

As we see it

Are triples an endangered species?

Is the fine art of slugging triples dying out in these United States? A recent statistic crossed the desk listing which baseball players have hit the most triples ever — and the league leaders haven't changed in 64 years!

For the National League, John Wagner hit 252 triples in his career, between 1897 and 1917. That was topped by our own Detroit Tiger, Ty Cobb, who belted 298 triples in his 23-year playing career between 1905 - 1928.

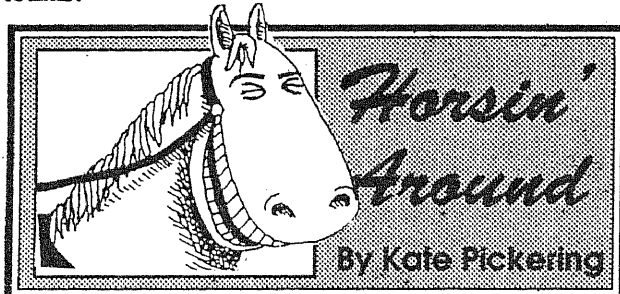

But there's an asterisk in this column, as listed in "the Complete Baseball Record Book (and baseball record books ALWAYS seem to have asterisks!): one player beat both Wagner and Cobb.

Samuel Crawford slugged 312 triples in his years at the plate, between 1899 and 1917. But, Crawford did it the hard way — 250 in the American League and 62 in the National, as a member of several teams.

If we constantly feel the need to compare today's athletes with those of the past, the triple-hitting crown may change that tune a bit. We're so familiar with comparisons between "then-and-now" players in tennis, football, baseball, the Olympics and other sports that the waters indeed get muddy. We're never really certain if today's sports people are as good as they were "back then" — and there's probably really no exact way to know.

But in the triple-hitting department, Sam Crawford will be hard to beat. After all, today's athletes usually don't play 23 years and longer — and somehow they just don't seem to have the same fundamental drive and determination as did players of old.

Besides, most of the diamond heroes of 50 years ago and longer played because they loved the game first and were making a living second. It's been the other way around for at least the past 20 years, and that's a shame in itself...

MY PERFECT WORLD

O.K., what's all this about global warming? Is this it? What a summer it has been.

The temperatures have felt like Indian Summer, and the rain fall has been monsoon-like. Farmers are on the edge of their tractor seats for wondering how harvest '92 will stack up, and beach enthusiasts have given up all hope of diving into 90 degree lake water any time soon.

I personally feel a great deal of guilt over this strange "global freezing," because despite the endless complaints I hear, it is just about exactly how I would custom design summer weather in "my perfect world." It has been ideal horse weather!

The heavy rainfall has kept our pasture almost dangerously green and abundant, and for the first time in 20 years we have actually had to monitor the horses' grazing.

This is opposed to our usual mid-August practice of supplementing parched pasture with baled hay that was intended for winter feeding. This summer's unusual greenness should result in rather significant savings at year's end.

The rain has also kept roadways and wooded trails soft and spongy, and makes for easy going on a horse's legs and feet.

In August I am generally applying liberal amounts of moisturizers in desperate attempts to soothe my horses' dry and cracked hooves.

This year, however, I have been wrapping his feet and bandaging them to try and keep them dry! This, still, should end up being cheaper than buying hoof emollients by the tub!

The cold temperatures also seem to have annihilated the common mosquito (a creature that simple does not exist in my perfect world) which is doubly good for horses as mosquitoes are the transmitters of some very deadly equine diseases.

Plus, the mosquitoes that come out of our swamp are about the size of small hummingbirds, and they tend to swarm and dive with such moxy and aplomb that by dusk you just can't slap yourself anymore, and you wonder whether your OFF is working more as an attractant than a repellent!

I do not miss the pronounced absence of these mosquitoes this summer, nor the subsequent absence of deer flies, horse flies and house flies!

Lastly, the long, cool evenings have almost made riding seem like a new sport for me, no destination being too far, and no uncharted trail being too secluded. All that is best about fall — brisk temperatures, colorful foliage, spunky horses and the absence of insects — has been coupled with the single best element of summer — hours and hours of daylight for enjoying it.

Yes, I blush with shame when I hear my neighbors complain about the conditions of their gardens, the lack of suitable weather for the tourists' enjoyment, or their fear that it will start to snow any day now.

I feel terrible when I read that community picnics were postponed due to rain, or that some fund-raising events have been cancelled altogether.

I feel terrible because — while everyone else has been vocally disappointed in the summer of 1992 — I have come as close as I ever will to experiencing what would be a perfect summer in my perfect world.

The one thing that keeps it from attaining that elusive perfection is the sad fact that — like all good things — it, too, is about to come to an end.....

THE LAMB REALITY

There is a stark reality that comes home to roost for the 4-H and FFA kids who participate in the annual Junior Livestock Association Auction here in Huron County.

