theater of the European war. The National Geographical society gives an interesting description of this region.

Samland is an unsung strip of cheerless plain from which the whole known world has purchased for centuries. It is the heart of ancient amberiand, and it has remained virtually unknown to the ultimate consumers of its product from early Phoenician times down to the present day. It still supplies the bulk of the world's amber, and the pipe-stem or cigar-holder or jewel that is of this fragrant, transflucture, laked over all with lakes of every size and figure, lakes similar to the glassing possective and floor plans.

Thales of Miletus, an ancient Greek philosopher, first of the physicists, established the mystic powers of amber, and incidentally dabbled in electricity when he found that it would attract things after a little rubbing. From history's dawn to the present day may people have had (faith in amber's paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor. SYNOPSIS.

On Misery creek Sally Miller finds George Lescott, a landscape painter, unconscious. Jesse Purvy of the Hollman clan has been shot and Samson is suspected of the crime. Samson denies it. The shooting breaks the truce in the Hollman-South feud. Jim Hollman hunts with bloodhounds the man who shot Purvy. The bloodhounds lose the trail at Spieer South's door. Lescott discovers artistic-sublity in Samson. While sketching with Lescott on the mountain Tamarack discovers Samson to a jeering crowd of mountainers. Samson thrashes him and denounces him as the "truce-buster" who shot Purvy. At Wile McCager's dance Samson tells the South clan' that he is going to leave the mountains. Lescott goes home to New York. Samson blos Spieer and Sally farewell and follows. In New York Samson studies art and learns much of city ways. Drennie Lescott persuades Wilfred Horton, her dilettante lover, to do anan's work in the world. Prompted by her love. Sally teaches herself to write. Horton throws himself into the business world and becomes well hated by predatory financiers and politicians. At a Bohemian resort Samson meets William Farbish, sporty social parasite, and Horton's enemy. Farbish sees Samson and Drennie dining together unchaperoned at the Wigwam roadhouse. He conspires with others to make Horton jealous and succeeds.

Samson did not appear at the Lescott house for two weeks after that. He had begun to think that, if his going there gave embarrassment to the girl who had been kind to him, it were better to remain away.

"I don't belong here," he told himself, bitterly. "I reckon everybody that knows me in New York, except the Lescotts, is laughing at me behind my back."

He worked fiercely, and threw into his work such fire and energy that it came out again converted into boldness of stroke and an almost savage vigor of drawing. The instructor nodded his head over the easel, and passed on to the next student without having left the defacing mark of his relentless crayon. To the next pupil,

Watch the way that man South draws. He's not clever. He's elementally sincere, and, if he goes on, the first thing you know he will be a por trait painter. He won't merely draw and virtues and vices showing out

And Samson met every gaze with smoldering savagery, searching for some one who might be laughing at him openly, or even covertly, instead of behind his back. The long-suffering fighting lust in him craved opportunity to break out and relieve the pressure on his soul. But no one

One afternoon late in November, a hint of blizzards swept snarling down the Atlantic seaboard from the polar floes, with wet flurries of snow and Kenmore club had its lodge, the live decoys stretched their clipped wings, and raised their green necks restively into the salt wind, and listened. With dawn, they had heard, faint and far away the first notes of that wild chorus with which the skies would ring until the southerly migrations ended flying water fowl.

Then it was that Farbish dropped in with marching orders, and Samson, rning to be away where there wer open skies, packed, George Lescott's borrowed paraphernalia, and prepared to leave that same night.

While he was packing, the telephone rang, and Samson heard Adrienne's voice at the other end of the wire.

"Where have you been hiding?" she demanded. "I'll have to send a truant officer after you." "I've been very busy," said the man "and I reckon, after all, you can't civilize a wolf. I'm afraid I've been wasting your time."

Possibly, the miserable tone of the voice told the girl more than the

SNAKES WERE ALL DROWNED

But Animals, Liberated From Their Cages Just in Time, Swim Ashore From Wrecked Scow.

Tied to tall trees on the banks of the Skagit river is one of the strangest collection of animals ever harbored in this neck of the woods, as the result of the wreck of a scow towed by the gasoline launch Tango, carrying the 50 members and full properties, exhibition tents, and cages full of the Sound Amusement company of Seattle, bound for this city.

