Lake water irrigation project planned

By AMY HEIDEN

Some Western Thumb farmers could be growing vegetable crops instead of grain crops in the future, if a proposal to build an irrigation project gains approval from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

Twenty farmers, the state Agriculture Department and Michigan State University have proposed a project to irrigate some 2,000 acres of tillable farmland in the proposed irrigation district, which would draw water from Saginaw Bay through Mud Creek and into a pipeline crossing under Filion Road and draining again into the Pigeon River.

But some critics have concerns about the plan, such as whether or not zebra mussels spread to inland waters from the lake, or whether Saginaw Bay pollutants will be introduced to inland waters, or whether the ditches that would supply the water also act as drains for more fertilizer and insecticide runoff into the Great Lakes.

They also have expressed concern about the effects of lower lake levels on commercial and recreational boating and on shoreline property values.

"You have to be thinking about what's the cumulative effect if we allow a lot of these things," said David Dempsey of the environmental group Clean Water Action, in a recent statement to reporters.

If the pilot project is approved, almost 5,000 ft. of Mud Creek would be cleaned out and a pumping station would be built near Filion Road, a water transmission line would be installed under Caseville Road, the Newman Drain from Filion Road to Sturm Road would be cleaned out and 3,000 ft. of the Filion Road ditch from Newman Drain east to the Pigeon River would be cleared, participants say.

The Mud Creek Irrigation District #1 would supply water to farmers in Caseville and McKinley Townships who would pay taxes for the project and the use of the water.

Phil Leipprandt, who farms 2,200 acres of land with his brother Tim, uncle Bruce and father Charles Leipprandt, is one of the farmers who would benefit from the project.

Finding alternate crops besides corn and wheat is one of the reasons for needing the irrigation project, he said.

"We're looking to the future. We could have vegetable crops with irrigation.

"We've been tracking corn prices and it's clear we have to look at something else. We used to grow seed corn around here but the companies decided it needed to be irrigated and we couldn't do it.

"We could get back into that," Leipprandt said.

Leipprandt and his family have the equipment to irrigate about 140 acres of farmland, and have irrigated sugar beets this season.

"Early on we have some crusting problems and we irrigated to soften up the ground a little," he said.

This year the Leipprandts haven't irrigated other crops because of sufficient rains and cooler temperatures, but in other growing seasons, they may need that irrigation capability, Leipprandt said.

Their irrigation system draws water from the Pigeon River, which borders the family's farm.

Michigan water rights have always favored users whose property borders the water source. Those farmers whose land borders the proposed district and who pay taxes on it would be the only ones allowed to use that water, planners say.

The Mud Creek Irrigation District, if approved and built, would be the first such district in Michigan.

Officials say up to 8.6 million gallons of water a day could be pumped from Saginaw Bay. In contrast, the Detroit River empties 120 billion gallons a day from the upper Great Lakes.

"The only net loss of water would be from the use of the water to irrigate," Leipprandt said. "It would go from Saginaw Bay onto the fields and they drain right back into the Pigeon River which drains right back into the bay."

The initial phases of the project would be paid for by a $600,000 grant already allocated through the state's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. Part of a $55,000 grant has already been used for engineering studies.

New Owendale water tower in the pipeline...

Owendale Village officials expect to let bids in December for a new water tower, to replace the 80-year-old structure. "We have a grant and loan from the FHA (Farm Home Administration)," says Village President Walter Howard, Jr. Estimated cost of the project is about $595,000 with a grant of about $450,000 and a loan of $150,000. The village has 40 years to pay back the loan that should have an interest rate of about 3.8 percent.

To help meet loan payments, village residents will see a water rate increase of about $8 to $10 a month on their utility bills next fall, when the tower is built, he says.

"The new tower will be built across the street and about 300 feet west of the old tower on Seventh Street," says Howard. "The old tower was built in about 1913 and it would cost more to repair it than to build a new one." Work is expected to begin in May.

Michigan "By the Numbers" Values going UP!

Property owners in the Thumb and throughout Michigan face big property assessment increases, unless state lawmakers continue to freeze assessments before the current laws expire at the end of the year, according to equalization officials. Here are estimates of value jumps, which would lead to higher property tax payments, by county:

Huron	15%
Tuscola	10%
Sanilac	11%
Bay	12%

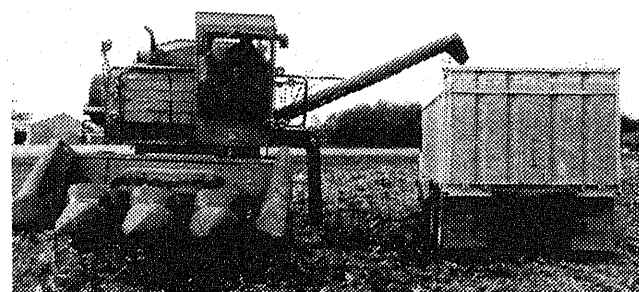

No funds for Gagetown

Although the state issued a press release saying Gagetown village is one of several Thumb communities to receive state funds, that's no longer true.

The state had approved a $72,000 grant to help fund a water well project in Gagetown, but because the project was already underway, the village doesn't qualify, said Village Clerk Elery Sontag.