The Stockyard and the Packing Plant are the final result of that reality. It is a reality that looms in the future of the prize steers, calves, hogs, and lambs that these kids raise.

We watched the reality play itself out last Friday night at the Huron Community Fair. Several families were making the last sashay of the evening through the lamb barn. It had been a good evening.

Our Peter had coaxed a few more rides out of his parents. He even conned his mother (that's me—weak of stomach and feaver of Tilt-A-Whirls) into a ride on the merry-go-round. We had watched a little bit of the showmanship sweepstakes and fed our lambs. The evening was over and it was time to go home.

But it wasn't just any night. Tomorrow was Saturday and the big stock trucks would roll into the fairgrounds early. Before most of the kids were even awake and thinking about getting to the fair and cleaning out their pens for one last time the trucks would haul away the animals.

The reality of giving up his animals had been a cross to bear for our Peter all day Friday. He'd happily sold his pen of lambs for a good price at Thursday's sale. But later, after another round of Friday's tears, he'd asked me about what happened to all the lambs.

"Well, Peter, most get hauled to the livestock auction where someone else buys them. Most of those animals are slaughtered."

I could see the look in his eyes. The redness from the day of reconsideration and crying. So I continued.

"But some animals get bought and taken to farms, Peter. Sometimes people buy animals for breeding stock or to take back to their farms for some reason or another," I told him. Most sheep people know that the lamb market is glutted during fair season and some buyers who recognize a 4-H animal that can use twenty or so more pounds will buy lambs to feed out for fall shipment.

My words brightened the blonde 10-year-old boy's day and by the time we got to the late night time in the lamb barn, he was saying good-bye to his lambs without much ado.

One pen away, though, there was trouble. Little Timmy Wheeler and The Lamb Reality had met. Timmy, an eight year old who'd sold lambs for the first time, was valiantly swallowing and wiping away the tears. Not much taller than the fine Suffolk animals that he'd raised, he stood among the lambs, crying and thinking.

His sister, Jenny, put a caring arm around his shoulders and reminded him about more lambs that would be born in the winter time.

Dee Esch, another "sheep mother," cleaned Timmy's glasses, propped them back on his puckering face, and tried to change the subject.

Then along came Timmy's four-year-old cousin, red-haired Kyle Brook from Kinde. Both of these boys come from families where their dads are vocational agriculture teachers and FFA advisors.

Kyle had a different angle to the story. He'd been told something that he just had to share with Timmy.

So Kyle climbed into the pen with Timmy and the two

RECOLLECTIONS
Of By-Gone Days
BY GEORGE KEIM

DEAR EDITOR:
I was talking with some of my old friends and we all agreed that this was a very cold summer. I do remember several summers that it wasn't very hot — but I've never even started my electric fan once this summer!

I remember my grandfather said that his mother once told him that they had frost every month in a year and the crops were so bad that if it hadn't been for the deer and the rabbits, they wouldn't have had any meat all winter. But I never saw a complete crop failure in this part of the country.

When I was still quite young I often heard people talk about going to the fair and what they all saw. Well I used to go to the homecoming and the festivals in our town but I never was to a fair.

And one year, Dad said I could take the car and go to the fair in Bad Axe. I took a fellow along in Dad's Model T Ford and went.

We walked through the cattle barn and although my friend was raised on a farm, nothing interested him till we got to the midway. There were spinning wheels and throwing balls and a lot of other things.

One guy told me to spin a wheel and win a blanket but I wouldn't do so. He got after my friend and of course he won right away and I begged him to quit.

He won again but somehow he started to lose and 'till he was done, the man had all his money.

He had only a cheap blanket and they guy said if he sold him the blanket he'd give him $2.50 for it if he'd spin the wheel. Well I'm not very smart but I told him to sell it back to him and take the $2.50 and go. So he did but that took all the ambition out of him and he went to the car and sat there all day.

I went all over. I didn't spend much money but I saw everything that was to be seen and had a pretty good time.

I still go to auction sales and last week I went to one on Sand Point. And of course I got stuck with some things. It was a very nice day but my legs just don't do what they used to.

Well, they had some chairs to sell and a man bought six of them and let a lot of us people sit on them. Then he decided to go.

I was sitting on a good chair and offered to buy the chair I was sitting on and he let me have it. So I gave him $2 for it and he got a good deal and so did I!

Last Saturday I went to Caro to the gasoline engine show and I saw a lot of old gasoline engines and saw a lot of people that I knew and a lot I didn't know. They had a big flea market and an auction sale and I got $2 worth and I think it's still in my car.

The first auction sale I was to was back in 1916 when my folks had a sale and sold his farm stuff.

But if you want to read about sales look back in Lev. 25:25-55. It's very interesting reading. So if you got a Bible, look it up and read it.

