BLACK ART IN WEST AFRICA

Sheep Ran into Kitchen. An amusing incident occurred recently in Perth, Scotland, a sheep one of a flock which was being driven down Leonard street, finding its way into a dwelling house, to be brought back to the fold only after the tenant of the house had caused much annoyance and inconvenience. As is usual in the case when sheep are being driven through a town, one of the animals showed a tendency to stray from the flock. A street dog which happened to be in the vicinity gave chase, and succeeded in herding the frightened sheep up the stair of its master's house. The animal was then chased right into the kitchen of the house to the great amazement of the lady owner, who shut the door and inquired pending the arrival of the shepherd. The dog drove a very tight course, and after no little difficulty the refractory sheep was restored to the fold.

Ants Which Plant and Baked. The extraordinary habits of the ant which have been known to man fully aware that such confusion will probably cost them their lives. A wasp, an old woman of Ohio, was suspected of being made so and sending out her familiar every night to lick a wound on her husband's ankle while he slept, and so prevent it from healing. The chief of the Negro society summoned her before a coroner's court, and she was condemned to death.

FIRST DICTATOR OF MEXICO. Herman Cortes, who Conquered Cuba, is Unquestionably Entitled to the Distinction. The first man of European blood to set foot on Mexico was Hernan Cortes, who died at Seville, Spain, 366 years ago on December 2. Cortes landed first on the little island of Cuba, the harbor of Vera Cruz, now the site of the famous prison for political offenders. From this point, as his headquarters, with the aid of Indian interpreters, he carried on a campaign that finally resulted in the complete destruction of the Aztec empire. A brilliant military leader, Cortes was also without the impediment of a conscience, and made use of treachery where force failed to accomplish his purpose. Emperor Montezuma and the heroic Quetzalcoatl perished, and their subjects were made the slaves of their Spanish master and forced to exploit the rich resources of the country for the enrichment of their conquerors. In 1523, three years after Cortes first landed on Mexico, the conquest was complete, and Cortes was appointed as the first governor of the new Spain, at Mexico was originally called. He was soon recalled, and in 1525 New Spain was made a viceroyalty, including all the Spanish possessions in North and Central America. Sixty-two viceroys successively governed Mexico, the last being Cristobal Colon de Sotomayor, who withdrew in 1821, when Mexico became free and independent.

The Fletcher party given by the young men at Arbuter hall Monday evening, was well attended when we take in consideration the extreme cold weather. The boys lost out but are not discouraged. All who attended enjoyed the social part and the music.

The snow did not drift badly and the mail carriers were able to serve most of the mailboxes. Many people realized that labor and hardships the carriers endure in order to get through and serve every patron they would have more sympathy.

We were very glad that the council has passed an ordinance forbidding people to spit on the sidewalks. The ordinance will be found in another column of this paper. The general record of the Burghers valley has been very good. The designation fee, comparatively modern in its application, derives from the castles of the middle ages. It is a very much more.

The pen is mightier than the sword, said the reader of a following paper. "I don't quite see how the 'pen' is mightier than the sword," commented the man with a practical opinion. "It probably refers to the fact that the sword is a very much more effective weapon than the pen, and is more easily used in a fight than the pen is in a battle."

WAPPENINGS in the BIG CITIES

Some Inside Facts About the "Great White Way"

NEW YORK.—Broadway is one of the longest and most remarkable streets in the world. It starts at Bowling Green, amidst towering office buildings and meanders off into the wilderness somewhere near Yonkers. Besides being noted for its night life, Broadway has more skyscrapers, cafes, restaurants, adora, get-rich-quick-men, pan-handlers and automobiles to the mile than any other thoroughfare in America. It also is the headquarters of the Forty-second Street Country club, which meets every mild and sunny afternoon at Forty-second street and Broadway.

Broadway's principal industry is raising coin. In this art it has become quite proficient. Two classes of people frequent Broadway. They are New Yorkers without money and out-of-towners with money and anxious to separate from it. The New Yorkers without money have developed the art of appearing to have it to such a fine point that it becomes a science. The art of removing superfluous coin from the persons of joy-seeking strangers along Broadway may also be numbered among the higher arts and sciences.

Although Broadway is haunted by bandits masquerading as head waiters cloak room boys, southern colonels, wealthy mine owners "just in from the west," but who were never further west than Hoboken; stock brokers, etc., it is usually safe to venture upon the thoroughfare after dark if one keeps one's senses.

Not all the dangers of Broadway come from the presence of professional "Broadwayites." There is a ferocious person known as a "taxi chuff," with whose cash acquiring instincts it is best not to experiment.

If the "taxi chuff" had not a taste for mechanics he probably would have become a headwaiter or a cloak room "boy" instead of a mere driver of a taxicab, although it is very much open to question as to which pays the most.

At Bowling Green, Broadway is the very spirit of innocence. It runs past Wall street as if it were afraid of becoming contaminated. To add to its respectability at this point Broadway nestles in its arms Trinity church, a religious institution which owns tenement houses on St. Paul's, where there is another church and graveyard. "How fortunate," sigh the night-lifers, frequenters of another part of Broadway, "that all of the churches and dead ones are at the lower end."

