M. A. C. Will Help Farmers Fight Pest Which is Endangering Fields in Eaton County.

East Lansing-Appeals which have come to the Agricultural college from Eaton county for advise as to how best to combat the bean maggot, a pest which has attacked the Eaton county bean crop, show general alarm among farmers in that district. The maggot has already made a considerable number of fields valueless for beans this season and farmers fear that it is present throughout the

The maggot 's the larva of a fly which deposits eggs in the ground near the beans shortly after they have been planted. The maggot attacks the bean seed and destroys it.

If the pest is prevalent in Eaton county, as at present seems likely, farmers will suffer thousands of dollars damage, as the district is one of the principal bean-producing regions in the United States.

Authorities at the college have advised the farmers against reseeding the affected fields with corn, cabbage turnips, beets, onions or seed pota toes, as the maggot, if given the opportunity, may attack these crops

The college intends to dispatch field agent to the Eaton county district as soon as possible to lend farmers direct aid in controlling the pest

JITNEYS HIT BY ORDINANCE

Drastic Action of Grand Rapids Council May Put Them Out of Business.

Grand Rapids-It is believed that fully 300 jitney buses will be put out of business by ordinance that requires owners to furnish heavy liability bonds and pay $60 a year license fee The new law will take effect imme

Petitions for a referendum were wrned down by the council Monday night on the grounds that many of the signers were not voters.

Jitney bus owners charge that the council was influenced in its action by a statement from street railway company officials that car service would be curtailed unless rigid laws were enacted to regulate jitneys. They also assert that the terms of the new ordinance are prohibitive in effect. An appeal to the courts is expected.

Chicago Domestics Are Singing Real Music Now

CHICAGO.—These days the parlor maid, as she wields her duster, trills as sweetly as if the drawing room were a comic opera stage. Her sister maid of the upper floors hums a haunting little melody that falls pleasantly on the ear. Out in the kitchen the cook, who used to be the worst offender of them all-whose voice, as a matter of fact, was sometimes taken by guests as the wailing of a just too dear and frightfully novel Chinese bull fiddle occasionally gives vent to a snatch of song in a well-modulated contralto.

The house, where discord once reigned, where chokings, squeakings and bellowings once accompanied the performance of each household duty has become one of melody. Thus, through the quiet and quieting efforts o the Civic Music association, a goodly number of housewives have been made happy. The association has undertaken to train a "domestic girls' chorus. ery Sunday from far and wide maids of all descriptions have come to attend the classes, which are under the direction of Miss Albie Sladek.

Fifty-six girls, most of them from the north shore suburbs, attended a The quality of their voices, in solo and in chorus, gave Sladek described by placing her hands over her ears and wrinkling her nose. They had the music in them, these girls," she said, "but they didn't to get it out. They had knowledge neither of rhythm nor scale, but their lungs certainly were in excellent condition. The first time they sang together the building shook. Now they can sing as softly as a summer breeze humming through the trees.

"Among the girls one has been discovered who plays practically every musical instrument by ear—and until last fall she never had touched one. Another, Bessie Kvis, may some day develop into a grand opera star."

Elevated Playgrounds the Latest In New York

NEW YORK.—The more congested New York becomes, the more necessity there is to provide suitable breathing spaces and grounds for recreation. In just the communities where they are needed the most, as on the East side, it is becoming increasingly difficult to set aside any land for playgrounds.

Already in New York there are playgrounds on the piers, on the roofs of schools, on fashionable apartments and, recently, there was opened to the public the first elevated play ound at the Manhattan end of the Williamsburg bridge. To Hugh E. McLaughlin, civil engineer, belongs the credit for this innovation. first elevated recreation ground measures 61 by 450 feet, and in the center is a bandstand, around which on summer evenings the neighboring tenemen dwellers can enjoy band concerts and dances. Mr. McLaughlin's complete scheme includes the erection of probably a mile of these elevated playgrounds on the congested East side, the same to occupy the center of the street. Along the entire street length elevated parking spaces with trees, shrubs, fountains and benches for the older people will alternate with elevated plots set aside for baseball, football, tennis and playground equipment for smaller children. In the winter it is the intention to flood these spaces for skating and hockey games. Mr. McLaughlin's laudable meeting with universal approval and he has the support of several influential friends in erecting playgrounds along the center of East side streets.

