loans in Michigan.

Headquartered in Bay City, Mutual Savings had assets of $707.3 million as of Dec. 31. Its deposits totaled $522.7 million with retained earnings of $25.4 million. It has 25 branch offices in mid-Michigan, including local ones in Pigeon, Sebewaing and Cass City.

GAMBLING COMING TO REGION?

If Ontario officials have their way, casino gambling will be coming to U.S. border cities such as Sarnia (opposite Port Huron) or Windsor (opposite Detroit) in the near future. The provincial government hopes to line its border with casinos to lure U.S. dollars to Canada to help cover budget short-comings, estimated at $9.9 billion this year.

Ontario Premier Bob Rae last week announced the plan as part of the new provincial budget. Taxes will rise on Canadian personal income, used cars, alcohol and some services. The government says gambling could bring in up to $150 million a year in taxes/charges.

Casinos already operating in British Columbia netted $194 million last year. Various forms of legal gambling in Ontario bring in $4 billion in Canada's largest province, including bingo, lottery and horse racing.

Windsor Mayor Mike Hurst says he's very much in favor of casino gambling in Ontario. His city of 200,000 is ideal, he adds. "There can't possibly be a better location than Windsor. Within five hours by car, we have access to almost 50 million people."

PETROGLYPHS PARK OPENS JUNE 1

The Sanilac Petroglyphs Park, operated by the Michigan Department of State's Bureau of History, will open for the season on Monday, June 1.

Located south of Bad Axe east of M-53 and south of Bay City - Forestville Road in Sanilac County, the Petroglyphs are one of the most important prehistoric sites in Michigan.

Around a sandstone outcropping along the North Branch of the Cass River are prehistoric carvings of a water panther, a bowhunter and oddly-shaped stick figures. The petroglyphs (rock carvings) are estimated by archaeologists to have been created 300 to 1,000 years ago, officials say.

The site contains other rock carvings made during the last century by loggers who worked the nearby timber. Visitors may take the 45-minute hiking trail to see the site of a late 19th century lumber camp. Hikers will also see a beaver lodge and an expansive dam created by beavers last year.

A tour guide is on duty Thursdays through Mondays from June 1 through Labor Day during hours of 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The site is rustic, with pit toilets and no other services. Visitors should bring a picnic lunch and hiking shoes for an enjoyable day outdoors, according to officials.

To get to the petroglyphs, turn east off M-53 onto Bay City-Forestville Road and turn south on Germania Road, following the signs. A parking lot is on the west side of the road. Admission and parking are free. For more information, call 373-3559.

ARTS COUNCIL GETS NEW HOME

Lake Huron Community Arts Council has found a home — in the former Old Heidelberg Inn, on Center Street in Downtown Sebewaing — and those who've signed as Founders for the Council are now asked to fund the new organization with their pledged $100 checks.

The Council's new home will be named Old Heidelberg Gallery, according to Marlene Martin. Volunteers will be needed for a variety of tasks. Those ready to accept assignment and work schedules are asked to report to Ed Brklacich by calling 883-9093.

Schuette - Mullens

Harvey and Doris Schuette of Pigeon are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter, Lisa K. to Richard M. Mullens, Lansing.

Richard is the son of Bertie Mullens of Baltimore, MD. and Leonard Mullens of New Richmond WV.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Michigan State University and is currently a captain in the United States Air Force. Her fiancé is an assistant manager employed in Lansing.

An Aug. 1 wedding is being planned.

SPEAKERS: Greg Nimitz, left, and Will Eichler won the Laker speech department year-end awards recently. Nimitz was named Speaker of the Year, and Eichler was the Laker Senior Speaker. Both students earned these annual awards through points earned in competition throughout the year, including state competition.

60 Seconds

— IT CAN'T LAST! —

"Blessed is the man who perseveres under trial, because when he has stood the test, he will receive the crown of life that God has promised..." JAMES 1:12

Sooner or later every one of us will develop a medical condition that requires tests. Not all of them are pleasant; some are downright uncomfortable.

One new patient, who had never undergone such examinations and testings, told his doctor how much he dreaded them.

The doctor cheered him considerably with the words, "Even the most unpleasant test will take only a brief moment. Just remember 3 words, 'It can't last!'"

