

THE CITY OF MANCHESTER... The death of Edward Cannon...

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 30, 1911... Among jurors drawn for the December term of circuit court...

Among the interesting features furnished the readers of the ENTERPRISE...

Among those from out of town who attended the funeral of Mrs. Mat D. Blosser last Saturday...

The American people have much to be thankful for today and we ought to show our thanks...

Since the fire at the Manchester house Sunday night we have heard a good many people say that we take exceptions to this...

That the Manchester house was set on fire, is a certainty... Suspicion arises that the fire in August last was from the same cause...

No more school this week. This is a bright sunny day. The stars are closed on Thanksgiving. The star chapter will meet Friday evening.

Admission Council R. & M. has its annual assembly Tuesday evening Dec. 11. There are more boys than girls attending German school, taught by Rev. Williams.

The roads have been quite muddy and after the freeze Wednesday morning were very rough. Some of our citizens attended the opening of the Clark Garage at Clinton Wednesday night.

There has been a crowd at the Catholic Fair every night this week and they have brought a large amount of goods. The post office closed Thanksgiving Day after 10:30 a. m. so the postmaster and clerks can get turkey, if they want to.

Most of the merchants believe in observing Thanksgiving by closing their places of business at least in the afternoon. The annual communication of Manchester Lodge P. M. W. will be held Monday evening Dec. 4, when officers will be elected.

The foundation for a barn has been built for Geo. Breitenwischer, on Water street. Part of the old Knapley mill building will be used for the barn.

One-track gardeners are storing the turkeys they were unable to sell. The commission merchants were not able to sell half the turkeys that were raised this season.

Rev. F. Fisher hopes to have the new Catholic church in Manchester dedicated on Thanksgiving day but the time was too short. The workmen have done well to get it as far as it is.

Yonon, Marx & Co., are advertising a special sale on fur, coats, ladies' and men's suits and overcoats, etc., Friday and Saturday of this week, pretty soon for our ready buyers they set promptly they will be in time.

The Catholic fair in the basement of the new church is attracting large crowds of people every evening this week. Monday they took in $40 and Tuesday $20. There are thousands of people to entertain and enjoy your going.

Wright's saxophone lot of Columbian Ohio, are on sale for Booth's dancing party at arbor hall next week Friday evening. The dancing school has been well patronized and the parents of young people who attended, have taken some interest, but perhaps not so much as Prof. Scott's would like.

"The mystery of a $40,000 robbery" is the plot upon which is founded a sensational story by Harry Irving Greene, author of "Footnote of the Wilderness," etc, about to appear in the columns entitled "The Lash of Circumstance." From the opening chapter, when the burglar thief is disclosed, to the very mysterious end, the story is so gripping and so splendid a time was had.

In the Door Die No. 1, Florence A. Kern teacher, giving the month of November, Mrs. Myrtle Lonska, Gladys Herman and Mabel Heras, were absent, so, namely, Frances and Mabel Heras were neither absent nor tardy during the fall term.

Miss Blackman is better. Mr. Carner and family spent Friday in Jackson. Truett Elliott was home from Jackson over Sunday.

Mr. McInnis is caring for Mrs. Chas. O'Connell who is ill. Mr. & Mrs. Fred Estler of Durand are spent of friends here.

DESCRIPTION OF ACTUAL FIGHTING

ITALIAN REGIMENT DRILLING

PRIVATE 99202 lay behind his little breastworks nervously fingering his rifle. The long hours of inaction and suspense had told upon his nerves as on those of every man in the line. Above all, the constant thunder of the hidden guns swelling momentarily till the very air seemed to shake with their reverberation filled him with vague uneasiness and a curious physical discomfort. His body somehow seemed to have lost solidity, his stomach trembled, something crept along his spine. The day was already hot but his hands were cold. Anxious he gazed in the direction of the terrible sound. There was nothing to be seen, not even a dimness on the clear blue summer sky. Then for the hundredth time his eyes ranged the ground which somewhere concealed the enemy. In front of him and below him the grassland stretched unbroken by hedge or ditch, save where about 800 yards distant a stream wound a course roughly parallel to the position, until a mile and a half away it reached the dark mass of woodland which swept over the crest of the next ridge and down to its foot. A road emerged from the wood, crossed the level ground and curved to the left of the position. The whole plain was bare of any living thing. He turned his head and looked along his own line. At first the men had laughed and chatted gaily enough if somewhat nervously, but now the long tension had hushed their voices, and most of them searched the distances with haggard eyes in silence. A couple of subalterns behind him conversed in subdued tones, almost inaudible in the roar of the unseen, armament-shaking guns. Some way along the line a heliograph was flashing out hurried messages into space. High up in the sky a balloon was floating. He was ignorant whether theirs or the enemy's.