Ignoring the remarks of the gay Tenderloiners, Broadway dashes on uptown, past more office buildings, now not quite so tall, until Astor place is reached, just above which Grace church is met. From a thoroughfare of office buildings, Broadway has now changed into a street of plain commercial atmosphere. To tell the truth, however, Broadway has a commercial atmosphere for its entire length, although in the vicinity of Forty-second street it is skilfully disguised as "gayety."

When you begin to see the names of theatrical booking agents, when the cafes become more and more to the block, and the loiters on the corners greater and greater in number, you know you are then getting into the famous "White Light" district.

Being gay along Broadway is a business. Some New Yorkers know just how to be gay, and thereby infect others with the brand of gayety that induces them to spend their money.

When the Singing Hushed, the Crowd Hurried On

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—Coming down Meridian street one morning, shortly after 8 o'clock, just after crossing Ohio street, one heard a rich, sweet tenor voice. Pedestrians, hurrying to their work, listened to the sweet melody. Persons in the street looked up at the windows in the board of trade building and again over toward Christ church, as the melody seemed to come from that direction. However, no window was open and no one was to be seen. The strains grew louder and the words, "Ach cue la Morte" from "Il Trovatore," rang out clear and distinct.

Who is it! and where is it! was in everyone's mind and on every tongue. The sounds now came from the space between the board of trade building and Christ church, and the crowd moved in that direction. From the popular melody from "Il Trovatore" the singer took up the aria "Quando rapita in estasi," from "Lucia," and a hard and showy execution of that air followed.

By this time a policeman appeared and made inquiry as to the cause of the blockade. Apparently he was directed to the music which every one enjoyed. His attention being called to the singing he walked to where a little hunchbacked street sweeper, stooping over his work, busily engaged in sweeping the alley, and utterly oblivious to the crowd, was giving vent to his enthusiasm by song. "Shut up or I'll run you in for disturbing the peace!" The singing was hushed, the spell was broken, and the crowd hurried on.

Cat Drives Off Burglars, and Puts Out a Fire

SPOKANE, WASH.—Sergt. Fred Pearson of the Spokane police department has a remarkable kangaroo cat, and the cat has a unique record of accomplishments for a feline. A year ago this cat began its career of notoriety by awakening Sergeant Pearson in time to drive three burglars away from his home. A few weeks later the cat put out a fire behind the kitchen stove by rolling in the flames, while Mrs. Pearson was in another room. Still another exploit was added to the cat's list of adventures when it woke Pearson up at midnight and led him to where a cow was doing damage to the garden. These are just a few of this animal's strange experiences.

Sergeant Pearson says his cat demonstrated its abnormal powers along a different line the other day, when it qualified as a milk inspector. Arising early the other morning, Sergeant Pearson discovered the cat sitting beside the milk crock left out all night for the milkman. Sergeant Pearson called the cat to give it its breakfast of meat but the cat would not budge from its position beside the crock.

Soon the milkman arrived and poured out the supply for the Pearson home, the cat all the time watching him closely. The milkman returned the cover to the crock and left. For a number of minutes the cat watched the crock and then gradually crawled up to its side. "With a paw the cat struck the cover from the top of the crock and made a dive with its head into the depths of the milk. Pearson ran up to interfere, and, to his surprise, saw the cat holding a small minnow in its mouth."

Goats Eat House 'Til Owner Robert Brady Balks

CHICAGO.—The prisoner was given the usual opportunity, before hearing his doom pronounced, to say anything that might seem to him pertinent. He was Robert Brady, 7306 Langley avenue. The charge was "disorderly conduct" in kidnapping three goats.

"A year ago I wanted my shirt," Brady said.

"Well," said Judge Sullivan.

"A goat had eaten it."

"Well, well," the court said sharply.

"It ate all my underwear and my wife's and—"

"Passing the anecdotes," interrupted the judge, "what have you to say in your defense?"

"And the children's gingham aprons—"

The judge drummed impatiently on his desk.

And then the back fence disappeared, and the back porch, and one morning there was a goat nibbling at my front porch—and I live in a very small house and—"

Judge Sullivan smote his desk with a gavel.

"Did you kidnap those goats?"

"Yes."

"You had no excuse. You complain of what they eat. Don't you know that goats must live? Five dollars and costs for you, young man—and return the goats to their owner."

Mrs. John O'Neill owns the goats. She lives across the street.

INTO THE OPENFIELD

Should Go the Seeker of Spiritual as Well as of Physical Welfare.

Undoubtedly one of the most salutary discoveries of modern medical science is that of the value of fresh air as an agent of general bodily health. In the old days we used to muffle up our throats to keep out bronchitis, pad our chests against wind and sleep behind closed windows to escape the contagion of the night atmosphere. Today all this is changed. The victim of a bad throat or weak chest is taught to expose the affected parts to the outer air as much as possible. The fresh air treatment of tuberculosis is now universal. The wise man sleeps in winter as well as open—or, still better, out of doors! To keep out in the open air is in our time the first law of health.

