THURSDAY, JANUARY 20, 1912.
Supt. Fred Keeler is not in favor of closing the schools when there is an epidemic of any kind.

Michigan is said to have the deepest mines in the world. Some are a mile deep. That may account for the difficulty of some of our subscribers in digging up the price of their paper.

Readers of the Detroit daily papers have heard the street car conductor at an end. The election on Tuesday has settled the matter as far as the continuation of a franchise is concerned by a court decision against the Story & Clark price offered of an account.

Michigan newspaper men have been writing considerably of late on the question: "Why leave Michigan?"

FOR A GREATER MICHIGAN.

One of the porters on the train out of Salt Lake City was an impressive-looking negro, who had a ready, if inaccurate, answer to almost any question put to him by the passengers. It was hard to tell whether he believed all that he said, or whether he was having fun with his questioners.
On one of the first catching sight of the lake, asked if there were any fish in it.
"No, sah," said the porter, "dey ain't no fishes in dat lake, sah. Dey don't tried ter see dey couldn't have fishes in dare, but dey wouldn't stay alive—De fishes dat stayed alive de longest was salt mackerel, but dey wa'n't very prosp'ous, sah."—Youth's Companion.

NOT MUCH OF A GENTLEMAN.

Surprised Doctor.
Illustrating the Effect of Food.

The remarkable adaptability of Grape-Nuts food to stomachs so disordered that they will reject everything else, is illustrated by the case of a woman in Racine, Wis.

"Two years ago," she says, "I was attacked by a stomach trouble so serious that for a long time I could not take much of any sort of food. Even the various kinds prescribed by the doctor produced most acute pain."
"We then got some Grape-Nuts food, and you can imagine my surprise and delight when I found that I could eat it with a relish and without the slightest distress."

"When the doctor heard of it he told me to take several small portions each day, because he feared I would grow tired of it as I had of all other food."
"But to his surprise, (and that of everybody else), I did not tire of Grape-Nuts, and became better day by day, till, after some weeks, my stomach entirely recovered and I was able to eat anything my appetite craved."
"My nerves, which had become so weakened that I feared I would become insane, were also restored by the Grape-Nuts food in connection with Postum which has become our table beverage. I appreciate most gratefully and thankfully the good that your food preparations have done me, and shall be glad to answer any letters inquiring as to my experience." FAMOUS AMERICAN INDIANS

BY ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

"EMPEROR" M'GILLIVRAY

"The Spaniards are devils, and the biggest devil among them is the half-Spaniard, half-Frenchman, half Scotchman and altogether Croek blackguard McGillivray."
Thus wrote Gen. James Robertson, the Tennessee pioneer. The man he referred to was a half-breed Creek war chief who went by the Scottish name of Alexander McGillivray. He had other names and titles. For instance, he called himself "emperor of the Seminoles and Creeks." He bamboozled both Spain and the United States into giving him commissions as major general and persuaded England to make him a colonel. He drew pay from all three countries, playing one against the other and being loyal to none.

McGillivray was born in the Creek "nation" in 1740. His father was a Scotch emigrant of good birth, his mother a half-breed Creek princess. In the son's veins ran the blood of four races—Indian, Spanish, French and Scotch. Underneath the polish and learning he received, he was always a typical Indian of the worst sort. His father's family planned a white man's career for the lad. They gave him a splendid education; then found a position for him in a Savannah counting house.

A Flight From Civilization.
But the tame life of civilization wearied him and he went back to his mother's people. His education and natural genius soon raised him to the rank of chief, not only of the Creeks, but of the Seminoles and Chickasaw, too. This triple power put him at the head of fully 10,000 warriors and made him lord of a domain larger than many European kingdoms. Small wonder that he took the title of emperor, surrounded himself with a royal court and was accompanied everywhere by a retinue!

