INDIA'S CHANGING COUNTRY LIFE

By SAINT NIVAL SINGH

TOBACCO CULTIVATION IN BENGAL

is the scarcity of workers and the high wages they demand. To begin with, it never was intended that these colonies should be over-populated. In order to guard against that the individual holding was made about twenty-eight acres in area, many times larger than the average plot in other parts of India, which is very small indeed. Added to this is the fact that fell work has been done by the bubonic plague, and the population has been ruthlessly thinned out. As a result there constantly is a dearth of laborers, especially at harvest time. Then, too, during the cotton season it is necessary for the many ginning factories which have been established to coax to them men, women and children who otherwise would be available for field work. This further shortens the labor supply on the farms. Indeed, the shortage is so great that the government irrigation department, which is constructing supplementary canals to bring more water to the Punjab colonies, finds it necessary to employ mechanical excavators, since coolies are not to be had for love or money. In such a circumstance it is only natural that wages should rise, so that the landowners find it more profitable to employ labor-saving machinery than hands.

The same causes which have induced the Punjab colonies farmer to use modern implements are persuading their brothers in other parts of the country to take them up. Whenever one thinks of India he has in mind its teeming millions and cheap scale of wages; but he rarely remembers that the price of labor has risen a great deal during the past few years, and still is rising, compelling the wise native to employ mechanical instead of manual help. Moreover, the agricultural department, which maintains well-equipped experiment farms at the principal centers of India, and schools and colleges, dotted all over the land where scientific agronomy is taught to the sons

STATE OF NICARAGUA

Has Greatest Area of Any in Central America.

Facts About Character, Resources and History of the Country for Which a United States Protectorate is Proposed.

New York.—Of all the Central American states, Nicaragua has the greatest area. The country is almost exactly as large as New York state. The population of Nicaragua is about 600,000; that would give about twelve inhabitants to each square mile. There are few Europeans in Nicaragua. The great mass of its population consists of Indians, negroes, mulattoes and mixed races. The population descends chiefly from the native Indians, from their Spanish conquerors and from the slaves introduced during the colonial period. Inter-marriage with other South Americans, and also with Europeans, has further complicated the race situation. Hence in Nicaragua we find half-castes with European features and Indians with fair hair and blue eyes.

Despite the fact that there is hardly any immigration the population is increasing with great rapidity. Among the Europeans in Nicaragua the Spanish element is naturally the most prominent.

The capital of Nicaragua is Managua, a city of some 35,000 people. It is situated on the Lake of Managua. The largest city in the republic, however, is Leon, with about 63,000 people. The chief ports are San Juan del Sur on the Pacific, and Bluefields and Greytown—the latter known to the Nicaraguans as San Juan del Norte—on the Gulf of Mexico.

Nicaragua is a typically tropical country. It is a very rich country naturally. Its three main sources of wealth are agriculture, timber and mining. In agriculture, the chief product is coffee. The coffee estates are largely in American and German hands. Another important agricultural product is cocoa. It is grown chiefly in the south along the Pacific coast. Sugar is also widely cultivated. Tobacco is also grown; the leaf is good, but as it is not well cured it is not exported. Like many another region bordering the Caribbean sea, Nicaragua finds a profitable export in bananas, which are grown in large quantities, especially near Bluefields on the Gulf of Mexico.

As to timber, the Nicaraguan forests contain splendid mahogany and cedar trees, the wood from which is largely exported. The forests also contain many valuable dye woods, gums and medicinal plants. Rubber is also grown there.

As to mining, the gold mines are very important and are worked by American and British companies. The gold export averages a million dollars a year.

Nicaragua trades with the outside world, but the volume of commerce might be greatly extended. Of the exports about a third come to this country; the rest go chiefly to Great Britain, Germany and France. Of the imports more than half come from this country, and the remainder mostly from the three countries above mentioned.