Now, very impressive is it to note that what is true as regards the body is no less true as regards the soul. In the spiritual life as well as the physical, we are learning the value of fresh air. No longer do we drive the tempted soul into the ways of solitude or separate the sinner from contact with his fellows.

Active Life Beneficial.

No longer do we regard the monastery as the refuge of virtue or the dark silence of the hermit cell as the cure of spiritual corruption. We know today that retirement is dangerous and active life in the outer world always beneficial. If a man be overweighted with cares or beset with temptations or stricken with some loathsome moral cancer let him flee from the lonely chamber where he knows only dull brooding and sterile remorse and desert the towering altars where he makes confession and does penance. Let him take his anxiety or sin into the open air. Let him go down to the sea, and look unto the hills. Let him heed the skylark, and dance with the daffodils. Let him seek the company of the sun, and bow to the benediction of the stars. Let him, in a word, hold communion with Nature in her variable forms, and let his cares fall from him like a ragged garment and his sin vanish away as a little thing. The air will make him pure. The sun will give him light. The shining firmament will lift him to its own expanse of beauty. In the words of Mrs. Browning:

The little cares that fretted me I left them yesterday.
Among the fields above the sea,
Among the winds at play—
Among the husking of the corn
Wherein the wind popt the rod,
Wherein I thought the sun and god are born,
Out in the fields with God.

Getting Rid of Troubles.

—And if it is beneficial thus to bring our ills under the influence of Nature, how much more beneficial still is it to bring them under the influence of our fellows! What unworthy thought can flourish in the presence of a good man, or what ignoble motive survive the grace of a good woman? How shall we maintain our petty envies and deceptions in the face of little children, or keep our selfishness alive amid the sweet influences of comradeship and family love? Where is there cruel passion or secret sin which is strong enough to resist the wholesome impulses of the crowd? What we need, if we would keep our souls free of all unhealthiness, is simply the open air—the open air of rubbing elbows, clapping hands, making friends, knowing people, "going with the multitude"—above all, of seeking the near companionship, if possible the near companionship, of those whose good example, if nothing better, of men and women who are stronger, braver, purer than ourselves.

Out in the open, therefore! Away from solitudes and silences—from windows closed and doors barred against the world! And lo! it shall be seen that strength and beauty are the sanctuary of the soul as well as of the body.

There is satisfaction which accrues to the individual who is tired when the evening shadows fall with the weariness of an honest day's work.

Vices would lose its horror if we were compelled to do wrong and virtue its merit if we were slaves to vice. This is where independent manhood and womanhood must exert themselves. We are placed upon our merits. The worst kind of material of which you are made, Christ would have each become mainly men and womanly women because this type of life yields the largest returns to the individual and the age.

Man may "sow," but "God must give the increase." If we have been the recipients of large gifts they should be dedicated for service. The bountiful harvest should hasten the rule of the Prince of Peace in the hearts of a grateful people.

We err when we separate God's interest from the activities of the world which he has created.—The Rev. Frank W. Court.

Death as Natural as Life.

Where the being is kept in good working order, so that all parts grow old together, there is no fear or dread of death. Death is as natural as life, and just as good. I am ready and willing to go, confident that the change will be a higher step, and that my spirit will live somewhere, in some shape, and that the Great Power that has cared for me all these years will never desert me there.

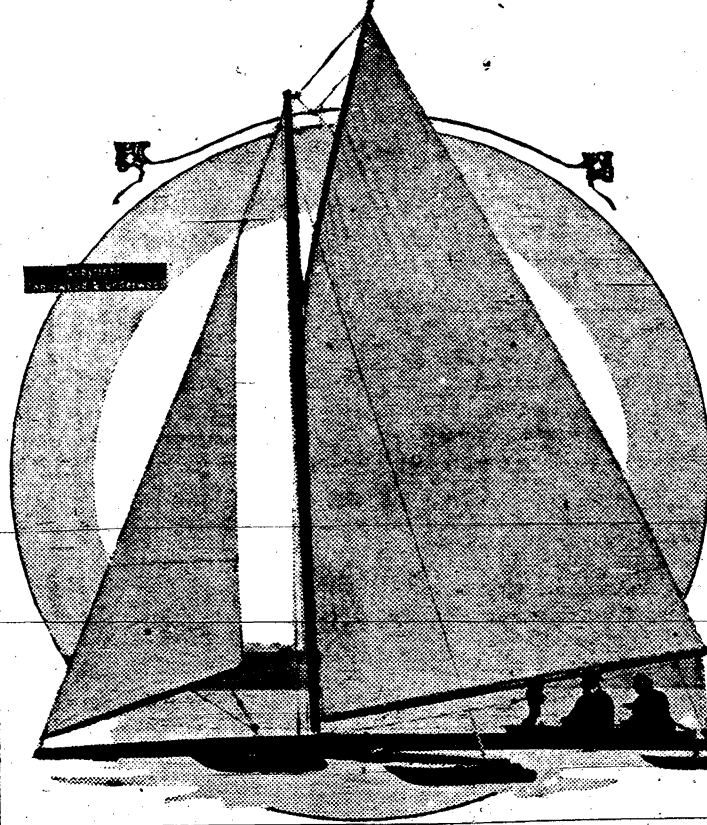

"The Great Architect of the universe is on our side—he is one with us, and I am ready to receive all changes that the Great Architect thinks are necessary to complete the work for which man was designed."