Sincerely yours,
GEORGE KEIM

black faced, floppy eared lambs. Kyle was going to counsel Timmy with the wisdom that Kyle had accumulated about this lamb business and especially about The Lamb Reality.

Kyle got down low where he could see Timmy's bowed face and began his counselling session.

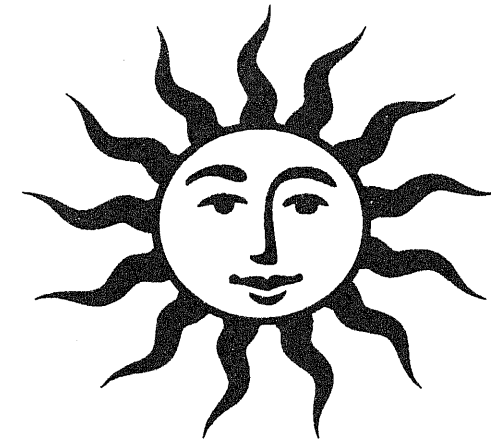

"Whatza matter, Tim? Don't ya know what they're gonna do? They just kill'em! Didn't ya know that? They just kill'em. Whatza crying for?"

Sage realist that Kyle was, he was bringing his knowledge of this lamb thing straight home to Timmy.

The families and friends came rushing to Timmy's aid. There were hugs and consoling words and enough conversation to keep any more of Kyle's words of wisdom (and truth!) at bay.

It had been a weary day, but a good one. Ed and I had dealt with Peter's sadness and Don and Donna Wheeler had known that The Lamb Reality would catch up with Timmy

Report to the Caseville Community

By Caseville Mayor Frank Malosky

By FRANK MALOSKY
Caseville Village Council held a special meeting July 28, to hire a recycling educator/coordinator for the village recycling project.

The Village received two applications for the position. Councilman Williams stated that Sandy Goslee was most qualified for the position and she was hired by a unanimous vote of the council.

(Caseville's Home Rule Charter requires a unanimous vote to hire a family member of an elected official. Her husband Bill Goslee is a Village Council member.)

Recycling is due to begin October 1.

At the regular council meeting the following amendments were adopted and added to the village ordinances: Animal Ordinance Chapter 606 amends to read...

... "dogs shall not be allowed to be unconfined without being under the immediate control of the owner by hand, voice or leash restraint."

Ordinance 812 Circus Shows and Exhibitions ... "Bungee Jumping is prohibited within the village of Caseville."

Ordinance 856 Peddlers and Solicitors, Peddlers and soliciting registration required, proof of sales tax license, provide bond from Huron County, cannot sell before 8 a.m. or after 8 p.m., no permit shall be for more than 72 hours or more than two per calendar year, peddling from vehicles on streets prohibited, no person shall park a vehicle of any kind on any public street for the purpose of peddling or selling merchandise from such vehicle, pushcart or wagon, with the exception of newspaper delivery. This ordinance still permits the selling on private property, with proper permits.

Council sent back to committee a proposed ordinance prohibiting children under the age of 18 in places where alcoholic beverages are sold after 9 p.m.

When passed, this amendment would be effective 20 days after publication.

Mr. Roman moved from Ohio to the Hamtramck area as a child and had lived in the Detroit Area most of his life. He retired from International Mineral and Chemical, Hamtramck in 1986 where he had been employed for over 30 years.

He was a member of St. Roch Catholic Church, Caseville and a US Navy veteran. He served on the USS Enterprise in the South Pacific during World War II.

Surviving are his wife, Grace; five children, Joseph (Cynthia) Roman of Vienna, OH., Charlotte (Dale) Delmotte of Caseville, Sidney "Jim" (Connie) Roman of Plushing, Benjamin (Lisa) Roman of Jacksonville, FL, and Cheryl (Will) Certain of Bay Port; 15 grandchildren, Joseph, Kevin, Christopher, Matthew, Dale, Scott, Steven, Michael, Daniel, Dawn, Timothy, Jodie, Everett, Jesse and Carrie; six brothers, Edward (Emily) Roman and Henry (Dorothy) Roman of Warren, Stanley (Eleanor) Roman of Canton, Walter (Janette) Roman of Detroit, Chester (Joann) Roman of Detroit and Richard Roman of Sterling Heights; two sisters, Jean Noga of Detroit and Sophie Skidmore of Sterling Heights.

The water collection and treatment system ordinance was amended after officials met with FMHA and our bonding attorney, and agreed Caseville could reduce the debt retirement charges as follows: residential from $49.80 to $40 per quarter, commercial from $86 to $40 per quarter, the operation maintenance and repair on the user fee for treatment, was increased from .56 per 1000 gallon to $1.12 per 1000 gallon up to 20,000 gallon per quarter for residential, and then $2.49 per 1000 gallon thereafter.

