To Build New German Town.

The purchase of an entire township nd the creation of a new Franken muth in the upper peninsula near Soc Junction are the plans of 30 farmers and business men of Frankenmuth, who left in a special car for the Soc and other points. It is believed that the younger generation should remain on the farm, but as land in Saginaw county is thickly settled and costly, it was decided to start another German settlement where the land is good but cheap. If satisfactory a large amount of land will be bought, a town with German industries built, and the community colonized by Germans. Frankenmuth in Saginaw county is one of the biggest German settlements in Michigan.

MINNESOTA RATE CASE IS DECIDED

SUPREME COURT DEFINES THE POWER OF STATES IN RAIL-ROAD RATES.

MAY REGULATE THE SAME UNTIL CONGRESS ACTS.

Enjoins State From Enforcement Law Against One Road and Upholds it in Regard to . Two Others.

The power of the states to fix re-onable interstate rates on interstate railroads, until such time as congress shall choose to regulate these rates, was upheld by the supreme court of the United States in the Minnesots freight and passenger rate cases. At the same time the court laid down far-reaching principles governing the valuation of railread property for rate-making purposes, and accord ing to these held that Minnesota would confiscate the property of the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad by its maximum freight and 2-cent pas senger, fare law. It enjoined the state from enforcing these laws, as to this road, for the present. In the cases of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern, however, the court held that these roads had failed to show that the rates were "unreasonable" or conficatory, and conse quently reversed the United States district court for Minnesota, which has enjoined their enforcement as both confiscatory and a burden on inter

The decision had been under con sideration for 14 months. Railroad commissions from eight states and the governors of all the states filed briefs in support of the state in the cases recognizing that the principles volved affected them all.

All sorts of opinions prevailed as to where the victory rested in the Minnesota decisions. Minnesota state of ficials in dispatches expressed their pleasure over the result, and Atty. Gen. McReynolds and members of the interstate commerce commission said they were fully satisfied. The prospect of congress taking charge of state rates affecting interstate commerce indirectly lent encouragement to the railroads that they would escape from regulation by 48 state comdown the stairs and out of the house. Bernice, hearing the door shut, re-turned to her room and went on with the work of sorting her wardrobe and packing her trunks. She did it deliberately and carefully, looking over each garment, and folding the choicer articles between sheets of tissue paper. At midnight she had not yet finished, and under the blaze of the gases, looking very tired, she went on smoothing skirts and pinching up the face on bodices as she laid them tenderly on the trays that stood on the bed, the table, and the sofa. Before she left the room she locked the trunks and left beside them a dress suit-case packed for a journey. Standing in the doorway she took a hurried look about the apartment-a last, farewell survey, not of sentiment but of investigation, to see if she had forgotten anything. A silver photograph frame set in rhinestones caught her eye and she went back and took it up, weighing it uncertain ly in her hand. Some of the rhine stones had fallen out, and she finally decided it was not worth while opening the trunks to put in such a dam aged article.

It was only a quarter nest nine when she emerged from the flat. She took the down-town car and twenty minutes later was mounting the steps to Bill Cannon's office. She had been motionless and rigidly preoccupied on the car, but, as she approached the office, a change was visible in her gait and mien. She moved with a light, perky assurance, a motion as of a delicate, triumphant buoyancy seeming to impart itself to her whole body from her shoulders to her feet. A slight mild smile settled on her ips, suggesting salety tempered with good humor. Her eye was charged with the same expression rendered more piquant by a gleam—the merest suggestion-of coquettish challenge.

The Bonanza King was already in who had shown her in on a former ocasion took her card in to the inner sanctum where the great man, even at this early hour, was shut away with the business which occupied his crowded days. In a moment the oung man returned smiling and quite is murmurously polite as he had been on her former visit, and Berny was once again ushered into the presence

The old man had read the name on he card with a lowering glance. His command to admit the visitor had een hardly more than an inartculate growl which the well-trained clerk inderstood, as those about deaf mutes can read their half-made signs. Cannon was not entirely surprised at her reappearance, and mingled feelings stirred in him as he turned his swivel chair away from the table, and sat hunched in it, his elbows on its arms. his hands clasped over his stomach. She came in with an effect of dash confidence, and brilliancy that astonished him. He had expected her al most to sidle in in obvious, guilty fear of him, her resistance broken, humbly coming to sue for the money Instead, a rustling, scented apparition appeared in the doorway, more gracious, handsome and smiling than he had ever thought she could be. She stood for a moment, as if waiting for his invitation to enter, the whole effect of her rich costume, her feverish. He had entered the parior in which ly high coloring, and her debonair the Chinaman had lit the lamps, and and self-confident demeanor, surprisopening the desk began hunting for ing him into silence. There were some ame thysts round her neck, their purple lights harmonizing richly with the superb flower pinned on her breast Her eyes looked very black, laughing and provocative through her spotted veil.