His words can be applied to many of life's unpleasant experiences.

When trials and troubles come into our lives, we can have confidence, knowing that with God's help we can stand the test.

God assures us in James—and in many other places in the Bible—that if we persevere we can handle the test that stands before us. And best of all, we know that any problems in this world are followed by the promise of eternal life through our faith in Jesus Christ, who suffered all to heal us and save us.

Help us remember, Lord God, regardless of what faces us, it will not last. Then, the crown of life awaits us. Amen.

If You "LIVE" On The Road ... You Need a Phone Where You Live.

Just ask Huron County Commissioner Dale Wertz of Great Lakes Auction Company

"My portable cellular phone is mobile and so am I. I spend about 60% of my time in my van, and in that time, I get most of my business done.

"It's just one of those things that I don't think I could get along without.

"The connections I can make anywhere in the country allow me to 'go the extra mile' for the people in my district and my clients in the auction business."

Dale uses his cellular phone to keep in touch with trustees, banks, attorneys, clients, the commissioners' room in Bad Axe, the Lansing office and, of course, his wife. He is able to return calls promptly and not miss out on business opportunities.

"I don't like to have something if it does not work, and this phone always works."

"The service from Thumb Cellular has been excellent."

FORMS OF FINAL DISPOSITION

In many parts of the world, burial is the most common form of final disposition - but it is not the only form.

Many bodies are entombed, or placed in above-ground mausoleums. The procedures are similar to an earth burial, since the body is placed in a casket and is usually driven from the funeral home to a funeral home in a procession. Entombment is the traditional form of final disposition in some areas. In New Orleans, for example, high water tables make ground burial impossible.

Cremation is another form of final disposition that is gaining increasing acceptance in North America. However, this option is still not as popular here as in other parts of the world. The cremation rate is roughly 15 percent in the U.S. and about 25 percent in Canada. By contrast, in European countries more than half of those who die are cremated. In some cultures, such as Japan, cremation is the most common form of final disposition.

New state weather reports are now just a modem-call away

Farmers—or anyone else interested in agricultural weather forecasts—can access current information from MSU if they have a computer with a modem.

With those tools, users can access the MSU Agricultural Climatology Program Bulletin Board Service—BBS—for the price of the phone call, 24 hours a day.

The user-friendly BBS has been operating since March 30, says Jeffrey Andresen, MSU Extension agricultural meteorologist.

The BBS can be accessed by calling 517-336-1075. Modem settings are 2400 baud maximum, 8 bit, no parity and one stop bit.

To log on initially, dial the system, make up and provide a password of your choice for future use and follow the instructions the system provides.

If none of this makes sense, call the MSU ag. weather office at 517-355-0231. Someone there will walk you through the system or provide information about the hardware needed to access it.

The system will be updated several times a day, 5 days a week or more frequently if weather conditions warrant information changes.

The BBS contains a range of information reflecting weather conditions in Michigan's 10 climatological divisions: Western Upper Peninsula—UP, Eastern UP, Northwestern Lower Peninsula LP, Northeastern LP, West Central LP, Central LP, East Central LP, Southwestern LP, Southcentral LP and Southeastern LP.

Available information includes a specific minimum temperature forecast, an estimated solar radiation table, actual and predicted growing degree-days, and actual and historical amounts of rainfall.

The system also has a weather outlook for each of the state's climatological divisions and weather advisories.

"This should give users a pretty good idea of how they stand at any given point in the growing season and an idea of what conditions may be over the next 5 to 10 days," Andresen says.

Though there aren't many farmers in Michigan who are equipped to tap into the service, Andresen says there are enough to warrant making the service available now.

"Based on the interest shown to date, we think that eventually the majority of Michigan's growers will be able to access our service," he says.

Andresen wants to receive comments and suggestions from growers about the service. He says that, as much as possible, changes will be made to provide them with the types of weather information they need.

"We are at the beginning stages of this system, and we need grower input to make the system a usable tool in their business management," according to Andresen.

He anticipates that the BBS will be accessible year round and that it will carry at least some of the climatological information it currently contains. Contents will depend on user demand, and the applicability of the information to the season.