The launch dragged itself across a snag on the North Fork, but in pulling the scow over, a plank was ripped from the bottom and it sank

The men on the Tango sprang on the scow and tore open the cages to illustrator, member of the faculty of free the animals, which leaped into the the Carnegie Institute of Technology, water and swam ashore. There they scattered in the woods and kept the showmen busy all day rounding them

The scow sank before the snakes could be liberated and locked in the cages, the wriggling, writhing reptiles friendliness of voice, and the same old note like the music of a reed instrument. Samson felt so comforted and reassured that he laughed through

"I've been keeping away from you, he volunteered, "because I've had a lapse into savagery, and haven't been fit to talk to you. When I get back. I'm coming up to explain. And, in the meantime, I'll telephone."

On the train Samson was surprised to discover that, after all, he had Mr. William Farbish for a traveling companion. That gentleman explained that he had found an opportunity to play truant from business for a day or two, and wished to see Samson comfortably ensconced and introduced.

The first day Farbish and Samson had the place to themselves, but the next morning would bring others.

The next day, while the mountaineer was out on the flats, the party of men at the club had been swelled to a total of six, for in pursuance of the carefully arranged plans of Mr. Farbish Mr. Bradburn had succeeded in inducing Wilfred Horton to run down for a day or two of the sport he loved. When Horton arrived that afternoon, he found his usually even temper ruffled by bits of maliciously broached gossip, until his resentment against Samson South had been fanned into danger heat. He did not know that South also was at the club, and he did not that afternoon go out to the blinds, but so far departed from his usual custom as to permit himself to sit for several hours in the club grill.

And yet, as is often the case in care fully designed affairs, the one element that made most powerfully for the success of Farbish's scheme was pure accident. The carefully arranged meeting between the two men, the adroitly incited passions of each, would still have brought no clash, had not Wilfred Horton been affected by the flushing effect of alcohol. Since his college days, he had been invariably abstemious. Tonight marked an exception.

He was rather surprised at the cordiality of the welcome accorded him, for, as chance would have it, except for Samson South, whom he had not yet seen, all the other sportsmen were men closely allied to the political and financial elements upon which he had been making war. Still, since they seemed willing to forget for the time that there had been a breach, he was equally so. Just now, he was feeling such bitterness for the Kentuckian that the foes of a less personal sort seemed unimportant.

In point of fact, Wilfred Horton had spent a very bad day. The final straw had broken the back of his usually unruffled temper, when he had found in his room on reaching the Kenmore a copy of a certain New York weekly paper, and had read a page, which chanced to be lying face up (a chance carefully prearranged). It was an item of which Farbish had known in advance of publication, but Wilfred would never have seen that sheet had it not been so carefully brought to his attention. There were hints of the strange infatuation which a certain young woman seemed to entertain for a partially civilized stranger who had made his entree to New York via the police court, and who vore his hair-long in imitation of a biblical character of the same name. The supper at the Wigwam inn was mentioned and the character of the place intimated. Horton felt this ob lectionable innuendo was directly traceable to Adrienne's ill-judged friendship for the mountaineer, and he bitterly blamed the mountaineer. And, while he had been brooding on these matters a man acting as Farbish's ambassador had dropped into his room since Farbish himself knew

"Why did you insist on my putting hat in my pocket"-Samson took out the pistol, and threw it down on the table-cloth in front of Wilfred, where it struck and shivered a half-filled wine-glass-"and why did 'you warn me that this man meant to kill me? was meant to be your catspaw to put may be a barbarian and a savage, but I can smell a rat—if it's dead enough."

For an instant there was absolute and hushed calm. Wilfred Horton picked up the discarded weapon and looked at it in bewildered stupefac tion, then slowly his face flamed with distressing mortification.

"Any time you want to fight me"-Samson had turned again to face him and was still talking in his deadly quiet voice-"except tonight, you can find me. I've never been hit before without hitting back. That blow has got to be paid for-hut the man that's really responsible has got to pay first. Samson looked around, and his feat-When I fight you, I'll fight for myself, terest. It wouldn't interest these other gentlemen." He opened his hand, and "Here, eat that!"