Secretary Lane Says Rittman Process Will Be on a Commercial Working Plane Very Soon-Benzol Price to Be Less.

Washington.—Secretary Lane of the department of the interior is trying to preserve for the people of the United States the processes devised by Dr. Walter F. Rittman, chemical engineer of the bureau of mines, to procure gasoline and benzol at a much lower cost than that they are now obtained. "Excellent progress is being made in the development of the Rittman process," said Secretary Lane, "and there is every reason to believe that both the gasoline and the benzol processes will be on a commercial work ing plane within a reasonably shore time. I am informed that the gasoline process is now ready for large scale industrial applications and the hope is expressed that the benzol process will be ready soon.

"The department is willing for all who are desirous of making use of the processes to do so to the fullest possible extent consistent with the proper protection of the processes in order that the public may derive the greatest measure of benefit therefrom. It looks as if it would be only short time before the complete me chanical equipment necessary for the practice of the processes has * been worked out and the inventions cov-

"The department considers that all those desirous of employing the processes should agree to contribute to the public in the same manner that Doctor Rittman has done with his basic patents, all patentable ideas that may be conceived as a result of the employment of these processes.

ABSALOM'S FAILURE.

LESSON TEXT-II Samuel 18:1-15. GOLDEN TEXT-Children obey your parents in the Lord; for this is right.—Ephesians 6:1.

death of Uriah, was a costly bargain for David, and the development of sin In his family with its long train of fearful consequences teaches us that sin respects not person nor position. The dark story of chapter 13 involves Absalom's flight and Joab's strategy in getting him back to Jerusalem (ch. All is not as well, however, as it outwardly appears, for Absalom the beautiful (14:25) soon stole the heart WINS RICHES AND REVENGE KING ALLIGATOR IS DEAD of the ten tribes, Israel (ch. 15), from his indulgent and indifferent parent. Then follows the stery of that father's flight and of the son's entry into the capital city.

Scene 2. The Battle of Mount Ephraim (chapter 19). David at the Gate, v. 1-5. The place where David numbered" (v. 1) his followers was Mahanaim (17:27), where Jacob saw the two "hosts" of angels (Gen. 32:1, 2). What David saw was quite different. As he waited he had time to contemplate that other time that he remained behind when he ought to have gone forth to battle and which resulted in the sin for which he was even now suffering (ch. 11:1-7). Absalom was shrewd as men shrewdness, but he made one fatal. omission in planning his campaign he left God out of his reckoning (ch. 17:14 R. V.). David's use of Hushai was fully justified by the situation. into which this reckless son was precipitated, still it is probable that David listened to the advice of his followers (v. 3) more willingly because of his reluctance to fight against his own son. It is, indeed, a sad, sad spectacle to see David stand watching his army go out to battle, perhaps to slay his son, and his exhortation (v. 5) to his three captains falls upon dull ears in the case of Joab. David's chief con cern-was-for Absalom, not for himself

Every man pays dearly, sooner or la-ter, for his sin; the longer he waits

Scene 4. Absalom's Death, vv. 11-15. 'Absalom chanced to meet" (v. 9 R. V.); there is no chance in the provilences of God. His desire to meet David's servants is granted, yet that meeting brought Absalom dismay, defeat and ruin.

Joab now takes matters into his own hands. He held David in his power and-had a debt to pay Absalom (ch. 14:29). Most dearly did Absalom pay the penalty to this vengeful, time abiding soldier. Joab was not content to slay this proud youth, but, to show contempt, he cast the dead body into a pit and raised over it a "great heap" of stones (v. 17). So Absalom's proud monument (v. 18) failed of its intended purpose. David's victory was complete; even so will be the ultimate victory of our "greater David" (Phil. 2:10, 11). Act IV. David's Grief, v. 19-33.

Scene 1. The Messengers. Again our attention is centered upon the griefstricken father. His anxiety is sincere and heart-breaking, but it is tardy. The first messenger, Ahimaaz is a good man, but brings not good Is our message one of life of of death? The second messenger gives a diplomatic but a blunt answer to David's anxious inquiry. What cared David for his enemies, his army. nay for himself, if only the "young nay for man" were safe.