At Corinto the steamers of four shipping companies, two American and two German, now regularly visit the port. The only railway in Nicaragua is the so-called National railway, an American concern having a total length of about 170 miles. The line runs from Corinto to Leon Managua and other cities. On the various lakes steamers ply as well as on the San Juan river. These lakes furnish, from end to end, about a hundred and fifty miles of navigation. There are, unfortunately, few good wagon roads in Nicaragua.—The Outlook.

PUT IT ON A SOCIAL BASIS

Suggestion That, If Made Universal, Would Make Payment of Physicians' Bills Easy.

A prominent physician in an Arkansas town has an extensive practice among the laboring classes, where economy is the best policy. One day the little daughter of one of the men became very sick and the doctor was hurriedly called. He arrived and administered a soothing treatment to the patient, who was soon sleeping soundly, and upon leaving prescribed some medicine which was to be obtained at the drug store. The next day the visit had to be repeated and some more medicine bought. This was kept up until the little girl was entirely well, when the father went to see the doctor to settle the bill.

As his purse was rather slim he approached the doctor with many misgivings.

"Here is your bill, sir," began the doctor, handing him the paper. "This for the drugs from the store and this for my visits."

The poor man looked and was horrified at the amount requested, realizing that he could not pay it all. Then, after thinking a moment, he took out his purse and laid some pieces of change in the physician's hand, saying: "Here is the money for the drugs, doctor, and—we will return your calls."—Pittsburgh Chronicle.

HE CARRIED AN UMBRELLA.

A dear old lady who was very "set" in her prejudices was asked just why she didn't like a certain man. She had no particular reason that she could think of at the instant, but she had become so emphatic in her expression of dislike that she knew she would have to find some excuse—at once. Just at that moment she happened to glance out of the window and saw him passing by. He carried a neatly rolled umbrella though it hardly threatened rain.

Quick as a flash she answered her question, "He carries an umbrella whether it's raining or not—he is a sortie."

"But," said her friend, also looking out of the window, "here comes your son William, and he is carrying an umbrella."

"He did not stomp the old lady. 'But that's another matter—I don't like him anyhow—and besides, it all depends on who carries the umbrella,' she replied triumphantly.

That is the position some people have taken regarding that wholesome and refreshing beverage, Coca-Cola. They have said a good many unkind things about it and in each instance have had it proved to them that their tales were not true.

Finally they seized upon the fact that Coca-Cola gets much of its refreshing deliciousness from the small bit of caffeine that it contains. They looked upon that as a splendid argument against it. Then, like the old lady who was reminded of son William, they were reminded that it is the caffeine in their favorite beverages, tea and coffee; (even more than in Coca-Cola) that gives them their refreshing and sustaining qualities.

But does that stop their criticism of Coca-Cola for containing caffeine? No—their answer is similar to the old lady's—they say "But that's another matter—what they mean is 'Being prejudiced against Coca-Cola and kicking tea or coffee, it all depends on what carries the caffeine.'"

We think the joke is on them—for caffeine is caffeine, and if it is not harmful in one it can't be harmful in another. We all know that it is not harmful in tea or coffee—that it is really helpful in whatever it is—this is bound to include Coca-Cola.

Of course, the truth is, that having started an attack on false premises and having had what they thought were good reasons for criticism proved to be no reasons at all, they are grasping at an excuse which does not exist, to explain a prejudice. So you see, after all, it all depends on who carries the umbrella to people who are determined to be unfair. Let us be fair.—Adv.

SAFETY DURING STORM

The question of personal safety during a thunder storm is perhaps the most interesting to the majority of people. If in a building which is isolated in the open country or is higher than surrounding buildings in a group, avoid chimney or other spues, open windows or drafts, especially warm currents of air directly below a high tower or flag pole, peak or angle of the structure, is the warning given by the writer in the New-York Sun. Keep away from overhead wires entering a building—although these are generally protected by lightning arresters, the current is not always arrested.

