Dread of Outdoor Air.

Why is there such a dread of outdoor air in the sleeping room? Science has made great advances in hygiene. In many hospitals children suffering from diseases of the respiratory system are taken up to cot on roofs and there attended by nurses in ulsters. Open air and tent life are part of the recognized treatment of tuberculosis nowadays.

A Parting Injunction.

Some years ago, when going west was more of an undertaking than at present, a young man was leaving his home in Vermont for Illinois. The family was gathered to say farewell, and not without tears. The grandfather took the young man by the hand and said: "Now, John, remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy, and look out for rattlesnakes, and be careful that nobody steals your watch."

Adjustment.

Divorce is increasing, insanity is increasing, parental authority is declared to be prostrate, the boy is not what he was! Surely we must be heading for the bow-wows, and progressing fast. Not at all. We are merely getting adjusted to the greatest changes in the conditions of human existence that any one generation of men has seen in centuries. And possibly it is true that high prices of food are helping our adjustment by driving some city dwellers back into the country.—Harper's Weekly.

HER FIRST GREAT EFFORT

Mr. Newlywed Did Not Complain When Cough Syrup Was Used for Pudding Sauce.

The newly-weds had just completed their bridal tour of Canada, and as the blissful honeymoon had ended without a hitch, all that remained for the happy pair was to begin life in their little suburban home.

This they did, and Edwin and Angeline were about to dine together one evening. The sweet young wife had prepared a dinner with a supreme effort to make it one to be remembered all their lives. Surely he would not forget this, mused the wife, as she timidly rearranged several knives and forks which her husband had disarranged with his sleeve.

Like a brave man and a good husband he bravely stuck to his task, declaring that he had never tasted anything like it, and he praised his wife for her expert cooking.

"Really, darling," she cooed, "on your word of honor, do you like what 'wife' provided and cooked for you?"

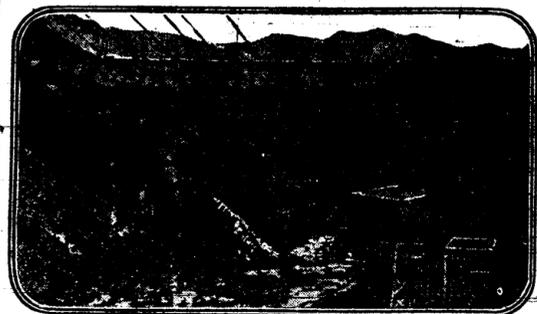

"Like it?" he answered. "Why, I never tasted anything like it in my life," suppressing a shudder.

"Everything from soup to pudding," she persisted.

"Yes, sweetest, every mouthful."

"O, darling, how relieved I am," she added. "I was afraid lest you would complain. You see I quite forgot to order the sirup for the pudding sauce. I had to get something, so I took your cough sirup. But I was afraid you'd taste it."

The Great of ROOSEVELT DAM

THE GREAT ROOSEVELT DAM

THE Roosevelt dam, near Phoenix, Ariz., which was recently put into service with a celebration at which Colonel Roosevelt was the guest of honor, is the keystone of one of the greatest irrigation projects ever built. The dam itself is one of the largest in the world.

The lake the dam creates is said to be the largest artificial body of water in the world. Behind the dam, when the lake is full, will be 61,000,000 gallons of water. This quantity of water, in irrigation terms, is 1,300,000 acre-feet, or enough to cover 1,300,000 acres with one foot of water. There are about 240,000 acres to be irrigated by water from the dam, so there always will be water in plenty and to spare.

About seventy miles northeast of Phoenix, Ariz., the Salt River runs through a deep and narrow gorge. Across this gorge the Roosevelt dam was built, a wedge-shaped wall of masonry 284 feet high, 168 feet thick and 200 feet wide at the base, 20 feet thick and 1,000 feet wide at the top.

Located in a canyon heretofore inaccessible, the construction of this dam involved many problems and taxed the ingenuity of the builders to the utmost. First a broad highway was built. For 20 miles this traverses a trackless desert and then for 42 miles the road was literally carved from canyon walls or blasted from the steep sided mountains. It is one of the most remarkable highways in the world, opening up to the tourist a country of untraveled grandeur and beauty and making easy of access some of the best preserved and preserved caverns in the southwest.

