CONVENTION OF TEACHERS ENDS

GREAT SAGINAW MEETING IS CLOSED WITH ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

DR. D. B. WALDO IS PRESIDENT

Many Notables Addressed Pedagogues On War and Educational Topics. Resolutions Are Adopted.

Saginaw—War and education competed for interest in the addresses at the closing sessions of the Michigan State Teachers' association Friday and Friday night by David Starr Jordan, president of Leland Stanford University; P. F. Claxton, United States commissioner of education; President Harry B. Hutchins of the University of Michigan; Mary Antin, New York; Congressman Clarence Miller, Duluth, Minn., and others.

Commissioner Claxton urged the importance of a high school education for all young people and advocated reorganization of the school course into six years of elementary work and six years of high school. This was approved by the association. He defended the large expenditures of money for school buildings and favored a plan whereby young people, who must aid in their own support could attend school and be employed, dividing their time between the two.

At the business session D. B. Waldo, president of the Western State Normal school, Kalamazoo was unanimously chosen president. Other officers elected are: First vice-president, Edward P. Cummings, Lansing, retiring president; second vice-president, Miss Carrie Dickson, Ann Arbor; third vice-president, H. N. Worth, principal, Kalamazoo high school; secretary, John P. Everett, Kalamazoo, re-elected; treasurer, Frank Jensen, Benton Harbor. Executive committee: Edwin L. Miller, Detroit, and E. T. Cameron, school commissioner, Isabella county.

Resolutions were adopted approving the plan to provide education at public expense for those who are obliged to leave school early, favoring the wider use of the schools, endorsing the United States government system of instructing aliens and commending the legislature for establishing a teachers' retirement fund.

On motion of Superintendent J. E. Chadsey of Detroit, it was voted to appoint a committee to investigate the possibility of re-organizing the association. It is now too large to be adequately cared for by any city.

Dr. Jordan gave two addresses, one on "Lessons of the Great War" and the other on "The Picked Half Million." Dr. Jordan said, "compose that class in any country upon which devolved the perpetuation of the race, the ones that stand freedom. To keep the world's high standard of physical and mental being, the war must cease."

President Harry B. Hutchins, of the University of Michigan, addressing the college section, praised the small colleges of the state and urged their fullest co-operation with the university.

Former Congressman Diekema, of Holland, voiced a plea for universal peace. Samuel Dickie, president of Albion college, spoke in behalf of state aid for denominational colleges.

LIFE IN PRISON CAMP ENDURABLE

Man Released From the Isle of Wight Gives His Experiences.

WAS NOT TREATED BADLY

Interned Germans Are Well Supplied With Food and Diversions—Self-governing Prison Camp—Abuses Are Remedied.

By FRED TCHERKESOFF, London.—Wishing to obtain some authentic information about the life of "alien enemies" in the internment camps, I went to see my friend, Ludwig, who had been interned six weeks in the Knockaloe camp on the Isle of Wight, and who now was released on the ground of having no nationality at all.

Ludwig was born in Russia of German parents. He had been educated there, had married a Russian, taken part in the revolutionary movement of the University of Moscow students, and finally had been expelled by the Russian police, going to Germany. Here he was not only not welcomed but was denied the rights of German nationality. At last, after some years spent in Bulgaria and France, he came to London.

When the war broke out all Germans were forced to register. My friend, from an excess of honesty, confided to the police, the puzzle of his nationality; from an excess of prudence the authorities interned him until his papers of identity had been examined.

"Did you find life in the camp very hard?" I asked. "Existence in the camp," he said, "is quite bearable; of course one must fix in one's mind once for all that one is no longer free and has to submit to regulations. Within certain limits, however, we were quite at liberty to organize our internal life, and we, in our compound, made full use of this permission. We chose among us our own police for each section, and this arrangement worked so perfectly that the English soldier-guards left the keeping of order entirely to the men elected by us and entered only on their request—a good deal of unpleasantness and friction being avoided in consequence.