If in the open avoid trees, wire fences or poles, and if you happen to be the most prominent object in the landscape, as in an open field or on a beach, do not raise a steel rod umbrella, or, in fact, any umbrella, as you may become a living lightning rod without an approved ground connection. If you should happen to be caught in such open space, with lightning discharges coming close, as may be determined by the lessening intervals between flashes and reports, it is better to lie flat on the ground and risk a soaking than to offer a possible path for a discharge. The reason for this is that the body, being warm, offers a better conductor than the surrounding air, and only a few feet rise is necessary to attract lightning on a flat ground.

Questions as to the action of lightning striking a building are frequently asked, and are somewhat difficult to answer without going into a lengthy discussion of the various kinds of discharges and other matters of a more or less technical nature. Let us, however, take the most frequent case, that of the ordinary "forked lightning," as seen at a distance, which at close range becomes the blinding flash, with the accompanying instantaneous crash, often causing disastrous results to life and property. This discharge is caused by a difference of potential between earth and cloud. The one is heavily charged with positive electricity, the other with negative, with the air between acting as an insulator. If the air is sufficient to keep apart the two currents, no discharge will take place except from one cloud to another. Now, as the storm moves on it comes closer to the earth or meets some object in its path which offers less resistance than the air—maybe a tree, pole, building, etc. The electrical pressure is so great that the slight decrease in resistance offered by such object is sufficient to cause the current to jump the intervening space and we have the destructive discharge. This explanation will be clearer to those who have seen the spark gap from coils used on automobiles.

Now let us assume that instead of the object before mentioned, such as a tree, pole, building, etc., we have a perfect conductor of electricity, as a steel building, steel tower or pole in electrical contact with the earth; the current passes through this into the earth silently, the pressure is relieved and in the great majority of cases there is no violent or explosive discharge.

Here is where the function of the lightning rod appears, similar to pipes tapping the tank and drawing off the water before dangerous pressure is brought to bear on the tank. A properly constructed lightning rod will in the vast majority of cases, act in this manner by silently discharging the current from cloud to earth, thus preventing the violent discharge which we call the thunderbolt.

BLIND MAN WORKS AT KEY

Amputation That Would Incapacitate Most Men Has Affected Telegrapher Only Slightly.

Stanley E. Schnabel of Bethlehem, Pa., presents a striking example of a person who, though suddenly and permanently afflicted, has been able to triumph over difficulties.

Mr. Schnabel is an expert telegrapher employed by a news organization, and several months ago was stricken blind. Despite this handicap he is still able to attend to his work.

Only one who is fully acquainted with the difficult work that press association telegraphers have can appreciate the wonderful feat Mr. Schnabel is able to accomplish each day, running his typewriter rapidly in order to take down more than 10,000 words of code news and averaging less than a break a day.

Mr. Schnabel's affliction came upon him about a year ago, when the sight of the right eye went first, and the

NEEDED SOME TOUCHING UP

Father Evidently Has His Own Opinion of What an Honest Man Should Look Like.

Outside the photographer's establishment in the little country town stood two figures—evidently father and son. At last they went in. "Of what use is that picture of your father?" asked the son. "I don't know," said the father, "but I know it's a good one." "You say in the window, maister, as 'ew yer can touch up the pictures to give any effect agreeable to yer customers.'" "That is so," assented the artist, readily, hastening to add, with his best professional smile: "But in your son's case any retouching is absolutely unnecessary." "Ow, ay," said the father. "That be main like Joseph, but to telles truth, he's got to send us w' his testimonials for a job, and I'd like yer to alter his photo to make him look honestlike!"—London Tit-Bits.

Not to Be Caught Napping. Many are the charms adopted by society women with a grain of superstition in their make-up, and one of the most unique is that worn by a young matron who spends much of her time at Atlantic City. Attention being called to her curious pendant—a polished substance set in pearls and suspended from a slender gold chain—she was asked what manner of stone it might be. "Stones?" she laughed. "It's just plain, ordinary wood. You see, I have a most unfortunate tendency to doze, and at such times caution tells me to knock wood. Often times there is no wood at hand, so all I have to do to save myself from my rashness is to tap my little locket. Simple, ain't it?"