Man's business is this: Know thyself, and be at peace with God.—Elbert Hubbard.

Consolation in Labor.

There is nothing worth having that can be had without labor; labor, therefore, and improve the time. If we neglect our springs, our summers will be useless and contemptible, our harvest will be chaff, and the winter of our old age unrespected and desolate.—Sir Walter Scott

IMP PROVES FASTEST OF ALL ICE BOATS

Winner of Two Races at Red Bank, N. J.

In one of the most keenly contested races held on the North Shrewsbury River, New Jersey, this winter, the Imp, one of the fastest ice boats in the world, owned by Robert Heitmeier of New York, won the event in the best time this season. The race was held over a ten mile triangular course from a stake opposite the Allen dock. On the first of the four laps covered, the Imp took the lead and held it until the finish. Time 19:40. A strong northwest wind was blowing. The Imp also won the morning race in a series of races for the club trophy, she being the only boat to finish.

YOUNG MEN PUSH TO FRONT

Golf Cannot Be Called Old Man's Game Any More—Gladya Ravenscourt Not Eligible to Vote.

"What has aged to do with golf?" is a question on many sides in the course of a season. The natural answer would be "Nothing." Yet the developments of the last season show rather conclusively that it has. Francis Oulmet, the amateur who beat Var-don and Ray, the world-famed British professionals, for the open championship of America, is not yet twenty-one. Jerome D. Traverser, ten times the national amateur title holder, an accomplishment never before equaled, is only twenty-seven. Miss Gladya Ravenscourt, the British girl who won the American title, would not be eligible to vote if equal suffrage were in order.

As in other forms of sport, youth will be served. It is true of golf, despite the fact that it has been called an "old man's game."

TO DEVELOP TENNIS PLAYERS

Eastern Club Plans to Train Youngsters in Knee Trousers to Beat Pacific Coast Lads.

—Lawn tennis players will be caught in early youth and trained to be the McLoughlins of the future, according to the plan voted on at the annual meeting of the West Side Tennis club in New York.

The members favored the suggestion of the national association that the club open the way for at least 200 junior members to join.

The boys will be developed so that the youngsters of the east may reach that point of skill where they may compete against the wonderful young widders of the racquet from the Pacific coast. The plan is the first move ever made in this section of the country to provide for the young beginners of the game.

The West Side Tennis club will make an application for the Davis cup international matches on its new courts at Forest Hills, Long Island, and expects to get the prize.

The preliminary matches for this famous trophy, it is stated, will be played in cities outside of New York, with Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago as the most likely to be selected.

Another Speedy Johnson.

The Boston Red Sox declare that they will have a Johnson that will be a rival to Walter Johnson in another year. Johnson comes from the Syracuse team of last year, of which Freddie Payne, the old White Sox catcher, is manager.

YALE WON FOUR TITLES DURING COLLEGE YEAR

While waits are coming from the admirers of Yale university deploring the weak showing of the institution in sports, it might be well to look over the list of the year's years college championships and see if the Blue is really so decadent as generally believed. Here is a list of the college championships of the country, as won by the various institutions:

Harvard—Football, soccer, tennis, lacrosse, hockey.

Yale—Baseball, swimming, golf, shooting.

Cornell—Cross-country, basketball, wrestling.

Pennsylvania—Track, gymnastics.

Columbia—Fencing, chess.

Syracuse—Rowing.

Princeton—Polo.

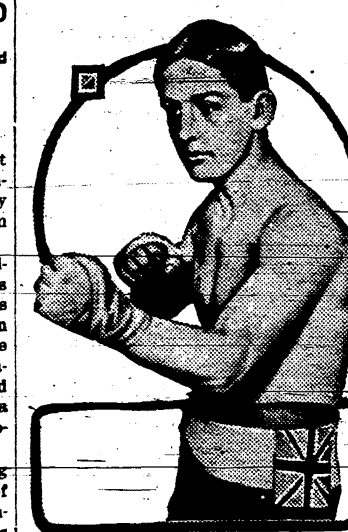

CARPENTIER IS YOUNG BOXER

Heavyweight of Europe Will Be Only Twenty on Next Birthday Anniversary—Bogan Early.

Georges Carpentier, the heavyweight champion pugilist of Europe and the idol of the French sporting public, is to be given a big "blowout" in Paris on the occasion of his twentieth birthday anniversary.

In view of his remarkable achievements in the ring, it is difficult to realize that Carpentier is still in his teens. It is not so difficult to understand, however, when it is remembered that he began his career as a fighter at the early age of twelve years.