"Generally speaking, the food is good and sufficient. Settling the Meat Question. Each person is supposed to receive half a pound of meat, including fat and bones, or four ounces of corned beef. But the German cooks, who are appointed and paid by the English contractors, are hand in glove with their masters, and even some of the officials know what is going on; in any case, the amount of cooked meat each man receives is nearer two than eight ounces. This question of the meat portions has given rise to much friction and was at the bottom of the riots in the Douglas camp, when many were killed and wounded.

"I was impressed at once by the evident disparity of the official and the real portions of meat, and consulted with my fellow prisoners. Whenever a public question was to be debated, a general meeting is called. A resolution was passed and a delegate sent to the governor. As similar resolutions had been forwarded to him on several occasions, he told us that now we would receive each our half-pound of raw meat.

"This caused consternation among the wealthy prisoners, who did not like at all the idea of having to cook their own dinners. The poorer ones proposed to find among the prisoners some cooks and waiters who could prepare the food for us all together. But a resolution was carried by the majority asking the governor to revert to the old way. As a result of our protest, however, we received afterward somewhat larger portions.

"Of course there is music. Besides we had music! It is said that when half a dozen Germans get together some sort of musical society is sure to be formed, so you can imagine that music is flourishing in the camp. Seeing the number of first-rate musicians interned, I wondered how London orchestras could exist at all. Excellent choirs and bands have been formed, and these give performances, but never without serious preparation. They know their audience would not tolerate amateurish efforts. When the instruments cannot be obtained from outside they are made in the camp, and some are weird enough to arouse the envy of a futurist composer! The bandsmen are dressed in full German military uniform, made in the camp; even the fabrication of a 'pickelhaube' offers no difficulty when pots and pans are at hand—silver paper from chocolate and tobacco packing is never wanted, and plays an important part not only in the making of uniforms but in the staging of plays. These also are well rehearsed before being offered to the public.

"Every performance is announced by a band marching through the grounds and playing loudly to attract attention. One of the greatest successes in the show line was the circus; one day there was an elephant and a number of gray blankets and four or five men. Its antics were so truly elephantine that the prisoners, English guards and officers alike, all were in fits of laughter, especially when the 'penny a ride' part began and the trunk disclosed a broomstick as foundation.

"The Poem That Was Rehearsed. Then we had recitation evenings. A poet among us recited his own work. A significant incident occurred during that evening. The first numbers were of a comic character, but the chief item of the program was a patriotic poem—a jubilant recital of how thousands of Russian soldiers had been lured into the Masurian bogs and drowned like rats. It was recited with stormy applause. I felt indignant, and, seeing that some of my table companions also looked uneasy, I got up and asked permission to say a few words. It was granted. I first congratulated the poet on his skill, but protested against the spirit of the last poem, which invited us to gloat over the death agony of soldiers probably as brave as any others. I reminded the public that hundreds of German soldiers were drowned in flooded Flanders—terrible incidents of war, but not subjects for epics. A growing applause showed me I had not appealed in vain to the thinking portion of my fellow prisoners. The poet himself came to me a few days later and said, 'You know, Father Ludwig, I have been thinking over what you said, and I will not have the poem published.'

"I became sincerely attached to my fellow prisoners, who showed me all consideration in spite of the fact that my opinions were often diametrically opposed to theirs. When the order for my release came the governor shook hands with me and thanked me for the good suggestions and improvements which we had made in our camp."

IN THE BELGIAN CONGO

WHITE TRADER AND NATIVE SERVANTS

GET out your atlas, turn to the map of Africa, run your finger down the west coast of the continent that Livingston and Stanley made famous until you have crossed the equator and reach the Congo river, direct your course up that majestic stream and in due season you will come to the town of Boma—that is, provided you have the right kind of atlas.

Boma doesn't cut much of a figure on the map. It is the capital of Belgian Congo and Americans have been content for the most part to let it go at that. But since the war broke out food supplies have been curtailed and now the people of Belgian Congo are having a chance to sample American products.