Analication. "Is the young man halle nhysicalsafe?" Industrially, socially, physically, morally, spiritually, his safety dedends upon the guidance of the home, the father and the church. Only as parents hear and obey the Master's words, "Bring thy son hither" (Luke 9:41) is the young man safe. David's sin was not, however, sufficient cause for Absalom's downfall; he courted his own ruin (John 5:40)

David's sorrow finds its counterpar in the grief of Christ (Luke 19:41, 42); David's cry that he might die for Ab salom finds its fulfillment in the fact that Christ did die for his enemies.

The great outstanding lesson of this entire drama, extending from the eleventh to the nineteenth chapters "Whatsoever a man soweth, the shall he also ream."

GOD'S LOVING CARE

All Proper Desires of His Children Are Satisfied Rather Than Frustrated.

"I sought the Lord and he heard me."-Psalm 34, 4. From this text I am not going to rite specifically about the efficacy of prayer, but about the frequency of prosperous seeking.

We are apt to put our emphasis on the wrong things. Affairs are so fortunate with us generally that when one exception comes we pounce upon that and call it characteristic. When a business fails we forget the many years through which it was success-When the panic appears we forget the fat seasons which precede it. When death deprives us we dwell upon the hardness of our lot in that we have lost, rather than sweetness of our lot in that we enjoyed our loves so long and still are rich in the memories of them,

Nearly every experience carries in one hand happiness, in the other misery. We take our chance. And the logical choice is of the happiness, not only because it yields the loveller fruit, but because it outweighs the misery-there is more of it. There is more life than death, more sweetness than bitterness, more beauty than ugliness.

Satisfied Desires.

The rule is that desires are satisled rather than frustrated. Our cars delight in the concord of sweet sound: and God has hidden away melodies in the chambers of the air, then sent out his servants among men and birds to play on instruments and sing songs. Our eyes are pleased with beauty; and nearly all natural forms are graceful, while the world is carpeted, frescoed and ceiled with heavenly colors. The senses of smell and of taste are not disappointed in their search for the winged delights and infinite varieties of fragrance and of flavor. The mind seeks order, and lo! an ordered universe. We love associations and friendships and God has not doomed us to live alone, but has strung our hearts on common chords. Young people meet and love and think that life must be poor without each other; and the charming sequence is that they go away to their separate homes and spend the days and nights together until the end.

Proper Outlook on Life.

God gives us desires not to mock We shall be fairer and honester if we acknowledge this to ourselves and to him. It will aid us also in our search for happiness and beauty to dwell upon the instances in which we are blessed and satisfied, rather than upon those in which we seem to be forgotten or foiled.

Moreover, there are yet other and larger implicates in this attitude. It is God's habit and pleasure to gratify my appetites. Very well, then: He will give me rest; he will give me immortality; he will give me himself

UNITY OF CHRISTIAN FORCES

Time Measurably at Hand If All Will Put Their Energies Into

The growing thought of the unity of all Christian forces which is manifest David were smitten by the hand of ing itself in so many ways and through God (v. 8) than were slain by the so many voices, is unquestionably the ing itself in so many ways and through servants of David. These men noblest vision that has dawned upon brought judgment upon themselves the Christian church in many generathrough their disloyalty to God's tions. And the thought will be realchosen king (Judges 5:20, 21) and in ized in the not distant future, measthis we see a type of that final victory uring time by genuine world movements. The appeal of the vision was ment with his foes (Rev. 79:11-21, never so insistent. As we witness the II Thess. 2:8). Men who today are collapse of a civilization founded on disloyal or disobedient to God's schemes of human and selfish agchosen King can only expect "a cer-tain fearful looking for of judgment and man is turned to God, and the voice flery indignation which shall devour the adversaries" (Heb. 10:27). At the end of the battle proud Absalom is not that he will help through man himself. that he will help through man himself. and that man must help himself. And hehold, there are enough of those who. take the name of God upon their lips' to do his will, if they will. We have but to recognize that there are already enough Christians, if they are Christians, in this land to set our land in the path of righteousness, if we but pull together instead of pulling against each other. And this unity is coming. But meanwhile! What are we to do while the good time is coming, and that it may the sooner come? It is a time not to slacken our hold, but to take a new and firmer grip, not upon the things which divide, but upon the things which unite, upon the great verities. All churches have some of these and each is to magnify its own as its contribution to the triumphant. Sectarianism is dead as an appeal, but each department is to its own greatest efficiency through recruiting and equipment, until, swinging into line at the front, it will mean victory for the whole cause of heavenly fatherhood and human rotherhood.—Universalist Leader.