The muffled beat of boots upon the turf startled him. The general commanding the division galloped up with a staff, spoke a few words to the colonel, and disappeared. The whole line waited expectantly for an order. None came. The artillery thunder seemed to increase.

Suddenly, with six regular crashes at intervals as precise as those of a striking clock, the howitzer battery behind him fired. He looked eagerly to discover their target, but could not even see where the shells burst.

After some time he heard a peculiarly shrill sound, something like the screech of a steam whistle. It started on a low note, rose swiftly to a piercing intensity and finished in a sharp crash behind him. Then the shrill sound came again, and suddenly a white cloud-puff appeared in the air in front of him, and there was a crash and a strange humming.

"Shrapnel," said the man next to him through locked teeth. Now the smoke-puffs and crashes followed one another quickly all along the line, but principally, it seemed to him, near the salient angle occupied by the next regiment. So far no one near him was hurt. He waited in mental anguish for something to happen. Suddenly a man sprang up with a shriek rushed along the line of a few yards, and fell. A couple of ambulance men ran up to him, turned him over, and left him. Private 99202 felt his nerves go all to pieces. A wild desire to spring up and rush away beset him. There was an uneasy stir all along the line.

"Lie down! Lie down!" shouted the officers, and the colonel strode among the bullets to hearten the men, cursing at the raw troops he had to command.

The strain was becoming intolerable. Here and there along the line men were taken ill and retired, boiling back like rabbits, ducking their heads in ludicrous fashion to escape the invisible bullets. Some wore softly and continually, some prayed, some babbled they knew not what. Above all the din rose the voices of officers exhorting the men to be steady. On the ridge the heliograph still flashed, but the figure of the colonel was no longer to be seen against the sky. He was stretched on the ground anxiously watching the wood a mile and a half away through his glasses.

Presently he saw a dark figure emerge from it, then another, and then several, and then many. The sharper-eyed among the men saw them also. The cry: "There they are!" ran along the line. Private 99-

ROMANCE IN THE HOME

INABILITY TO DETECT IT CAUSE OF MANY MISERIES.

Domestic Duties Never Appear to Be Mere Drudgery When the Housewife Goes About Them in the Proper Spirit.

The dullness of domestic life is one of the commonest complaints uttered by a certain type of the modern woman. She chafes at the daily task, the common round. To her it seems that the four walls of her home partake of the character of a prison house and that all the romance, the pleasure, and the interest of life lie outside.

Within she finds only drudgery and sordid conditions. She awakes in the morning with a sigh, contemplating the dreary duties. She seeks her rest at night, bored and weary with the tedium of a day's domestic toil.

She envies the woman who works in the wider world, who mixes with men in the mart, who carves for herself a career, and who is free from the endless irritations and annoyances that beset and vex the woman in the home.

Such thoughts as these increase her discontent. The monotony against which she murmurs grows more grievous. She acquires a chronic querulousness that communicates itself to all who come under her influence. The husband feels it and flies for comfort to his club. The children are conscious of it and seek solace in other scenes. And the plight of the woman becomes more pitiful. She begins to brood. She feels that she lives a wretched life.

She may become sour, narrow, pessimistic, morbid, and nervous; all and each of which will be quickly reflected in her health and appearance, till she becomes the most melancholy inmate in an erstwhile happy home.

Inability to detect the romance of domesticity is more often than not the reason why the miseries depicted enter presently into many married lives that had opened under the most promising auspices.

But what is the romance of domestic life? When is it done? It is only those who are unconscious of it who ask the question.