Credit for the opening of this new field is due to a Detroit man, Harry A. McBride, American consul at Boma. "That portion of Africa with which I am familiar offers unlimited possibilities for American prospectors and manufacturers," said Mr. McBride, when last at home on vacation. "Belgian Congo, for example, is one-third as large as the United States. It has 9,000,000 natives and only 5,000 whites. One thousand miles up the Congo river from the coast—and that is quite a way, you know—are diamond and gold concessions held by Americans that are said to be among the best in the world and only need developing. There are about thirty American prospectors in the district now, nearly all from California. There will probably be more before there are less, for once a movement of that nature gets started it spreads rapidly.

Native Kill Prospects. In spite of what commerce and the missionaries have done, prospecting is still fraught with great danger in many localities, for the natives harbor intense hatred for the whites and will kill them upon the slightest provocation.

It might seem that controlling these savages would be a simple thing. As a matter of fact, they know all the time what is taking place, and no matter how remote the village no white man can enter it in such a way as to surprise the natives. They are looking for you every time. One reason for this lies in the splendid system of wireless communication that maintains a log is hollowed out, usually a good-sized one. Over the ends of this are stretched dried leopard skins, forming a head, and when a native armed with a heavy club or a hammer pounds on this log there follows a penetrating boom that can be heard for miles through the forest. They seem to have a generally recognized code of signals, and the coming of strangers is passed along the line with astonishing rapidity.

There is another time when these crude drums come into play. This is when the tax collector makes his rounds. All the natives are supposed to pay an annual head tax, ranging from $1 to $2.40, according to their employment and income. Naturally, the collector is unpopular. Consequently, as he makes his rounds the dull boom of drums reverberates through the jungle, and when he reaches a village he is liable to find only the chief and a handful of subjects. Where are the others of the tribe? Ah! With much weeping and many protestations the chief asserts that a plague swept over them and they are all dead (excepting the faithful few). This lie is palpable, but as there is no way of determining the number of those liable to taxation the receipts suffer very materially. In fact, since a cessation of the atrocities credited to King Leopold and his agents was forced the revenues of the colony have fallen off to such an extent that it requires careful work to make ends meet sometimes. Rubber and ivory are still exported in large quantities, and coconuts cultivated along the coast.

Firearms are not supposed to be sold to the natives any more. However, they are at liberty to buy gunpowder for those still in their possession, although bullets are barred. They get around this by taking steel nails, wire and various things, cutting them into bits and using these for bullets. You can imagine what happens when a human or an animal gets a charge of chopped-steel nails in his hide.

Excel American Indians. "As archers the African natives excel the American Indian at his best, a thing that surprised me, while as metal workers there is no comparison. The Africans still use great numbers of bows and arrows. The latter are three feet long, very heavy, and fitted with the most wicked-looking barbs of giant proportions that I ever saw. If one of those barbs entered a human, and he survived, it would be necessary to cut him pretty well to pieces in order to get the arrows out of his anatomy. They also use poison-tipped arrows, which are fatal to anything living that they strike.

"Some of the finest examples of metal working I ever saw are produced by these natives in their crude forges and with the primitive tools they make for themselves. Their battle-axes are positive works of art, heavy, but carefully wrought and skillfully finished. Their knives are the finest steel. They have a strange way of keeping score with these same axes. Whenever an ax has done its deadly work, be it taking a human life or merely lopping off a finger or amputating an ear by way of emphasis, another pair of eyes and another nose are carved on one of the crossbars. And when all the available space has been given over to these ghastly reminders of bloodshed the ax is cast aside, another is brought into play and a new score started.

Antelope, hippopotamus, crocodiles and other tropical denizens inhabit the rivers and the forests, and leopards are so common as to attract little attention. Boma is 46 miles up the Congo river from the coast. Matadi, 25 miles further, is the principal seaport. From here inbound cargoes are transferred to a railroad running to Stanley Pool, 240 miles distant, beyond the rapids that prevent navigation. Here the freight is placed aboard river steamers for distribution along the 9,000 miles of navigable waterways that extend into the interior. That short stretch of railway happens to be one of the most remunerative enterprises in Africa in good times. Every pound passing over the rails—and there is no other way to travel—is assessed heavily.