Faith WHI Sustain.

Nothing is so trying to nature as suspense between a faint hope and a mighty fear; but we must have faith as the extent of our trials, as in all else. Our sensitiveness makes us often disposed to fancy that we are tried beyond our strength; but we really know neither our strength to endure nor the nature of God's triels. Only he knows both these, and every turn of the hearts which he has made, knows how to deal-out a due proposition. Let us leave it all to him, and be content 10 bear in silence.— Fenelon.

Great Britain became the possessor of fully half of the largest island in the world, for Australia and Greenland are properly small continents. The other half belongs to Holland.

New Guinea surpasses Madagascar in size, its length being 200 miles greater than the distance from New York to Chicago, says Rene Bache in the Boston Herald. Its area is equal to that of France and the British Isles combined. But what renders it most interesting is that it is today the least known portion of the habitable world, fully nine-tenths of the island being as yet unexplored.

This may well seem surprising when it is considered that New Guinea is separated from the north coast of Australia only by a broad strait. A glance at a map of the world will show that it is in reality the largest member of the great archipelago in the eastern seas, which includes the Philippine islands on the north and Borneo and Sumatra on the west. The line of the equator runs almost directly through it.

Ferocious Black Cannibals. New Guinea is inhabited by tribes of ferocious black people, with great mops of woolly hair, who evince utmost hostility toward all intruders. When vessels have been wrecked upon their inhospitable shores they have in a number of known instances captured the unfortunate mariners and eaten them. But if the island is to so great an extent a terra incognita today it is not mainly on this account but because of its unhealthful climate.

TWO-STORY

Equipped With Modern Machinery, It Will Pay for Itself in a Short Time.

BUILT TO LAST MANY YEARS

Structure, Unlike the Old-Fashioned Low, Slatted Gribe, Adds to the Appearance of the Farm-Some of Its Many Advantages

By WILLIAM A RADFORD Mr. William A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the-readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1227 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for repty.

Modern farm elevator machinery has worked wonderful changes in corn cribs. It is another case of matching machinery against hand labor in handling corn and other grains. Modern corn-elevating machinery saves a cent a bushel at husking time by making a horse or gasoline engine do the work of housing. It saves a great deal more in the after handling by the aid of machinery

The building illustrated is 20 feet high to the eaves and 33 feet from the floor to the peak. The grain elevator takes ear corn or other small grain as it pours out from under the tail board of the wagon box and carries it up to the cupols on the peak From here it is distributed by grain spouts to the different bins

The foundation of the building is of concrete made solid to last a lifetime. Above the floor and foundation walls the building is built in three parts, center being made strong and solid to support the grain bins over the center driveway, while the cribs at the sides are made of lighter mate-

The center driveway is ten feet in width, and the grain bins above occupy the same amount of floor space. This center driveway has a solid concrete Others elevate the grain or corn in when the bin is full, would be 2,450 pounds per square toot.

These figures are mentioned to emphasize the importance of making the center part of a two-story grain house strong enough to support the load. The corn wings may be braced from the center studding, so that the corn cribs may be built of lighter material.

Eight feet in width seems to be established as the most satisfactory size of crib to cure corn. The amoun of humidity in the air in the fall varies in the different farming sections, but it is a good plan to provide a crib that will give the greatest amount of ventilation possible to secure at reason Ventilation in a two-story corn crib may be helped out by using woven corn mesh inside of the studding. This prevents the ears of corn from stopping up cracks between the wooden slats. When wire mesh is used it is not necessary to have any wooden slats on the inside partitions. Slats ook better on the outside of the building, and they prevent the rain and snow from blowing in.

It is recommended that the slats shall have beveled edges so placed that the opening slopes down and out ward. It is thought that an opening like this induces ventilation better, and it certainly gives more protection

This building adds a good deal to the appearance of the farm, because it is a permanent structure. The old style of low, slatted corn crib never has been considered much of an orna-ment, and its temporary character eliminates such a building as an as set. In taking an inventory of the farm buildings, the old-fashioned crib is hardly considered, but a modern, up-to-date, two-story building fitted with labor-saving machinery, adds considerable value to the farm.