At that time he weighed but 75 pounds and was known as the "Little Demon." At the age of thirteen he was proclaimed the amateur bantam champion of France. One year later he won the feather honors. In 1912 he took the European middleweight championship from Jim Sullivan, and then he began cleaning up the heavyweights.

His latest victory was his decisive win over Bombarrier Wells, the big Britisher. In this and other of his recent fights Carpentier showed a complete change of style from that which he displayed in the early part of his career. Formerly it was perfectly apparent to every spectator that he fought for the love of fighting. He smiled from going to gong and never sought to avoid punishment if by taking his medicine he could give a larger dose of the same stuff to his opponent. But now it is evident that he regards the game as a business.

The old smile is missing and he is cool-calculating in the ring. What he has lost in youthful enthusiasm he has gained in a better knowledge of the science of the game.

BIG STADIUMS IN AUSTRALIA

Antipodes Making Strong Bid as Boxing Center With Three Pavilions—Game Is Flourishing.

Australia is trying to corner the boxing market. The game of the gloves is in a highly flourishing condition out there, and the prevalence of "palmey days" has caused new clubs to form and new stadiums to spring up like mushrooms.

Naturally, competition is keen. In the scramble for talent pugilists the world over have been offered antipodean contracts at remunerative rates. Georges Carpentier, the Frenchman who defeated Bombarrier Wells, is the latest to accept an engagement from the Sydney matchmakers, according to all accounts, and he will be on hand in the city named to box Eddie McGourty or some other opponent at Easter time.

Here in this country numerous boxers of note and quite a few of the other kind are receiving Australian offers, and are in doubt as to the advisability of accepting them.

Not so long ago the Rushcutters Bay stadium had the field to itself. Now two other full-sized stadiums—the Olympic and the Newton—have been built on the outskirts of Sydney, and still others are projected.

One of these will be the headquarters of the National Sporting club of Australia, which has just been formed and which has a capital of $250,000.

Under these circumstances the fact that the Australian matchmakers are raking the globe for fighters is nothing to marvel at. It is to wonder, however, what the result of the ring renaissance will be.

Dreyfus Is Blamed.

Barney Dreyfus, owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, is blamed now for the existence of the Federal League. He refused to allow President Barrow of the International League to put the Jersey City franchise in Pittsburgh in 1912. Barney might as well give his own franchise away.

Marsans in Condition.

Frank Bancroft of the Cincinnati club, who went to Cuba to sign Marsans, says that the little outfielder is in excellent condition, as he has taken on a little weight during the winter and he was in need of a few extra pounds behind his big bat.

SWEEPSTAKE UPON SWEEPSTAKE

CANADA ADDING OTHERS TO ITS SERIES OF VICTORIES.

A Manitoba Steer Carries Off Similar Honors to Those Won by a Half-Brother in 1912.

When Glencarnock I, the Aberdeen-Angus steer, owned by Mr. McGregor of Brandon, Manitoba, carried off the sweepstakes at the Chicago Live Stock Show in 1912, it was considered to be a great victory for barley, oats and grass versus corn. So that there might be no doubt of the superiority of barley feeding, Manitoba climato, and judgment in selecting the animal, Mr. McGregor placed in competition in 1913, another Aberdeen-Angus, a half-brother to the animal that won last year and secured a second victory in the second year. In other classes he had excellent winnings, but the big victory was the sweepstakes for the best steer. This victory proved that Manitoba-grown barley and oats, and prairie hay, had properties better than any contained in corn, which in the past has been looked upon as being superior to other grains in fattening and finishing qualities. Not only this, but Glencarnock's victory proves that the climate of the prairie provinces of western Canada, in combination with rich foods that are possessed by that country, tends to make cattle raising a success at little cost.

Other winnings at the live stock show which placed western Canada in the class of big victories were: Three firsts, seven seconds, and five other prizes in Clydesdales.

The winners, Bryce, Taber, Sutherland, Sinton, Mutch, McLean, Hagger, Leckie and the University of Saskatchewan are like family names in Saskatchewan. Each one had "the goods" that won honor to himself and combined made a name and record for Saskatchewan.

Look at the recent victories won by western Canada within the past three years.

In February, 1911, Hill & Sons of Lloydminster, Saskatchewan, showed a peck of oats at the National Corn Exposition, held at Columbus, Ohio, and carried off the Colorado silver trophy, valued at $1,500.

In February, 1913, the same men, father and son, had a similar victory at Columbia, N. C., and should they win in 1914 at Dallas, Texas, they will own the trophy.

In 1911, Seager Wheeler of Roshera won $7000 in gold at the New York Live Show for the best 100 pounds of wheat.

In 1912 at the Dry Farming Congress at Lethbridge, Alberta, Mr. Holmes of Cardston won the $2,500 Rumley engine for best wheat in the world.

In 1913, at the Dry Farming Congress, held at Tulsa, Okla., Mr. P. Gerlack of Allen, Saskatchewan, carried off the honors and a threshing machine for the best bushel of wheat shown in competition with the world.