The BBS is a joint venture between MSU Cooperative Extension Service, the Department of Geography, the Agricultural Experiment Station and the Michigan Department of Agriculture.

Bay development group meets Thursday

The Saginaw Bay Area Resource Conservation and Development quarterly council meeting will be conducted at the Port Austin Civic Center on Thursday, May 28, at 9:30 a.m.

In addition to committee and staff reports, Jim LeCureux from the Huron County Extension staff will give a presentation on water quality demonstration projects.

The group will travel by bus to Thuemmel Dairy Farms to view a demonstration of animal bedding made from old newspaper.

Thuemmel Dairy milks 250 cows, has 250 young stock and 100 head of steers. They have been using only newspaper for their animal bedding for more than a year.

Bob and Dan Thuemmel, as well as other area farmers who also use newspaper for animal bedding, will be on hand to discuss the advantages of using old newspaper. Written information on the safety and economics of newspaper animal bedding will also be available.

The Huron County Board of Commissioners operates a county-wide recycling program that collects newspaper as well as other recyclables. There is a waiting list of farmers who want the newspapers.

Huron County's recycling program of working with area farmers is an example of local marketing of recyclables that other rural counties could follow, according to Commissioner Martha Thuemmel.

The afternoon program at the Thuemmel Dairy Farm starting at 1 p.m. is open to the public. People interested in recycling markets for newspaper and farmers interested in a safe, economical animal bedding are urged to attend.

For more information, call 1-800-972-9012 or 738-8667.

New signs going up on Huron roads

Emergency vehicles and motorists will soon find traveling in Huron County easier, as new road signs go up.

Phase one of a four-phase project to place new road signs at intersections will begin in May with crews placing signs through the summer months. Huron County Commissioners recently approved spending $25,000 the first year to get the project underway.

Tentative plans are to spread the cost over a three- to four-year period, but commissioners made no firm financial commitment for future years.

"The county's appropriation of $25,000 will go strictly to purchase road name signs and associated hardware for mounting the signs," said Huron County Road Commission Secretary/Manager John Martin. "The road commission will provide posts where needed, labor and equipment charges."

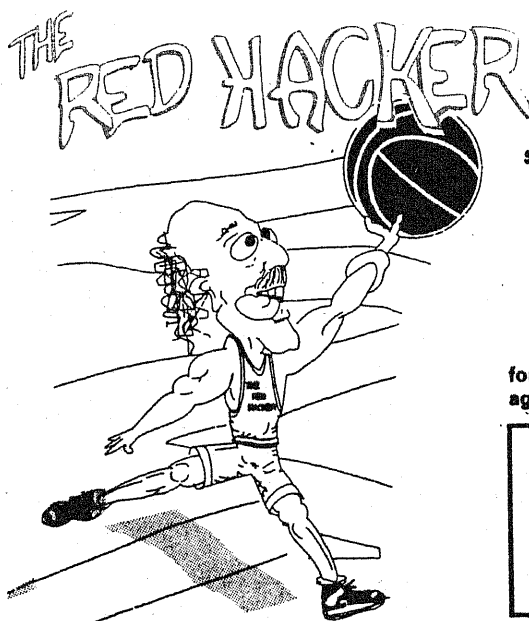

The first phase will place about 1,400 signs at approximately 350 county road intersections during the first year of the project.

"We will do the primary road and all intersections at primary roads and primary road intersections at state trunk lines," said Martin. "The first year we will be all over the county doing this."

Than in following years sign placement efforts would be in a single geographical area.

Many of the signs in rural areas are made of wood and nailed to utility poles that are sometimes several feet away from the roadway. Some signs have faded badly, making reading virtually impossible.

Martin noted new road signs were especially needed with the planned 9-1-1 emergency telephone system coming soon. The estimated cost of the entire project is about $150,000.

3 on 3 SLAM FEST

sponsored by: BLUEWATER YOUTH FOR CHRIST • JUNE 13 - 14, 1992

ENTRY DEADLINE: JUNE 1 ENTRY FEE: $60 Per Team

This tournament is different from any you've ever seen or played in. You choose what height you want the basket to be!! Perhaps the first tournament in history to give an opportunity to play like the pros - above the rim! Show off your slam dunk style! In every way, this tournament is far from ordinary! Of course, ordinary 10' rim brackets are available, too!