Farbish with a frightened glance at the set face of the man who was advancing upon him, leaped back, and drew from his pocket a pistol-it was an exact counterpart of the one with which he had supplied Samson.

With a panther-like swiftness, the Kentuckian leaped forward, and struck up the weapon, which spat one ineffective bullet into the rafters. There was a momentary scuffle of swaying bodies and a crash under which the table groaned amid the shattering of glass and china. Then, slowly, the conspirator's body bent back at the walst, until its shoulders were stretched on the disarranged cloth and the white face, with purple veins swelling on the forehead, stared up between two brown hands that gripped its throat.

"Swallow that!" ordered the moun taineer.

For just an instant, the company stood dumfounded, then a strained, unnatural voice broke the silence. "Stop him, he's going to kill the man!

The odds were four to two, and with a sudden rally to the support of their chief plotter, the other conspirators rushed the figure that stood throt-tling his victim. But Samson South was in his element. The dammed-up wrath that had been smoldering during these last days was having a tempestuous outlet. He had found men who, in a gentlemen's club to which he had come as a guest, sought to use him as a catspaw and murderer.

As they assaulted him, en masse he seized a chair, and swung it flail like about his head. For a few moments, there was a crashing of glass and china, and a clatter of furniture and a chaos of struggle.

Samson South stood for a momen panting in a scene of wreckage and disorder. The table was littered with shivered glasses and decanters and chinaware. The furniture was scattered and overturned. Farbish was weakly leaning to one side in the seat to which he had made his way. The men who had gone down under the heavy blows of the chair lay quietly where they had fallen.

Wilfred Horton stood waiting. The whole affair had transpired with such celerity and speed that he had hardly understood it, and had taken no part. But, as he met the gaze of the disordered figure across the wreckage of a dinner-table, he realized that now with the preliminaries settled, he who had struck Samson in the face must give satisfaction for the blow. Horton was sober, as cold sober as though he had jumped into ice-water, and though he was not in the least afraid, he was mortified, and, had apology at such a time been possible would have made it. He knew that he had misjudged his man; he saw the outlines of the plot as plainly as Samson had seen them, though more tardily.

Samson's toe touched the which had dropped from Farbish's hand and he contemptuously kicked it to one side. He came back to his

For the moment, Horton did not speak, and Samson slowly went on: "But, whether we fight or not, you've I've ever refused to let a man be my enemy if he wanted to. I've got my reasons. ## INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LESSON FOR JANUARY 17

THE CALL OF GIDEON.

LESSON TEXT-Judges 6:11-12, 33-40, read entire chapter.
GOLDEN TEXT—Blossed is the man whom thou choosest.—Ps. 65-4.

We have before us now the fourth apostasy and servitude of Israel, one which seems to have affected chiefly the four northernmost tribes (v. 85). In preparation for the call and work of Gideon, the sixth judge, "the children of Israel cried unto heaven." and God sent unto them a prophet who enouraged their flagging faith in Jehovah and turned them back to him (6:1-10). The now impoverished and overridden Israelites, who had enjoyed prosperity after their former deliverance, had again done evil and must first judge their sin and obey the voice of Jehovah before they could receive a message of hope and deliverance through one of Jehovah's prophets. God's Call to Gideon.