Is there not, in the first place, romance in the very name of "family"? Is it not one of the most profoundly interesting culminations of ages of social evolution? A microcosm of the state, it should possess, in little, all the interest of a state. Whether it be an autocracy, a limited monarchy, or a republic of 130, it has foreign relations which require the exercise of the utmost tact. It has or should have an annual budget, which may cause much consternation in certain quarters of the domestic menage. It is concerned with commerce. The quality and quantity of its imports, although figuring under the mundane names of bread and meat and groceries and such like, are of great importance to it as its foreign trade to the most populous state.

It has traffic indirect, it is true, with foreign lands. Even the humble currant that adorns Wednesday's roly poly pudding grew on the sunny slopes of Greece and each lump of sugar dropped into the cup brings with it a measure of tropic heat of the southern sun.

The increase in the population of the home is, in proportion, as far reaching in its effects as in the growth or dwindling of its people to the greatest nation. It sends forth emissaries to form fresh colonies, and, more often than not, it maintains a defensive force in the shape of a dog to guard it from the invasion of hostile intruders.

It may seem trivial, absurd, to draw such parallels between the home and the nation. But a deep truth underlies such fancies. And were the labors of housekeeping and the responsibilities of family life looked at in the light of their true importance, the monotony and tedium with which, to some minds, they are invested would fall from them as the chrysalis husk falls from the gorgeous wings of the butterfly, permitting it to soar into the higher, brighter element for which it is fitted.

Cream Cake.

Beat the yolks of four eggs, to which has been added one even cup of powdered sugar for five minutes. Then add the whites, which have been beaten thoroughly, one cup of flour with one teaspoonful of baking powder, and lastly add one tablespoonful cold water. Filling: Two cups of milk into which has been beaten the yolks of two eggs, two tablespoonfuls cornstarch, one-half cup sugar, one teaspoonful vanilla. Bake cake in three layer tins.

Split Pea Soup.

Wash and soak a pint of peas over night, put on a fire-bone to cook early in the morning; skim it carefully then add the soaked peas, and simmer at back of stove. They ought to cook soft in three hours; then add half a cup carrots cut fine and, if liked, a little minced onion. Another hour should finish it and give you a delicious and wholesome soup.

Sun-Worn Curtains.

In cases where a pair of curtains are too sun-worn and they are too sun-worn in the middle to serve, cut away the sun-worn portions and sew across, then where seen use a cord or ribbon, and if neither of these are at hand, make a couple of straps of old linen, and use them to tie the curtains back at the place they are applied. Old linen bows well stretched are neat.

Helpful Hints.

Holding tomatoes over the gas flame will cause the skin to burst and come off easier than when scalded, and the tomato will be less mushy than when scalded.

Sponges should be washed free of soapuds each time they are used and hung up to dry. As often as possible scald them in soda water and hang them in the sunshine.

A Vagabond Dreamer

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

"You are trespassing on my property!" came a voice from the moonlight.

Blair scrutinized the clump of bushes. He had supposed the white thing flitting about there to be a slim beam from the moon.

"But the gardeners never come down here and uncle is away, so it is all right. The voice was nearer to Blair than before.

He shaded his eyes and looked more closely. A low ripple of laughter accompanied his search.

"Here I am." She had parted the bushes and still Blair felt that a wedge of moonbeam had squeezed down through the trees. He stared at her with his hand shading his eyes.

"I can't see whether or not I like your eyes," she said half petulantly.

Blair obediently dropped his hand and turned toward the light that came from the small door of his caravan. The dreamer's look was in his eyes and the dreamer's whimsical smile on his lips.

Molly looked at him with grave eyes for a moment. "What are you doing here?" she asked, edging nearer to him.

"Looking for fairies like you," he said in the tone of one speaking to a child.

"I am eighteen." She resented his tone. "And then what do you do?"

"I weave them into fairy tales."

"I suppose that you mean you are a writer and that your name is in all the big magazines?"

"About that," he smiled.

"Couldn't I just have one peep into your caravan?" she asked. "It looks so cozy."

"It is cozy." He was amused at her quaint curiosity. "I will have to lift you up on the roof."

"Isn't it darling?" She turned toward him. "I didn't know gypsies had such exquisite tastes."

"But I am not a gypsy," put in Blair, and in the darkness a strange bitterness crept into his eyes. "If I were I would shut that door with you inside and lash up my ponies!"