"Because we started construction of the well, the state won't give us the grant," said Sontag. "To qualify, the project

Caseville's curbside recycling program starts Saturday

By AMY HEIDEN
Attention Caseville residents: Your turn has come to join other Michigan communities and start curbside recycling and you'll be able to do just that this Saturday, when the village makes its first pickup. That's the word from Sandy Goslee, Caseville's Recycling Coordinator, who is spearheading the village's recycling effort. "Our building has been completed, our equipment has been delivered and we recently hired Green, Inc. to pick up and process our recyclables," Goslee says. Caseville's massive recycling effort began with a $333,000 grant from the Department of Natural Resources, which chose Caseville as one of six Michigan communities to participate in the Clean Michigan Community Recycling Program. This fall, Goslee has presented four workshops on recycling for Caseville residents and all were well-attended, she says. "The enthusiasm was very high and we had a very nice response," Goslee says. The recycling program also

Sebewaing needs Scout leaders

Sebewaing scouting clubs are looking for leaders. The search is on for a Cub master, an assistant Cub master, a Webelos leader, assistant Webelos Leader and assistant Wolf leader. Responsibilities of leaders include conducting den meetings with a book to follow, in doing activities for scouts to earn patches. Scouts participate in several activities throughout the year, including popcorn sales in November and Food includes leaf-pick-up for land application, but problems with equipment have forced delays. Burning leaves has been banned in the village for several years. The first pickup of household recyclables will be this Saturday and bins for those

Hints for Caseville recycling

- Rinse glass jars and bottles well. It's OK to leave the labels on, but remove any plastic or metal caps or rings, recommends Caseville Recycling Coordinator Sandy Goslee.
- Place newspapers in brown paper grocery sacks. Don't add magazines or junk mail. Inserts in newspapers are OK but remove staples because this material is used for animal bedding.
- Clean tin or steel cans, remove both ends and flatten as best you can. Remove the labels.
- Make sure you have only clean and flattened corrugated cardboard. Waxed cardboard or cereal boxes will not be accepted.
- Clean, flatten and remove the caps from plastic bottles. Do not put out oil or antifreeze containers. No wide-mouth HDPE containers such as margarine tubs or plastic caps from containers will be accepted.
- Put out your recycling bin by 7 a.m. on recycling day. Put newspapers on top or next to it. Cover with plastic on rainy days or hold it for another pickup later. To help reduce collection costs, don't put your bin out if it's less than half full.
- Recycling begins in the store when you purchase items. Try to purchase items that are packaged in recyclable containers. Try to buy items that are made from recycled materials to help support the markets for the materials that your household recycles. Try to buy items that last a long time instead of buying disposable items.

Caseville resident will get into the habit of recycling. "The village is committed to seeking successful alternative ways of reducing the waste stream," Goslee says.

USA considers central campus; closing some buildings

By MARY DRIER

After the holidays, the Unionville-Sebewaing Area School District plans to get back to work on revamping the school district's design. Work on the project began over a year ago, but was put on hold over the summer and during fall harvest. Several proposals are being studied by a citizens' advisory committee for ways of streamlining the district's design. The committee, comprised of a cross-section of area residents, has about 35 members. Spiraling operational costs and declining enrollment prompted the study of various methods to trim expenses. One proposal is closing several school buildings, to possibly switch to a one-campus system. The district has an elementary school in Unionville, a middle school in Sebewaing and the new high school located between the two towns. There is considerable cost in keeping up three facilities, preparing meals and transporting them to other sites, and transportation costs of shuttling students back and forth, says Sept. William Dodge. He says the central campus system is only a proposal, and even if it is deemed feasible, it would take several years to implement. The district's elementary school has sections that were built in 1928 and parts built in 1964. The middle school has sections that were built in 1928 and in 1968. The high school was built in 1980 on a 26-acre site, and is the site of the proposed central campus. Besides the cost of operating three buildings and the age of the buildings, and other factor in considering a central campus is the drop in enrollment. At one time, the district had 1,400 students, but enrollment has dropped to about 940 students this year. Dodge says the district has contacted the Economic Development Corporations in Tuscola and Huron Counties on the marketability of the elementary and middle school buildings. Some possible options for the elementary or middle school facilities are senior citizen commons or long-term health care centers. Dodge noted the two facilities have been well maintained and are marketable, but they are getting older. Greiner Inc., of Grand Rapids began a feasibility study last fall of creating a centralized campus. A proposal to build a kindergarten through eighth-grade building with a projected cost of $11.8 million was one of the latest options under consideration. Plus, the option to construct a new k-8 school and to renovate the existing high school with a projected cost of $12.6 million. One proposed k-8 building is a stand-alone facility with about 35,000 square feet and similar in design to the high school. The other option is to build a k-8 building on to the high school that includes changing the design of the gym from 6,000 sq. ft. to 12,000 sq. ft. to accommodate junior high sports activities. The proposal would accommodate seventh- and eighth-grade students at the high school, to fully utilize the facilities there while maintain minimal contact with older students. The committee decided to segment the various proposals in order to study them fully rather than all options at once. All proposals for any construction would be near the high school, for a centralized system. Tom Chen of Greiner & Associates recommends buying 20 additional acres of land to allow for separation of the two facilities and to have enough space available for future athletic complex development or expansions.

A treatise on hunting (part II)

When George Sears came to Michigan, it was to visit a couple of old school chums from Rochester, N.Y., who had relocated in this new frontier. Pete Williams and his family had settled in the Saginaw Bay region, and it was this family that George visited first.

He had begun his trip by traveling overland to Buffalo, which is just above Niagara Falls, and then booked passage on a steamer called "The Globe."

He traversed up Lake Erie, passed through the straits of Detroit and then moving up Lake Huron, around the tip of the Thumb, until he finally reached Lower Saginaw, known then as Bay City. Another half day journey by horse and buggy brought him to his friend's cabin in the woods.

He spent about 10 days with the Williamses and then decided to visit Joe Davis, another friend, and former classmate. Joe lived just upstream from the mouth of the Muskegon, and Sears planned to reach his cabin by hiking across the state of Michigan.

He got some local advice from an "old timer" named Bill Hance, and after talking with him, conceived that it would be possible to make the hike.

Hance had pointed out an old Indian trail for George to follow, but after a few miles it petered out into a game trail and soon that, too, disappeared.

George was not dismayed, he had his compass, his good health, and a pack full of necessities, and so he continued to head west.

George found the traveling to be close to perfect. The October weather was warm during the day and cool at night. The bugs were non-existent and the leaf color was sensational.

If it hadn't been for the streams, lakes, and swamps getting in his way, the walk would have been delightful.