For commercial up to 20,000 gallon $1.12, thereafter $4.14 per 1000 gallon. This rate change will take effect Oct. 1, 1992 and will be on your January billing.

Approval was given to send DPW superintendent to an AWWA meeting in Lansing from September 22 to 25 and two water employees for a one day class, cost not to exceed $650.

This is mandatory under State Water Laws for employees who work in water plants, to up-date their present water licenses. Approval was also granted for three DPW/Water employees to attend a N.E.M.W.A. conference regarding water in Frankenmuth, August 25.

WHITewater

By DIANE GUENTHER

Stan, the boatman piloting our whitewater raft, was an experienced and capable river runner. He had been down this river over 200 times and before that had run whitewater boats in both California and Idaho.

Early on, it was easy to see that this man would give us an exciting trip without sacrificing safety.

The upper part of the river was sort of "ho hum" when it came to whitewater. Certainly, the waves crashing over hidden rocks were larger than any I had ever seen before, and we were constantly wet as they also crashed over the bow of the raft, but Stan's abilities gave you an exciting, yet secure feeling.

Each time we entered a rapids, he would turn the raft over so slightly and slip into the raging water at an angle. This way the raft quartered through the holes and standing waves and from time to time he would switch sides to give each side of the rafting party its proper drenching.

Early in the morning we would don rain suits to ward off the chill imparted by the 46-degree water coming over the side, but in the afternoon, when the canyon temperature climbed over the 100-degree mark, we all screamed in anticipation of the welcome coolness each wave brought to us.

The rapids got bigger and more exciting as we drove deeper into the canyon. Names like Unkar, Nevills, Hance and Sockdolager were shouted from the pilot's seat, followed by, "you'd better get a grip because this is a good one!"

There would be a momentary gasp, when most of us questioned whether it was a good idea to try and take the raft through such a maelstrom of churning water, followed by the usual screams associated with roller coaster rides and rapid running.

The Colorado River drops a total of 1,709 feet in the 279 miles covered by most float trips. That averages out to 8 feet per mile, which is 25 times greater than the Mississippi River.

This drop generates a river flow that is about 3-4 m.p.h. in smooth water and 8-10 m.p.h. in some of the rapids.

Rapids are formed when rocks and boulders are carried into the river from side canyon floods or chunks of rock material break off the canyon walls.

Both cause the river to be narrower and faster. Different aspects appear with a rapids.

The tongue, a V-shape of smooth water at the head of the rapids; a hole, churning water downstream from a submerged rock; a haystack, the large standing wave directly behind the hole; a sleep, a pillow of water passing over a shallow rock; and an eddy, which is water running upstream behind an obstacle.

Rapids are rated according to difficulty, but it is important to remember that the ratings are relative. They are dependent on the level of the water, the boat type and size and finally the boatman's ability.

Universally, rapids are rated on a scale of 1 to 6 generally using Roman numerals. However, on the Colorado River, rapids are rated on a scale of 1 to 10.

Information relative to a river's difficulty can usually be found in a river guide. All commercial boatmen, and most of the private river runners rely on Belknap's Grand Canyon River Guide.

It is a beautifully colored pictorial version of the complete river loaded with information and interesting side notes about each and every rapid on the river. Much of the technical material in this article was taken from this book.

All too soon the trip was over. While more than half of the passengers would stay on the raft for the complete river trip, Sweetwife and I, along with 11 others opted to get off in the inner gorge and hike out to the south rim.

While this may sound like a Sunday stroll to the readers, we were looking at a 9.8

mile trail that wound 4,500 feet upward and had we known it would take us over 8 hours of steady climbing to complete, we may have jumped back on the boat.

But, then I wouldn't have had next week's story to tell.....

LJH orienting kids

Parents and students are invited to attend the Laker Junior High "start of school" orientation meetings set for next week, according to Principal Dick Pauly.

All sixth graders and their parents may attend an orientation meeting on Wednesday, Aug. 19 at 6:30 p.m. at Laker Junior High. Students will receive handbooks, schedules, locker assignments and other pertinent information. Questions and concerns will also be answered.

All seventh and eighth graders are asked to report to Laker Junior High on Thursday, Aug. 20 between 8:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. They will receive their schedules, locker assignments and will complete all their paperwork. On both days, students will meet the new junior high counselor, Kathy Dickens.

Parents of new students to the Laker District in grades 6-7-8 should call the Junior High Office at 453-3131 to make an appointment for enrollment.

OUTDOOR REPORT

Week of August 18, 1992

Walleye action was reported as very good during the past week. Plenty of fish were taken in the Quanicassae area as well as all along the coast from there to Sebewaling. The north side of Charity Island continued to be hot, with the best action ranging in 15 to 20 feet of water. Perch were scattered throughout the Bay, but the best action seemed to be in the "slot."