When the revolutionary war broke out the British made him a colonel. This title and the gay uniform that went with it, delighted McGillivray's barbaric soul. Nor was the extra pay displeasing to him. He fought for the English throughout the revolution. Georgia therefore confiscated all his property in that state. In revenge for this he waged war on the white settlers in the south and west. When the United States and England signed the peace treaty, in 1783, McGillivray began to look about for new employment. Spain—then master of Florida and altogether Croek blackguard McGillivray—sought alliance with him. For a goodly sum he became a Spanish agent, with the title of general, and used his tribal power for Spain's advancement. Then, 1790, he consented to go to New York for a personal conference with President Washington. He made the journey in imperial state. At every city along the route there were crowds and music to welcome the "Emperor." All this put him in a good humor. He readily made a diplomatic and commercial treaty with Washington, consenting to act as United States agent, with the rank of general and a salary of $1,200 a year. He also received $100,000 indemnity for the land that Georgia had confiscated from him. Although he then took oath of allegiance to this country, he sent word to his Spanish employers that he should continue to look after Spain's interest just the same. In view of such loyal services the Spaniards raised his salary to $3,500 a year. This, with his yearly $1,200 from the United States and his tribal properties, added to the money he could earn by grafting and his income as partner in a large southern commercial house, made him a very rich man.

Spain, Great Britain and the United States were not upon the friendliest terms in these days. Indeed, in the south their interests were forever clashing. Yet McGillivray had enough tact to keep his name on the pay roll of the three countries and to give more or less satisfaction to all of them.

Past Master of Treachery.
Though in the sworn service of the United States, he did not cease his bloodthirsty raids on southwestern settlers. Nor did he ever let his oaths of allegiance to any nation interfere with his personal interests and plans of vengeance. It has been said of McGillivray: "He was an instance of a powerful intellect absolutely divorced from moral principle."

McGillivray escaped punishment for his countless offenses and died rich and honored, February 17, 1793. He was buried with Masonic honors in the garden of his business partner's house at Pensacola, Fla. (Copyright.)

QUANAH

It was a moment either for despair or for quick action. Quanah chose the latter. He rallied twenty-one of the young men of the tribe who were devoted friends of his. That night, he and Weckeah eloped. They knew that Comanche law demanded a death penalty for such an act, and that Ekitokup would follow hot on their trail to enforce that penalty. So they rode day and night as fast as they could urge their wiry ponies, and did not cease their flight until they were safe in the mountain fastnesses of Scurry County, Tex.

There Quanah and his stolen bride began their wedded life. As they were still penniless, Quanah led his twenty-one young braves upon a series of horse stealing raids into the grass country. So rich did the little band become at this occupation that other Indians joined them. The braves returned by stealth to their old homes and bore to the camp brides of their own. Soon Quanah was chief of a tribe several hundred strong. Ekitokup heard of his whereabouts, but when he found him so powerful the old chief wisely consented to abandon his plan of vengeance in return for the payment of twenty ponies (the original dowry price of Weckeah). Quanah readily gave him the ponies, remarking as he did so, "I know a ranch where I can steal twenty more before tomorrow."

Now that he was no more an outlaw, Quanah returned to the Comanches. He made himself chief of the tribe in whose village house he had lived as a beggar. There, from a stronghold in the Wichita mountains, he reigned over the Indians for miles about and grew daily richer and more powerful. Incidentally, he married four more wives. Seeing the folly of wasting his power in useless warfare, Quanah surrendered to Gen. McKenzie in 1876 and became a powerful citizen of what was later Oklahoma. He persuaded the government to give his tribe good farming lands. (Copyright.)

TRAPPED BY TAX COLLECTOR

Property Owner's Return Is Forced Up by Prospective Buyer's Inquiry.

A certain Kansas citizen who has the reputation of never—well, hardly ever—settling the worst of a business deal owns a piece of property near the new Union station site, where prices, as everyone knows, are like balloons—that is, you can tell they are high, but not just exactly how high.