Appropos of a septuagenarian millionaire who had married, at Atlantic City, a buxom manicurist, a widow with four children, Henry Lower Dickenson, the noted divorce lawyer of Reno, said: "I thought the old boy was only flirting with her. I guess he thought so, too."

Better Forget It. "Dobbs—Isn't it queer how that dear little poem, 'How Grandmother Danced Long Ago,' has gone through the generations? And I guess it will live through many more to come."

Double-Barreled Advice. "My boy, never marry for money." "I won't, dad."

Record for Ambition. "Cholly is an ambitious sportman." "How so?"

Envious. "What's Scriblet so cross about?" "He has just been reading a publisher's announcement of the places where prominent authors are spending the summer."

Advertising Talks

WHAT TO PUT IN YOUR ADVERTISING

Tell Points of Special Advantage About Articles You Have to Sell.

There is nothing so very mysterious about advertising. It is nothing more or less than sound business in the sales sense written concisely and clearly. Advertising is written salesmanship, and salesmanship should be the basis of every advertisement. The retailer with little advertising experience often loses as to what to put in his advertisement. Not only thought, but how to put it so that it will produce the greatest effect upon his customers and prospective customers.

Every advertiser who uses a daily or weekly paper asks the public to buy of him. The public is involuntarily persuaded to buy at the store whose advertising is the best and who can back up that advertising with a stock of goods of the right quality. The thought that is put into an advertisement is of as much importance as the inducement to buy. In the writing of advertising the retailer must forget his competitor for the time being. Don't even hint of his existence or say that your goods are the best unless you are satisfied that they really are. Hundreds of dealers daily use the statement that their goods are of vast superiority.

Other competitors handling articles of similar quality slip in under the advertising with a slight price reduction. Special quality has come to be known as the synonym for higher prices, although it is not necessarily so. When you make any statement about any article be sure that you can prove it on the goods themselves. Do not make your advertising a vehicle for carrying your sense of humor. Grotesque cuts and the use of slight or nine different kinds of type destroy the good effects of the advertisement. Do not buy valuable newspaper space to follow it up with a few obvious phrases which are not descriptive of the articles you wish to sell. No matter how inexpensive the space in your newspaper, it should be made to say something to the advertisement. The last one should lead up to a climax. Select the strongest feature of the advertisement for a head line. Make that head line short and a complete statement.

Advertising pays the man who uses it and the man who reads it.

Late Summer Advertising. Clearance sales of dry goods, clothing and other necessities are a regular feature of trade. Most merchants prefer to make heavy sacrifices rather than carry goods over a year.

At this time the advertising columns of newspapers are a trade report of the exceptional conditions that make these clearance sales necessary. By careful study of the advertising columns you can always find how to make a big dent in the cost of living.

The majority of people understand this well enough. Before reading what congress is doing to the tariff, they turn to see what their favorite merchant is doing to his stock. No matter how fine type he puts his appeal into, it affects their interests so intimately that his message receives careful thought.

If a merchant fails to give the public any news from his store at these times, it is regarded as a case of "nothing doing." It gives the impression that he is carrying stock over another season.

Compliment for Him. "Your husband looks so much more intellectual since he has got to wearing glasses than he did before."

"Do you think so?"

"Yes. Hardly anybody is wondering any more why you married him."

Professional Instinct. "I hear the star minstrel has discovered a family skeleton in his closet."

"Then the next thing you know he'll be having it in his show, rattling its bones."

Coaxing the Children. A mother who wished her children to drink a glass of water each morning on rising, found it somewhat hard to interest them in the daily habit.

As an inducement she gave them a bundle of confectioners' straws and now they enjoy their morning drink immensely.

The Devil's Weapons. A good many people who start out to fight the devil with his own weapons wind up by tickling the devil with his own ticklers.

AD MUST ATTRACT ATTENTION

Care Should Be Exercised in Preparing Copy if Good Results Are Desired.