Duck season is just around the corner and there is both good and bad news. The southern zone season will begin October 17 and run through November 12, and again from November 27-29. There is a daily limit of three ducks with the possibility of a teal bonus. The goose season for Huron, Tuscola and Saginaw County will be from October 3 through November 8, with a two bird limit. There will be no early goose season in Huron, Tuscola and Saginaw Counties.

The DNR is again asking fishermen who angle the Great Lakes to be on the lookout for trout and salmon with adipose fin clips. The fish contain microscopic wire tags in their snouts, which identify where and when they were raised and planted. The clip will appear in the small fin on the back of the fish, just ahead of the tail. Lake trout, chinooks and steelhead have been tagged.

If you catch one of these tagged fish, keep the head frozen and return it to any DNR office with information on the date, location and length of your catch.

Most people take it for granted that they will be buried in cemeteries in their home towns. This is usually the case, although there are widely varying practices followed. People have different ideas about disposing of their bodies.
Some people have a strong desire to be buried at sea, for instance. While this is a relatively rare practice, and one which must be accomplished far enough from the coastline to avoid the body being washed ashore, it has been known to be done.
Donation of the body to medical research institutions is another possibility. Arrangements for this can be made by contacting a medical or re-

Aug. 23 tourney aids ACS

One of the major fund raisers in Michigan by the American Cancer Society is the ACS Golf Championship. Tournaments are conducted by local Units in many counties throughout the state to help fund the education, research and patient services that are so important in the work of ACS.

The Huron County Unit is holding this event Sunday, Aug. 23, at Scenic Golf and Country Club, Pigeon. It is a 4-player scramble for men's teams and teams of women. Golfers get to play the beautiful, 18-hole layout at Scenic, enjoy dinner, and have a chance to win a prize.

If at least 15 teams enter, winners in each of three divisions are eligible to advance to the State Finals held Sept. 12-13 at Boyne Highlands. State winners will go to the National ACS Championship late October in Florida.

A program book of supporting ads is being published and many area people are contributing to the tournament by donating prizes.

All golfers, serious ones and duffers too, are urged to participate in this fun event.

Call Scenic Pro Shop at 453-3350 to enter or for more information.

sooner or later. What none of us had anticipated was Kyle's input to the whole matter.

The adults also hadn't planned on sharing our stories of "animals that we cried over when they had to be shipped," but then the barn was full of tales of Denny the Dorset and others—all "sheep that we had known and loved."

One of the values of country life is that kids grow up with a clear understanding of where food, especially meat, comes from. That reality, The Lamb Reality, made Friday a tough day, but it was a day when the kids learned alot, and the adults joined in remembrance and honor of the animals that give us so much.

2 new Laker Counselors on duty

By AMY HEIDEN

Two new guidance counselors will be on the job when school bells ring in the Laker District on Tuesday, Sept. 1.

Kathy White-Dickens was chosen as the new junior high guidance counselor and former Laker teacher Dave Wojcicki will fill that position in the three elementary schools.

Wojcicki previously taught social studies in the junior and senior high schools, and recently returned from a year's leave of absence.

At last week's monthly meeting, the Laker School Board of Education also accepted the 1992-93 editions of student handbooks and athletic code book. Only minor changes for clarification were made in the junior and senior high handbooks, according to school officials.

The schools of choice plan recently approved by the board will be put on hold until the 1993-94 school year because the Michigan legislature has put the choice requirement on hold, officials learned.

The requirement forces schools to offer students a choice of which school in their district they want to attend.

Because Supt. Robert Drury will be attending a meeting of the Pioneer Search for Solutions team next month, the Sept. meeting has been pushed back to Monday, Sept. 21.

The board also renewed a five-year lease with Western Land Services of Ludington for oil and gas testing on 60 acres of Laker property. Western Land periodically tests for oil or gas on the property between M-142 and Berne Road.

The company will pay the district a total of $1505 for the five-year lease.

Ignash's first pro baseball season starts slowly — but offers hope

By GREG TOBOLSKI
Burlington N.C. Times-News

SPECIAL TO THE PROGRESS-ADVANCE

BURLINGTON — Hundreds of baseball players every year begin a quest to become one of the 650 players playing in the "Big Show" — that is, major league baseball.

For Pigeon native Reggie Ignash, that long, winding, sometimes bumpy road began in Burlington, N.C., this year as a member of the Burlington Indians.

Burlington is the lowest minor league team in the Cleveland organization and plays in the 10-team Appalachian League.

Ignash, 18, was signed in late June after a couple of tryouts, the last being in Cleveland.

The former four-sport star at Elkton - Pigeon - Bay Port High School made his debut for the Indians on July 9 and went 0 for 2 against the Bluefield Orioles.