Another thing unique to the RED HACKER is the bracketing. There are specific brackets for your team if all of your players are 6' and under (with game shoes on), or if the average age on your team is 33 or above.

WAIVER AGREEMENT

- I fully agree that I am physically fit and able to participate in the 1992 Red Hacker tournament.
- I fully understand that there is risk of physical injury and am willing to accept that possibility.
- I fully understand that any organizations involved in the planning, facilities and coordination of the tournament as well as any of its sponsors and any associated individuals, are not responsible for any loss, injury or death related to participation or attendance of the 1992 Red Hacker tournament.
- I fully agree that it is my responsibility to understand and obey all rules and laws to ensure my safety.

POETRY

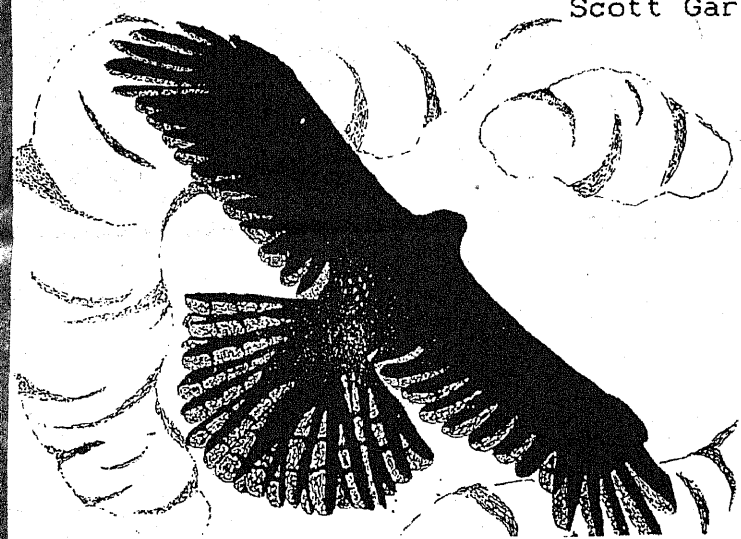

Days. Days.
So many days passing by.
So many, so few days
Until the day I shall die
Counting one day
Is like.
Counting the second day.

Places. Places
Are all the same:
Death, disease, anger
Fill places that I've seen.
People counting
The days
Of their existence.
Three, four . . . days are the same People dying,
People laughing.

Five, six days are gone
And all but ending and Seven shall just be beginning. On Eight I am alive, but on Nine I could die.
Days number so many
And so few for many.

Ten, eleven, twelve . . .
I'm still alive
But standing in Heaven.

LIES

BY: C.J. Dufty

Lies-
they're creeping,
out of our own mouths-
into the ears of others.

Like termites would,
they move through the walls-
of an old house,
eating their way through a system-destroying it.

The lies continue to flow-
as if in a pattern.
They move through a system,
made up of people,
who are the same.

We are the same because-
we know to lie is wrong,
but we are ignorant-
and it won't end.

So the lies,
they continue on and on,
working their way through the system.

Cool Breeze

The sun warms my skin
like a soft sweater
from the heavens above me.
Making me realize that the cold
bleak winter is almost gone:
And that the season of love has begun.

A tree sighs like a content child shifting its branches to the cool breeze Filtering through my shirt.
Sending shivers like needles up and down my spine.

Forever reminding me that his cold breath is still near.

MURDER ON THE LAWN

BY: Brian Beachy

The creatures in the lawn hear something growing louder confusion! Destruction!

The roar dwindles
away in the distance
leaving the victims
strewn on the grass.

A footstep, leather on linoleum,
A hand brushing against the wall,
And breathing. Uneven and heavy.
Familiar to me, yet belonging to a Stranger. Unpredictable.

I lay awake, a tense bundle of nerves
Darling not to relax, to draw a breath.
I hear trees growing, a cricket's sneeze,
And footsteps. Dreaded footsteps
Coming down the hall. Slow but inevitable.

Jittery. Even in rest I am alert.
I wait. And the footsteps pass
Through the hallway, up the stairs
To "his" room. Shuts the door.
So passes another night in captivity.