"Oh, wouldn't that be lovely!" She slapped her hands joyously. "But poor uncle would never get over it."

"He has managed to survive other losses." Blair again said bitterly.

"You know he is not really my uncle." She had not noticed his remark.

Blair Watched Her Go.

Blair watched her go. "I have lived here only five years. I'm adopted and Uncle Gray is going to give me all his money," she confided naively.

"So I understand," Blair said.

"You have heard of me?" Molly's eyes opened wide.

"I have heard of the protegee of John Gray—yes. But I had not known she was so grown up," he finished lamely.

"Well—beautiful then." He looked deep into his eyes.

She returned the look wondering. "Oh, oh—I feel such a funny little thrill inside—here!" She clasped both hands over her breast, and stood gasping at him.

Blair turned swiftly away from the innocent awakening in her eyes.

"Perhaps you had better come down from my caravan." His own voice was a trifle husky. "Or I will be tempted to become a gypsy and run off with you."

"But I don't want to come down. I feel happy—I want to sing—and dance—and—" She broke off abruptly and that wondering look swept Blair's own.

Blair was silent for a moment.

Heard from the bedroom an angry exclamation in a feminine voice, and the words:

"George, dear, how often have I forbidden you to come into my room without knocking—and in your automobile coat, too!"

MAKESHIFTS FOR THE COOK

Delicious Pures Made From Canned Tomato Soup—Use for Some Leftovers.

Canned tomato soup can masquerade as a delicious puree if it is mixed with half its bulk of cream or milk. Season highly and add the cream before the soup is heated, as it is less likely to curdle. For variety, barley or cut-up spaghetti can be added.

The mixture that is left in the bottom of the casserole after the meat has been removed can be utilized for another meal. Add about half the quantity of water, cut up dice of potatoes, and make dough balls, stewing the mixture until the potatoes are tender.

When making apple food try roasting the apples instead of stewing them. The pulp is removed from the skins and mixed with the whites of eggs.

Left-over spaghetti or macaroni is nice cooked in a baking dish with a cream sauce and shredded green and red peppers cut over the top. Sometimes cheese is added to the mixture, again-bread crumbs.

Candied Citron.

Pare and seed the citron; let lay over night in a weak sugar water. Next morning drain through a colander. For every pound of citron take one pound of sugar; put the sugar on with half as much water. First boil this till quite a thick syrup is formed, then drop the citron in and cook down till thick; when done, pour out on plates and leave near the stove till dry, then sprinkle with granulated sugar and pack away in jars. Preserve citron in the same way, only taking half as much sugar; cook until clear and put away for use.

Watermelon Rinds can be Prepared in the Same Way.

Steamed Fish.

Smear some tissue manilla paper with butter. Clean the fish, leaving head and fins on. Season with salt and cayenne pepper. Roll each fish separately in a piece of buttered paper. Place the fish in a pile and envelop them in a large sheet of paper. Then wrap the bundle in a newspaper and dip this in water for five minutes, or long enough to saturate the newspaper. Scrape a hole in the middle of a bed of coals and bury the package in the embers. Leave it there ten to twenty minutes, depending upon size. The newspaper will scorch, but the inner wrappers will not. The result is a dish fit for Olympus.

Furniture Polish Recipe.

Shave two ounces of beeswax, also half an ounce of white wax. Put in a quart jug and pour over one gill of the best turpentine. Then in another vessel cut up half an ounce of castile soap. Add it to one gill of cold water. Stir each and leave to stand. In two days both should be thoroughly dissolved. Then mix together and stir in two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, also two of ammonia. Bottle and cork tightly. Every woman would save herself much elbow work if she slightly washed over the pieces of furniture before applying a polish, in tepid water, dried at once, of course. This is an immense time saver.

Honey Love Cakes.

Put two cupfuls of honey and three-quarters of a pound of sugar into a saucepan and bring slowly to boiling point. All a quarter of a pound of chopped almonds with the skins left on. Simmer five minutes; remove from the fire, cool slightly, add half a pound of candied peel cut into small pieces, half a teaspoonful of baking soda, half a teaspoonful of ground cloves, one teaspoonful of ground cinnamon, half of a grated nutmeg, the grated rind of a lemon and enough flour to make a stiff paste. Roll out, cut into rounds with a cutter, lay on buttered tins and bake till ready in a moderate oven.