The other day a stranger went into the office of the property owner. He was just looking around for an investment. Certainly, Downtown property? Well, of course the best thing today was near the station site. Yes, that would do. A growing neighborhood? Just what he wanted.

"Now, it just happens," said the holder of the station land. "I own a piece there myself. Let me show you on the plat book."

The stranger listened and observed and made notes; then—
"How much do you consider it's worth?" he asked.

"Not a dollar less than $400,000," said the proud owner. He might as well make it stiff. After all, what was the use of taking a chance? It was a sound investment at that price and perhaps—
"Thank you," said the stranger. "That is just what I wanted to know. I'm the county assessor."—Kansas City Star.

Flaubert's First Novel.
Many hitherto unpublished works by Gustave Flaubert have appeared in recent years. None of them has been devoid of interest, but "November," now published by Conrad, is noteworthy. It was Flaubert's first novel, written in 1842, when he was twenty-one, and before all else a dreamer and lyrical. The story is of a young man who has lived in the realm of imagination.—The Athenaeum.

PRACTICAL METHOD SUGGESTED FOR ERADICATION OF DODDER

New York Experiment Station Recommends That Alfalfa Seed be Examined Before It is Sown—Injurious Weed Seeds May be Readily Removed by Sifting Through Wire Sieve.

The appearance of dodder in clover and alfalfa fields is generally most dangerous to the crop.

The ordinary operations of mowing, raking and hauling tend to spread this troublesome parasite, and with every new center of infection the chances of the crop grow less.

A recent circular of the New York experiment station at Geneva describes the injury resulting from dodder in alfalfa fields, as follows:

Dodder is a yellow, thread-like twining weed which is exceedingly troublesome in alfalfa fields. It appears in circular spots 3 to 30 feet or more in diameter. At the center of the spot the alfalfa is killed out, while around the margin the ground is covered with a mat of yellow threads which twine closely about the stems of the alfalfa plants and slowly strangle them.

The spots increase in size from year to year. Many fields have been completely ruined by dodder. It is not often injurious to other crops (except red clover), but once established in an alfalfa field it is very difficult to eradicate without killing the alfalfa.

As dodder is usually introduced with clover and alfalfa seed, the purchase and use of dodder-free seed can not be too strongly urged.

Clean seed, however, can not always be secured, and therefore, cleaning the seed is often necessary.

Frequently neither the purchaser nor the seed dealer knows dodder seed, and consequently in many cases the first proof of its introduction is the appearance in the field of the weed itself.

In view of these facts, the New York station recommends that seed be examined before it is sown to determine the presence of dodder.

Alfalfa seed is larger than dodder seed and advantage was taken of this fact by the station to perfect a method by which commercial alfalfa seed may be made practically free from dodder and safe to sow.

It was found that dodder seeds are readily removed by sifting through a wire sieve having 20 meshes to the inch.

Since ready-made sieves of this mesh are not readily obtainable, it is advised to construct a light wooden frame 12 inches square by 3 inches deep and tack over the bottom of it 20 by 20 mesh steel-wire cloth.

This quantity of wire cloth ought not to cost more than 15 or 20 cents. It is important that the wire cloth used be exactly 20 by 20 mesh, which may be determined by placing a ruler on the sieve or cloth and counting the number of spaces to the inch.

With a sieve of this kind it is estimated that a man can clean from three to seven bushels of alfalfa seed per day.

From one-fourth to one-half pound of seed, and no more, should be put into the sieve at a time and rigorously shaken for one-half minute.

To make the work uniformly thorough the use of a cup holding not over half a pound of seed and careful timing of the sifting is recommended.

If the seed contains but little dodder one sifting may do, but when much dodder is present and particularly if it is of the large-seeded variety, two siftings, both made strictly as directed, are advised.

In experimenting with this method it was observed that beside the dodder seeds various other small weed seeds, broken seeds and dirt, as well as some of the smaller alfalfa seeds, were also removed.

The siftings varied from one to five pounds.

