ITCHING TERRIBLE ON LIMB

R. F. D. No. 3, Clarkfield, Minn. My trouble was of long standing. It started with some small red and yellow spots about the size of a pin head on my leg and every morning there was a dry scale on top covering the affected part and when those scales were falling off the itching was more than I could stand at times. The first vear I did not mind it so much as it was only itching very badly at times but the second year it advanced all around my leg and the itching was terrible. I had to be very careful to have my clothing around the affected part very loose. At might time I often happened to scratch the sore in my leep. Then I had to stand up, get out of bed and walk the floor till the spell was over.

"I bought lots or salves and tried nany different kinds of medicine but without any success. I got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a fifty-cent box of Cuticura Ointment and when I had used them I was nearly over the itching. But I kept on with the Cuticura Soap for six weeks and the cure was complete." (Signed) S. O. Gorden, Nov. 20, 1912.

For Nerves.

A case of "nerves" is like a bad habit, easily acquired and hard to get rid of. Nervousness affects the digestion, dulls the eyes, giving strained look to the muscles of the face, and if allowed its course, will even make the hair thin. MOMEMADE ELECTRIC

Every boy who experiments in electrical work should know how to make an arrangement by which the elethe common forms of battery cells. ments of the cells can be raised out of.

They are simple to make, and the materials are inexpensive and easily obtained. There are two general classes venient size for the rack. Nail the of batteries-those made for "open circuit" work, such as electric bell circuits and telegraph circuits, where the current is not drawn upon very long at a time, and those made for "open above the battery jars. Make a solution of 8 ounces of sal-ammoniac to a quart of water, or 4 ounces to a pint. This battery will not be strong enough for more than simple experimental work For a stronger battery, make two cells and connect the two in "series;" that is, connect the zinc pole of one with the carbon pole of the other, as shown in Fig. 7.

A quart size Mason fruit jar, or a large tobacco jar or wide necked pickle bottle, can be used for a larger battery cell. Use a full length zinc

What Is A Man?

By REV. J. H. RALSTON

As man is seen in the mass, how insignificant he is! What is one among the four hundred million Chinese? What is one man of the billion and a half of the human race? From those standpoints man has no more significance than the insects that can hardly be seen with the naked eye. The most of us drop out of life and not a ripple of interest is created on the surface of society. On the other hand as we look at man as he is seen in his real being, as he is represented to us in the scriptures, how great does he appear! Only a little lower than the ngels, crowned with honor and glory, and given dominion over the creatures An old poet has very well expressed our thought in this way:

"An heir of glory! frail child of dust! Helpless, immortal! insect infinite! A worm! a god! I tremble at myself, And in myself am lost."

We must keep in mind that the question is. What is man that thou art mindful of him? It is God that is in mind here, his estimate of man. In the first place man is mortal, that is, he is like all beings composed of flesh, bones and blood; he is born, he lives, he dies. Now if that were all could we say that God has put his mind upon him? What has God done for man as an animal? If man would obey God's laws would he not be stronger, more comely in person. would he not be better housed, have ore beautiful and pleasant surround ings?