Writing an ad is regarded by many business men as a drudgery, and as such the task is deferred to the last moment, is given little serious thought and is finally disposed of as quickly as possible. However, this is not advertising—it is only space filling, and is practiced only by the smaller advertisers using space that doesn't cost enough to be thoroughly appreciated. Advertisers using space in some of the Chicago Sunday papers at $700 per page are more particular about the preparation of ad copy.

Sometimes advertisers make a noise like a whole brass band in their advertising, while at the store the big event corresponds more to the noise of a tin whistle. That kind of advertising does more harm than good at all. The big noise in the advertising is all right if carried out in the store. On the other hand, some expect to pull off a big sale on the strength of a 2 by 4 ad. Such sales usually fall flat and too often the disappointed merchant is ready to say advertising does not pay. If a special sale isn't worth advertising properly it isn't worth attempting and that is the impression the public will gain through a lax and uninteresting stereotyped use of merely announcing. "A Big Sale Now on at Smith & Co.'s Wonderful Reductions. Everything a Bargain. Come Early and Avoid the Rush," etc., etc. The same old thing that others have been copying for 20 years.

There are so many ads that possess no originality, nothing of interest, no educational value. Because the advertiser knows all about his goods is no reason to think the people do. Something instructive is both interesting and appreciated, and here is where absolute truthfulness wins.

Sensationalism in advertising is a thing of the past. Bizarre and freakish headlines have gone the route of all other foolish things. They are obsolete, strictly out of date, in modern advertising.

Fine writing in advertising is not nearly so effective as cold facts in plain and simple language.

The public is more interested in the proposition that is offered than in the headline announcing the proposition. The procedure over the name of the firm and should occupy the first and most prominent position in an ad. If the reader is interested in the thing proclaimed by a good headline that catches his eye, he will look for the name of the firm at the top of an ad-bodily displayed, he is not so likely to look then to see what Smith & Co. have to say, unless he has an unusual amount of curiosity or is particularly interested in the doings and sayings of Smith & Co.

An ad without a head in either words or picture is like a side show without a Barker—there is nothing to draw the crowd, to arrest the attention and tell the people what is on the inside.

The first mission of advertising is to be seen. Some ads stand out and demand attention, but many are so common, so like all others, that they fail absolutely to attract any attention.

A few well chosen words descriptive of something is worth a whole catalogue of generalities.

There would be no objection to crowding an ad if the average reader could be induced to digest it, but as a rule he will not even taste it to discover its flavor.

Bills Against Fake Advertising. California—Morgenstern bill, making false or misleading statements in advertisements a misdemeanor; referred.

Colorado—Morris bill, to prohibit false and misleading advertisements; referred.

Iowa—Iowa State Merchants' bill; to prevent misrepresentation in advertising; urged for passage.

Massachusetts—One of the first states to enact honest advertising law—provide fine from ten to five hundred dollars for violation.

Minnesota—Nolan bill, to prevent fraudulent advertisements; passed by the house.

Missouri—The Houx bill, known as the "Honest Advertising Bill," urged for passage by Retail Merchants' association.

Ohio—Vonderheide bill against fraud in advertising; referred.

Wanted to Be Accurate. The secondary school was deep in the study of physiology. The pupils were highly interested, but disposed to be painfully accurate about their answers of questions.

One day there was a review. "Which of you children," asked the teacher, "can tell in what part of your body the heart is situated?"

A little maid on the back seat held up her hand: "Well, Mary, where is your heart?" asked the teacher.

"In the north central part, ma'am," answered Mary.

FACE BROKE OUT IN PIMPLES

Falls City, Neb.—My trouble began when I was about sixteen. My face broke out in little pimples at first. They were red and sore and then became like little boils. I picked at my face continually and it made my face red and sore looking and then I would wake up at night and scratch it. It was a source of continual annoyance to me, as my face was always red and spotted and burned all the time.