Gideon in Prayer, vv. 11-13. That the "angel of Jehovah" was a manifestation of Jehovah is clear from a careful reading of verse 13. There the first use of the word "lord" is not capitalized, whereas in the second in-stance it is capitalized. This angel was a foreshadowing of the incarnation in Jesus of Nazareth. He is clearly identified with Jehovah (see Judges 2:1, 2: Gen. 16:10, 13, R. V.). It was thus that Abraham saw (John 8:56). "The angel of the Lord" at no time appears after Jesus came, as the revised text shows. The nomadic Midianites brought ruin to Israel as the bitter fruit of its sin. Then was uttered the cry for relief (Ps. 130). The father of Gideon is passed by, for he was a worshiper of Baal (v. 25). They who bear the vessels of the Lord, those through whom he works, must have clean hands. God's call to Gideon came to him (1) while he was alone, as he was threshing wheat in the hiding place of a winepress, for he dare not thresh in the customary open place of a threshing floor. This call came to him (2) as he was faithfully performing his duty, that one nearest his hand (v. 11, Ex. 8:1, 2; Luke 2:8, 9). It was a strange word, "thou mighty man of valour," one of fact and prophecy as well. It was a brave thing, thus to be faithful and to receive this call (3) in a time of great distress and danger. The sequel, which forms next Sunday's lesson, is the fulfillment of the prophecy. II. Gideon in Doubt, vv. 13-16. Gideon's thought must have been one of amazement as well as of doubt. His question, "Why then is all this befallen us?" was a most natural one and one that men even now are asking when they are in great trouble. Suffering and misery are not all to be laid at God's door, though he permit it, but chiefly at the door of sin (Ps. 77:7-9; Isa. 49:1, 2). It is possible that Gideon had not yet recognized his heavenly visitor (cf. v. 21). The name Gideon means "Hewer" or "Treefeller" and indicates, as all eastern names do got to shake hands with me when we're something of his personal character finished. You and me ain't going to or appearance. Hence the significance start no feud. This is the first time of v. 14. The Lord in the person of the angel looked upon him and said, seeing all of his natural qualifications, but with the emphasis upon the "I"-"Go in thy might . . . have not !

Gideon Was the Agent.

III. Gideon Assured, vv. 33-35. Gideon's first act on being assured of this and looked about the room. "Shall I heavenly communication was one of throw these damned murderers out of worship (vv. 17-26). His second one here or will you go into another room was to take ten picked men and overthrow the altar to Baal, thereby demonstrating the impotence of Baal and the futility of calling upon him for deliverance. The tribesmen at once light upon him as having performed this act and demand his death from Joash, his father, who seems to have been a sort of caretaker of the ido (v. 25). These same men later become Gideon's enthusiastic followers (vv. 84, 35). Gideon thus translated theory was one man against the community. done doesn't concern you. I will say and to further rebuke them he erected from Baal struck him or any mark of now there is another raid (v. 33), and God is about to strike a blow on behalf of Israel. Whenever men ge assault, 2 Tim. 3:12. A literal rendering of verse 34 is, "the Spirit of the Lord clothed himself with Gideon. Gideon was merely the agent, the in-strument through whom and by whom Jehovah is about to do a mighty work The only satisfactory and safficient equipment we can have for effective service is the enduement of the Holy Spirit, Luke 24:49, Acts 1:4, 5, 8, No. tice this enduement came upon, took charge of, Gideon after he had by obedient service shown his trustworthiness. Men recognized in his trumpet call a note of the authority God had intrusted him with and of which his previous acts were a demonstration IV. Gideon's Caution, vv. 36-40. Spur on said that he never entered hi pulpit to preach without trembling, and Gideon would have been more than human, even after assembling his army, had he been absolutely free from doubts. We should never place an "if" before any of God's promises, and Jesus reprimanded those of his day when they demanded a "sign" (wonder), but Gideon proved his heroism in part by his caution. Gideon was straid of himself but was sure of God. Once assured of God's leading he was willing to lead $00 men against the werwhelming force of his enemies. If meh a demand was a weakness God dealt with it with marvelous patience and tenderness, just as he condescends to treat our weaknesses. The very life of the nation is at stake, everything depends upon Gideon's success or failure.

SALTS IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS TROUBLE YOU

Eat Less Meat If Your Kidneys Aren's Acting Right or If Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.—Adv.

TALK ON WESTERN "CASCARETS" FOR CANADA.

You Don't Have to Lie About Canada—The Simple Truth Is Enough.

The natural resources of the country are so vast that they cannot be told in mere figures. Man can only tell of what tiny portions have done. He can only say, "I am more prosperous than I ever expected to be." And yet if a farmer expects to succeed on land that he has been forced to pay $50 to $100 an acre for he ought feel assured of attaining prosperity ach. when he finds the richest prairie soil at his disposal absolutely free. If he has a little capital, let him invest it all in live stock and farm implements -he will find himself ten years ahead of the game. Some day such a chance will not be found anywhere on the face of the globe. But now the same opportunities await you as awaited the pioneer and not one hundredth part of the difficulties he encountered and overcame. Success in Canada is made up of two things, natural resources and human labor. Canada has the one and you the other. A postal card stands between you and the Canadian government agent. If you don't hold these two forces and enjoy the fruits of the result it is your own fault. Debt and Canada Will Not Stand