For the next 10 days, George Sears was in a virtual hunter's paradise. The woods were alive with squirrels, rabbits, passenger pigeons, grouse, wild turkeys and dozens of deer who watched unconcerned as he passed their way.

He writes in one account of meeting up with a giant bear feeding on acorns a few yards away. After sighting and resighting to prove to himself that he could have shot the animal numerous times, he waves his hat and scares it into flight with a blood-curdling scream.

The bear sighting was not unique as George reports that

by Duane Guenther

not one of the 10 days went by without his sighting a bear in position for an easy shot. He even met up with, and frightened, a large wild boar.

George reached the Muskegon and his friend Joe Davis without a mishap. During his hike he only fired his rifle three times and with each firing he added fresh venison to his dwindling larder.

Thirty years later, with the writing of this book, Sears remarked that during his Michigan hike, he saw more game than during any other season before or after.

Several years ago, I found out that people like George Sears weren't the only ones to write about the abundance of wild game in Michigan, and I chanced to find another account, this one closer to home, in a most unusual spot.

I had borrowed a book on the history of Huron County from a friend to supplement the material I was using to teach a class in Michigan history.

While flipping through the pages a letter fell out. It was a newsy note from one sister plained that the letter, dated Oct. 22, 1876, was from his grandmother who lived on the family farm near Mud Creek to her sister residing in Fulton, Ohio. He was gracious enough to allow me to make a copy.

The letter is filled with news of a sick family, poor crops and concern about the upcoming elections. But near the end of the fourth page

"There are lot of bear around here this season - there have been quite a few killed - they come to the very pig pens and take the pigs, and Elk are plenty to - we have had elk meat quite often - I like it better than venison - it is as good as beef(sic)...."

Lakers settle with 2 staff groups

By AMY HEIDEN

After four months of negotiations, Laker teachers have agreed on a new three-year contract which calls for a five-percent raise each year over the life of the contract.

Laker Supt. Robert Drury told Board of Education members last week that the contract was ready for the teachers' ratification, and the ratification vote was taken Wednesday morning.

A special meeting of the school board is planned Tuesday, Nov. 17 to make the contract official, but Drury said he expects the agreement to be made official.

While wages were a major issue in negotiations, a proposed change in insurance carriers was another sticking point.

Teachers had wanted to change their insurance carrier from Blue Cross to MESSA, an educational employees group, but under the new contract their health insurance coverage will stay with Blue Cross.

Drury said that in agreeing to the pay raises, the board was not only looking at the current economic climate, but also at teachers' salaries in other districts.

"We have to compare teachers to teachers instead of comparing them to a person who works at a fast-food restaurant or a hospital," he said.

"We have to stay competitive or we may lose teachers to other districts, and we need to attract top-quality teachers. In order to attract and keep the best, we have to be competitive."

A three-year agreement with the Laker Secretarial Association was signed at last week's board meeting, giving the secretarial staff a five percent raise each year of the contract, with no changes in other benefits. The raise will be retroactive to Sept. 1, the beginning of the 1992-93 school year.

The Laker Board accepted a low bid from First National Bank of Bad Axe for $1.45 million in tax anticipation notes. The district will pay a favorable interest rate of 2.8 percent on the loan, which will be paid back 3-27-93.

Achievements

Owendale resident Diana Kausch, vice president of the Michigan Association of Extension Homemakers, has been selected by Lt. Gov. Connie Binsfield to serve on the statewide task force "Caring Arms."

The Caring Arms Task Force will focus on developing and promotion of community initiatives, and supporting educational research to create citizen awareness and action.

A central part of the state's objective for the 1990s is to support those who care for, educate and nurture children and youths. The MAEH organization also supports family advocacy.

Sandusky runs away

Sandusky High School's cross-country team won the Michigan Class C state title last Saturday, as Coach Wayne Roberts' dream finally came true. The win represented Sandusky's first athletic state championship in 70 years.

As cross-country team members returned from the finals at Frankenmuth, they stopped at the Sandusky city limits—and jogged through town, as friends and family cheered and honked horns, led by a police escort.

Caseville is pilot school for state accreditation program

Caseville Public School has been notified by the Michigan Department of Education that it has been selected as a pilot school in the development of accreditation standards for Michigan schools.

More than 300 schools volunteered to become pilot schools, but only 34 were chosen statewide and Caseville was the only school selected as a K-12 district. Following this two-year pilot program, under Public Act 25, 500 to 600 buildings per year will attempt to become accredited with the Michigan Accreditation Program.

Caseville's students, staff and community will be challenged during the next two years, according to Superintendent Jim Stahl. The efforts of the school district will be under the direction of Colleen Pantelis, elementary instructor and George Bednerek, high school principal.

The process of accreditation will include data collection and self-study (including test scores, enrollments, grades, student perceptions and data from the school climate), visitation and validation of the program. Determination of outcomes data to be used and the continual development of the school improvement plan.

Areas to be studied during the next two years at Caseville are: philosophy (what is believed), student outcomes (what will be achieved), curriculum (including critical thinking, problem solving, decision making and team building), organizational and administrative practices, staff commitment, school and community relations and facilities.

Dec. 6 Youth Center Auction

The Laker-DePorres playoff game forced the cancellation of the Huron Youth Center's benefit auction, originally scheduled for Saturday, Nov. 7.

Auction organizer Grace Finkbeiner says the auction and bake sale will be conducted on Sunday, Dec. 6 at 1 p.m. at the Youth Center on N. Main Street in Elkton.

All items previously donated will be offered, and more items are being sought to help raise funds for the Center's youth programs. Some of those items include a handmade afghan, quilts, handmade merry-go-round, and a basketball autographed by Detroit Pistons Isiah Thomas and Joe Dumars and a football and ball bag signed by Detroit Lion Jerry Ball.

"We hope everyone will mark the date on their calendar and come and help support the Youth Center," Finkbeiner said. "We have something for just about everyone."