In 1913 at the International Dry Farming Congress at Tulsa, Okla., Canada won the majority of the world's honors in individual classes, and seven out of the sixteen sweepstakes, including the grand prize for the best bushel of hard wheat.

The grand prize, a threshing machine, was won by Paul Gerlack for best bushel of hard wheat, which weighed 71 pounds to the bushel, and was of the Marquis variety.

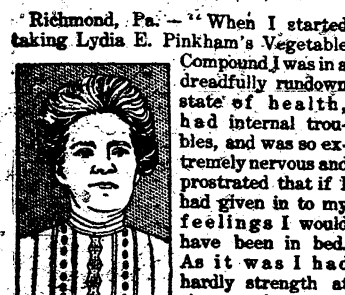

In the district in which the wheat was grown that won this prize, there were thousands of acres this year that would have done as well. Mr. Gerlack is to be congratulated, as well as the province of Saskatchewan, and western Canada as a whole, for the great success that has been achieved in both grain and cattle.

Other prizes at the same place were:

- Best peck of barley, Nicholas Tetmiger, Claresholm, Alberta.
- Best peck of oats, E. J. Lanigan, Elton, Saskatchewan.
- Best bushel of flax, John Piewa, Carnduff, Saskatchewan.
- Best sheaf of barley, A. H. Crossman, Kinderley, Saskatchewan.
- Best sheaf of flax, R. C. West, Kinderley, Saskatchewan.
- Best sheaf of oats, Arthur Perry, Cardston, Alberta.
- In district exhibits, Swift Current, Saskatchewan, won the Board of Trade Award, with Maple Creek second.
- Other exhibitors and winners were: Red Pike spring wheat, E. A. Frederick, Maple Creek.
- Other variety of hard spring wheat, S. Englehart, Abernethy, Sask.
- Black oats, Alex Woolley, Horton, Alta.
- Western rye grass, W. S. Creighton, Sheaf of Red Pike wheat, R. H. Carter, Fort Qu'Appelle, Sask.
- Sheaf of Marquis wheat, C. N. Carney, Dyrast, Sask.
- Oats, any other variety, Wm. S. Simpson, Famburn, Sask.
- Two-rowed barley, R. H. Carter, Fort Qu'Appelle, Sask.
- Six-rowed barley, R. H. Carter, Fort Qu'Appelle, Sask.
- Western rye grass, Arthur Perry, Cardston, Alta.
- Alsike clover, Seager Wheeler, Roshera, Sask.—Advertisement.

WOMAN WOULD NOT GIVE UP

Though Sick and Suffering; At Last Found Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Richmond, Pa.—"When I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was in a dreadfully rundown state of health, had internal troubles, and was so extremely nervous and prostrated that if I had given in to my feelings I would have been in bed. As it was I had hardly strength at times to be on my feet and what I did do was by a great effort. I could not sleep at night and of course felt very bad in the morning, and had a steady headache.

"After taking the second bottle I noticed that the headache was not so bad, I rested better, and my nerves were stronger. I continued its use until it made a new woman of me, and now I can hardly realize that I am able to do so much as I do. Whenever I know any woman in need of a good medicine I highly praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. FRANK CLARK, 3146 N. Tulip St., Richmond, Pa.

Women Have Been Telling Women for forty years how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored their health when suffering with female ills. This accounts for the enormous demand for it from coast to coast. If you are troubled with any ailment peculiar to women why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? It will pay you to do so. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

GO TO WESTERN CANADA NOW

The opportunity of securing free homesteads of 160 acres each, and the low priced lands of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, will soon have passed.

Canada offers a hearty welcome to the settler, to the man with a family looking for a home, to the farmer's son, to the renter, to all who wish to live under better conditions.

Canada's grain yield in 1913 is the talk of the world. Luscious Grapes give cheap fodder for large herds; cost of raising and fattening for market is a trifle.

The sum realized for Beef, Butter, Milk and Cheese will pay fifty per cent on the investment.

YUCATAN, the AMERICAN EGYPT

SCENE IN YUCATAN

AGES past, so the Greek historians tell us, there was a continent called Atlantis that was peopled by a highly cultured race. Warriors they were and on conquest bent. The Greek gods, fearing the subjugation of their own people, cast about for means to stay the victorious onrush of the Atlantean, and finding none, appealed to eye-eyed Juno, who persuaded Jove to destroy the Atlanteans by sinking Atlantis to the bottom of the sea.

Tradition has it that at the same time another continent rose, like Aphrodite, from the sea, and that some of the Atlantean survivors escaped into this newborn country and there established another empire. How much of truth and how much of romance there is in this is impossible to state, but there is one thing certain, the peninsula of Yucatan is an infant, comparatively speaking, and of septic parentage. Its entire area is nothing but limerock (madrepore) containing the shells of living species, and that of fossils bridging the Pliocene and pleistocene periods, about 12,000 years ago, the traditional date of the Atlantis disaster.

