comes of fine fabrics finely tailored, of individual izing the most appealing features of fashion. Suits fall in two distinct classes-those strictly tailored and decidedly smart for street and travel wear, and those more elaborate for dress and afternoon affairs. Of the former, woolens, such as tricotines, poiret twills, gunniburl, wool jerseys and wool velours, men's wear serges and iweeds are most favored. Satins, Yo Sa Silks. Khaki Kool and silk and serge combinations are smart for the less severe suits. Tailored Suits range in price $19.50 to $45. More elaborate models, $45 to $85.

Coats

When one-piece frocks are high in favor, it follows that Wraps are of first importance. And the Women's Coat Section has anticipated this trend. Never were Coats more interesting-nor varieties so diverse. Coats for street and day wear, for sports wear, and for dress wear-they come in full and three-quarter lengths, notable all for loose, flowing lines, so that they may be slipped over the daintiest frocks, and as a rule the materials are the softest to be found. All popularity; Coat Dresses of wool jersey intro duce a new idea; Afternoon Gowns in georgette and silk are of distinguished simplicity-in lin and treatment, while the exquisite beauty of lace and net and chiffon-like marquisette frocks are irresistible. Street Dresses, $15 to $45; formal costumes, $49.50 to $69.50.

Skirts

Fashion this spring predicts marked favor patterned silks of much richness, delightfully fine wool velours striped and plaided, bouffant taffetas and satins so fashioned as to give the barrel silhouette, are among the many varieties. Of silk, $9.50 to $25; of velour, $6.50 to $16.50

Nor was he questioned when as Brigadier-General they sent him to the Mexican Border last year! This generation is not so party-bound as was the last, and the next will be less so than the present one. Judge Kinne must surely want John P. Kirk as his successor, otherwise he would not indorse him. If Judge Kinne is not in a position to Judge, who is? Perhaps the politician who is only out to see his party win.