HAY KNIFE MAY BE FOLDED UP

Suitable Protection Is Afforded Blade When Implements Is Not in Actual Use.

In describing a folding hay knife, recently invented by Luther L. Carr of Chalmers, Ind., the Scientific American says:

The object of this improvement is to provide a novel construction of use, the blade will be housed within and protected by the handle, the handle and the blade being so formed that the former operates as a stop to limit the opening movement of the blade at the proper point and the handle being provided with handholds for convenience in manipulating the knife, means being provided for holding the blade to the handle both in the opened and closed portions of the blade. The illustration shows the knife with the blade in position for use.

Silage Production to the Acre.
Ten tons of corn ensilage per acre is regarded by experiment stations as a reasonably conservative average, though fifteen tons per acre is a frequent yield under fairly good conditions of tillage, soil and seed. It is estimated by competent authority that this ensilage, when placed in the silo, costs about $1.95 per ton.

Flower Roots in Winter.
The cellar is a good place to store flower roots in winter provided it is a dry one. The roots are apt to become too dry if hung up in paper bags.

TWO SYSTEMS IN EGG TRADE

By "Loss-Off" Test It Is Possible to Detect Various Kinds of Deteriorated Eggs.

Farmers and those handling eggs commercially, as well as the housewives and other consumers of eggs will be interested in Secretary Wilson's remarks on two systems in vogue in the egg trade.

The system of marketing eggs in general use in the middle west, known to the trade as the "case-count" system, has proven detrimental to quality. Briefly, case-count buying consists of the payment of the fixed price which happens to be current at the time for each and every dozen, which may be offered for sale, regardless of whether the eggs themselves are good, bad or indifferent. The only requisite in most cases to consummate a sale is for each egg to have an intact shell. No more practical

Gives Away
Million Books

Thousands of people in the East interested in the possibilities of home-making in the Northwest did not have an opportunity to visit the Western Governors' Special train, which recently toured the East, nor hear the Governors told of the Golden Great Northern States. In order that everybody may learn of the splendid chances for making homes in Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon, the Great Northern Railway has arranged to give away a million copies of handsome illustrated booklets describing these states. These booklets are free. Simply ask for them from men who have gone West and become independent. They are profusely illustrated from actual photographs and contain detail maps in colors. They tell what others have accomplished and show what you can do.

From them you can learn the locations for free homestead land in Montana and Oregon, where cheap logged-off lands can be procured in Minnesota, Washington and Oregon, and what North Dakota offers the general farmer. You can procure one of these booklets free. Simply ask for booklet on the state in which you are interested and for information about special low fares. Write today to

When the Flag Looks Good.
"I have been in countries where the laboring man had meat once a year; sometimes twice—Christmas and Easter. And I have seen women carrying upon their heads a burden that no man would like to carry, and at the same time knitting busily with both hands. And those women lived without meat; and when I thought of the American laborer I said to myself: 'After all, my country is the best in the world.' And when I came back to the sea and saw the old flag flying in the air, it seemed to me as though the air from pure joy had burst into blossom."—Robert G. Ingersoll.

The Fountain Head of Life Is The Stomach

A man who has a weak and impaired stomach and who does not properly digest his food will soon find that his blood has become weak and impoverished, and that his whole body is improperly and insufficiently nourished.

DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY makes the stomach strong, promotes the flow of digestive juices, restores the lost appetite, makes assimilation perfect, invigorates the liver and purifies and enriches the blood. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder and restorative. It makes men strong in body, active in mind and cool in judgment.

This "Discovery" is a pure, glyceric extract of American medicinal roots, absolutely free from alcohol and all injurious, habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients are printed on its wrapper. It has no relationship with secret medicines. Its every ingredient is endorsed by all the schools of medicine. Don't accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this time-proven remedy of known composition. Ask your neighbors. They must know of many cures made by it during past 40 years, right in your own neighborhood.