Yucatan a Strange Land. Yucatan from a topographical and geographical point of view is a strange and remarkable land. It is practically an absolute flat and there are no rivers and no lakes as generally known. The crust of rock covering the peninsula is very porous and full of immense subterranean caverns. The abundant rainfall of ages filtered through this crust and filled these caverns, these great masses of water under pressure gradually perforated the rock and found an outlet to the sea underground. The crust over these subterranean streams in some places, caving, formed pools, nearly all circular and with steep sides and with a depth of water from a few feet to several hundreds, but rarely exceed 200 to 300 feet in diameter.

The pools—caverns as they are called there—are not plentiful and not all have potable water. None have really good water. All are heavily charged with the different salts. No metals or any of their chemical compounds or combinations are found on the peninsula, but on the south and where the peninsula connects with the mainland and the geological formation changes, there are large copper deposits, which were known to the Maya. His smelting furnaces, and the scorias from them can be found today along the banks of the Rio Honda, the boundary of British Honduras and Mexico.

Of soil there is very little. Planters in that country do not buy plows, but use giant powder to cultivate and plant with; still it seems paradoxical, the whole peninsula is covered with a thick, luxuriant and barely penetrable forest of precious hardwoods, such as mahogany, cedar, rosewood, satinwood, lignum vitae, ebony and hundreds of other beautiful woods. Predominating is the achras zapote, or the chicle gum tree. There are enough of these to make chewing gum for the whole world. This is the land of which the Maya made himself the lord and master when he came from the mystic land of "Weknownot." At a later period, probably a thousand years before the Spanish conquest, there came to him from across the sea and from the west some mystic wise men, who became his teachers and instructors in the arts and sciences.

The peninsula, away from the highway of nomadic tribes and nations and unknown at that time to the captains of industry, was the home of the dove of peace, the symbol of which to the Maya was the quetzal, the jewel of the jewelbirds.

The Maya, not wishing to keep up an enormous standing army to keep peace or to defend his country from a foreign invasion, not being bothered within by trust, monopolies, loans, schemes or the high cost of living, devoted their time to the mystic and wise men, who evidently found a willing and apt pupil in the Maya, as the result shows. They soon became expert stone cutters, masons, painters and architects. They were excellent astronomers, proof of which is their calendar, and naturally they must have known the fundamental elements of mathematics. Having passed the stage of pictographs, they had evolved a system of hieroglyphics from which to the letter was but a step. And so they prospered, multiplied and built their magnificent and stupendous temples and palaces.

But as time passed they became (as it always was and will be with men) divided against each other, with disastrous results. A few decades before the coming of the Spaniard, one of these internecine wars commenced and did not end until the common danger compelled them to lay aside their petty quarrels and combine against their great foe, who slew them by the hundred thousands.

EARLY NEWSPAPERS PRINTED WANT ADS

"Help" and "Situation Wanted" Advertisements Found in German Publications of 1591.

Not long after the first newspapers were printed the want ad was born. It did not take ingenious men long to see its value, but it did not come into general use for many years.

What is said to have been the first newspaper published in England was the English Mercury. It is doubtful, however, whether the copies preserved in England are real ones or forgeries. This paper was published in 1593, but newspapers did not become at all common until the Cromwellian war started.

The first paper in America was the Boston Newsletter, published in 1704. Pamphlets or small books of news appeared in Vienna and throughout Germany as early as 1524. The Frenchmen, although they had no newspapers until the Journal General d'Affiches was started on October 14, 1612, saw the value of want ads before any of the other nations.

The English Mercury appeared during the Armada panic and was "by authority imprinted at London by Christopher Baker, her highness printer," to calm the fears of the people. It was not in a strict sense a newspaper.

During the war both sides had their party organs. The Weekly News, which was founded in 1622, was the first to appear on the scene, but it did not contain ads.

Mercury seemed to have been the popular name for the papers that began to spring up on all sides during those troubled times. There was a Mercury Acheronticus which was supposed to contain weekly news gathered in the infernal region; a Mercury Democritus containing news from the moon, and a Mercury Mastix which contained nothing but criticisms of any other newspaper with the name of Mercury.

Among the titles of enterprising sheets at that time one finds the Dutch Spy, Scots Dove, Parliament Kite, and the Screech Owl.

Early Newspapers Came High. The Daily Courant, the first number of which appeared in Queen Anne's reign, was the first of the dailies, and for a long time had the field to itself, but in 1724 the Daily Post and the Daily Journal blossomed forth as rivals. During the reign of George I. publications in England increased rapidly and in 1753 over 7,000,000 papers were sold, which number was increased to over 15,000,000 in 1792.

In the meantime the north country was entering the journalistic field. During December of 1817 the town Louth gave to James McEwen the exclusive privilege to publish a newspaper three times a week on condition that "the said James should give one copy of his print to the magistrates" before publication. This paper is still being published, and apparently the publisher still could be a penny, but a half penny could not be refused.

Weak Women!

Some women are weak because of ills that are common in Girlhood—Womanhood and Motherhood.

The prescription which Dr. R. V. Pierce uses most successfully—in diseases of women—which has stood the test of nearly half a century—is

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Take this in liquid or tablet form as a tonic and regulator!