Infancy

By: Robin Sturm

My words are noiseless
my feelings voiceless
can she understand
when I speak only with my hands?

I cannot walk
nor can I talk where she takes me I have no choice

how can I argue with no voice?

She reads my fears through infant tears
she loves me not for gain
can she understand my pain?

I love she her loves me
my love for her is very real how can I tell her how I feel?

SEVENTEEN

It seemed forever that we'd faced the cold, bone-chilling, blood-stopping, numbing,
Week after week, preparing for a final struggle.
A Day of Reckoning --
There is no tomorrow. . .

The referee's whistle pierced the tumult of spectators calling us to the Final field.
Each General issued his command. "Onward into battle!"
Each armoured warrior sized up his foe --
There is no tomorrow. . .

(In the end, one team prevails.
For us the Victory's gone.)

Seventeen could well be eighty.
Every movement stiff, every breath rattled, and the heart lies broken --
There is no tomorrow. . .

Teenager

I keep walking,
And living,
And breathing,
And riding the Ferris Wheel
Of my circling Emotions.
I swallow the Harsh words
The elders jam
Down my throat.
They say the blame
Belongs to me.
But it is always

their fault.
I am sarcastic.
I am bad-mouthed.
I am the devil's
sidekick.
Teenager.
Teenager.
Teenager.
Teenager.
They call me a Rebel.
So maybe I am.

A Sister's Love

BY STEPHANIE NIEBEL

Powder fresh and sweet-smelling,
Her giggle makes you burst out laughing.

Holding her to you
feels warm and sunny,
cuddly and soft like a little kitten.

She hides her face behind the gold and white curtain in the living room,
where the big bay window

casts an angry glare of the sun in her face

making her squint,
so I put my hand up
to shield her eyes, to protect her.

Our bond is different,
something I've never felt
before with anyone,
and although I can't
describe it with any words,
It's there and I will love it forever. . . .

CORNER

A Gift of Happiness

Carrie Duffy

The everyday sounds of New York City filled the breezy April air as Shawna Taylor sat on one of the bright green park benches downtown.

School had gotten out about ten minutes ago, and just as she did everyday, she sat patiently in the park, waiting for her mom to come and get her. She sat there, studying the dirt specks embedded in the sidewalk.

She then looked up and noticed people walking hurriedly in all of the large stores, carrying bags which were overflowing with Easter bunnies made of chocolate.

It was getting closer and closer to Easter, but there was no Easter excitement within Shawna this year. It was going to be the same as it had been for the past two years since her parents had finalized their divorce. There would not be an Easter egg hunt, and even if there was, it wouldn't be the same without the whole family. This was the notion that Shawna had locked in her mind. Why should I get my hopes up like I did last year? Shawna thought to herself. It would only make the hurt worse when she didn't receive any candy or warm hugs on Easter morning, except for the small something that her mother would somehow manage to find for her.

Shawna, still sitting in the park, saw her mother coming out of a twenty-four hour grocery store across the street.

"Mom!" she yelled. "I'm over here."

"Hi Shawna. I was looking around in a few stores. Gosh, prices are high! People kept giving me nasty looks so I decided to leave. It's pretty warm out today."

"Yeah, warmer than it has been. The walk home from school has been torture lately," she replied. "Well, spring is here and the weather should start to warm up soon."

Shawna's mom continued. "You know that I don't have any money for much candy this year."

"I know, just like you didn't have any money for school pictures or anything else either," Shawna sarcastically stated.

"Shawna, don't do this to me honey. You know that I've been looking all over for a job."

"I know, mom. I'm sorry. Can we just go home now?" Shawna looked at her mother with pleading eyes.

"Sure Shawna, let's catch the next bus."

The bus came about five minutes later. They got on the bus and sat in silence. Shawna concentrated on the low purring sound of the diesel engine. She could smell the fumes coming from the fuel tank, and they were beginning to give her a headache. The bus screeched to a sudden stop. Shawna watched with curious eyes to see who would be getting on or off at this specific stop. A fairly tall lady, clad in a worn looking trench coat, stepped onto the bus. Shawna began to daydream. She wondered what sort of a life the mysterious lady led. She didn't look happy, sort of like her mom, only her mom was much prettier than that lady. The bus began to stop once again and Shawna felt the pull of gravity. She imagined that it was all of her emotions and anger pulling her down, draining her of all the happiness that she once knew.