"Well," she said in a gay voice "here I am again! Is it a surprise?" She advanced into the room and the old man, almost unconsciously, rose from his chair.

"Yes, sort of," he said, dryly. She stopped by the desk, looked at him sidewise, and said: "Do we shake hands?"

His glance on her was hard and cold. Berny met it and could not re strain a sinking of the courage that was her most admirable characteristic d, and snatching it up he ran and that she had screwed far past its ordinary sticking-point that morning. She sank down into the same armchair that she had occupied on her former visit and said, with a little languid effect of indifference:-

"Oh, well, never mind. We don't have to waste time being polite That's one of the most convenient things about our interview. We just say what we really think and there's no need bothering about humbug." "So glad to hear it," said the old man with his most ironical air. "Sup-

The Bonanza King made no answer. He had no intention of talking with this objectionable woman about his daughter. But in his heart hope sprang at the words. They were an cho of his own desires and opinions. If this woman took the money and went, would not Rose, in the course of time, relent in her attitude of iron disapproval, and smile on the man she loved? Could any woman hold out for ever in such a position?

The tears gushed out again, and she held the old man's large handkerchief against her eyes, uttering small, sobbing noises, sunk in abandoned despondence in the hollow of the chair.

The Bonanza King was moved. The facile tears of women did not affect him, but the tears of this bold, hard, unbreakable creature, whom he had regarded only as an antagonist to be vanquished, stirred him to a sort of abashed sympathy. There was something singularly pathetic about completeness of her breakdown. She, who had been so audacious an adversary, now in all her crumpled finery weeping into his handkerchief, was so entirely and utterly a feeble, crushable thing.

"Come, brace up," he said cheeringly. "We can't do any talking while you're acting this way. What's the proposition again?"

"I want some money and I want to go." She raised her head and lov ered the handkerchief, speaking with a strained, throaty insistence like child. "I can't live here any more. can't bear it. It would give a prize fighter nervous prestration. I can't bear it." Her voice grew small and high. "Really I can't," she managed to articulate, and then dissolved into another flood.

The old man, high in his swivel chair, sat with his hands in his pock-ets, his lips pursed and his eyes on the floor. Once or twice he whirled the chair slightly from one side to the other. After a pause of some min utes he said:

"Are you prepared to agree to anything Mrs. Ryan and I demanded?" After the last outbreak she had completely abandoned herself to the hysterical condition that was beyond the chair, one finger tapping the corner of the desk to emphasize her to recover herself, sat up, swallowing words. Scrutinizing her as she spoke, and gasping, while she wiped her eves

"I'm ready to do it all," she sniffed, "only—only—" she paused on the verge of another collapse, suppressed it, and said with some show of reome money now-a guarantee.

"Fifty thousand's too much," he said slowly. "But I'll be square to you and I'll split the difference and give you twenty-five. I'll give you the check now and you can take it and go

She shook her head obstinately 'It won't do," she said. "What difference does it make to you whether you give it to me now or next year? I'll give you a receipt for it. There won't be any trouble about it. It's as broad as it's long. It's simply an advance on the main sum."

He looked moodily at her and then down. Her demand seemed reasonable enough, but he distrusted her. "If you don't believe me." she insisted, "send out that clerk of yours to buy my ticket to New York. Tellhim to go up to the flat and he'll see my trunks all packed and ready. I you you've beaten me. Mrs. Ryan are one too many for me." He again looked at her, his lips pressed together, his eye coldly considering.

"I'll give-you thirty thousand doilars and it's understood that you're to leave the city tonight."

She demurred, but with less show of vigor, and, for a space, they hag-gled over the sum till they finally agreed upon thirty-five thousand dol-

As the old man drew the check she watched him with avid eagerness, restraining by force the hand that trembled in its anxiety to become possessed of the slip of paper. He nosign the receipt, that her fingers shook they could hardly direct the pen. She remarked it herself, setting it down to her upset nerves, and laughing at the sprawling signature check in her hand she rose, something of the airy buoyancy of demeanor that had marked her on her entrance returning to her.