In prosecuting its work the government engaged in many activities. An immense power plant was installed near the dam site. A cement mill with a daily capacity of 500 barrels was built, and has turned out 340,000 barrels at a saving of more than $15,000. The dam contains 240,000 cubic yards of masonry and 4,000,000 barrels of cement. To have bought this cement and had it shipped by rail to the nearest railroad point and hauled by wagon to the dam site would have greatly increased the cost, so the engineers built a mill and made the cement at half of what it otherwise would have cost. A sawmill was built to cut all the timber needed.

Around these mills and the dam grew up the town of Roosevelt with a population of 3,000, its sole support being the $2,000,000 the government was spending to complete the huge reservoir. Now that the dam is practically complete the town is dwindling in population and soon the last vestige of it will disappear beneath the slowly rising waters of the lake.

The work of the Roosevelt dam was begun five years ago. The dam site was in a wild, isolated spot among rugged mountains and first of all it was necessary to build wagon roads from the railroads to the site and a new canal, 20 miles long, which cost $750,000. Then, with the sawmill, the refrigerating plant, the water works, the electric light plant, the machine shop, the rock crushing plant, the various buildings, cost nearly $2,000,000 before a stone was laid in the dam. Two farms were operated to supply provisions for the camp and forage for the livestock. Domestic water supply was piped from springs several miles distant. Nearly 600 Apache Indians were employed for several years as laborers. A telephone line more than 100 miles long and a power transmission line 75 miles long were both constructed and have been in operation for some time.

While the Big Roosevelt dam has been the most important single structure in connection with this project, a vast amount of other engineering work has been going on at the same time. Many miles below the big dam another structure of concrete was built across the river to turn the stream flow into two huge canals which with their laterals have a total length of more than 350 miles. This dam is 29 feet in height and 1,000 feet long. The canals will cover 190,000 acres of fine land in the valley and by pumping with electric power an additional 50,000 acres will be irrigated.

Special interest attaches to this project not alone because of the magnitude of its structures but especially because of the reason that it will restore to agriculture a vast area of desert which was densely populated in an age forgotten by a race which has vanished utterly. Some of the prehistoric canals are utilized today in this modern system.

The total investment of the government in Salt River valley will exceed $9,000,000, yet this investment does not entail the permanent loss of a single dollar from the United States treasury. The government holds a mortgage on all the land which will be watered which obligated the owners to repay in not less than ten years the entire sum expended by the United States. Salt River valley is semitropical in climate. Its products are singularly like those of Egypt. Here the orange, lemon, lime, pomelo, fig and date trees flourish, also almonds, peaches, cherries and other fruits in abundance. Alfalfa, corn, oats, barley and wheat yield enormous crops. All kinds of vegetables and small fruits are grown here and by reason of early ripening command fancy prices in eastern and western markets. The live-stock industry is a permanent one and thousands of horses, cattle, sheep and hogs are annually marketed here. Orchard farming has grown rapidly until today there are 7,500 of these birds in the valley, producing several hundred thousand dollars worth of feathers each year.

For many years parts of the desert around Phoenix have been irrigated. But the Salt river, which supplied the water, at flood times brought more than the farmers could use and in dry times much less. To save the water for use is the purpose of the Roosevelt dam. From behind whose solid masonry the water will be sent down to the valley as the needs of the land demand. From the reservoir the water flows down the Salt river bed until it emerges from the foothills. There the Granite Reef dam, a long concrete wall across the river bed 28 feet high—turns the water into the canals in which it flows as far as 30 miles on its way to the farthest fields beyond Phoenix.

Vast possibilities for the production of foodstuff await the coming of the water. No richer land is found anywhere. It produces richly in the temperate zone and some of the subtropical ones as well. Already the oranges of Phoenix are famed for their toothsome, and the time probably will not be long till the dates of the temple and the olives of Mesopotamia will be spoken of.

The works at the Roosevelt dam will develop 26,000 horsepower. Part of this will be used to irrigate 60,000 acres which are above the level of the gravity canal, requiring that the water shall be lifted. Another portion of the available energy will be utilized to pump water from the wells for the Pima reservation. In addition, there is a surplus, which has already been leased under contract to light the city of Phoenix; and more power will soon be available from the same source for supplying light and power to farmhouses throughout the valley.

GEN. SAM HOUSTON

Romantic Career of "The Red Man Eloquent."

Great Southwestern Pioneer Who Was Chief Among the Cherokee Indians—He Best Understood the Indian's Character.