Hitched. You want a cozy home, a free life, and sufficient income. You want education for your children, and some pleasure for your wife. You want in-dependence. Your burden has been heavy, and your farm hasn't paid. You work hard and are discouraged You require a change. There is a goal within sight, where your children will have advantages. You can get a home in Western Canada, freedom, where your ambitions can be fulfilled. If the Prairie Provinces of Canada are full of Successful Farmers why should you prove the exception? Haven't you got brains, experience, courage? Then prove what these are capable of when put on trial. It is encouraging to know that there is one country in the world where poverty is no barrier to wealth; own your own car; own yourself; be somebody.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no ene can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and trouble some. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Gray, faded hair, though no dis grace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look years younger. Adv.

The Oldest Playwright. Bertha Mann furnished the surprise of the afternoon recently, says the December Green Book, when she tried a highly emotional role in a play called "The Worth of a Man," at a New York playhouse. A number of budding playwrights were presented, and she was besieged by them to play the leading part in several plays they had written. One became insistent, and partly to satisfy her, Miss Mann greed to read the play. It proved to be a theme as old as Acam, and after the second act Miss Mann aban-"You say you created this charac

MAKING LONG GOLF DRIVES UMPIRES MAY FORM A TRUST

Driving of Gladys Ravenscroft, English Champion, Matter of Wide Comment in America.

Woman golfers usually are not long drivers and many a time attempts have been made to explain why it is to. Generally it is attributed to lack of strength in the wrists, and it is allowed to go at that.

Those who have delved into the techrique of golf understood that the reason why a person can get a long drive is because he has learned how to control his club so that at the moment of impact with the ball the clubhead is traveling at all the speed the golfer can command. On the speed of the clubhead, therefore, rests the secret of long drive, provided, of course, the other essentials of the swing have not een overlooked.

To produce this result it is necessary to have strong forearms and wrists. This probably explains why persons of slight physique, but at the same time having strength oum the elbows to the tips of the fingers, can get distance. It is not the build of an or-

Hyde, the metropolitan champion; Miss Marion Holmes, former title holder, and Miss Gladys Ravenscroft erstwhile title holder for both Great Britain and the United States. When Miss Ravenscroft was in America her driving was a matter for wide comment, and a glance at her wrists when she addressed the ball revealed the fact that she was able to make the clubhead travel so fast at the moment of impact that the ball had to go.

May Not Defend Cup. Robert F. Arbiters Form Association in Cincinnati-Legal Adviser Secured to Defend Its Members.

Don't you think we fans have been wasting a lot of sympathy on the um-When the ball game was on we called him names. Then when we came down to earth again after the excitement was ended we said, "Pity the poor umpire, for he's only human." We actually made a hero of the man who judged diamond plays.

And now comes the news that the umpires have formed an association in Cincinnati. They do not hide themselves away, glad to get out of the turmoil in which they have been the central figures all summer, come right out in the open and announce that they are the big men of the game and intend to display their power.

The idea in Cincinnati appears to be the forming of an umpires' trust. That is, if the Actives and the Alerts want to play a game in the Ohio city, they must go to the Umpires' association and humbly request the chief megul to provide one of his indicator holders, says Philadelphia Record. They must guarantee to accept his decisions, pay him regular United States money and otherwise show the deference due him

Worse still, however, the umpire have a legal adviser. They do' not mention his duties, but we have a suspicion that in the future we spectators are not going to be permitted to heave a sushion or a pop bottle at an ump who attempts to decide plays as he sees them. The legal adviser will hale us into court and, maybap, induce a judge to take some money away from us. This is too much! Think of it: arresting and fining a man for assault-

Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Women from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from all sections of this great country, no city so large, no village so small but that some woman has written words of thanks for health restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. No woman who is suffering from the ills peculiar to her sex should rest until she has given this famous remedy a trial. Is it not reasonable to believe that what it did for these women it will do for any sick woman?

Wonderful Case of Mrs. Crusen, of Bushnell, III.