For more information about the auction, donors can contact Finkbeiner at 375-4440. For more information about the Youth Center, contact Lee Jaworski at 375-4169.

Never has wood been so scarce in Pigeon as it is now. A farmer who strikes town with a load of wood can get almost any price he asks for it.

Some farmers are having a hard time with sugar beets this fall. Many have to haul four and five miles and with the condition the roads are in, it is hard on men and horses.

Lots of bats are flying down the USA Elementary hallway as evidence that readers were busy during the month of October spending over an hour reading extra books at home.

Group Effort, Cooperative Learning and Individual Goals Adopted by Special Ed Students

By Deborah McClay, Elementary Special Education Teacher

Well, it's November and our school year is off and running at a very fast pace! We are getting ready to send report cards home and starting to think about upcoming holidays. Our class has been very busy with the exciting changes that the new school year has brought.

These changes began with me as the new teacher for the Special Education classroom at the USA Elementary School. I am Deborah McClay, and I hail from the Lansing/Grand Ledge area. I am very excited to be working in Unionville, and am enjoying my students as we grow and learn together.

We keep busy in our class, but always try to have fun while learning. We have started a timeline writing project where we keep track of our activities in school on a linear calendar (complete with pictures to jog our memories). The students are learning how to operate a camera, and are becoming experts at taking pictures.

Our class often learns through fun activities such as cooking, projects, and games. We utilized reading, math, reasoning, and many other skills with our pumpkin bread cooking lesson, pudding concoctions, and food lessons.

For Columbus Day, our class made paper mache worlds and painted Derek Wells and Gabriel Arebello have busy little hands while measuring out ingredients for pumpkin bread which they were making as a special treat for Halloween. Elementary aide, Gerry Koehler is giving them some measuring and baking instructions.

them. We also discussed the types of ships on which Columbus sailed and then made paper and pretzel caravels. We also utilized information from the weekly readers to better understand Christopher Columbus.

Our class is working on various projects and problem solving tasks with group effort and cooperative learning. The students made a "human knot" and then "untied" themselves successfully. They often try to read to each other, and are currently trying to build a reading train of 80-100 cars as an entire class.

Each student has an individual goal and, together, the train gets longer and longer each day. Recently, the students, as a whole class, made potpourri Christmas bells with ribbons to sell for the computer bazaar.

We are gearing up for Thanksgiving and Christmas seasons and continue to be busy with more exciting projects ahead. Have a great holiday season and keep smiling!

The USA Elementary School held its annual Halloween parade on Friday, October 30. There were hundreds of spectators and parents lining the parade route. The students' costumes were spectacular. Christina Schnitker and Jenny Lord are all giggles as they anticipate the start of the parade.

October Reading Program Produced Hallway of "Batty" Students

The Chapter I Reading Program at USA Elementary School is working hard to promote the enjoyment of reading schoolwide. Students and parents are also being encouraged to share reading experiences together.

For the month of October, students showed they were "batty" about books by spending over one hour reading extra books at home. When students completed a certain number of slips showing fifteen minutes of extra reading for each student, their name was posted in our main hallway in the shape of a bat. Needless to say, we had bats everywhere. Student participation was fantastic!

Every month we hope to have all our students taking part in the reading activities that go home. We would also like to thank parents who encourage their children to read. Your participation is extremely important and well appreciated!

USA Elementary School Honored By State

By Patricia Dinsmore

The USA Elementary School is one of 25 schools in the State of Michigan selected to be part of the new Michigan Accreditation Program (MAP).

The elementary school was one of the first elementary schools to receive accreditation in 1991. In our continued search for excellence, we feel honored to become part of a program that will further aid us in our quest.

Through this program, the staff will examine the strengths and weaknesses in the elementary curriculum.

Goals will then be developed and strategies devised to help the students successfully meet the expected outcomes.

Establishing a Bedtime Routine

By Dr. Donald List, School Psychologist

One of the most difficult and frustrating experiences of parenthood is the bedtime ritual.

Children seem to develop a second wind just about the time parents are ready to settle down, put their feet up and relax.

Even when you manage to get them to their beds, they are back up asking for water, kisses, bathroom breaks or a "monster" has appeared in their room and you cannot possibly expect them to sleep in there without you.

So you say goodbye to LA Law or the great book everyone has been talking about and you again begin the cycle of several trips to the bedroom. Finally, exhausted, you give up and your child slips into bed beside you. I suspect this is one way children limit the number of potential siblings. I also suspect that the "monster" is no longer in your child's closet, but between you and your spouse, with a satisfied grin on his or her face.

If you recognize yourself in the above paragraph, you are in the company of many parents. The best way to solve bedtime problems is to establish a routine.

Establishing a bedtime routine will help your child feel more secure and rested, give you and your spouse some deserved time to relax without children, and generally help the family function more smoothly. Once you establish your routine you must be consistent. Stick to your plan. Eventually you will train your child to settle down and get the rest a growing child needs.

First of all, you must set a bed time, based on the child's age and need for rest. Young children need about 10 hours of rest, while older children may require less. Remember, also, that Mom and Dad need some alone time and use that in establishing bedtime.

Next, develop a repertoire of soothing activities leading to bedtime. For example, in my house, the routine is a warm bath followed by books. When the children are in bed, they have a small cup of water next to them, and they may listen to soft music. Sometimes a back massage will help children settle down as will a glass of warm milk. Saying prayers with your child is another soothing activity that helps them in the transition from play to sleep.

When children have developed problems with settling down for bed, parents will need to implement additional techniques. One such idea is a sticker chart which is posted on the refrigerator door. Each morning, following a night of uninterrupted sleep, the child earns a sticker. Five stickers mean a special reward with you.