Austin, Tex.—No more unique and remarkable character ever appeared in our history than Gen. Sam Houston, of Texas. He came of a family that emigrated from the north of Ireland, a place which may justly boast of the ancestry of such men as Stark of the Revolution; Crockett, of the Alamo, and Jackson himself. The family was one of consideration, entitled to coat armor in the old country. Though they did not belong to the landed gentry, they had been large and prosperous farmers.

Houston's father was an officer of the brigade of riflemen that Morgan led to Washington's assistance from the right side of the Potomac. His mother was one of those pioneer women of superb physique, high principles and strength of mind and courage to match. After the death of her husband when Sam, who was born in 1793, was but 13 years old, she took the family over the Alleghenies and settled on the borders of the Cherokee nation in western Tennessee.

Sam's educational opportunities were meager, but he made the best of them and had no occasion to blush when placed beside the most distinguished men of his time. According to some, his unwillingness to clerk in a country store, and according to others, the refusal of his older brothers to permit him to study Latin, caused him to abandon civilization and cast his lot with the Cherokees.

After several years he returned to civilization and opened a country school, but soon left it to join the army. He enlisted in the Creek war in 1813, and greatly distinguished himself at the battle of Tohopeka, or Horseshoe Bend, where he was twice wounded.

The war over, he studied law, and in 1819 was elected district attorney of Davidson county, Tennessee. In 1823 he was elected to congress, and was re-elected in 1825. At the close of his second term he was elected, practically without opposition, Governor of Tennessee, and was spoken of as a presidential possibility.

In 1829 he was married to a beautiful and highly accomplished young lady of Nashville. Three months later, to the surprise and utter astonishment of everybody, he suddenly resigned the governorship, deserted his young wife, and mysteriously disappeared. He was next heard of among the Cherokee Indians, the friends of his boyhood, who had been removed to the Indian Territory.

He remained among the Indians four years, was admitted to their councils, was elected a chief, and took up to himself a wife, the daughter of a famous warrior. In 1832 he visited Washington in the interest of the tribes who were being defrauded by the rascally agents of the government.

The same year he went to Texas on a mission to the Comanche Indians as a representative of President Jackson. Texas was just entering upon her struggle for independence from Mexico, and Houston was induced to remain in the country and give his undivided aid to the cause. On the outbreak of hostilities he was elected commander-in-chief of the Texan army. By a masterly stroke of military strategy he succeeded in deceiving Gen. Santa Ana, the Mexican commander, from his base of supplies and administered to him a crushing defeat at the battle of San Jacinto, April 21, 1836.

In September following he was elected president of the republic of Texas, whose independence had been previously declared on March 2, 1836, and after an interim of two years, was re-elected for a second term. His influence was potent in bringing about the annexation of Texas to the United States in 1845; and on the accomplishment of annexation, he was elected to the United States senate, where he sat for 12 years. Two terms as governor of the state rounded out his official career. He died in Huntsville, Texas, July 26, 1863.

No other man in this country has so fully understood the Indian's character as Houston. He of all men best understood their feelings and aspirations, and most deeply sympathized with them in their struggle against manifest destiny in the person of the white man. He fully entered into their thought and was "The Red Man Eloquent."

Life Sentence for Stealing Turkey.

Louisville, Ky.—Caswell McCatten, a negro, who had served time in the penitentiary twice before for other crimes, was arrested here charged with having stolen one turkey gobble. Owing to the high price of turkeys it was charged that Caswell had taken a fowl which was valued at more than $10; the jury brought in a verdict of life imprisonment under the habitual criminal act.

The Question of Personality

By REV. HUGH T. KERR
Pastor Fullerton Ave. Presbyterian Church, Chicago

TEXT—Where art thou?—Genesis 3:9

This question whispered by God into the heart of man is the first and the last question of life. After we have traced the working of God's hand in creation and beheld the fashioning of sun and moon and stars and seen the furnishing of the earth with cattle and every creeping thing and beheld Eden blossoming with love until sin's sting shriveled innocence as in a fire, then God speaks out of the silence of his own omnipotence and demands an answer from the man into whom he has breathed the breath of a divine life: "Where art thou?"

It lifts man out from the rest of God's creation. Not of the heaven or the earth or the sea or the air does he ask this question. Not of the birds or beasts of the field. They are part and parcel of a great dumb creation that works the will of him who ordered their coming and determines their going.

Not so with man. He stands as sentinel. Into his hands dominion is given. He is not part of the great creation procession. He is the master, the arbiter, the spectator. It is the first question asked in the beginning of worlds. It will be the last question asked when the worlds are rolled up as a scroll and all things pass away. Then, too, the question will be heard: "Where art thou?"