There are about 170 white residents in Boma, most of them Belgian officials. It is not exactly the place one would select as a health resort. Live stock cannot exist there, because it contracts the sleeping sickness. Bees are brought down the coast on sailing vessels, killed as wanted, and when the stock is exhausted others are imported, but no attempt is made at breeding cattle. There being no horses, carriages have no place. Instead there is a single-wheeled chair, called a push-push, with a native in front to pull and another at the back to maintain the equilibrium. Taxi cabs, rickshaws are not exorbitant. It is possible to obtain a push-push and two natives for six dollars a month, or thereabouts.

Queer Sentence. A monkey exhibited at a museum established at Taubaya, Mex., was condemned to be shot under judicial sentence. It seems that the animal bit a man, who died from the results of the bite. The family of the deceased brought complaint before a judge, who was foolish enough to institute criminal proceedings against the monkey and sentenced him to be shot. Luckily, the manager of the museum brought influence to bear and succeeded in obtaining a change of the sentence to perpetual imprisonment. The monkey is now enduring the punishment of his crime behind the bars of an iron cage at the museum.

Restoration of Palestine. Palestine is essentially an agricultural country, as it has absolutely no other resources, and in past times supported a large population. But it should be understood that to restore it to its former prosperity would require considerable capital and a radical reform of government. Though the Israelites came out of the very produc-

All She Wanted to Know. "But what is his reputation? That is the principal thing." "Well, papa, he is reputed to spend $50,000 a year. That's good enough for me!"—Judge.

AS GOD MEASURES

Most Influential People Are Not Always Those Who Stand in the High Places.

"According to the measure of a man that is, of an angel." Rev. 21:17. We measure form; the angel measures spirit. We measure actions; the angel measures motives. We measure externalities; the angel measures spiritualities, and so it often happens that the judgment of the outside measurement is strangely altered, if not absolutely reversed, when things are judged "according to the measure of the angel." It might, then, be helpful to us to look round about our common life, and see in what spheres the measure of the angel might seriously alter the conclusions reached by the measure of the partially earthly men.

Let us ask, then, in the first place what size is the church of the living God? How shall we measure it? You know what kind of measure is commonly used. We measure the length of the membership rolls in any particular town or city, and then we add the totals together, and we say the result represents the magnitude of the church of God in that particular place.

If an angel were to measure the strength and size of the church of God would the result be larger than our combined membership rolls, or less? I have faith enough, and optimism enough, to think that it would be larger.

Lesson for Disciples. Let us look at Jesus and his disciples. The master was always seeking to break down their exclusiveness and to give them a larger measure. They came to him one day very satisfied with a little work they had been doing for him. They were eager to give him evidence of their burning zeal. "Master we saw one casting out devils in thy name, and we forbade him, because he followed not with us." Do you see their measure? "Does he walk with us, do we do, keep in our ways? If so, he is right! If not, down with him!"

Now let us look at the subject from another angle. We are seeking to discover the contrast or the difference between the measure of the angel and the measure of the world, and so far we have applied ourselves to the consideration of the size of the church of God. Now let us turn our inquiry in quite another direction. Who are the influential people according to the measure of the world and how do these influential people stand when measured by the angel?

Let us help our thinking. Let us step into the imperial city of Rome in the year 68. Who is the most influential personage in the city? Oh, of that there can be no shadow of doubt! The emperor Nero, of course! His word is law; his smile is life; his frown is death. But I should like to ask the angel to show me the most influential man in Rome, and I think that the angel would lead me away from the emperor's palace to the emperor's prison, and there he would point out to me an old man, wearing chains about his ankles and wrists; feeble now, and almost done, this poor, forgotten prisoner the angel would salute as the most influential person in Rome! Who is he? Paul the aged; more potent than emperor or emperor.

Greater Than Napoleon. Step forward across the centuries to the year 1810. Who is the most influential man of the time? Surely it is a needless question. Napoleon has gone from victory unto victory until now he is the master of western Europe. His personality towers like a Colossus before the gaze of the world, and to his countrymen he seems like a god. There is no question as to where the influence lies. But perhaps if we were to ask the angel to point out to us the most influential personage in the world in the year 1810, he might take us away to a far-off corner in China, where sits a lonely student, Robert Morrison, laboriously compiling a dictionary of the Chinese tongue, and translating into that language the wondrous story of the Christ. He was a man filled with the spirit of God, and gave his life to the work, and so became a "living way" into that dark and unknown land.