However, if the child keeps getting up, there are consequences. For example, a young child would have to sit in a timeout chair for five minutes, have to get up 30 minutes earlier the next morning or lose a TV privilege. The key to making this work is consistency on the parent's part. You must be willing to stick to your plan because your child will test you to see if you are serious. It's hard work, but if you stick to it, some day you will be able to watch a TV show or read a book without interruptions.

USA Implements K-12 Math Core Curriculum

During the past year, the Unionville-Sebewaing Area Schools developed a K-12 curriculum in mathematics. The alignment of the curriculum coincides with the Michigan State objectives.

By doing this, we expect an increase in student achievement scores when taking the Michigan Education Assessment Program (MEAP).

The USA Middle School has begun to purchase textbooks, manipulatives and materials for fifth, sixth, and seventh grades. Because of the lack of funds this year, the eighth grade materials must wait a year or two. It is the hope of the Middle School math teachers to have the new program fully in place by the end of next year.

Parent Support Group Organized at USA Middle School

Parents are urged to attend meetings on the last Monday of each month.

Last spring a group of parents approached the Middle School administration about forming a support group.

This was encouraged, and since that time, they have met on three different occasions. Though the attendance has been light, this has not discouraged the group. They have decided to meet on the last Monday of each month.

All parents of USA Middle School students are encouraged to become involved in their child's education by attending. The next meeting will be held on Monday, November 30, at 7:00 p.m. in the Middle School library. Please plan to attend.

Academic Excellence Encouraged at Michigan State University

Christina Arebello, Chris Dunwoodie, and Sam Soule, eighth grade students at USA Middle School, were selected by the teaching staff to visit the campus of Michigan State University on Thursday, October 22. The one day event was sponsored by the Tuscola County Alumni and Friends of Michigan State University.

The purpose of the trip was to encourage academic excellence by providing an opportunity for students to visit the MSU campus and see first-hand new ideas that are being explored, tested, and learned.

Sharing the honor of cutting the ribbon for the dedication of the new science lab are Don Adams, Counselor Mark Gainforth, Dave McCloy, science teacher, Superintendent William Dodge, and Principal Tony Grant.

New Science Lab Dedicated

On Thursday, October 29, a new science lab was dedicated at the USA Middle School paving the way for more active student involvement in an expanded hands-on science program.

The lab will feature several "lab stations" along the lines of a traditional chemistry lab, only on a smaller scale. The lab will be available for use by all grade levels in the Middle School, namely, 5th, 6th, 7th, and 8th. It will include a number of refurbished science tables donated by an area public school and some essential safety equipment.

Much of the glassware, beakers and bottles, etc., came out of this year's science budget.

The lab is the successful culmination of a year-long study of the science curriculum at USA which was done with the cooperation of Saginaw Valley State University and their SEMSplus curriculum alignment team headed by Dr. Douglas Hansen. SEMSplus stands for Science Education in Michigan Schools and has been responsible for upgrading several science programs at area schools in the Thumb as well as around the state.

Having a facility like this new science lab will help better prepare our students for not only high school, but will also help to make them lifelong learners of a subject that holds a lot of natural curiosity and fascination.

Special thanks go out to Tony Grant, Don Adams, and William Dodge for their help at various times during the organization of our new science lab.

National Merit Semifinalist

Congratulations to Jody Bowman, son of Wayne and Joanne Bowman, of Sebewing, who is a semifinalist in the 1993 Merit Scholarship competition. Jody is one of 15,000 semifinalists who represent about half of one percent of each state's graduating class. Semifinalists have an opportunity to advance to the next level in the competition for some 6,100 merit scholarships worth approximately $26 million to be awarded next spring. The PSAT serves as the initial screen of entrants.

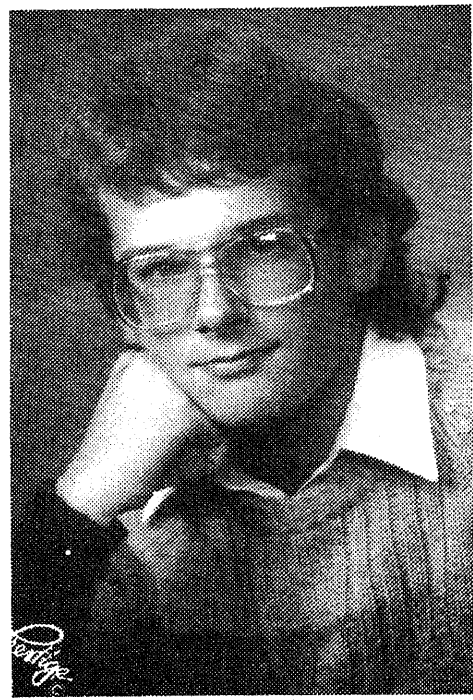

Scholarships

Congratulations to Kimberly Lutz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Lutz, of Sebewing, for receiving an Honor Scholarship from Grand Valley State University of $1,000 per year, renewable for three years.

Congratulations to Marjorie Ackerman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Ackerman, of Unionville, for receiving the Board of Trustees Academic Honors Scholarship from Central Michigan University. It is a $300 award per year, renewable.

College/Career News

College Night was held Thursday, October 8, from 6:30-9:30 p.m., at the TASC in Caro, Michigan. Admissions counselors from many colleges and universities in Michigan, as well as representatives from trade schools and the military, were available to answer questions and provide information.