How diverse—and different have been the answers. We have heard many stories. Even the Bible tells us two stories. On the one hand, we are told that he stands where the shadows come and go. He is as a vapor, a dream, a sleep, a story, a tale that is told, water spilled upon the ground, a thread of the weaver that is cut, a flower that faded, grass that withered, a shepherd's tent that is removed. Then, too, we are told that he is clothed in light and immortality as with a garment and crowned with glory and honor.

"Here lies a man whose name was written in water," so runs the epitaph on the stone of one whose name is still remembered. What is man? What is personality? Physicians tell us that the body changes every seven years. Once we were children, now we are men and women, yet we believe we are the same now that we were then, with all the changes akin to the death of the physical.

There have been two of us, perhaps more. One of the past, one of the present and still one of the men that is to be. Which is the real Paul, the one that breathed out slaughter or the one that worshipped at Christ's feet? Which is the true Judas, the one that listened to the call of Jesus or the one that betrayed him with a kiss? You remember how Oliver Wendell Holmes pictures three men in each man—the man that one thinks he is, the man his friends think him to be and the man whom God sees, the real man.

Yet through it all there is one continuing personality. The Adam of Eden is linked with the Adam with-out the gate. It belongs to the realm of the soul, the mind, the memory. "Son remember," is the verdict of heaven and the doom of hell. John Quincy Adams at the extreme limit of old age when asked about his health replied: "Thank you, John Quincy Adams is quite well. But the house in which he lives is dilapidated. It is tottering. Times and seasons have made their mark upon it. It is well-nigh worn-out. Some day soon I shall move out. But John Quincy Adams is quite well, sir, I thank you."

God's voice is ever calling to the consciences of men. He is ever searching to discover the best that is in man and to reawaken the hope that has been buried. A good painter depicts the best a friend viewing a portrait of his friend by Sargent said it looked like the portrait of a dissipated man. The man said yes, and that's what I have in me which I have always railed and fought and contended. Said his friend, "It is that better man, the victor, the conqueror, that the painter should have painted."

Yes, and God always calls us to our best and sees far off the man who ought to be. In Simon he sees Peter. In Saul he sees Paul. In Jacob he sees the wrestling prince with God. God is not a cynic hunting like Diogenes for the doubtful discovery of a man. God is like the shepherd who knows the sheep are lost. He is like the father who knows the son is better than he pretends. He is like the loser of the coin who knows its value and has faith in its recovery.

So with the Lord he takes and he redeems. Finds him ambassadors whom men deny. Wise men not mighty for his saints he chooses. No, such as John or Gideon or I.

It is bad business to try to hide from God. Personality receives its true perfection only in God. He is the atmosphere in which life flourishes and abides. He is the light in which the flower of a right life blooms. He is the country in which the true fruit of faith comes to a beautiful maturity. We are all in his great garden. He still walks its path and calls for its beauty.

"Why should we hide?" To see his smile means heaven for us. To miss him is to miss the best.

There is only one safe hiding place, and that is the Rock of Ages, the Lover of the souls of men. "In him is life and the life is the light of men."

HOW TO SERVE CHEESE

COME NEW RECIPES THAT OFFER AN AGREEABLE CHANGE.

Cheese Neveau Makes an Excellent Luncheon Dish—Baked Cheese, Cheese Fondue and Welsh Rabbit Worth Trying.

Baked Cheese.—Take half a pound of cheese, nine snow flake crackers (pulverized), half tablespoon of butter. Put the butter in a baking pan, then sprinkle one layer of crackers and one of grated cheese. Over this sprinkle one tablespoon of sugar and a little salt and pepper. Continue this process with a layer of each (except butter, salt and pepper), until it is one and a half inches thick; then add enough milk to wet. Put in oven and bake until bubbling; dry to cut in blocks two and a half inches square. Serve hot on (past).

Cheese Neveau (excellent luncheon dish).—Pieces of bread cut as if for the table, thinly buttered and placed in a frying pan. Sprinkle salt very lightly over them and add a thick layer of grated cheese. Then another layer of bread and salted cheese, and when the pan is full, pour over a cup of milk. Cover closely and stand on side of stove, where it will steam slowly for twenty to thirty minutes. Turn on hot platter and serve at once.