Now, who is the most influential personage among us? Where would the angel take us? Maybe to one of our missions, and place his hand upon one of the most obscure of our teachers; maybe to one of you mothers, molding your child to be the captain of some host of Christian chivalry! The angel looks for spiritual essence and measures that. What is our influence according to the measure of an angel? What are you to the angel? A cipher, or a spiritual center out of which flows rivers of living water, to gladden and refresh the world? Would the angel pass you by, or would he stop to ponder and to praise your God?—Exchange.

Give Yourself to God. Let us give ourselves to God without any reserve, and let us fear nothing. He will love us, and we shall love him. His love, increasing every day, will take the place of everything else to us. He will fill our whole hearts; he will deprive us only of those things that make us unhappy. He will cause us to do, in general, what we have been doing already, but which we have done in an unsatisfactory manner; whereas, hereafter, we shall do them well, because they will be done for his sake. Even the smallest actions of a simple and common life will be turned to consolation and recompense. We shall meet the approach of death in peace; it will be changed for us into the beginning of the immortal life.—Fenelon.

Too Hard on the Gossips. A New York inventor has found a way of keeping everybody on a party telephone line, except the party called, from hearing a word of the conversation. But he needn't expect the company to utilize his invention. It would ruin its business.

Why They Suffer. Sign on Twentieth street, near Sixth avenue: "Wanted—A few girls to clean waists. Also a few bright girls. Apply ninth floor."—New York Tribune.

APPETIZING FISH DISHES.

"OOD FOR THE YOUNG CHILD. There is great need that mothers study the feeding of the baby, as statistics tell us that a large proportion of little people die with no chance to fight their own way before they are two years old. To introduce solid foods into the diet of a child is a change worthy of thoughtful consideration. Children should be fed according to their weight, age and development. Solid foods should be introduced gradually after one year of age in a normal baby.

A cereal well cooked, an egg cooked and mixed with bread crumbs or milk, or gruel, making one meal a day. See that the baby feeds slowly and masticates well. Habits of right eating may be formed now which will go with him through life. Fresh bread should never be given. Cut in squares and baked until brown, then served in milk is a good dish and one children like. Add a pinch of salt but no sugar to such dishes. Milk and cream should be used plentifully.

An hour before or an hour after feeding a tablespoonful or two of orange juice, pineapple juice, strained apple sauce or mashed pulp of prunes may be given.

Vegetables are now a necessity. Potatoes thoroughly baked, and served with butter or cream. Asparagus tips, spinach and carrots crushed fine and well seasoned with salt and butter.

Only one vegetable daily until the age of two is reached. Meats should be given but sparingly; a tablespoonful of scraped rare beef may be mixed with the baby's potato or a bit of beefsteak gravy may be put on it. Up to three years but little meat is given, and it should always be finely cut.

Broths of mutton, chicken or beef with rice or stale crumbs, or beef juice may be given, five ounces at a meal; beef juice being more concentrated, three ounces is sufficient.

Cereals of oatmeal, farina, barley hominy, rice or cracked wheat, four ounces, but it should be long and well cooked. Serve with a pinch of salt and plenty of milk and cream.

GOOD THINGS FOR THE TABLE.

A most delightful autumn dainty is baked pears. Wash and peel the pears and lay them in a baking dish, cover with water, butter and lemon juice, using the mixture to baste them during the baking. Serve when brown, and tender. As a vegetable to serve with meats or as a dessert with whipped cream there could be nothing more tasty.

Stuffed Pears.—Take firm pears and remove cores. Steam until tender, then fill the centers with whipped cream, mixed with chopped dates, candied cherries or nuts.

Pear Salad.—Peel nice, ripe pears cut in halves, remove the core, then roll in chopped nuts, lay flat-side down on head lettuce, place a large spoonful of mayonnaise at the side and serve well chilled with toasted cheese crackers.