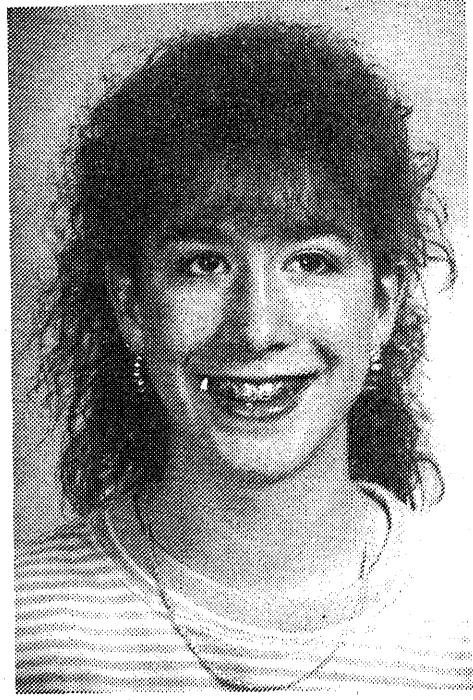

Admissions counselors from the following colleges have or will be visiting USA High School to meet with interested students: Ferris State University, Central Michigan University, GMI, Suomi College, Saginaw Valley State University, Eastern Michigan University, Oakland University, Concordia College, Delta College, Northwood Institute, Northern Michigan University, and Lake Superior State University. Recruiters from the Air Force, Army, Army Reserves, Marines, and Navy have also made high school visits.

High School Testing

Any college-bound Senior who has not already taken the ACT should register to take the test. Registration forms are available in the Guidance Office. ACT scores are required for entrance in most Michigan colleges and universities, and are the basis of the State of Michigan Scholarship Program.

Juniors will be taking the ACT in April, 1993. On Tuesday, November 3, the P-ACT was given to interested Sophomores at USA High School in preparation for the ACT.

College-bound Juniors are also encouraged to take the PSAT, which was given at USA High School on Thursday, October 22. Taking the PSAT gives students practice for taking a required college entrance test later in the spring, and is also the first step in entering the scholarship programs conducted by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation.

Juniors and Seniors thinking of joining the military must take the Armed Services Vocational Aptitude Battery (ASVAB). This test was given at USA High School on Wednesday, October 14.

All Sophomores and Juniors participated in the Michigan Education Assessment Program this fall. This is a statewide test given to measure a student's strengths and weaknesses in the areas of math and reading. The Juniors took the science portion of the MEAP. Students must pass the MEAP to receive a state endorsed diploma.

St. Martin survived, and Dr. Beaumont began observing his stomach and digestive processes through the opening in the abdominal wall. Dr. Beaumont gained world fame and contributed classic medical literature through his writings and reports concerning the digestive processes.

Twelve years later, St. Martin returned to Canada, although Dr. Beaumont made great efforts for him to return so the studies could be continued. Can you believe that somewhere in this wide, wide world (maybe right next door) there's a $10 million Michigan lottery winner whose number came up Dec. 4, 1991? That means that the ticket will expire Friday, Dec. 4, 1992, because the winner hasn't claimed the prize as yet. There's an $18 million winner from July 1, 1992 (which will expire July 1, 1993), and several $100,000 Cash 5 winners and two Keno winners of $250,000 each. They'll all expire one year after their winning date. The $10 million winner's Lotto ticket was purchased in Fruitport, population 1,150, over in Muskegon County, so these things happen in small towns, too, not just the big cities!!! Since the Michigan Lottery began, about $160 million has gone unclaimed. In fiscal 1991-92 alone, more than $14 million went unclaimed . . .

Nimtz enjoys drum major's role

By AMY HEIDEN

Laker senior Greg Nimtz has always loved making music on his saxophone, either in the Laker Jazz Band, the Marching Band or as part of Denbrock's Big Band.

But along with playing in the band, he's always harbored the dream of being the drum major for the Laker band, in control of the group's movements on the field.

He realized that dream this year, writing shows and leading the band on the field at half-times of the home football games.

His heads-up salute after the band's Pass-in-Review in front of the stands is always a highlight of the show, and that salute was learned at a drum major's camp this summer at the University of Illinois. He was urged to attend the camp by the Laker Band Boosters Club and they provided a scholarship to help defray part of the cost of the camp.

At the camp, considered among the nation's best, Nimtz participated in workshops teaching the mace style of conducting, in which the drum major uses a long rod with a ball on the end.

He also learned different styles of marching, salutes and commands to use while conducting.

The workshops in mace-style conducting lasted most of the day, and Nimtz said carrying the mace around left him tired and sore most nights.

"Having to stand up straight and march all day made me so tired it was hard to climb in my bunk at night, and I had the top bunk," he says.

The camp had more than just day-long workshops, though, Nimtz said. The participants in each conducting school broke up into squads for competition.

The last night of camp featured a "Stunt Night," in which the students got a chance to really show off their talents.

At the camp, Nimtz and the rest of the students worked on perfecting their marching skills, learning to take steps measuring exactly 22 1/2", eight steps to every 10 yards.

"You could look down the field and see where the marchers had been. It looked like a checkerboard," he said.