There are different kinds of elevating machinery. Some elevators work on the principle of a sliding carrier.

The grain spouts conduct the grain to the fanning mill, and the elevating chinery carries it back. Farmers in this, way make a good grade of wheat that is a cceptable without docking at the railway elevators, and at the same time they select out a small percentage of the largest and plumpest grains to save for seed. Such seed is worth double, or possibly ten times the market price, and the extra value is secured at almost no expense.

The corn crib wings are built cer siderably lighter than the main por tion of the building, for the reason that corn in the ear is lighter than wheat, and is less liquid than smaller grains so that the pressure on the sides is Also the construction of the middle part of the building is necessarily stronger to support the grain bins overhead. The size of timbers may be estimated by figuring the weight of wheat, which is 49 pounds per cubic foot. The outward pressure is practically the same as the pressure downward at the same depth, down from the top. A cubic foot of wheat weighs 49 pounds. The weight of one cubic foot of wheat on top of another is 98 pounds, and the pressure on the door of a bin when the wheat is ten feet deep is 490 pounds per square foot.

If the joists are placed a foot apart and the bin is the same width as the driveway, then the weight on each joist would be 4,900 pounds, and the pressure outward on the studding would be practically the same at the floor. The pressure outward on the sistance of M. Flammarion in bin five feet down from the top, the necessary arrangements.

able and some are stationary, while others are used either way. The portable elevators may be taken to the railway station to carry grain from the wagon to the farther end of a freight car, and the same machine may be used at home to store corn sars and grain in the home grangey The driveway in this grain house also is used for the corn sheller when it becomes necessary to use such a machine. Shellers for this purpose are fitted with carriers that take the corn ears from near the floor in front of the corn cribs, and carry the ears to the sheller, while the sheller carrier puts the cobs into hog racks to be hauled away to the woodshed for summer fuel. The grain from the sheller is elevated to the bins overhead. The corn is afterward sacked from a chute extending down along the side of the driveway.

In case the shelled corn is a little too damp it may be transferred by the same chute and elevated into another bin to prevent heating. In very damp weather it may be necessary to handle helled corn everal times to get the air through it, to prevent spoiling.

There are many advantages in a two-story corn crib and grain house that is properly fitted with modern ma chinery to handle grain.

Astronomer Saw Eclipse. M. Flammarion is a veteran of stronomy, for he was watching the heavens 45 years ago, during the siege of Paris by the Prussians, his astronomical work, however, being subservient to his duties as a captain in the engineers. In December, 1870, a solar eclips occurred, the partial phases of which M. Flammarion observed while the enemy's shells were dropping in the besieged city. The total phase of the eclipse was visible in North Africa, and Bismarck, being aware that before the war arrangements had been made for Professor Janssen to go to Africa to make scientific observations of totality on behalf of the Paris observatory, sent a message into the city offering the scientist a safe conduct.

This was politely refused by Professor Janssen, says the London Stand ard but nevertheless he went to Africa to see the phenomenon, leaving Paris by way of the air in a balloon. thanks in large measure to the assistance of M. Flammarion in making

MARK THE PURE-BRED LAMBS

Most Popular Label is Metal Band Adopted by Most of Large Breeders-Notching is Good.

Every pure-bred lamb in the flock should be marked. If possible, they should be marked the day dropped. Lamb-size labels are sometimes used with success, being later replaced with the regular size labels at weaning season. It has been said that using the sheep-size labels on young lambs causes their ears to droop, but some experienced men say this is not true.

The breeder's label is inserted, and should have on it the flock number, if more than one flock is kept, and initials or name of owner. The most popular label is a metal band, and it has not only been adopted by most of the larger breeders, but also by the leading breeding associations.

Place the tag in the lower part of the ear, fairly close to the head, with the number on the inside. The label should not be too loose or it may be torn out. Neither should it be too tight, or it may damage the ear. Sometimes the ears become sore from inserting the labels, especially if the operation is carelessly performed. The amb should be watched for a time to be sure that these heal. The principal objection of ear labels is that they may be torn out.