"Everything is different. It's a total learning experience the first year," Ignash says.

So far, the road has had more potholes than Ignash would like, as he is hitting .061 with two hits in 33 at-bats through Sunday as a reserve outfielder. He is currently batting an 0 for 27 slump.

"It's a big adjustment coming from high school to pro. The pitchers can put it wherever they want to put the ball, and I'm not used to that."

Indians Manager Minnie Mendoza says Ignash is learning the hard way about professional baseball.

"Right now, the league is a little ahead of him," Mendoza says. "He's been working hard and we are looking to see him next year ready to go."

Like many ballplayers, Ignash is making an adjustment in transition from an aluminum bat to a wooden one.

"There is a big difference," Ignash says. "I hit a lot of balls off the handle and with the aluminum that's okay, because you still get the good hit. With wood, the ball just drops."

Another reason he is struggling, along with getting used to the wood bat, is that he also has changed his batting stance.

Ignash now has an open stance after coming to Burlington with a closed stance. He also holds his hands higher on his body.

One thing that also is new to Ignash is the fine art of base stealing — which he is slowly mastering.

"I stole in high school but there are a lot of little things you need to learn," he says.

Despite the poor first season, Ignash is having no regrets in deciding on a baseball career instead of football. The 6-foot, 215-pounder was going to Michigan State to play football right before he was signed.

"I just didn't want to take the chance of blowing my knees out in football, so I chose baseball," he says.

After next season, Ignash says he will attend Michigan State to study Biology.

While being thousands of miles away from home is a new experience, Ignash is having no trouble making the transition.

blowing my knees out in football, so I chose baseball," he says.

"It's a little bit of a change but it wasn't too hard, with all the guys on the team. They are pretty nice guys and helped everything go smooth."

"You meet guys from all over the world. We've got guys from the Dominican Republic, Panama, Australia."

No bungee jumping in Caseville

There won't be any bungee jumping in Caseville, now that the Caseville Village Council has passed an ordinance banning the sport.

Caseville became the first governmental unit in the state to ban bungee jumping with the ban, officials say.

Because of a number of recent accidents and a bungee-related death in Auburn, Caseville Council approved the ban because of liability and safety concerns.

Bungee jumping was offered on the Fourth of July weekend by a Caseville business.

The official ban takes effect on Sept. 8, village officials said.

In other business, Caseville Council reduced the sewer bond debt charge to residents to $40 for the first 20,000 gallons used. Commercial users will pay $40 for the first 20,000 gallons used per resident equivalent factor.

But the council increased the operation and maintenance charge for sewer use from 56 cents to $1.12 per 1,000 gallons. Both changes are effective Oct. 1.

Scenic Golf Club Women's League News

SCENIC NEWS

"Fun in Fantasyland" was the theme for the annual fun day by the ladies of Scenic Golf and Country Club. Afternoon golf and cards followed by dinner sounds so tame compared to what actually was taking place. Mother Goose and her committee of Little Red Riding Hood, Little Bo Peep, Pinocchio and Goldilocks had arranged for special instructions at each golf hole. A Christmas tree decorated with putter covers was featured at the first hole. Each golfer could pick one off the tree as a gift. These covers were made by Helen Traylor, Dody Yahn, Bea Anklam, Sylvia Kelsey and Linda DuBois. Whiffle balls presented challenges on some greens. Other greens had wickets or tees to putt through to get to the hole. Some special tees were arranged, including a chair to sit on while using an upside-down styrofoam cup as a tee. Various nursery rhyme characters were around the course guiding the golfers through the complications of the holes. Prizes were awarded for the accomplishments of the day. Madge Swanquist had a drive closest to the line on No. 4. Sandy Franz had the most putts with a wiffle ball and Cele Lemanski had the longest putt with one of those balls. Eunice Binder showed her sand skill by getting closest to a pin out of a trap. Mrs. Binder is lucky as well as good—her numbered ball from Hansel and Gretel's oven matched for a prize as did those picked by Marie Frazier and Georgina Kreh. Mrs. Anklam had low putts for nine holes and Jennie Bruce had the most putts in that category. Among those who played 18 holes, Carmen Kauffold was the best putter.

Share the wealth prizes went to Betty Taormina, Mavis Pechette, that lucky Mrs. Binder, Carrie Gaiera, and Mrs. Yahn. Bridge winners for the day were Wanda Smith and Mary Arlock. Door prizes were distributed by the committee in costume. Many thanks to Mother Goose Sylvia Kelsey, Little Red Riding Hood Loretta Rollo, Bo Peep Linda DuBois, Pinocchio Erlene Melisko and Goldilocks Helen Traylor for a "Fantastic Day in Fantasyland!" The regular Ladies Day at Scenic marked the opening of the annual Flight Tournament. Play for the day was low gross score on the back nine holes. Championship flight was won by Edna Dutcher with a score of 41. Dorothy Beachy with 45 took the honors in First Flight. Second flight prize went to Flo Robinson who had 49. Loretta Rollo shot 53 to win the award in Third flight. Sixty-one shot by Georgina Kreh was the best in Fourth flight. Mrs. Dutcher and Jeanette Rowe each had a birdie.