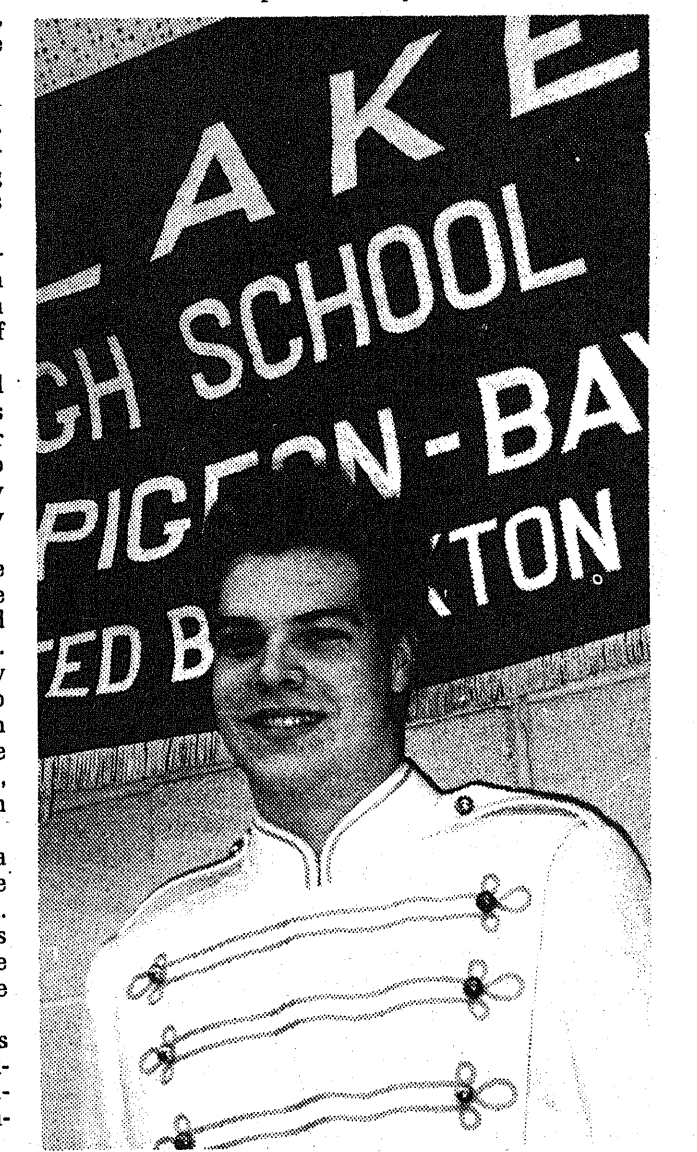

Nimtz made some new friends while at the camp and still corresponds with several. And even though he was dead tired every night, his experiences remain fresh in his mind.

"Everyone there was a drum major and played some sort of instrument," he said. "Everybody was serious about their work, and we were all there for the same reason."

After his high school days are over, Nimtz plans to attend Western Michigan University to continue his music studies.

He's been studying with former Laker band instructor William Denbrock to make his audition tapes for entry in the music program. He is the son of Ron and Mary Beth Nimtz of Elkton.

USA Video Club Formed

Thanks to funds spearheaded by the Paul LaPorte Memorial Fund, a USA Video Club has been formed. Twenty-one USA High School students are currently working outside of class time under the direction of Art instructor, Marshall Lupp. It is hoped that video will soon be incorporated within the regular school curriculum.

The first project of the new club will undertake will be a 1-1/2 minute video featuring Campus Life's Wednesday morning Breakfast Club. The segment will be aired on TV-5 later this month.

Plans are also being made for the USA staff to be inserviced in the use of the video equipment so that they may apply this technology to their teaching. Currently, the USA Middle & High Schools are giving students the opportunity to air the daily news over the in-house Channel 1 network.

In addition to the Paul LaPorte Memorial Fund, other USA High School organizations have contributed to the USA video effort. The Student Council, Drama Club, Weight Training Club, and FHA have each donated funds to this project.

There are still many pieces of equipment needed for a successful program. Any individual or group wishing to make contributions or desiring more information are encouraged to contact the USA High School or Marshall Lupp.

Discussing the first project of the USA Video Club are Michelle Smith, Paul Wiese, Christine Doud, and Matthew Lewis.

O-G School suspends bus driver

The Owendale-Gagetown School's Board of Education took disciplinary action against veteran school bus driver Linda Ashmore during its Nov. 9 meeting.

Board members suspended Ashmore for five days without pay and placed her on 30 days' probation with a re-evaluation of her performance at the end of the probation period.

The action was the result of complaints voiced by parents. School officials said the action was because Ashmore had reportedly failed to use bus flashers correctly, failed to follow safety procedures and drove in an unsafe manner in an alleged incident in Oct.

In other concerns, approval was given for the $5,300 purchase and installation of new volleyball posts in the high school gymnasium. The funds were donated by the Owen-Gage Band Boosters and will allow the creation of two volleyball courts.

Bay Shore Camp's Youth Center debt paid off!

By WALT RUMMEL
Celebration was the main order of business at Bay Shore Camp's November board of directors meeting in Sebawaing when it was announced that the Camp's multi-purpose Youth Center Building is completely paid off and the camp is debt-free.

by Sunday morning there were churches all over the state praising and thanking God for His goodness and provision to this ministry," Tibbits reported.

YOUTH CENTER MEASURES 160x80'

Bay Shore constructed the multi-purpose Youth Center as a recreational facility and "rainy day" alternative area for campers. It measures 160 by 80 feet, and houses a 100 x 80-foot gym, shower and restrooms, kitchenette and large stage area. Though the Youth Center is not winterized, the Camp offers the building as a rental facility on a limited basis.

Tibbits acknowledged the project cost more than the $275,000 original estimate by the contractor, FED Corporation of Gladwin.

"It ended up more around the $300,000 mark, but you know how that goes," he noted.

"There's more work to do inside, but we're getting there."

Completing the Youth Center fundraising project is especially significant, added

Tibbits, because it allows the Camp to move forward with facilities and grounds development.

FOCUS IS NEW 10-YEAR MASTER PLAN

Critical to future camp growth is development of a new 10-year master plan, a project that will be the focus of a weekend retreat for members of Camp committees. The retreat is scheduled for the coming winter months.

November board action included the decision to construct a 40x60-foot maintenance/storage building and a 14x30-foot screened-in lounge area attached to the dining hall. Weather permitting, those projects will begin soon.

Also approved was a long list of equipment needs at a cost of $15,306 to be paid by the 1993 Benefit Auction. The list includes bunk beds and mattresses, portable bleachers, folding tables and chairs, chair and table carts, walkie-talkies, wall-fan and two rocking chairs for the nursery, playground equipment, restroom mirrors, large movie screen, air compressor and a golf cart for shuttle service.

The Camp will also purchase another computer, printer and copier for office use in time for the 1993 camping season.

Bay Shore Camp is a non-profit organization, dedicated to ministering to children, youth and families.

In the 1992 summer Bay Shore program, more than 1,100 youngsters took part.

Mark Krebs honored for community involvement

Most police officers toil in anonymity through their careers, quietly doing their jobs and receiving little recognition for their efforts.

That's not the case with State Police Detective Sgt. Mark Krebs of Caseville, who was recently selected as the District 3 Officer of the Year.