Notching is also a good way to mark sheep. Notches on certain parts of the ears indicate certain numbers. By a series of notches any number desired can be obtained. If on the right ear tip notch counts 5, middle top 2, top to head 1, lower middle 4, close to head, lower, 3, when on left ear, the numbers may be made to count into the hundreds.

TREATING SHEEP FOR WORMS

mbs Are More Susceptible Than Older Animals—Give Dose of Gasoline and Epsom Salte.

The stomach worm is the worst pest affecting sheep. Lambs are more susceptible than older sheep, probably because the older sheep are accustomed to the presence of the worm. In the spring, soon after lambing, the old sheep should a dose of one to two ounces gasoline, followed by a small dose of epsom salts. After a day or two they should be placed in a worm-free pasture, if possible.

In July treat the whole herd, including the lambs, with gasoline, and turn them into new pasture, and repeat the process in November. Pasture rotation, combined with drugs that are injurious to the worms, is a practical method of successfully combating this worm.

The sword of Bunker Hill!

THE JOYOUS FOURTH By William Gerard Chapman

> Gee, don't I wish the Fourth wuz here! It seems like I can't wait Until the days jest catch up with That blame' red-figger date. I got a lot o' fire-works, Oh, more'n you could think,

So shiny makes you blink. The minute when I get awake, Bout four o'clock or so. You bet I'll hustle in my clothes An' grab my box an' go A-kittin' out behin' the barn

A bully cannon, too, of brass,

An' light my punk - an', say! You won't hear nothing much but noise The rest o' that whole day. But, goshi that ain't a circumstance

To what'll happen when

It gets right dark. You jest be there, You'll see some doin's, then! We'll break in Si, the blacksmith's, shop An get his anvils out An' shoot them all around the town; Then there'll be noise, don't doubt!

Afore each house we'll set one down Then jest you hear the din! Some folks'll come a-runnin' out An' raise an awful row,

But most'll laugh like fun an' shout "Jest get along, boys, now." Oh, gee, I wish the Fourth wuz here! But Ma sez, "Mercy me! Why you're so set on gettin' burns

An' blisters, I can't see." But shucksi who cares for things like that? A boy's Ma never learns As how he has jest loads o' fun (Copyright, 1915, by W. G. Chapman.)

The last sitting given by Washing ton was for Sharpless, who made a mathematically correct profile which furnishes the authority for the proportions of the subject's features.

Of all painters, none achieved more than Gilbert Stuart, who, it is generally agreed, has given to the world the best likeness of the man. Stuart's famous Washington success was probably due to the fact that he kept his subject from self-consciousness by entertaining him. In the two originals of this artist, and he left noble personification of, wished man as serenity to the American people in the person of the first president of the nation.

Once there was a literary man who decided to write for posterity. He refused to be guided by what the editors said the public wanted, but wrote what he thought they ought to want.

According to all the rules of the game he should have starved to death in very short order, but for once, the rules didn't work.

All the artists, the philanthropists, the historians, to say nothing of those ladies and gentiemen of leisure whose critical faculties are so importantly developed nowadays, would certainly be absent, and, worse still, would suffer very little at their exclusion. Yet going back into the centuries for guests, a distinguished company might have been assembled of those who, without being famous merely for mathematical studies, were known to have understood and loved the subject. POLITICAL

STRIFE A MENACE TO GOVERNMENT.

Opportunities a National Crime.

By Peter Radford.

There never was a time in the history of this nation when we needed statesmen more or agitators less than at the present moment. The opporsea demand the best there is in statecraft and the possibilities that are confronting us call for national issues that unite the people, build industry and expand trade. The agricultural and industrial development of this nation has suffered severely at the hands of agitators who have sent torpedoes crashing into the port side of business and whose neglect of the interests of the farmer makes them little less than political criminals. We want no more of these evil spirits to predominate in government. Too long their hysterical cry has sent a shiver down the spinal column of industry Too long have the political agitators capitalized strife, pillaged progress and murdered opportunity. An industrial trial corpse is not a desirable thing a crippled business an achievement or neglect an accomplishment about which any representative of the gov ernment has a right to boast.

issues that Breed Agitators Should be Eliminated.

The political agitator must be elim inated from public life before thoughtful consideration can be given to a constructive program in government. The liquor question is the most prolific breeding ground for agitators and whether pro or anti, the hatch is equally as undesirable. This article is in no sense a discussion of the liquor question but deals solely and by way of illustration with the political products of that issue. Other subjects will be dealt with in the order of their importance.

