THURSDAY, AUGUST 13, 1914.
Vacation days are spending days.
The style in gowns is certainly close to nature.
The play that is to be abolished even in English society.
Occasionally the mercenary voluntes in order to get a fresh start.
One way to keep a cool head is to avoid reading news about how to do it.
It is predicted that the sheath skirt will disappear with the summer gird.
You cannot convince a snubbed man that there are spots on the sun.
Wait until your weather comes before you wear tight collars or discuss politics.
According to the Boston aviator, Americans will eventually be a fast-footed race.
It takes a hero to go about in his shirt sleeves, and a martyr to keep his coat on.
Bathing suits bought early in the season now call for talcum powder and a show horn.
It might help those, these days, to go down in the basement and fondle the snow shovel.
Once in a while a baseball writer speaks of a player's fingers as fingers and not as "digits."
The "black death" is leading to a general crusade throughout the country against the rate.
That New York man who left his bedroom to the laundry may have been fond of prunes.
The only effect hot weather has on the small boy is to increase the popularity of the swimmin' hole.
The national fly swatting campaign is a huge job on the flies and a huge effort to stay the hand of disease.
A French purson recently performed a remarkable feat on himself. Maybe he cut his own hair.
How important it must make the small boy in the bathing suit feel to be told that he has a riparian right.
In this brand of weather the amateur gardener clings to his hammock and lets the weeds grow where they please.
Two and a half millions of Americans live by writing inclosures, of course, those who write home to form.
California woman died as a result of wearing too small a corset. Some woman would rather die than be out of form.
Just one little favor! When the sun begins to broil again, please say: "Hot, hot, hot!" instead of: "Hot, hot, hot!"
You can't induce a self-made man to believe that his own success is due to anything other than his own ability.
There are said to be 10,000 madmen in New York. We presume that this is in addition to those who teach ragtime.
Statistics show that every New Yorker is a home owner or a car ride every excitement.
They are fighting the grasshopper pest in California with vacuum cleaners and, strange to say, there seems to be money in it.
The man who tries to balloon the Atlantic in a dirigible balloon or an aeroplane is pretty sure to succeed in crossing the straits.
A scientist warns us that if danger does not warn the race in its danger and decay, the most serious danger will be the blame of the women.
Somebody asks a western editor how to stop shoes from squeaking. It's none of your business, of course, but one way is to take them off.
Grand Circuit trotting races are held each year as usual, notwithstanding the fact that trotting races are hardly ever accompanied by fatalities.
Concerning universal criticism of race who desert a sinking ship, it seems that ordinary justice to the race will give them credit for knowing when the ship is sinking.
It is a good thing that the post of weather man is not an elective one, for just now everybody in the country would like to see the weather man retire to even hotter climes.
There is a good deal of intelligence on the bench, a judge having decided that a man has no right to cross his legs in a car and muddy other people's clothes.
Aviators are going to form a union for the purpose of combining people who want them to fly over their heads and to get them out of the sky.

PARALLEL STORIES OF FAMOUS CRIMES

By HENRY C. TERRY.

THE WELLS-FARGO MILLION DOLLAR EXPRESS ROBBERY.

AD the plot to rob the Wells-Fargo Express on the Erie, New York, was laid out in the regular way as it was arranged that we were going to make the strike until the fall shipment of gold to Chicago. The Erie was left to select. We got the tip on Monday, that the following Wednesday night the Red Star car would go out from Erie depot with the big load of gold. We fixed up our big truck to carry the gold and we went to the Erie depot to see the gold. It was a splendid illustration of the fact that no matter how carefully a crime is planned, it cannot be kept secret. The failure of only one of which will lead to detection.

BOB FURRY'S STORY.

"The touch-off on the Red Star Express? Do I recall it? Well I should know. I was on the Erie with my nextest jobs ever put up in New York. It was a fair-haired man from start to finish. The biggest haul ever made in a train hold-up. A cool million in gold was the stake played for and so bold were the men who planned it that they made the detective assigned to the case actually believe that the attempt actually would be made. The story, as told by the principal actors on each side, is a splendid illustration of the fact that no matter how carefully a crime is planned, it cannot be kept secret. The failure of only one of which will lead to detection.

I tumbled on the business by accident one afternoon as I was going down Washington to New York. I was sitting in the smoker puffing away a bit of Havana, when a couple of gentlemen dropped in and took a seat. They did not pay any attention to them until I overheard them talking about money bags and gold coins. I picked up from their conversation that they were agents for an express company that had a contract for hauling money from Washington to New York. I had charge of the stuff while it was in transit from Washington to the mint in Philadelphia or to other eastern cities.

This of itself did not specially interest me, but when I heard them talk about a million dollars, I was interested. I was sitting in the smoker puffing away a bit of Havana, when a couple of gentlemen dropped in and took a seat. They did not pay any attention to them until I overheard them talking about money bags and gold coins. I picked up from their conversation that they were agents for an express company that had a contract for hauling money from Washington to New York. I had charge of the stuff while it was in transit from Washington to the mint in Philadelphia or to other eastern cities.

I was sitting in my office late one afternoon when a messenger called and said that a detective was wanted to see me. Before he had been given to me, I gave this case a silent vote of thanks when we parted. Immediately afterward I began an official report that had been given to me by a special business. When I got to the express office I was told what seemed to be a very important matter. It was an attack that was going to be made upon the Red Star money car.

There was no longer any use of my going to Chicago to wait for Pop to turn up. It was some weeks before he had any news from him. He was in Chicago, and he was not coming back. I suggested that it would be well to keep quiet until I had seen Pop.

I promised never to mention it, and I renewed with Pop. It was a few days later that I had to throw out my feet. I gently rubbed, playfully, the mud from my shoes. I was not a man of much money, but I was a man of much spirit. I was a man of much spirit.

There is a good deal of intelligence on the bench, a judge having decided that a man has no right to cross his legs in a car and muddy other people's clothes. Help Merchants Dispose of Seasonal Goods and Keep Fresh Stock on Hand.

August is a month in which new goods are being introduced. Many people have deferred buying articles of seasonal value until the present time and they are watching the columns of the newspaper carefully for the merchants' invitation to buy. Generally have none to lose. It is the business of a broker or a "broker" to buy and sell for others. He is a man who is in the habit of buying and selling for others.