He received the Gerstacker Award for Community Service, an award started in 1961 by Carl Gerstacker of Dow Chemical Co. to honor state troopers or sergeants for their outstanding community service.

One officer from each district is selected for Officer of the Year, and that person then competes statewide for the overall Officer of the Year award, according to Bad Axe State Police Post Commander Jerry Jensen.

He said Krebs rated high in the qualifications of overall job performance and skills and community involvement. Krebs and his wife Kathy have two children, Ben and Sarah, both students and athletes at Laker High School, and live near Caseville.

Caseville teachers get training Thursday

Caseville Public School students will have a day off classes this Thursday, Nov. 19 while their teachers attend an in-service training at the Tuscola Intermediate School District.

The in-service topic will be "Strategies Used to Cooperatively Create Effective Schools and Staff" with the first training sessions led by Dr. Michael Kneale, nationally-known motivational speaker, organizers say.

Caseville students will resume their regular schedule on Friday, Nov. 19 at 8:30 a.m.

Additional in-service dates for Caseville teachers will be Jan. 12 and March 16, when no student classes will be held.

Thumb tourism brochure looking for more support

An effort to promote the Thumb is underway with the production of Michigan's newest "Thumb" brochure. It is the fifth year up to 40,000 copies of the publication will be distributed statewide, says organizer Pat Davis of Port Austin.

Michigan Department of Transportation Welcome Centers receive 20,000 copies which go to every travel stop in the state. Their reports indicate the booklet is much in demand and supplies run out each year as travelers, eager to learn about the Thumb Area, quickly pick it up, Davis says.

Thumb communities of Pigeon, Sebawaing, Bay Port, Caseville, Bad Axe, Port Austin, Port Hope and Harbor Beach will be pictorially presented along with information and phone numbers for their areas.

The brochure will be ready for publication in early November and distribution will begin in January 1993.

60 Seconds

All - the great and small

"Great are the works of the Lord; they are pondered by all who delight in them. Glorious and majestic are His deeds, and His righteousness endures forever." Psalm 111:2-3

How often we have looked up into the cold wintry night sky and viewed an endless canopy of stars! Thousands of them! Tens of thousands! Yet, with our limited view, what we can take in is barely one entire constellation.

Astronomers tell us that there are millions of constellations up there, reaching out into the universe so far that human mind cannot comprehend it. Some of the light we see from stars comes from so far away that it has taken thousands of years to reach us, even though light travels 186,000 miles per second!

Unbelievable? Of course, yet that is only one evidence of the power of God. From that vastness, now think small. Consider an ant, or a mosquito - little more than a speck on our kitchen floor or on the window screen.

Yet, those "specks" have their own digestive system, nervous system and a reproductive system to complete all the necessary life functions.

Our Creator God not only brought all "mountains" and "specks" into being, but He also upholds them by His power. That wise and powerful God also knows each one of us humans individually. He loved us so much that His Son came to Earth, to die on a cross and to be raised to life again, so that believing, we, too, will have eternal life in His presence.

Sebewaing County Park work continuing

Wet weather has put construction of the new Huron County Park in Sebewaing slightly behind schedule, but construction is expected in time to provide basic services for the 1993 camping season.

Most of the sewer system has been laid, and the block walls for the bathhouse are going up steadily.

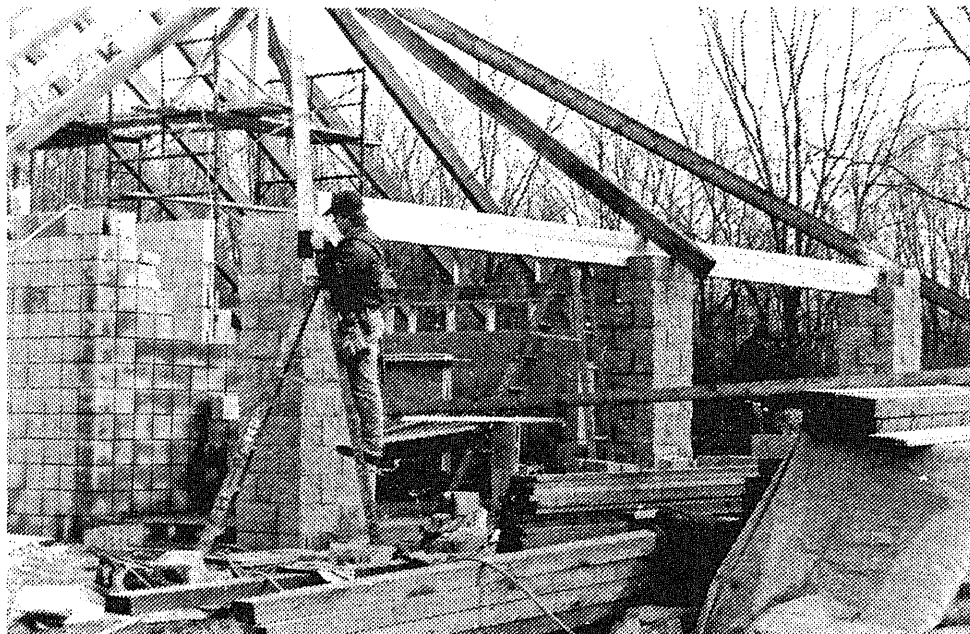

To meet grant specifications of the project, construction has to be completed by February — but officials plan to file for an extension and work on the project will continue through the winter as weather permits, they say.

When finished the park will have 56 sites with sewer and electrical services, a picnic area, walking trails, boat slips and fishing areas.

Long range plans are to have bridges to an island just across the cut.

The state Department of Natural Resources awarded a $425,000 grant for part of the project, with county and local funding providing the rest.

WORK ON Huron County's newest park is progressing, as workers from Majestic Construction in Caro build the bathhouse for the Sebewaing County Park. Completion of the park is expected for the 1993 camping season.