"Well," she said, opening her purse,

"this is the real beginning of our business relations. I feel as if we were partners.

The old man gave a short dry He could not rid his mind of suspicions of her and the whole pro ceedings, though he did not see just how she could be deceiving him "Wait till next year," he said

When I see the divorce papers I'll el a lot surer of the partnership." She snapped the clasp of her purse laughing and moving to the door. She was wild to get away, to escape from the dark room that held such unpleas ant memories, and the old man, whose steely penetrating eye. fastened on her, was full of unsatisfied query.

Well, so long!" she cried, opening the door. "Next time we meet it will he more sociable, I hope. We really ought to be old friends by this time She hardly knew what she was saying, but she laughed with a natural galety, and in the deorway turned and bowed her jaunty good-bys to him. He stood back and nodded goodhumoredly at her, his face showing puzzlement under its slight, ironic

Once in the street her demeanor again changed. Her step became sharp and quick, her expression keenclock showed her that it was nearly half-past ten, and she walked, with a speed that was as rapid a mode of progression as it could be without attracting attention, to the great bank on which the check was drawn. On the way down on the car she had thought out all her movements, just what she would do, and where she would go. Her mind was as clear, her movements as systematic as though she were moved by mechanism

She knew that the money was hers he would not make any attempt to get it back. His own reputation and that of his daughter were too inextricably bound with the transaction for him to dare to apprehend or punish Berny for her deception.

Her heart gave a wild leap as she saw-the teller returning, and then pause behind the netting of his golden cage while he counted out the bills. he tried to speak lightly to him as he laid them one by one on the glass slab. She was hardly conscious of what she said; all she realized was that the crisp roll of paper in her fingers was her possession, if not of great fortune, at least of something to stand between her and the world.

When she left the bank she walked forward slowly, the excitement which had carried her on to this point having suddenly left her feeling weak and tired. She entered the railway office and bought her ticket for New York for that evening's train. once more emerging into the gunshine she directed her steps to the car which would take her to her sle ters. Indelicate

Washington's cosmopolitan society contains many members whose do ars came too late to supply the advantages of early education. An illus. tration of this occurred last winter, at a dance given by one of the capital's most opulent downgers. The lady's debutante daughter appeared in the ball room in an ultra decollete

"Isn't it rather imprudent for your daughter to wear so low a gown on so cold a night?" remarked a "catty" young matron. "She's quite delicate.

"Mercy, no!" exclaimed the mother of the fair bud. "She's one of the most indelicate girls you ever saw." "Yes; I observe she's dancing the grizzly bear," said the young matron with incisive sweetness.

EXPERIENCE OF MOTHERHOOD

Advice to Expectant Mothers

The experience of Motherhood is a try-ing one to most women and marks dis-tincity an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for her-cif. Of course nearly every woman nt at such nowadays has medical treatm times, but many approach the experi-ence with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when it is over item has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous stra caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results. There is nothing more charming than Agge is nothing more charming uses a hippy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-hirth under the right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shatte nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, and with ample time in which to prepare, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

Every woman at this time should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetab Compound, a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pink-ham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

If you want special advice write to Lydis E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be brened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

"I entered," he says, "and asked the proprietor to let me observe them. I found that he kept the hornets for pets and that he had no bees. He ifted up a hive and let me observe the queen at work. He said that he felt no danger whatever."

Major Hardy adds that he personally has "no fear whatever of these inocent and useful creatures, who seem quite willing to share our dwellings with us if encouraged to do so.

It may be recalled that Mr. Bates in his account of his experience on the Amazon states that at first he killed hornets which flew near his face. (By E. O. SELLERS, Director of Evening Department, The Moody Bible Institute LESSON FOR JUNE 15 JACOB BEFORE PHARAOH LESSON TEXT—Gen. 67:1-12. GOLDEN TEXT—"To them that love Sod all things work together for good." tom. 3:25, R. V. I. Joseph and Jacob. vv. 1-6. Jos eph's meeting with his aged father is beautiful picture. Again Judah comes into prominence as a sort of ambassador in leading the old man nto this new land and to present him before his son, who now is exalted so highly among the rulers of the earth. In this he is a prophecy of that day when the descendants of Jacob shall gather before Him "whom pierced." Joseph does not await their coming but "went up to meet them' (46:29) as they passed through the province of Goshen.