Chip-ins were registered by Mavis Pechette, Erlene Melisko, and Virginia Thiel. The Flight Tournament continues for two more rounds as it is a 54-hole stroke play event. Barbara Binder, Marion Rathje and Marian Windfield were the top scorers at the bridge tables.

FYI: Pigeon roadwork update

IT STARTED with PTI Construction officials and their subcontractors looking over Pigeon's main artery Thursday morning, but anyone driving through Pigeon now knows the village's road rebuilding project is definitely underway. The trucks and heavy equipment came in Friday and work started Monday, as the existing roadway is being removed from M-142 at the Pigeon IGA corner through to S. Main Street. Michigan Department of Transportation officials say no parking is allowed on the north side of Michigan Avenue or the west side of S. Main Street indefinitely. "The more we can stay out of their way, the sooner they can get done," said Pigeon Village Clerk/Supt. Janet Heckman.

Here, PTI foremen, subcontractors and governmental officials confer near the Pigeon IGA corner.

Bean crop down 35% from '91

In the August 13 report from Michigan Agricultural Statistics Service, State Statistician Don J. Fedewa forecast the 1992 Michigan dry bean crop at 4.03 million hundredweights, down 35% from the 1991 crop.

Nationally, dry beans are expected to total 23.1 million bags, down 30% from last year and 29% below 1990 production.

Lower yields for the 1992 crop are the cause of the drop in production, MASS stated.

The reported reasons for a smaller crop include delays in planting until late June and early July due to dry conditions.

Then July offered below-normal temperatures and excessive rains, which slowed development through most of Michigan. Fields are showing uneven growth, so the total crop is 2-3 weeks behind normal.

Farmers and processors are hoping for a dry warm-up for the remainder of August and into September.

In Michigan, MASS estimated, planted acreage of all dry beans is 330,000 acres, 20,000 acres below 1991. A total of 310,000 acres is expected to be harvested, down 10% from last year.

Planted acreage of Navies is estimated at 235,000 acres, down 20,000. Class breakdowns for all colored beans are, Dark Kidneys 9,000 acres, Light Kidneys 8,000, Cranberries 26,000, Black Turtles 42,000, Pintos 7,000, Small Whites 1,500 and others 1,500.

O-G Schools open Aug. 25

School bells will be ringing at Owendale-Gagetown Area Schools next week as start-up plans for the new year are announced.

All O-G staff members will report Monday, August 24, and students will begin Tuesday, August 25, with an all-day session.

An increase of 10c for the hot lunch program has been approved for this year.

* Grades 1-6 will cost $1 in Gagetown Elementary School.

* Grades 7-12 lunches will cost $1.35 in Owendale High

* Adults in both buildings will pay $2.

There will be no classes at O-G Schools on Friday, September 4, for the Labor Day weekend, and classes will resume Tuesday, September 8.

Jim Leitch of the Laker FFA had a big week at the Fair, as he was named the

Champion Senior Showman, Reserve Champion

Showman, and showed the Reserve Champion Hog.

Your input needed Monday for Strategic Planning at Band Shell meeting

Area residents who are interested in continuing work in Strategic Planning for the Pigeon/Western Thumb area are invited to attend a Dessert Meeting this Monday, Aug. 24 at 7 p.m. at the Pigeon Band Shell.

This meeting will be to follow through with the ideas that were presented by over 120 interested residents at Pigeon's Community Reception held in June.

Interested planners should bring their ideas... and a dessert, if possible!

Pigeon's 'Back Door' winners...

Pigeon's Back Door Sale may have beaten the road construction project in Pigeon by several days, but two lucky winners are glad they participated!

Linda Czynewski of Auburn is the winner of $100 in Pigeon Shopping Cash, having had her name randomly drawn from the people who had submitted ballots voting for "The Best Decorated Back Door in Pigeon."

Winning the most votes for their decorated door was Bearied Treasures of Pigeon. They will win $100 in Pigeon Shopping Cash for participating in the Back Door Sale.

Pigeon native Janice Hall named National Home Ec Teacher of Year

Janice Hall, 1970 graduate of Laker High School, has been selected the 1992 American Home Economics Association (AHEA) "Teacher of the Year."

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Charles Leipprandt of Pigeon and lives near Birmingham, Ala. with her husband, Don and sons Jeffery and Timothy.

She was presented with a $1,000 honorarium and a plaque at the Association's 83rd Annual Meeting and Exposition in Denver, Colo.