Mrs. Kate D. Richardson, of Beasley, Essex Co., Va., says: "I esteem it a pleasure to testify to the wonderful curative qualities of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. For some years I suffered greatly with weakness, nervousness, and general debility. Several physicians had been consulted, but gradually grew worse. One of my friends told me of the good results of your 'Favorite Prescription.' I went to the drug store and got a bottle, and after taking it with the 'Pleasant Pellets' I commenced to feel better. I never knew what happiness was, for I was always sick and complaining and made others as well as myself unhappy. So you see what a debt I owe you!"

WORKMEN OBSERVE THE RULE

regulations of Foremen. However, Do Not Prevent Them Getting Their Accustomed Beverage.

In the lower section of Manhattan a new office building is in the course of erection. Hundreds of men, ironworkers, carpenters, plasterers, etc., are employed. The majority of these workmen drink beer. Recently the foremen of the different gangs combined and agreed to issue the following order:

"Beer will be allowed only once a day, and that is at noon time, and one man is to go for it." Now, persons who happen to be in the vicinity of the building around 11:45 o'clock see a very curious sight. It is this: A man emerges from the newly finished building with about our beer cans on one arm and a large starter tub embraced in the other. He starts in the direction of Church street. In about fifteen minutes he can be seen on his return trip with the four can overflowing on one arm and the butter tub still firmly embraced and filled to the top.

ECZEMA SPREAD OVER BODY

Roxbury, Ohio.—"When my little boy was two weeks old he began breaking out on his cheeks. The eczema began just with pimples and they seemed to itch so badly he would scratch his face and cause a matter to run. Wherever that matter would touch it would cause another pimple until it spread all over his body. It caused disfigurement while it lasted. He had fifteen places on one arm and his head had several. The deepest places on his cheeks were as large as a silver dollar on each side. He was so restless at night we had to put mittens on him to keep him from scratching them with his finger nails. If he got a little too warm at night it seemed to hurt badly.

"We tried a treatment and he didn't get any better. He had the eczema about three weeks when we began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I bathed him at night with the Cuticura Soap and spread the Cuticura Ointment on and the eczema left." (Signed) Mrs. John White, Mar. 19, 1913.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 52-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."—Adv.

Mercury seemed to have been the popular name for the papers that began to spring up on all sides during those troubled times. Among the titles of enterprising sheets at that time one finds the Dutch Spy, Scots Dove, Parliament Kite, and the Screech Owl.

Early Newspapers Came High. The Daily Courant, the first number of which appeared in Queen Anne's reign, was the first of the dailies, and for a long time had the field to itself, but in 1724 the Daily Post and the Daily Journal blossomed forth as rivals. During the reign of George I. publications in England increased rapidly and in 1753 over 7,000,000 papers were sold, which number was increased to over 15,000,000 in 1792.

In the meantime the north country was entering the journalistic field. During December of 1817 the town Louth gave to James McEwen the exclusive privilege to publish a newspaper three times a week on condition that "the said James should give one copy of his print to the magistrates" before publication. This paper is still being published, and apparently the publisher still could be a penny, but a half penny could not be refused.

The natural result of such a tax was that the price of the papers was high and few people were able to buy them. At one time it was necessary for book sellers to rent out the Times for a penny an hour and a newspaper for two or three days old was considered a luxury.

German Paper Had First Want Ad. Meanwhile advertising had been growing, and not to let such a good chance get away from them, the government officials laid a tax on advertisements. In 1833 this tax amounted to three shillings six pence for each advertisement, and the revenue from this tax paid by the newspapers was over $850,000. Four years later the tax had been reduced to one shilling six pence an advertisement, but in the first six months of that year 460 papers in England paid more than $275,000 for 27,014,529 stamps required by 193,968 advertisements published. In 1853 the tax was taken off of advertisements.

The Journal General d'Affiches—called commonly the "Petites Affiches"—ran real want advertisements almost from the start. In its columns were found advertisements of domestic looking for employers and of employers looking for servants, of public and private sales, legal notices, and similar advertising. The title of this newspaper never has been changed, and today it contains many "help" and "situation wanted" advertisements of domestics.

Probably the first want advertisement that appeared in Germany was

Opportunity for Chicken Raisers. Chicken raisers who are not pushing their stock, first by advertisement, second, through the parcel post, are letting the opportunity of their lives pass them by. A conspicuous three-line ad, saying that you have fresh eggs and fine fowls for sale at your address, and to be sent by parcel post, will bring finally more custom than you are now prepared for—that is to say, if you keep up to the best in quality and neatness in marketing. Dirty eggs, skinny fowls, put up in old baskets, or any sort of higgledy-piggledy way, will never prove attractive to the people who must have good and tidy stuff. How to market is almost as much an art as how to breed and rear.

Tough Luck. "I always have tough luck." "What's the matter?" "I paid Brown $5 that I borrowed from him several weeks ago." "Where's the tough luck?" "He said afterward that he'd gotten all about it."