It is true that Jacob and his sons came to Egypt at Pharaoh's personal invitation (45:17, 18), yet there were sufficient reasons why Joseph might have been ashamed of, or fearful to associate with these his kinsmen. His father was a plain countryman. His brothers were not an altogether reputable crowd. And, further, they were shepherds and "every shepherd is an abomination unto the Egyptians (46:34). But they are his brethren and he was glad to confess them even as Christ will gladly confess us.

Joseph's Great Wisdom,

We have here another evidence of Joseph's great wisdom in that he commands them to remain in Goshen while he goes before them unto Pharach to prepare the way. Even so not all are to come at once into Pharach's presence (47:2). In Acts 7:13 we read that this cavalcade consisted of three score and fifteen souls, though this probably did not include slaves and other dependents. It is very significant that Joseph secures Goshen for his kinsfolk. It was near to himself (45:10); it was separated from all unnecessary contact with the Egyptians (v. 34) and it was a place superior to all others for them as herdsmen (v. 6). Joseph anticipates Pharaoh's question (v. 3) and gave his brothers instruction how to an somewhat beyond in that they make equest that they might dwell in Goshen. Joseph charged them to speak of themselves as keepers of cattle. The Egyptians held shepherds as an abomination, a religious difference. Hence this reply at once set up a wall of separation preventing intermarriage and keeping the blood of this chosen family pure even though it was at the cost of a certain amount of contempt and ridicule. This is herefore a suggestion upon the great lesson of separation. Pharach's attitude was that of marked consideration, courtesy and kindliness, which was to be expected as a fitting tribute to Joseph to whom both he and all Egypt owed so much. Jacob and Pharaoh, vv. 7-12. Pharaoh does not seem to be overly enthusiastic over these five brothers whom Joseph presented (v. 5) from the fact that they were Joseph's brothers, there was nothing to commend them. No more have we anything to commend us in the sight of God except that we are Christ's brethren; though that is an abundance.

Pharaoh and Jacob

presence of Pharaoh is striking in one respect at least, the fact that he who came to this land for the blessing of the sustenance of life, should bless Pharaoh. Jacob confer red upon Pharaoh in his blessing more than Pharach conferred upon Jacob by the opening of all Egypt to him-self and his family. This act upon the part of Jacob is suggestive of the dignity of age, and significant in its revelation of Jacob's relation to and knowledge of, the purposes of God. Pharaoh inquires as to Jacob's age and he replies that his "pilgrimage had been 120 years. He who had entered into all the rights of the birthright and the Messings of God's cove-nant people, exercised those rights when he stands before the great Phaan earthly life is but a pilgrimage. We seek to strike deeply the roots of our present life in this presen age. Jacob's life, much longer than upon the yardstick of eternity and as a vapor that soon passes away (Jas. 4:14). Nor was Jacob's life long by (v. 9). Verily, this is a lesson we need today "that we may get us a heart of wisdom." (Ps. $0:12, R. V.) Men, like Jacob, who live by faith in God occupy the places of true authority and power in the world. They may stand in the presence of kings and all of earth's constant and by right confer blessings upon them. Conclusion. Not included in our set before us Joseph's administration of the affairs of Egypt which give us further insight into the greats this man. In the close of the less proper, verses 11-12, there is present to us Joseph's provision for his father and his brethren. This is a type of Christ in His care for us. In the midst of dangers (Juo. 10:10, 28) and famine, and misunderstanding He is ever near. Joseph is now satisfied for he has his own near unto him. Jesus Christ is longing that we may be with Him in that place which He has gone though He has not left us comfortless during these days of separation, John 14:23. Joseph fed his brothers on the best the land afforded (v. 11), even so we may have the old corn (Josh. 5:11) and the new wine (Prov. 3:3, 10). We thus see how God is working out His purpose concerning the

Seems That None Can Escape Misunderstanding of Actions.

It would seem that no man can be anything or do anything without being made a target to be shot at, if not shot to pieces, by somebody. This, editor was once a presiding elder. He found that the most sincere and honest and earnest effort in that office did not save him from the suspicions of some and the direct charges of others. He found that a few men for whom he endured most in an effort to do for them. thought that he had abandoned them and crucified them. He found that some laymen, members of quarterly conferences, would impress the pastor with the notion that they were anxious for his retu: a to a charge and would at the same time load the pastor with complaints made to the presiding el-der. He found that such a pastor thought the presiding elder full of the "insolence of office" and loaded down with a sense of importance on account of a little "brief authority."