"Shawna, come on, this is our stop," said Shawna's mom. Her voice sounded annoyed, for Shawna wanted to ride the warm bus forever. She would be able to live with the diesel smell because the warmth would more than make up for it. At her house, the warmest it ever got was around sixty-eight degrees. The gas to heat the house was too expensive for her mom to keep it any warmer. They got off of the bus and, walked two blocks to the little yellow house that Mrs. Taylor strived to keep.

Shawna's mom loved their little yellow house. She did everything she could do just so they wouldn't get thrown out on the street. Sometimes when Mrs. Taylor would have a really bad day, she would get out the old sewing machine and make things to decorate the little house. The steady noise of the machine would cause Shawna to awaken, and she would get out of bed. She and her mom would sit and talk until finally they would remember that Shawna had school to attend, and her mom had to hunt for a job the next morning.

Walking to school gave Shawna time to focus on the many problems in her life as well as her mom's.

"Why?" was such a common question that she asked herself. Shawna wondered why her parents couldn't have worked things out. Why didn't her dad care whether or not they had any money? He hadn't sent more than one-hundred dollars since the divorce and he had been threatened into giving that much by some attorney. If only her mom could be happy, then she would be happy too. She fantasized about her mom meeting some handsome man who would take them in, and they would live in his fabulous house. When she began to feel the brisk April wind on her face, she bounced back into reality and the great fantasy was gone.

That evening when Shawna got home from school, she noticed an excited glow in her mother's face. She couldn't remember ever seeing her look so excited. Just seeing her mom's happy expression was enough to make Shawna feel happy as well.

"What is it mom? You look like you just won the lottery."

"Well, I've come pretty close in my opinion. Shawna, today I was walking around town trying to find one more place to apply for a job. Anyway, I stopped to read a sign on the old post office building that read, 'BAKERY COMING SOON! HELP NEEDED.' There was a number below the words and I decided to call."

"Well, what happened? Did you call? What did they say?" Shawna questioned her mom mirror, he glanced at his reflection and all he saw was a man who had lived a life of 33 with intensifying curiosity.

"I talked to the manager of the bakery, and he asked if I would be able to meet him for lunch at one o'clock. Of course, I was amazed and said yes right away. When I entered the restaurant that he had suggested, I gave his name to the hostess, and she led me to his table. He was so handsome! He immediately started talking about how much he wanted his bakery to become a success like the seven others he has opened up across the state. I was amazed! I told him about my job experience with cooking, and he said that I was hired!"

"Oh mom, that's great!" Shawna looked stunned.

"I am going to buy you the biggest Easter bunny you've ever had. When I get my first pay check, I'll go shopping right away, and you can come with me so I'll know which one you want me to buy for you. We'll walk through stores, and look at the Easter decorations and..."

"Mom," Shawna interrupted, "I just want you to be this happy forever. That is the thing that I want most. I don't need you to take me and spend your money on something that wouldn't please me as much as seeing you this way does."

Mrs. Taylor could see a tear of joy in her daughter's eye as she went to give her a hug.

"I love you, Shawna. We deserve to be happy, don't we?"

"Yeah mom, we do...we really do."

accomplish something," he mumbled. "I've lived my whole life with people feeling sorry for me, like I can't do anything for myself." Curtis walked down the stairs and into the kitchen. After he got ready, he headed for work.

As the 10 year veteran, at the Kelloggs Company, strolled past the production line, he heard someone calling his name. The voice sounded very faint, because of the loud noises in the humungous building. When he started to walk toward the voice, he noticed the smell of Corn Pops. Curtis finally met up with the person who was calling his name.

It was Jim, his supervisor. "Saturday we are going to send out a shipment of Corn Pops," he said. "You have to choose the insert today."

When he reached his office, he sat down at his desk to decide the insert for the Corn Pops, when saw a note on his desk. It was a piece of stationery from the main office. This was the first time he ever received a note from the main office. Curtis felt really nervous about opening it up.

