Your Flag and My Flag

Your Flag and my Flag! And oh, how much it holds-Your land and my land—secure within its folds! Your heart and my heart beat quicker at the sight; Sun kissed and wind-tossed, red and blue and white. The one Flag the great Flag the Flag for me and you— Clorifies all else beside the red and white and blue!

Your Flag and my Flag! And how thes today In your land and my land and half a world away? Rose red and blood-red the stripes forever gleam; Snow-white and soul white—the good forelathers dream; Sky-blue and true blue, with stars to gleam angel The gloried guidon of the day; a sheller through the night.

Your Flag and my Flag! To every star and stripe The drums beat as hearts beat and lifes shally pipe! Your Flag and my Flag—a blessing in the sky Your hope and my hope—It never hid a lie! Home land and far land and half the world around, Old/Glory hears our glad salute and ripples to the sound!

hail storm was followed by a heavy downfall of rain, lasting half an hour. The hail and rain were accompanied -by practically continuous lightning and thunder. The tent was only partly erected when the storm broke. Seeking shelter, about 40 people ran in under the canvas. They had no more than escaped the rain when the wind whipped out the tent stakes and allowed the canvas to fall. -The canvas was whipped about in the wind and the side-poles were threshed about like flails. Those injured were struck by the flying poles. Most of the people were near the edge of the tent and were able to escape when it fell.

BRITISH CAPTURE THE FOWN OF FRICOURT AND FRENCH TAKE TWO TOWNS.

Near La Boisselle the Germans Are Offering Stubborn Resistance-But British Report Gains.

London-The grand offensive of the British and French armies, operating Michigan supreme court for the last on both sides of the Somme, continued with the capture of Fricourt, three | of Bright's disease. He was 67 years miles east of Albert; Curlu, seven miles southeast of Albert; Frise, south of Curlu, and the wood of Mareaucourt, also south of Curlu, and the capture of 6,000 more prisoners, making the total 9,500. Reports show that the fighting is continued unabated all along the 25-mile front. -

The German defense has stiffene! determinedly following the shock of the first onslaught in which the Anglo-French hosts penetrated the German lines over a front of nearly 20 miles and to a distance in the center of five miles. The Teutons, apparently reinforced by their reserves, attacked vigorously at Montauban, the point of the wedge which the Allies had driven into their lines, and also at Hardecourt, but were repulsed. At no point have the Germans recovered any of the ground lost.

The town of Fricourt was captured by the British after a terrific struggle. The town had been virtually cut off by the British capture of Mametz, on the east, and Montauban on the northeast, and its fall had been expected hourly. Here the British captured 800 unwounded prisoners and thus increased their captives to a total of 3,500.

The British official statement shows that the heaviest fighting occurred in the area between the Ancre and the Somme, on the northern section of the Somme front, especially about Fricourt and La Boisselle. Following the reduction of Fricourt, the British made some progress east of the village. Near La Boisselle the Germans are offering particularly stubborn resistance, but the British here also, the war office announces, are making satisfactory

During the fighting the British state nent discloses, British aeroplanes were very active in co-operating with the land forces and afforded valuable assistance by bombing numerous Ger man field headquarters and railway centers. In one of these raids, the British aviators were attacked by a score of Fokkers, but succeeded in driving them off. Two of the Fokkers fell and were destroyed. Three of the British aeroplanes are reported missing and probably fell behind the German lines

He Was Charged With Complicity In a Plot to Blow Up the Welland Canal.

The recent peculiar incident in game in Chicago between the Cardinals and Cubs, when Jack Smith of the Cardinals stole third while Heinic Zimmerman left the base unprotected carry Jack Miller's bat to him at the plate, has recalled a good many incidents of "bone" in the Great Zim's career, but one must not suppose that all the queer things he figures in are due to mental phases. For instance Zim assisted in a play in a game between Cubs and Cards last year that showed he has a lot of craft in hi The game was a wild, wooly affair in which everything seemed to happen and finally Zimmerman came to but.

He had been spiked badly and bad been out of the game for days. He drove a ball far to center and limped to second, then hobbled to third. There were two out and two strikes on the batter. Manager Bre nahan delayed the game. He rushed to third base and ordered Zimmeria: e get out and let him run. He asked Manager Huggins' conser o let him run and still keep Zimmerman in the game. He made everyone in the game and most of the spectator know that he wanted to run for Helnie.

Then he whispered to Zimmerman to steal home on the next pitched ball.