Damage by Grease.

Many an overflow is caused by grease. There is no better way to keep the pipes of a sink in good condition than to let the hot water faucet run for five minutes after dishwashing. Though your water is on a meter, this is cheaper than overflowing or clogged drains.

Keep an eye on the washers, if you are on a water meter. A constant drip is hard on the pocket-book, even if one's nerves can stand it.

Small Cucumber Pickles.

Secure two hundred very small cucumber pickles, not more than two inches long. Wash, wipe and place in jars. Cover with very strong boiling brine and allow to stand a day and a night. Drain, wipe separately, place in jars, cover with hot vinegar seasoned with two dozen whole cloves and an ounce of mustard seed. Seal and do not use before three weeks have elapsed.

Warmed Over Tongue.

Cut cold cooked tongue into small dice and cover with hot water. Cook for ten minutes; thicken slightly and season with a few drops of onion juice and Worcestershire sauce. Make a border of hot mashed potatoes on a hot platter and pour the tongue into the center.

San - Jak

In health or disease there is need of an internal bath. This is best obtained by drinking glasses of pure water with one or two teaspoons of SAN-JAK thirty to sixty minutes before breakfast, washing the blood. This passes quickly from the stomach and stimulates the bowels to increased peristalsis, overcoming constipation and its attendant ills. It is quickly absorbed and entering the blood stream bathes the cells of the liver and heart—the passes to the brain and washes out the cobwebs and awakens to new life every cell in the body.

SAN-JAK dilutes theropy secretions and dissolves all abnormal in the blood and urine. SAN-JAK greatly promotes elimination, creates downward peristalsis, stimulates a flow of digestive juices. It dissolves the sticky mucus in the mouth and throat allowing the membranes to be bathed in their natural secretions. SAN-JAK is the great medium of exchange in the body, by enabling the kidneys to absorb and eliminate alkaline sulphates which are the products of intestinal decomposition and in renal weakness or the real cause of Bright's disease.

Man does not wear out like a piece of machinery by constant disintegration for he is self-renewing. When he loses his ability to self-renew, he falls in process of making young blood, the very tissue of man is self-renewed and his strength and health fail.

SAN-JAK is the only medicine which will enable you to keep a perfect balance between the elimination and renewal of the body. Dr. Gray of the Body Anatomy uses it unhesitatingly. Permanent waste of the system can be avoided by the use of SAN-JAK.

Rheumatism, catarrh and bladder trouble, the source of trouble to humanity, is due to a too low or high specific gravity of the water, which may be regulated to normal by taking SAN-JAK.

Swelling under the eyes, grayish white or waxy color of the skin, denote granular disease of the kidneys. The cure is SAN-JAK.

MISTOOK BEAR FOR FUR COAT

Member of the Association of Automobile Manufacturers Tells Story About Motor Wearing Apparel.

The cold weather is coming on, and we shall soon see some very remarkable cold-weather motoring suits.

The speaker, Coker F. Clarkson of the Association of Automobile Manufacturers, sat in his New York office. He resumed:

"I'll be glad when cold-weather motoring clothes are made more snugly. They give us such a shaggy look now, don't they? Did you ever hear about the performing bear?"

"Well, a country boy, a good deal frequented by motorists, took a showman and his performing bear, and one morning the bear escaped from the stable."

"Everybody fled before the animal. The body man, however, pursued it courageously. It entered the hotel, mounted the stairway, pushed open a bedroom door, and vanished."

"Then the hotel man, close behind, heard from the bedroom an angry exclamation in a feminine voice, and the words:

"George, dear, how often have I forbidden you to come into my room without knocking—and in your automobile coat, too!"

TAILAROUND

McHOUSE

To keep cut cake moist place it in a tin with a good sound apple. Replace apple with a good one if it decays.

If the cream seems too thin to whip place the dish containing it in another dish of cold water, leaving it there until it is well chilled. Then put it into a can of hot water. It will whip without difficulty.

Should a cake be burnt on the outside, scrape the black parts off very carefully and brush over with beaten white of egg, then dust with powdered sugar. Now put the cake back in the oven for five minutes, when all signs of burn will have disappeared.