The presiding elder is now an editor He was told on taking charge of the columns of a paper that an editor is a public target. He has come to know that. He has found that the men for whom he has really tried to do most are the men who are quickest and surest to shoot his hide full of holes. He has found that his motives are often questioned. He has found that some are quick to attribute sinister motives to him. He has found that others are ready to accuse him of systematic neglect of them and their work.

Cannot Escape Criticism.

Justice Holmes of the Supreme court of the United States recently made a speech in New York. That speech has given this editor no small comfort. We ad supposed that nobody impugned the motives of the Supreme court. But it seems that the only way any man can escape criticism is to go off and hide himself, be nothing at all, do nothing at all. Here is the paragraph of Justice Holmes' speech which gives ns comfort:

"Of course we are not excepted," he said, referring to the Supreme court Not only are we told that when Mar shall pronounced an act of congress unconstitutional he usurped a power that the Constitution did not give, but we are told we are the representatives get letters, not always anonymous nating that we are corrupt

It is plainly evident to all observers that the number of people who take an intelligent interest in house planning and house building is increasing. The popular press reveals this tendency very clearly. Illustrations of modern houses and discussions of architectural subjects are overflowing from the technical press, finding a place in the newspapers and popular magazines.

This growing interest among the people is all to the good. Architecture has suffered too long from popular ignorance and popular apathy. Generally speaking, people get the kind of architecture they like and the kind of building they are willing to accept. There is enough architectural genius and enough skilled craftsmanship in our midst today to transform every town and village into a thing of beauty and to provide every fam-ily with a beautiful and healthful

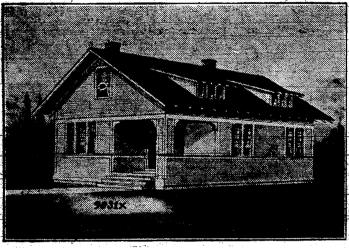

If a genius of the architect and the skill of the workman are employed, or wasted on unworthy objects, it is because the demand for this beautiful architecture has not yet become genaral and insistent. When the essential thing-good building—is secured, a man may find it possible to indulge his fancies in many matters of detail, but he should be warned against too earnestly striving after the ideal of the picturesque Having determined on the accommoda tion he desires and can afford, he will be well advised to be guided in regard to the design by his architect.

The little cottage illustrated here with is an example of a building thor oughly constructed and arranged ac cording to the very best ideas for convenience; yet at the same time some little thought has been given to make the building attractive in appearance without adding materially to its cost. For $1,500 this five-room cottage has been built, using the very best methods of construction and finishing the building on the inside with oak, birch

A glance at the floor plan will show the desirable features of its arrange ment. The living room and dining room are of large size and open to gether by means of an arch opening. The kitchen is well away from the rest of the house, being separated from the dining room by the pantry, an arrangement which has been found to be very satisfactory. There are two good sized bedrooms very well placed. The bathroom is convenient

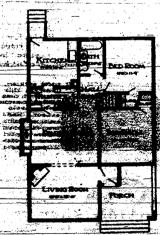

The attic space in this cottage is valuable for storage purposes and since it is well ventilated serves to keep the first story cool during the hot summer weather. The exterior is sid-

LETTER FROM THE STATE CAPITOL

PALMER PLEADS FOR GREATER PUBLICITY OF FIRE INSUR-ANCE AFFAIRS.

ANNUAL LOSS TO THE STATE IS APPALLING.

It to Thought Likely That the State Will Be Compelled to Build New Buildings For New Departments:

[By Gurd M. Hayes.] In his annual report tovering the business of fire, inland navigation and marine insurance companies, filed with Gov. Ferris, Insurance Commissioner C. A. Palmer makes a plea for greater publicity in connection with the fire insurance business. "All efforts on the part of the insurance fraternity along the lines of the education of the public, should receive the nearty approval of the state," says Commissioner Palmer.

"The average insurer depends too much upon the word of the individual agent for his insurance, and after the insurance policy is issued, he feels too secure as to his property. Simply because a man has a fire insurance policy he should not relax his vigilence in the matter of fire prevention, because every step he takes to prevent a fire, aids in the reduction of the cost of insurance. During 1912 fire absolutely destroyed $5,111,988 worth of property in Michigan, which was partially covered by insurance.