Stuffed Green Peppers.—Cut the stem ends from six green peppers, remove white fiber and seeds, scald five minutes and drain. Mix one cupful of bread crumbs with three tablespoonfuls of melted butter, one cupful of tuna fish, salt, a dash of lemon juice and stock to moisten slightly. Fill the peppers, place in a buttered pan with half a cupful of hot water, to bake slowly half an hour. Serve with a cream sauce and triangles of buttered toast.

Creamed Oysters.—Take three dozen oysters, parboil in their own liquor until they ruffe, then drain. Place a cupful of cream and a half cupful of milk in a double boiler. When the mixture is hot add a tablespoonful of butter and two of flour, well mixed, season with salt and pepper; cook until thick. Fill ramekins with this mixture and the oysters cover with a piece or two of hard cooked egg and a spoonful of buttered crumbs. Brown in the oven. The egg may be used as a garnish on top of the browned crumbs just as it goes to the table, with a bit of parsley as a finish.

Criticism of Modern Ways. Today the tendency is, not to endeavor to make youths strong to resist, but to try to remove all stress from them. They must not be given hard tasks at school; indeed, the cry is that children must feel that school is play. They must not be taught obedience and respect, lest they be servile. They must have much amusement. All this is dependent upon the idea that life is meant for pleasure and that work is a curse.—Dr. Charles W. Burr.

Only Work Brings Success. Those who are prone to consider themselves exempt from hard work have never been known to obtain the success which real people cover. You have to keep working every minute to get anywhere. Just as soon as you stop the other fellow is bound to go ahead.

See With Their Mouths. Earth worms have no eyes, but their mouth end is so sensitive to light that they can distinguish between night and day.

If there no longer existed women sufficiently dignified in their manners to inspire real respect, the opinion of society would no longer have any influence over the actions of men.—Madame De Staël.

APPETIZING FISH DISHES.

Canned fish now is such a plentiful article on the market that when fresh fish is not obtainable the tinned variety will answer fully as well. Tuna or tunny fish is one of the most delicious of canned fish and may be served right from the can with quarters of lemon or combined in various ways to serve as salad. Filled tomatoes, stuffed with tuna, well seasoned, celery and cabbage makes a most tasty salad.

Herring Salad.—Cook salt herring 15 minutes in boiling water to cover. Drain and cool and separate into flakes. Add an equal quantity of cubes of cooked potatoes, a half cupful of chopped celery, the whites of two eggs, chopped, and a good boiled dressing. Cover with hard-cooked egg yolk put through a ricer.

Salmon Loaf With Peas.—Season a can of salmon, add a beaten egg, a tablespoonful of lemon juice and a cupful of thick, white sauce. Steam in a loaf and serve garnished with cooked peas on a platter.

Creamed-Finnan Haddie.—Cook half a tablespoonful of green onion, one tablespoonful of green pepper (both chopped), with a fourth of a cupful of butter, five minutes, stirring constantly. Add four tablespoonfuls of flour, mixed with a teaspoonful of salt, a dash of cayenne and half a teaspoonful of paprika. Then pour on gradually one cupful each of milk and cream. Bring to the boiling point and cook two minutes. Reserve half a cupful of this sauce and to the remainder add 1½ cupfuls of flaked finnan haddie, when hot fill the center of a rice border with the finnan haddie and pour around the reserved sauce. Garnish with canned pimento.

Salmon croquettes molded around a teaspoonful of cooked green peas and served hot with a highly seasoned sauce make another tasty dish.

Salt cracker is delicious soaked overnight or until well freshened then placed in the oven covered with a good cupful of thick cream and allowed to bake 20 minutes. Add salt it needed, just as it is taken up.

DO NOT SLIGHT LEFTOVERS. Take any bits of leftover meat, put through a meat chopper, season and mix with egg, and form into cutlets, place half an almond cut lengthwise at the small end to represent the cutlet bone. Dip in egg and fry. Place a cauliflower in the center of the dish and pile the cutlets around and serve. Serve with a meat sauce.

