Warning Is Issued by Department of Agriculture.

Disease May Be Contracted by Eating the Flesh of Hogs, in Any Form, Not Thoroughly Cooked -Timely Hints.

Washington, D. C.—There is always the possibility that illness may follow the eating of pork that is raw or not thoroughly cooked. The danger is greatest at this season of the year when many people prepare for home consumption various food products that are customarily eaten without cooking. More of these homemade products are prepared at hog-killing time on the farm than at any other

American people as a rule prefer cooked pork, but there are many who, perhaps unknowingly, consume nork in an uncooked condition, either in the form of raw ham or uncooked sausages. _In many localities considerable amounts of these products are made up and consumed at home, or distributed throughout the neighborhood. Large quantities of pork prod acts intended to be eaten raw are also prepared commercially:

The disease known as trichinosis, which may result from eating raw pork, is caused by certain round worms, called trichinae. These are microscopic in size and infest the flesh of hogs. The prevalence of trichinae in hogs is indicated by the fact that during nine years, 1898-1906, when the carcasses of hogs were inspected microscopically by federal inspectors, of £,090,000 carcasses so inspected, 1.41 per cent contained living trichinae and 1.16 per cent contained trichinalike bodies or disintegrating trichnae. In other words and in roun numbers, trichinae were present in 1 out of 71 hogs, and if the presence of dead trichinge and trichinalika bodies is included, in 1 out of every 29 hogs.

Unlike many other infectious diseases, the severity of an attack of trichinosis depends upon the number of parasites swallowed. Large quantities of slightly infested nork must ciable effects. If severe illness follows the esting of a small amount of the meat, the pork must have been heavily injested.

To avoid tricking they in the raw state, including dried or smoked sausages and hams, should be path of the electric which had no eaten. All pork used as food should be cooked thoroughly. If this is done The boy was instantly killed, as the value or wholesomeness of the meat for food purposes is not impaired by the fact that the parasites were present in it -

According to specialists of the de partment, trichinae die when sub jected to a temperature of about 140 degrees F. All products containing pork which are prepared to be sold as cooked products in establishments op erating under federal mest inspection are required to be cooked sufficiently to insure a temperature high enough to destroy trichinae throughout all portions of the meat. Likewise, in-order to protect consumers who are careless or ignorant of the danger of raw pork products of kinds prepared customarily to be eaten without cook ing, such as certain kinds of hams, and summer sausages, must be manuactured in accordance with anethods "hich, it has been determined, destroy he vitality of any trichinae white may be present in the pork. It has peen found by investigations in the bureau of animal industry that if pork cted to a temperature

In any case it should be remembered that fresh, pork, or order of eating raw took is not to be onnary cured pork products, are not safe as food unless properly cooked. It can not be determined with certainty by inspection whether pork is free from trichinae, and the federal meat inspection mark does not guarantee the fitness of pork for food if it

Blister Rust Threatens Big Economic Loss.

Recent Outbreaks in Eastern States Lead Federal Authorities to Issue Warning-Comes in on Imported Stock.

Washington, D. C.—The alarming character of the white pine blister rust and the economic loss which it threatens in the northeastern and western United States are sharply emphasized by four recent serious outbreaks on pine trees and current bushes in Massachusetts and New .York, says the United States department of agriculture. This disease was introduced on imported white pine nursery stock and first appeared at Geneva, N. Y., in 1906. In 1909 extensive importations of diseased white pine nursery stock were located and destroyed in New York and other eastern states, and warnings were issued breadcast against further importation of white pine from Europe. In spite of these warnings importation continued even from the particular nursery in Ger many which was definitely known to be the main source of disease, until finally in 1912 all such importation Ruling-of Attorney General That Authorities Could Not Impose Regulations On Houses Calls Forth Voluntary Action.

Ypsilanti-At a special meeting of the Ypsilanti College Matrons' asso ciation Friday afternoon, 118 women who conduct rooming houses voted to adopt and sign the following reso lution:

"Resolved, that we, the undersigned college matrons, pledge ourselves to enforce in our respective houses the housing rules that up to this time have been operative in the Normal college."

These rules prescribe the hours that girl students may entertain male call ers, and which Attorney Fellows ruled Normal college could not legally enforce. 🦠

There are in all about 150 members of the Matrons' association, but many were out of town for the holidays and that the 118 were unanimous; shows the overwhelming sentiment in favor of the rules recently rules against by Attorney General Fellows. Many of those who were unable to be present were known to favor enforcing the rules.

The discussion was lively and ever woman who spoke declared that she would not go back to the old way for anything; many even declared. that they would take no more roomers if the rules should be abandoned. Pres ident McKenny says that the college will continue to have an approved lisof rooming houses, on which are named only those matrons who agree to enforce the rules, and the college will recommend students to room only in such houses, although, of course under Attorney General Fellows' rul ing, the college cannot refuse students whi live in other houses. The college will send a copy of the rules to al parents who have children attending