But man is a moral being, and here we are approaching the image of God of God the intellect also. As a moral being man is accountable to God. Here is also the realm of conscience. the capacity of distinguishing between right and wrong. And here we may find that the thoughtfulness of God receives emphasis. Every provision is made for man's moral perfection, If a conflict arises between the mere ly physical and the moral, the moral preferred, and rightly so, because it is in this that the relationship be tween God and man is more clearly shown. Every man has a conscience unless indeed he may have put it to death by his own neglect or abuse of it. And God does not leave man with the capacity of distinguishing between right and wrong without a criterion of right, and we have the Bible. We have, too, the advantages that come from association with men and women of high moral character, and we have the immaculate life of Jesus Christ. which a late writer has spoken of in When hens lay soft-shelled eggs, it Christ." the moral glory of Jesus There is no use denying that man thinks very highly of himself, and it is the spontaneous disposition of man when asked as to his moral or spiritual state, to say that he is perfectly right. The redemptive work of Jesus Christ throws the searchlight on man, and he sees himself as God sees him, and gets the correct answer to the question, What is man that God should think upon him and visit him? In the first place he is not right. He is not just slightly wrong. Taking the teach ing of the only book that has ever fairly depicted man, we must concede that the picture is gruesome and sad. At the very beginning of the race when man had not gotten far from the state of perfect innocence, it was said that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil two weeks old. Cut away the hair continually. Job said that if he attempted to justify himself his mouth would condemn him. David said that all men are gone astray, that they had altogether become filthy, that there was not one that did good, no, not one. Isaiah saw that all of man pro-fessed righteousness was as fifthy rags, and that his iniquities like the wind had taken him away. Jesus Christ spoke of some men as a generation of vipers, and questioned thing out of nothing of any kind of that Paul gives in his letters to the Romans and Galatians is one that makes us shudder. Thus is man as God thinks on him, and there is nothing less that God could do for him but to redeem him out of his wretchedness and misery and death. As God. thus saw him he saw in him the mos glowing possibilities of future greatness and glory. The glory of the Caristian religion is that it makes provision for man's regeneration, not sim-ply his spiritual inward regeneration, no state in the union where they are whole being. Twice-born men can be numbered this minute by the tens of thousands, men whose present is as different from the past as day is from night. God sees in every man, however low, an angel that is more beautiful than the angel that the sculptor sees in the block of marble. In the history of the human race

God has visited them in judgment, in mercy. In the person of Jesus Christ God visited Jerusalem about nineteen hundred years ago, and the saddest moment in the history of Israel was when she did not recognize the day of her visitation, and to this day God is visiting Israel in judgment. As God now sees man in his sinful condition and thinks on him he wants to vihim, and wishes to see in man his own show this thoughtfulness and desire to visit man in mercy be made the createst sacrifice that it was possible for him to make, even that of his

"Yah, I tell you, I was an excited Swede, but I proved to that fellow it is a bad day for bears when they tackle the sons of the north.

"Well, yes, I was excited but I had killed many bears, and the feeling soon wore off. I then dragged the carcass around the house and got it on the roof and prepared to skin him. What was my surprise when I had been a jailbird.

Luella grew pretty cold to me when I taxed her about him. At last I had to tell her that if she wanted to fiirt with a man old enough to be her father, all right, only she could count me out. She showed me the door then.

"This gentleman," she said, meaning me; "has been so kind as to tell me that old story about the County and National, Anthony." Isn't it a disgustion to tell her that if she wanted to fiirt with a man old enough to be her father, all right, only she could count me out. She showed me the door then.

What was my surprise when I had barely started the work to look up and see a mother bear and two pretty cubs advancing through the brush. I had left my gun in the cabin, but I twas only a minute until I had leaped down, darted into the house and back with the rifle. One more shot and I had brought down the mother. Two more shots and I had bagged the cubs.

"The little fellows weighed 25 pounds each and made delicious steaks. I was up all that night skim ing bears. I now have the skins in town, and they tell for 'themselves' there was class to that family. Every skin is in fine condition. The male bear was a large fellow. I think he had been there before.

With a man old enough to be her fath er, all right, only she could count me out. She showed me the door then.

"The tweifth," she answered, and then she turned to me. "You are very slow, Mr. Coolidge. Mr. Barrett told me all about that weeks ago, and so have many of his well-wishers. Only you left out the fact that he was partoned before the first six months were out because the real thief confessed. Good evening, Mr. Coolidge."

Well, I walked out. I wouldn't deman myself by arguing with that sort of man. And il'm still in his bank. Self-opinionated as he was. So what with all this and Luella's turning me down, I was feeling pretty bad when he had been there before.

Mean and they tell for 'themselves' there was class to that family. Every skin is in fine condition. The male bear was a large fellow. I think he had been there before.

More of us fellows in the bank had about that weeks ago, and so have many of his well-wishers. Only you left out the fact that he was partoned before the first six months were out because the real thief confessed. Good evening, Mr. Coolidge."

Well, I walked out. I wouldn't deman myself by arguing with that sort of man. And il'm still in his bank. My wite all wells and he won't raise my salary. And Luella channing; he won't discharge me and he won't raise my salary. And Luella and he were married yesterday.