Cheese Fondue.—One-fourth pound of grated cheese, two eggs, three tablespoons of butter, one tablespoon of vermicelli; half a pint of milk, half a teaspoonful of bread crumbs. Boil the vermicelli in the milk and pour over the bread crumbs in a pie dish. Melt the butter and stir it in. Beat the eggs and add with salt and pepper the vermicelli and cheese, beating all the time; add a teaspoon baking powder and bake in quick oven half an hour.

Welsh Rabbit.—One pound of cheese, grated. Rub the bottom of a dish with an onion. Put in the cheese, add one tablespoon of tomato catsup, one tablespoon of Worcester's sauce, half a tablespoon of salt, four shakes of cayenne pepper and two level tablespoonfuls of butter. Stir until it begins to melt, then add gradually four tablespoonfuls of ale or beer. When it is soft, smooth and creamy, pour it over toasted bread or toasted crackers.

Cheese Souffle.—Four eggs, one-fourth pound of cheese, one-fourth of a pound of butter. Grate the cheese and beat it well with the butter and yolks of the eggs. Season with salt and cayenne pepper. Whisk the whites to a stiff froth and stir in lightly. Bake in a deep dish.

iced Apples.

Peel and core one dozen good flavored apples. Boil them gently in one pint of water and a half pound of sugar. Add the hair of a grated lemon rind. When done remove and set away to cool. Peel, core and chop fine one dozen apples and add with a pound of sugar to the sirup and, cooking slowly, reduce to a marmalade. Put a layer of the marmalade on the dish, then a layer of the stewed whole apples, and proceed in this way until the dish is a pyramid shape. When cold cover it with a rich meringue and set in a hot oven a minute to take a delicate brown. Chill it and serve with whipped cream.

Casserole Dinner.

Place in a buttered baking dish a layer of round beefsteak cut in pieces, serving size, and season with salt and pepper and a little sifting of flour. On this put a layer of sliced onions that have been parboiled a few minutes, add the seasoning of salt, pepper and sifting of flour. Next add a layer of tomatoes and more salt, pepper and flour. For the top layer use potatoes cut in quarters and salt, pepper and flour them. Fill the dish full of water and bake slowly two or three hours. This is a delicious and wholesome dish that is easily prepared.

Sweet Potato Buns.

Boil and mash two potatoes, rub in as much flour as will make it like bread, add a little nutmeg and sugar to your taste with a tablespoonful of good yeast. When it has risen work in two tablespoonfuls of butter, cut finely; then form it into small rolls and bake on tins a nice brown. Serve hot; split open and butter. Good either for tea or breakfast.

Rocks.

One and one-half cups of sugar, one cup of shortening, three eggs, three cups of flour, one teaspoonful of soda dissolved in one-half cup of hot water, one tablespoonful of cinnamon, one-cup of raisins, three-quarters cup of nuts. These are delicious and may be kept for a long time.

Tomato Sauce.

Simmer ten minutes one and one-half cups canned tomatoes with one slice onion, bit of bay and two cloves; then strain; mix two tablespoonfuls butter; add two and one-half table-spoons flour and gradually the strained tomato; stir until thickened; season with salt and pepper.

A FREE Prescription ADVICE

From a physician of 42 years' experience in college, hospital and general practice. Weak nervous man, regain your strength and vigor.

It is my sympathy for weak men in the early years of my experience that I have prepared this prescription, for men under 40 and one for men over 40 years of age. In my studies, research and clinical experience I am now 72 years old and as strong and vigorous as at 40 and the rest of my life will be spent in doing suffering mankind.

I realize that my time is short, but will do all in my power to aid men and women who are suffering and seeking relief.

There has been a great many disappointed when they thought relief in their grasp, but let me send you my free prescription and booklet of private lectures to men which is the result of sixty years of clinical experience. I have lectured to students classes, way back in '71. Since that time I have cured many cases that are now planned to recommend me.

YOU NEED AID. Let me help you to realize your best. I am confident that you will thank me every day for the relief I have given you. I will send you my free prescription and booklet of private lectures to men which is the result of sixty years of clinical experience. I have lectured to students classes, way back in '71. Since that time I have cured many cases that are now planned to recommend me.

If you are suffering from falling memory, lame back or weakened condition or nervous system, I will send you a plain sealed envelope that you can use to send me your name and address. I will then send you my free prescription and booklet of private lectures to men which is the result of sixty years of clinical experience. I have lectured to students classes, way back in '71. Since that time I have cured many cases that are now planned to recommend me.