I tried _____ and others, but I could find nothing to cure it. I had been troubled about two years before I found Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I sent for a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and tried them and I then bought some. I washed my face good with the Cuticura Soap and hot water at night and then applied the Cuticura Ointment. In the morning I washed it off with the Cuticura Soap and hot water. In two days I noticed a decided improvement, while in three weeks the cure was complete. (Signed) Judd Knowles, Jan. 10, 1913. Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."—Adv.

Sorry for the Overworked Artist. "Henry," said his sister at the breakfast table the morning after, "you shouldn't ask that young artist to work so hard when he and a party of your other friends visit you."

"Huh," replied brother, coming out of a post-mortem reverie of the big hand.

"You needn't try to deny it. I listened at the door a while and some one was always asking the poor artist to 'draw three' or draw some other number of pictures. At least you should have been satisfied to have him draw one at a time."

Home Campaign. "Is your daughter going away this summer?" "No; she has started a flirtation with the ice man, and we think her chances for getting engaged to him are very good."

"Don't go there."

"Why not?"

"Rummy place."

Picking it up, Hazel remarked: "Mith, you dropped one of your thigarette papeth."—The Dellinestor.

Really a Good Excuse. A second grade boy in one of the Philadelphia schools came in late recently, when the following colloquy between the teacher and pupil ensued: "Why are you late, Thomas?" "Couldn't come no sooner."

"I was up in time, but I couldn't come no sooner."

Rhythmical Criticism. Prof. Brander Matthews was talking of certain past participles that have fallen into disuse, reports the Washington Star.

The past participle "gotten" has gone out in England, although it still lingers on with us. In England, gotten is almost as obsolete as "putten."

In some parts of Cumberland the villagers still use gotten and putten; and a teacher once told me of a lesson on the past participle wherein she gave her pupils an exercise to write on the blackboard.

In the midst of the exercise an urchin began to laugh. She asked him why he was laughing, and he answered:

"Joe's put putten where he should have putten put."

Most Powerful Searchlight. The new electric searchlight projectors made by the Allgemeine establishment of Berlin are among the most powerful yet to be produced, and their candlepower, which is too high for measurement, can only be reckoned in hundreds of millions.

What a striking one is the new method of regulating the arc. The large carbons are now moved back and forth by small electric motors and suitable gears, current being applied to the motors by a set of relays which work according to the current taken by the arc, thus securing an automatic adjustment of the arc length in the best way. The base of the projector contains other motors for all the searchlight movements and a distant lever control is so designed that turning the lever in all directions makes the projector also follow these same directions for pointing the beam. These searchlights will carry several miles and still give light enough to read by.

A Summer Vacation At Home

Avoid needless work, especially hot cooking, and plan to get all possible rest and leisure.

There are many ways. For instance, a hot breakfast is uncalled for in summer. There's no excuse for early morning cooking with Post Toasties in the house.

Nothing will please husband and children better than a bowl of crisp, delicious with cream or good milk.

There is pleasure in serving this dainty food and you start the day without work or worry.

With Toasties in the pantry it takes but a moment to prepare a breakfast or lunch that pleases all—you save time and temper.

Order a package of Post Toasties from your grocer and start on your home vacation.

Keep Your Blood Cool by Right Kind of Food and Enjoy Hot Weather

It's largely a matter of selecting the hot weather diet with reason.

Summer is Nature's season of activity—seed-time, growing-time, harvest-time—a time of expansion, energy—and Man is influenced to do his part—to put forth greater effort because activity is in the very air.

BUT—caution is necessary to avoid excessive heat from combustion (digestion) of heavy, greasy food (Nature's way of generating body-heat in winter), in addition to the heat of the summer atmosphere.

Grape-Nuts

is the Ideal Food for hot weather because, being largely predigested (and concentrated) in the making at the factory, it is quickly absorbed, a small quantity affording great endurance with little effort in digesting it.

Grape-Nuts, made of Whole Wheat and Barley, contains all the natural elements of these cereals, including the phosphate of potash grown in the grain for rebuilding waste tissue cells, especially of brain and nerves.