Bushnell, Ill.—"I think all the trouble I have had since my marriage was caused by exposure when a young girl. My work has been housework of all kinds, and I have done milking in the cold and snow when I was too young to realize that it would hurt me. I have suffered very much with bearing down pains in my back and such miserable rains across me and was very nervous and cenerally rains. miserable pains across me, and was very nervous and generally run down in health, but since I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound my back never hurts me, my nerves are stronger, and I am gaining in health every day. I thank you for the great help I have received from your medicine, and if my letter will benefit suffering women I will be glad for you to print it."—Mrs. James Crusen, Bushnell, Illinois.

A Grateful Atlantic Coast Woman.

Hoddon, Me.—"I feel it a duty I owe to all suffering women to tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. One year ago I found myself a terrible sufferer. I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely straighten up at times. My back sched, I had no appetite and was so nervous I could not sleep, then I would be so tired mornings that I could scarcely get around. It seemed almost impossible to move or do a bit of work and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman. Thad no pains, slept well, had good appetite and was fat and could do almost all my own work for a family of four. I shall always feel that I owe my good health to your medicine."—Mrs. Hayward Sowers, Hodgdon, Maine.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with woman's aliments does justice to herself if she does not try this famous medicine made from roots and herbs, it has restored so many suffering women to health. Write to LYDIA E-PINKHAM MEDICINE CO.

Paper a Most Useful The Local Agency on the Farm-The Press, Pulpit and School a Trinity of Influence That Must Be Utilized in Building Agriculture.

By Peter Radford Lecturer National Farmers' Union

A broad campaign of publicity on the subject of rural life is needed in this state today to bring the problems of the farmers to the forefront. The city problems are blazoned upon the front pages of the metropolitan dailies and echoed in the country press, but the troubles of the farmers are seldom told, except by those who seek to profit by the story, and the glitter of the package ofttimes obscures the substance. A searching investigation into the needs of the farmers will reveal many inherent defects in our economic system that can be easily remedied when properly un-derstood and illuminated by the pow-

The rural press, the pulpit and the school are a trinity of powerful influences that the farmer must utilize to their fullest capacity before he can occupy a commanding position in public affairs. These gigantic agencies are organized in every rural community and only await the patronage and co-operation of the farmers to fully develop their energy and usefulness. They are local forces working for the best interests of their respective communities. Their work is to build and their object is to serve. They prosper only through the development and prosperity of the community.

Every farmer in this state should subscribe for the local paper, as well as farm periodicals and such other publications as he may find profitable. but he should by all means subscribe for his local paper, and no home should be without it. The local paper is part of the community life and the editor understands the farmer's problems. It is the local press that will study the local problems and through its columns deal with subjects of most vital importance to local life of the community.

A Noble Task.

In too many instances the country papers mimic the city press by giving prominence to scandals, accidents and political agitation. The new rural civilization has placed upon the rural press renewed responsibilities, and enlarged possibilities for usefulness. It cannot perform its mission to agriculture by recording the frailties, the mishaps and inordinate am-METROD OF TRANSACTING BUSINESS

What policy or survy fees does policyholder bitions of humanity, or by filling its columns with the echoes of the struggles of busy streets, or by enchanting stories of city life which lure our children from the farm.

It has a higher and nobler task Too often the pages of the city dailies bristle with the struggle of ambitious men in their wild lust for power, and many times the flames of personal conflict sear the tender buds of new civilization and illuminate the pathway to destruction. The rural press is the governing power of public sentiment and must hold steadfast to in the roadstead of progress. The rural press can best serve the interests of the farmers by applying its energies to the solution of problems affecting the local community. It must stem the mighty life current that is moving from the farm to the cities, sweeping before it a thousand mission is to direct growth, teach efficiency and mold the intellectual life of the country, placing before the boys and girls per day. It has to deal and giving first attention to the legislative, co-operative, educational and social needs of the agricultural classes within its respective community.

The Power of Advertising.

The influence of advertising is clear visible in the homes and habits of the farmers, and the advertising columns of the press are making their imprint upon the lives of our people The farmer possesses the things that are best advertised.

The farmer is entitled to all the advantages and deserves all the luxuries of life. We need more art, science and useful facilities on the farms, and many homes and farms are well balanced in this respect, but by teaching the advantages of modern equipment throughout the columns of the rural press.

The farmers are in need of personal leadership. They have political leaders, but they need local industrial community and educational leaders.