"People will object seriously if there is an increase in the tax rate, but they submit without objection if there is an increase in levying of an annual toll, not only in this state, but in all the states of the union, which is apalling in its intensity, particularly because nine-tenths of this toll could be done away with, if a person would only give the same care and attention to reducing the fire hazard that he gives to reducing the tax rate.

"Attention has frequently been called to the necessity of a thorough and frequent inspection of risks by insurance agents as a large number of in cendiary fires in this state and other states are due to over insurance induced by fire insurance agents. drastic a position cannot be taken against this evil. While property may be over insured in the beginning without any thought of crime, if circum stances develop which are financially embarrassing to-the person whose property is over insured, a temptation is placed in that person's way, which, in a vast majority of causes, is too strong to be resisted. If an agent, who recommended additional insurance, were compelled in case of loss to contribute to the company the amount of over insurance upon a risk placed by him, in all probability he would be more careful about recommending additional insurance, where the applicant was asking for all the insurance that the property would stand. "Automobile insurance is, at the present time in its infancy, but because of the great expansion of the automobile business, it is clearly apparent that some provision should be made for the formation of an insurance company that can insure the owners of automobiles against all damages arising from any cause, regardless of whether it is property damage or liability damage. The point for serious consideration in this proper reserves that a company transcome a time years ago, when I want acting this class of business should carry. The reserves for losses due to fire, theft or collision, can be determined with approximate certainty, but the question of reserves for liability losses is as yet an unknown quantity. Hence stitute the reserves of a company of this character, sufficient latitude should be given to departments to insure at least probable stability. With this point in view, a bill was passed during the last session of the legisla ture, which will become a law August 15, authorizing the formation of auto The mobile insurance commanies. standard bill by the committee on laws and legislation of the national conven

"On January 1, 1912 there were 22 fire and marine insurance companies authorised to transact this class of business in Michigan of which 12 companies failed to request a renewal of their certificate of authority or with draw during the year. Nearly all the companies withdrawing did so because of a reinsurance or consolidation with some other company. Thirteen companies were admitted to transact business, of which three were mutuals Nine fire and marine companies have een admitted so far this year. "During 1911; there was a consider able increase in the fire losses incurred to premiums received. This percentage was reduced from .61 in 1911 to .53 in 1912. During 1911 the cost of insurance for $100 was only 98 cents. In 1912 it was raised to $1.08 per-$100. At the close of business, 1912, there were four stock fire insurance companies organized and operating in this state, and one mutual operating on a stock basis. sented a bill to the last legislature calling for an appropriation of $750, 000 to build an addition to the capitol building which died an untimely death. There were many reasons why Neller's measure, which had the endorsement of bar associations of Michigan, did not survive. In the first place the legislators did not think it the proper time to saddle this additional deb onto the state when the appropriations for the various state institutions were mounting into the millions. Then, too many of the lawmakers believed that it would be more practical to erect a new structure on one of the state lots located a few blocks from the capitol. Some of them feared that the pro posed addition would spoil the symetry of the present building and numerous other excuses were offered for not tak It is claimed, however, that at the next regular session of the legislature the various state officials will get be hind a proposition to build a new structure on one of the vacant lots owned by the state, as they point to the fact that there is no place in the capitol to accommodate some of the new boards and commissions created during the past session. At the present time the board of state auditors faces a difficult proposition to find a place to store fifteen or twenty thousand school books which must be in spected by the superintendent of pub-lie instruction before August 15. There is not an inch of available space in the capitol and it will be necessary for the board of auditors to award the superintendent of public instruction a room in the old state block on Washingaon avenue adjoining the state mil

If the legislature ever appropriates funds for an addition to the capitel or a new state building, it will mean a saving of several thousand dollars in rentals. At the present time the state ax commission, industrial accident board state railroad commission, game warden's department and the offices of several supreme court justices are located in quarters owned by private individuals.

In the old state block are located the offices of the state bacteriologist state geological survey, state high way department, dairy and food com mission, state labor commission and military department. It is pointed out that if all of the departments located ouside the capitol building it would mean a great saving and would be much more convenient. Visitors on official business are amazed when they find that the state departments are scattered all over the city. If a new building is erected on one of the state is probable that the supreme court, library, attorney general's of fice and state railroad commission mould be located there. By this change the other departments now lo cated outside the state house could be ecommodated under the his dome.