In the history of our government the liquor issue has never produced a constructive statesman worth mentioning and it never will. It has sent more freaks to Congress, Lilliputians to the Senate and incompetents to office than any other political issue under the sun.

The recent experience of the English Parliament which lashed itself into a fury over the liquor question has a lesson that it is well for the farmers of this nation to observe; for constantly before the public for solution and ofttimes to the exclusion of more important problems to the American plowmen.

Too Many Political Drunkards. Lloyd-George, the Prohibition leader of Europe who led the prohibition fight in England, has declared that he will never again take a drink politically and there are many American politicians—pro and anti—who would render their country a service by climbing on the water wagon or signing a pledge of political temperance. Too often our legislative halls are turned into political bar-rooms and many of the members become intoxicated on liquor discussions. We have too many political drunkards-pro and anti-in our public affairs. No one who is a slave to the political liquor habit is quite ness affairs of government as the sober and industrious. We have few public men in this day who are strong enough to resist the temptation of strong drink politically and when the demon Rum once becomes firmly entrenched in the mind of a politician, he is less capable of meeting the demands for constructive statesmanship now confronting this nation.

We have in this country too many red-nosed politicians—both pro and anti. A candidate with political delirium tremens, a preacher with politi-cal snakes in his boots and an agitator drunk on the liquor question are the saddest sights in civilization and they should all be forced to take the political Keeley Cure

It is far more important in government to make it easier for those who toil to eat than to make it more difficult for a few topers to drink. There is not one person in one hundred of our rural population that ever touches liquor but we all eat three times a

The neigh of a horse made Darius King of Persia, the six contending powers for the throne agreeing among themselves that the one whose horse should neigh first should possess the kingdom. This ancient method of settling disputes among politicians could be revived with profit today. If our partisan factions and petty politicians could only settle their disputes by the neigh of a horse, the bark of a dog or the bray of a donkey. it would be a great blessing and would give our citizens a better opportunity to pursue the vocations of industry free from political strife.

Let those who pick political plums by raising rows and who flash swords dripping in the blood of industry understand that they cannot turn the public forum into a political arena and by a clash of personal aspirations still the hammer and stop the plow and that their quarrels must be settled in the back alleys of civilization.

culture and Commerce, the master minds of this nation will be invited to the public forum and asked to de-liver a message to civilization. Men who achieve seldom talk, and men who talk seldom achieve. There is no such thing as a noisy thinker, and brevity is always a close companion

It will be a great privilege to stand by the side of men who can roll in place the cornerstone of industry; to associate with men who can look at the world and see to the bottom of it: to commune with men who can hear the roar of civilization a few centuries away.

Too often we listen to the rabble element of our day that cries out against every man who achieves, "Crucify him." Mankind never has and probably never will produce a generation that appreciates the genius of its day. There never will be a crown without a cross, progress without sacrifice or an achievement with out a challenge.

This is an age of service, and that man is greatest who serves the largest number. The present generation has done more to improve the condition of mankind than any civilization since human motives began their upward flight. The Greeks gave human life inspiration, but while her orators were speaking with the tongues of angels, her farmers were plowing with forked sticks; while her philosophers were emancipating human thought from bondage, her traffic masters for its servants.

The genius of past ages sought to arouse the intellect and stir the soul but the master minds of today are seeking to serve. Civilization has assigned to America the greatest task of the greatest age, and the greatest men that ever trod the greatest planet are solving it. Their achievements have astounded the whole world and we challenge every age and nation to name men or products that can approach in creative genius or masterful skill in organization, the marvelous achievements of the tremendous men of the present day. Edison can press a button and turn a light on multiplied millions of homes; Vail can take down the receiver and talk with fifty millions of people; Mc-Cormick's reaper can harvest the world's crop, and Fulton's steam engine moves the commerce of land

The greatest thing a human being can do is to serve his fellow men; Christ did it; Kings decree it, and wise men teach it. It is the glory of this practical age that Edison could find no higher calling than to becom the janitor to civilization; Vail the messenger to mankind: McCormicl the hired hand to agriculture, and Fulton the teamster to industry, and blessed is the age that has such