He gripped the letter in his trembling hands and looked at the main heading. He knew it was from the main office because it had the Kelloggs Company emblem on it. As he was about to unfold the piece of paper, Don, a tall slender man that Curtis worked with, walked into his office. "Hey Curt, did you decide yet?" he questioned.

"Yes, I think we should go with the Flintstone figures," replied Curtis.

"Okay, I'll order the figures today and they'll be in on Friday," quoted Don. As Don was about to walk out, he turned and said, "Congratulations on your achievement."

Then, he left. Curtis was really confused now. He quickly grabbed the crisp piece of paper with his sweaty palms and opened it. It read...

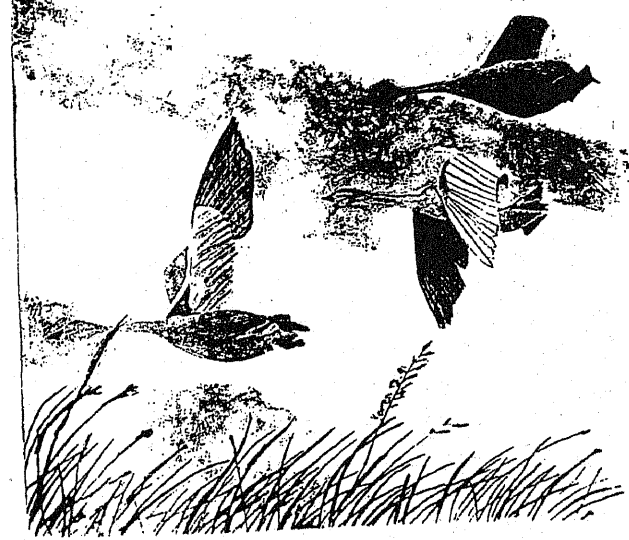

January 14, 1992

Curtis felt really excited. He had finally accomplished his goal. He had proven that even if a person has a handicap disorder, they can achieve in life. At 4:00 o'clock, he went home with a smile on his face that lighted up the blue sky. He and everyone who knows him will now realize that anything is possible for a man with Down Syndrome.

A Boy's Dream

By: Jamie Jeffers

The boy was fifteen when he first picked up a guitar. His mom had picked it up at a pawn shop for twenty dollars. It was a dark brown, faded, beat-up old Gibson with a broken string and a torn strap.

Despite the shape the old guitar was in, the boy was overjoyed. He had wanted a guitar all his life. His mom's part-time job at the little diner down the road had finally brought in enough cash to buy the old wreck.

The boy picked up the guitar and did the best job he could of replacing the strings with brand new ones which had come free with the guitar.