The awards program, co-sponsored by Glencoe and the AHEA Foundation, recognizes and promotes excellence and creativity in the teaching of home economics.

Hall teaches infant care services and is director of the Infant Care Training Center at Ensley Magnet High School in Birmingham, Ala.

The center is a laboratory extension of the infant care services course and a component of the Ensley Young Mothers' Program, an alternative program for pregnant students in the Birmingham

Public School System.

The program has received numerous awards and recognitions, including the 1990 Alabama Children's Advocate Award and the 1991 American Home Economics Association Single Parenting Award.

The Infant Care Training Center, of which Hall is director, is a 20-bed facility located in a renovated classroom.

Participants work to gain entry-level job skills as infant care aides; strengthen individual parenting skills to encourage the optimal physical, intellectual, emotional and social development of their young children and learn how to secure quality full-time infant care.

The center is funded by a Single Parent/Displaced Homeowner grant from the Alabama Department of Education and by the Birmingham Board of Education.

Hall earned a bachelor's degree in home economics education from Western Michigan University and a master's degree in home economics education from the University of Montevallo.

Her graduate research project became the basis of the Infant Care Training Project. She is involved in many professional membership organizations.

To the voters of the 84th District,

My sincere appreciation for your support in the August 4 Primary Election.

Thank you, Julia Hellig

Paid for by the Committee to elect Julia Hellig, State Representative, McTaggart Rd., Uby, MI 48475.

KIWANIS CLUB OF CASEVILLE

By CHARLIE KIRK
 Dignitaries were in abundance at Wednesday's meeting. It seemed that the only two potentates missing were George and Bill (and Bud Lankey of course).
 They were represented, however, by Jim Reeves who wore a "Read My Lips" tag and Bill Anderson who went outside and took a puff but didn't inhale.
 Among the honored guests were District 19 Lt. Gov. Bill Menkel, Lt. Gov. Elect Kendrick Kyle, John and Helen Easterbrook from Canada, Karen and Dick Albert and Bob Martin, all from the Midland Club. Jerry Galante was the guest of Gene Sluke and Larry Werner, the guest of Mike Slavin, was speaker for the day.
 Birthday greetings were sung for Kay Fortsch (31) and Mike Power (83). Pat Essian came in late, paid a Happy Dollar as a token for his return from a super vacation then proceeded to harvest the 50/50 yield and left for another glorious week at the North Island Travel Lodge.
 Lt. Gov. Menkel lauded the accomplishments of the Caseville club then introduced Kendrick Kyle who gave a brief synopsis of his background and promised to return in September to install our 92-93 officers. He looks forward to the challenges as Lt. Gov.
 Larry Werner, Terra International, Inc. representative, was introduced as speaker. Larry reviewed the "Rise and Fall" of the chemical industry and farming during the past 30 years.
 In the 60s the large petroleum industries jumped into the chemical industry, farmers began a working relationship that boosted crop production and profit margins were increased.
 The petroleum embargo of the late 70s caused the petros to tighten outlays, costs to the farmer increased along with debts for equipment and profit margins plummeted.
 There was a leveling off in the 1980s but farming, as George Keim would say, is still "a tough row to hoe." Environmental restrictions and the rising costs that go with them have also taken their toll on the survivability of the chemical companies.
 The Caseville Retirement Club met at the American Legion Hall Aug. 11 with 114 members present.
 All members recited the Lord's Prayer before beginning lunch. President Ed White opened the meeting with recitation of the Pledge to the Flag.
 Thanks were given to Marion Smith, Betty Smith, Mike Scally, Viola Schuette, Stell Budrick, Ella Dunning, Bettymarie Celmer, Elsa Kerr, Helen Stilwell and Helen Thiel for the "early-bird" goodies.
 Marion Grunow and Martha Lutat were welcomed back.
 The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read and accepted as read.
 Travel Chairman Ray Gerrard reported that deposits are now being taken for the Agawa Canyon trip.
 Celebrating birthdays were Joyce Stratton, Stanley Celmer, Marie Watts, John Taperek, Rosaleen Scally and Eleanor Fiergolla.
 Anniversaries were celebrated by Don and Mary

Phillips, Frank and Irene Martz and Bill and Marion Smith (50 yrs.).
 It was reported that Jeannie Owen is having tests at Huron Memorial Hospital, Paul Jessup, Annie David and Marie Korman are all home recuperating.
 Several packages of produce, out of John Kavalars garden, were distributed.
Happy Birthday to...
 Amanda, four-year-old daughter of Todd and Kay Dube, Elkton, celebrated her birthday with a party, on Sunday at her home. All enjoyed refreshments, birthday cake and ice cream.
 Guests came from Boyne City, Essexville, Lansing and Elktion.
 Amanda will attend preschool at the United Methodist Church.