Try for breakfast, lunch or supper:—

A Little Fruit; Saucer of Grape-Nuts and Cream; A Soft Boiled Egg; Slice of Crisp Toast, and a Cup of Postum, hot—or iced with sugar and lemon.

Surprising how cool, yet full of healthy energy and "go" one feels on such a meal no matter what the weather.

A sad-looking man went into a chemist's. "Can you give me a chemical," he asked, "that will drive from my mind the thought of sorrow and bitter recollection?"

"Then the chemist nodded, and put him a little dose of quinine and woodruff and rhubarb and Epsom salts and a dash of castor oil, and here it is to him, and for six months the man could think of nothing in the world except new schemes for getting the taste out of his mouth."

"Why, Briget, you surely don't consider those windows wretchedly," said the lady of the house, reproachfully. "Sure, I washed 'em nicely on the inside, now, so we can look out, but Briget, but I intentionally left 'em dirty on the outside so the man could think of nothing in the world except new schemes for getting the taste out of his mouth."

Best of All Investments

This Writer is of Opinion That One Can Not Get Better Than Put Money into a Boy.

A professor of the Chicago university has been indulging in figures relating to the cost of rearing a boy. He says that no matter how poor a boy's parents may be it cost $4,000 to bring him from babyhood to the age of eighteen. This is not an extravagant figure, but it is a large sum of money.

It is intended to be a cheap affair. The Ford "cheer" in this instance is used in its better sense, meaning good value for what it costs. The word "cheer" has been shamelessly abused. Such slang phrases as "cheer stee," "cheep John," etc., have given a bad name to the word.

TEACHES HIPPO TO DO FUNNY TRICKS

Keeper Gets on Big River Horse's Back

THEY ALSO PLAY TAG

"Jim" Crowley of New York's Central Park Menagerie and Caliph II, Bull Terrier, and Grown-up of Metropolis.

New York—Any one can teach a lion to jump through a hoop, and it doesn't take much experience as an animal trainer to make a tiger roll over and play dead; but when it comes to giving lessons in singing to a hippopotamus and teaching him to play the piano, it is a different matter. The man who does the instructing has to have a lot of patience.

"Jim" Crowley of the Central Park Menagerie has managed it, however, and now he is about the proudest trainer in the world, because he can give daily exhibitions with Caliph II, his place as rhapsodist with Caliph II.

Crowley, however, is the only man who has "taught" the hippopotamus to play tag. This was the best of his river horse can do and he has no fear of any one ever trying to take him out of his work with Caliph II.

First the keeper started to teach Caliph to play tag. This was the best of his river horse can do and he has no fear of any one ever trying to take him out of his work with Caliph II.

FOR SAVORY LOBSTER CUTLET

Delicious That Takes Long to Lose Favor

Lobster cutlets, an old standby, never prove tiresome. There is a piquancy of flavor in this connection which no other fish can give. The recipe is a call for a cupful of thick white sauce, made with two tablespoonfuls of butter, two of cream, and a dash of salt. Add to this a beaten egg, a teaspoonful of lemon juice and two cupfuls of lobster meat, and you have a delicious appetizer. Let this mixture, in a covered dish, stand until it is cold. Then shape it into cutlets half an inch thick, about three inches long and two wide. Dip them in beaten egg and the crumbs and fry in hot fat for just a moment or so until they are a light golden brown. Drain them on brown paper, garnish each with a small cauliflower, and serve immediately with Hollandaise sauce, which you can make by adding two tablespoonfuls of butter, two of cream, and a dash of salt. Add to this a beaten egg, a teaspoonful of lemon juice and two cupfuls of lobster meat, and you have a delicious appetizer.

COOK ONE-HALF tablespoonful of finely chopped onion and two tablespoonfuls of butter. Fry the onion in the butter until it is soft. Add to this two tablespoonfuls of finely chopped lobster meat, two of cream, and a dash of salt. Add to this a beaten egg, a teaspoonful of lemon juice and two cupfuls of lobster meat, and you have a delicious appetizer.