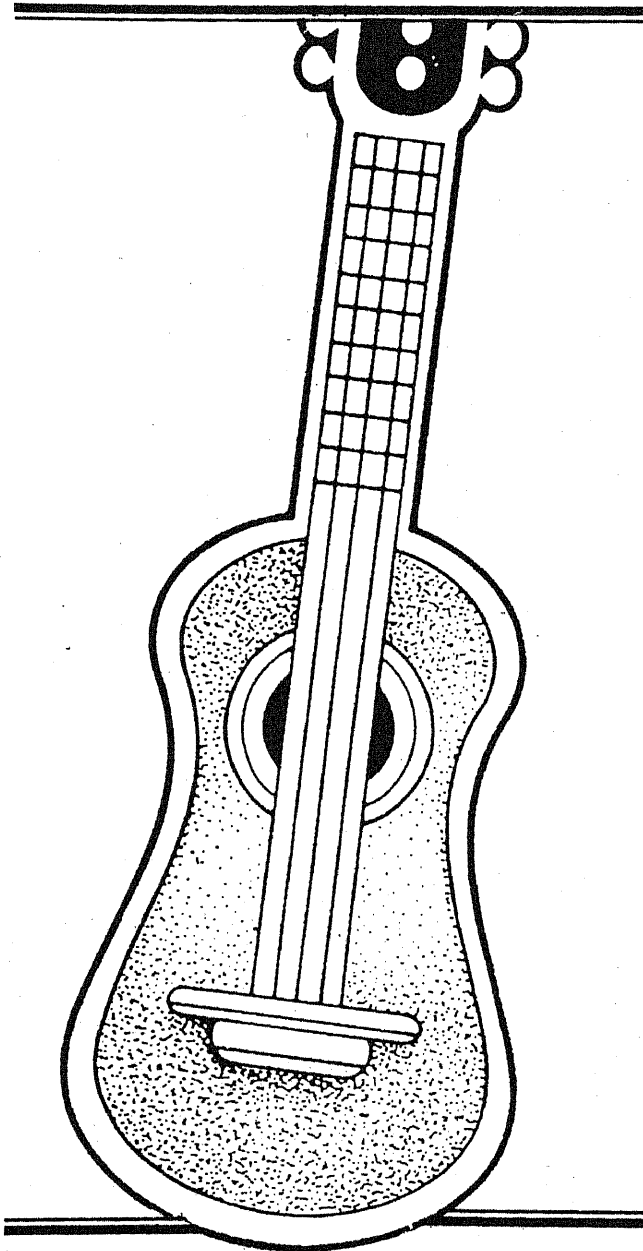

Once he had the guitar ready to play, he sat down on the edge of the bed and looked down at it sadly. He had no idea how to play a single note. He struggled for weeks: trying every night for hours on end to play a song. But all he could come up with was a few easy chords that didn't amount to anything. At least none that he knew! Finally, he just gave up. He figured that he would never be able to play like he had always dreamed he would.

He was very depressed from the frustration of not being able to play. His mother could see his sadness, and the depression on his face. He couldn't eat or sleep and he just sat in the chair, in the corner of his room. He wished he could go to the closet and pull out his guitar and play like he hoped he would be able to, but he couldn't. So he just sat there, figuring his dream would never come true.

Little did the boy know that his mother had plans to make sure that that didn't happen to him. She had taken a second second job in a bar across town. She wasn't about to let her son's dreams be shattered and she couldn't stand to watch him sit there with tears rolling down his cheeks. She knew how badly he wanted to learn how to play the guitar.

So the next Saturday afternoon, after supper, the mother told her son to go get his guitar out and get into the truck. He pulled the dust-covered guitar out of the closet that it had been in for so long. He figured that his mother was going to return it to the little pawn shop and get her money back. The next thing he knew, they were walking into a historic music shop. Just as he was about to ask his mother what was going on, an old man came around the corner with a beautiful, brand-new shining guitar and said, "Are you ready for your first lesson?"

The boy just stood there, confused at what the old man had said. Then the man told him to get out his guitar.

He turned around to ask his mom what was going on, but she was gone and all that was left was his guitar on a stool with a five dollar bill on top of it. The boy was nervous about the appearance of his guitar, but he was too excited to worry about it. It was his first lesson and he had the right to be excited.

He had unknowingly come across one of the best guitar players in the state, and he was well on his way to becoming an excellent guitar player himself. His dream had begun!

MY SHOT

Destiny in my hands,
here on the line.
Two teams now tied
with one second for luck.
Drops falling to my eyes,
My darkening uniform
is sticking to me.
Slowly moving to the line,
my eyes are wide with fear.
As I grip the ball
my bones tremble.
Five seconds of thought, then swish
Encore, I get. a chance of victory
in my hands.
Could my dream become real.
Champions!
State Champions!

So close, right here.
The long hard game
now down to this,
my shot.

In The Ring By: Sherry Elenbaum

My name had been called my turn was up next and in my mind I counted the familiar steps.
One-, two-, three with my discus in hand
I walked into the circle and focused, I stand.

Twisting, turning
with my head held up high;
spinning into the circle
steps seven-, eight-, and nine.
The final stage approaches with an explosive release:
the discus soars freely
thirty-two; thirty-three

As I balance myself near the boundary of defeat;
my eyes gaze upon its flight
ninety-two feet
One hundred twenty-one, and two the discus flight is about to end;
then from the sky came a wind with a burst of energy it could lend.
All was quiet: the time was now-the discus took its final dive the ground drew nearer and nearer one thirty-five!

American Flag
By: Kristi Heintz

It stands tall on a pole,
waving in the wind.
Showing the brilliant colors,
of peace within.

The blue stands for the Navy,
who fought for our country.

The red is for the blood,
that was shed for freedom.

The white is for peace,
after the war.

And together they make something beautiful
The American Flag.