A small piece of cheese, if grated, will add flavor to any number of dishes. It is good in escalloped-potatoes, in escalloped cabbage, adds to the flavor of milk toast and may be sprinkled over lettuce which has been dressed with French dressing. A little grated cheese added to an omelet is an improvement.

A dainty cracker to serve with a salad course is prepared by heating grated cheese on the crackers, sprinkle with salt and cayenne and then toasting in the oven.

Sour cream makes a delicious filling for cakes; add brown sugar and cook until it is hard, add nuts and beat until smooth.

Sour cream dressing, using cream, salt and a dash of cayenne served on young green onions is a dish not half well-known.

A tablespoonful of leftover peas with a few cold potatoes will make a most appetizing salad to serve for Sunday night supper.

Stale bits of bread may be used as crumbs for various dishes, as croquettes, as bread puddings with fruit or custard, as filling with nuts for peppers, or baked potatoes. In fact in thousands of ways bits of bread may be utilized.—Not a crumb should be wasted, even the crumb tray should be emptied for the little shred.

Orange peel and lemon peel may be used to flavor sauces, removing the peeling before serving.

ANURIC!

This is a recent discovery of Doctor Pierce, who is head of the Invalid Hotel and Surgical Institute at Buffalo, N. Y. Experiments at Dr. Pierce's Hospital for several years proved that there is no other eliminant of uric acid that can be compared to it. For those easily recognized symptoms of inflammation—as backache, scalding urine and frequent urination, as well as sediment in the urine, or if uric acid in the blood has caused rheumatism, it is simply wonderful how surely "Anuric" acts. The best of results are always obtained in cases of acute rheumatism in the joints, in gravel and gout, and invariably the pains and stiffness which so frequently and persistently accompany the disease rapidly disappear.

GET-RICH-QUICK MAN IN TOILS

J. E. FOSTER BROUGHT BACK TO DETROIT AFTER CAPTURE IN WILKESBARRE.

HAS HIGH FINANCE RECORD

Must Face Charge of Having Duped Eighty Michigan Merchants Out of $125 Each on a Premium Scheme.

DETROIT—J. E. FOSTER, alleged to have duped Michigan merchants out of $100,000 through a fraudulent scheme, was brought to Detroit from Wilkesbarre, Pa., Saturday, and held by Commissioner Hurd to await the action of the federal grand jury.

High finance was a specialty with Foster, according to Postoffice Inspector E. E. Frasier, who traced him from Detroit to Wilkesbarre and was instrumental in causing his arrest.

Mr. Frasier says he has traced many schemes brought by Foster, all of which would have brought bounteous returns if legally operated, and by which the promoters of the schemes have cleaned up in the neighborhood of $100,000 in the ten months.

As an extensive advertising campaign was to be carried on locally, it was the arousing of the suspicions of the newspaper men in these towns that led to the investigation of Foster's game. Foster disappeared with the money when the investigation was started.

Some years ago Foster was a poor violinist in Chicago. He struck up a good business in construction game, and thereafter according to the postoffice officials, many "get-rich-quick" schemes resulted, Foster accepting prosecution each time.

The Indian has worn hellish footgear for so many generations that his feet are not so light as that of most civilized men, and the result is that, if left to themselves, the moccasins make very bad shoes.

But for all this the pattern making and headgear are genuine "Indian" in every respect, and have been carefully copied from old models. The present system probably has done a great deal to preserve old Indian customs, which might have been forgotten or changed if left unattended.

Every Indian design means something and sometimes the colors have a special significance, either in religious or in other legends. The designs on the moccasins are usually made of red, yellow, blue and white. Without the arrows, heads about it a square is usually meant for a star. Diamonds stand for lakes.

Sometimes moccasins were made with a bunch of feathers a foot long at the heel. These were intended to smooth over the tracks by the wearer, so that anyone following him might be unable to know where he had passed. Of course they also were decorated, especially when the wearer was mounted.

In time goes of and buckskin becomes scarcer the makers of moccasins will have to turn more and more to other kinds of leather, if they do not have to give up making them altogether.
