THRESH BEANS THRICE

This Method Proved Profitable Last Year And Surely Will

Bean growers are advised to thresh their beans two or three times this season. Last season when the bean prices began to soar some farmers in the vicinity of Howard City threshed or flailed their bean straw two and three times and realized surprising results.

Vines are wet and tough this season and farmers are advised to give them "the thrice over." These are times when everything worth saving should be carefully looked after.

The department of state, charged with collecting the state tax on motor vehicles, would be glad if those interested in registering cars by January 1st would send in their applications at once.

When The Enterprise found it necessary to advance its subscription price to $1.50 a year on account of the increase in prices of paper, ink, type and labor, we lost a few subscribers. People who were receiving higher prices for produce they had to sell were not willing to pay us the necessary advance. Happily most of those have since renewed, but what is more satisfactory to us is the fact that many who had not taken The Enterprise have subscribed for it, and the list is growing daily.

RALLYING SONG FOR AMERICAMS

(Tune of John Brown)

Throw trouble to the wind, boys, and jolly up a white, What's the use of feeling blue, it's better far to smilk! We've been making our expenses and heaping up a ville, As we go marching on.

> Glory, glory, hallelujah, Glory, glory, hallelujah, Glory, glory, hallelujah, As we go marching on,

Four and eighty thousand of shining golden blocks, Manchester loans to Uncle Sam to place with his ample stocks, To fix up his airplanes and keep us off the rocks, As we go marching on. Chorus.

We don't care for submarines, but we'd rather be on la d, We're going to help the Belgians regain the promiset and, And we'll back up our soldier boys wherever they may stand, As we go marching on.

We've got ten billion dollars and ten million fighting inen, And we'll send them to the rescue just as soon as we an, our boys in blue and khaki are always sure to win As we go marching on.

We don't want the "Kultur" that murders little kids: We won't have Teuton babies from the girl he never weds, We will fill their blooming carcus full of several kinds of lead, As we go marching on. Chorus.

We will hang the pompous Kaiser to a sour apple tree. We will give the German people a taste of liberty, And we will fight for human rights to all eternity, As we go marching on.

So never mind the weather, but be of hearty cheer, We might as well be happy as long as we are here, And protect the common people, whether cheap or dear,
As we go marching on.

By DEAN DAVID KINLEY

The war calls for sacrifice. From some it has taken life. From other it has taken things dearer than life. From others still it has taken the small thing we call property. What it may take from you and me is yet to be seen. How great is our spirit of sacrifice? Shall we be ready, when our country and humanity and God call us, to say that all that we have we sacrifice and dedicate to our ideals of duty and loyalty? In this hour of our country's need, in this day of world suffering, I would impress upon university men and women particularly the thought that their highest duty is the sacrifice of what they have to their country's call. The spirit of sacrifice is ennobling. Out of it great good comes, great deeds arise and leadership is established.

The duty of sacrifice and service rests upon us all. In the providence of God to whom much is given from them much shall be required in this day of world trial. If not given willingly it will be taken. If it must be taken the individual who loses it loses also the spiritual nobility that marks the individual who is ready to sacrifice for and serve his fellow men. If the leaders in thought, those who have gone farthest in education, fail, how shall we expect those whose privileges have been fewer or less to rise to the height of the idealism that is the need of the hour? Duty is not general; it is specific. It rests on the individual and not on some fictitious group called society. It is an individual matter and each one must search his own heart to find whether he is living up to the ideals and spirit of the God of his father and mother. Service, sacrifice, is the prerogative and the duty of the soldier, the citizen and the Christian.

RIDDING THE FLOCK * OF TUBERCULOSIS

If your chickens are free from tuerculosis, every precaution, within reason, should be taken to keep that freedom. I don't know that it is spreading any faster than usual, but the interchange of birds, the buying of fowls on the open market for fattening purposes and allowing chickens to follow infected herds of cattle are some of the things that spread the disease, says a writer in Farm

Progress.
Tuberculosis is tuberculosis whereever it is found. If there happens to be a consumptive patient in the fam-ily or near the premises, see that the birds are kept away from any and all the patient's secretions. If the common-sense plan of burning the sputum and all other discharges is adopted, there will be little danger from this source.

A chicken that acquires tuberculosis is a menace to the whole flock. Fowls suffering from this disease scatter it through their droppings, from open breaks in the skin and from the secretions of the nose and mouth. The germs of the disease are dropped in the dust, they are scattered through the yards, in the scratching places and the dust holes and on the edges of the premises and start all over again. But it is not very practical where you can ill afford the loss of the whole flock, to say nothing of having to start once more at the very beginning. This should not be done unless there is ev-ery indication that it is really tuberculosis that is killing off the birds Sometimes the cholera is at fault when tuberculosis gets all the blame, but one is about as bad as the other. If the disease is known to exist in the flock and it is decided to fight it, no half-way measures will be of any use. The fight will have to be persistent and radical measures must be used. Every bird that shows signs of the trouble may as well be killed at once. There will be enough of them infected without any early external indications to make the slaying of the evidently diseased ones a necessity. Burn all the carcasses. There is no Burn all the carcasses. There is no other way of getting rid of them.

Where it is possible new yards and houses should be established for the apparently healthy birds. The old houses may as well be burned to the ground. They would be dangerous for years if allowed to stand.

Where the houses are well built and of a permanent character they should be left standing, but all the fixtures, nesting equipment and other fixtures.

Of course the best way of getting should be sent at once in order to whole flock, burn the bodies, disinfect those in France before that time. Christmas gifts for the soldier boys should be sent at once in order to reach

Good Things for the Family.

For a make-believe apple pie to serve in a hurry, the following will be a success: Cut a few well-flavored, tart apples, put into a deep granite pie plate, season with sugar, butter, cinnamon, nutmeg or in any way to suit the taste of the family. Over the top place slices of buttered bread, set into the oven and bake until the apple sauce has absorbed and softened the bread. Serve with cream and sugar.—Such a pie will be found harmless for the children's dessert. It is also a good way to use left-over slices of bread. way to use left-over slices of bread However, we are not supposed to have left-over slices of bread these days, as the old custom which was common in grandmother's day is being revived, that of cutting the loaf as the bread is readed. is needed on the table. A very economical way of avoiding left-overs.

Prune Ice Cream.

Cover a cupful of prunes with cold water, and let them stand over night. In the morning cook in the same water until soft, remove the stones and put the fruit through astrainer. Add cupful of sugar, four tablespoonful of lemon juice, a pinch of salt and one and a fourth cupfuls of heavy cream, whipped. Freeze.

New England Thanksgiving Pudding. Roll crackers to measure a cupful and a fourth. Pour over them a quart of scalded milk and let stand until cool; then add one cupful of sugar, four eggs, lightly beaten, one-third of a cupful of melted butter, a teaspoonful of salt and one-half a grated nutmeg. Cook a cupful and a half of raisins in just enough fruit juice to cover, or boiling water may be used. Remove when soft and plump. Mix all together and turn into a deep buttered pan. Set the pan in another containing water and bake in a slow oven three hours. Stir after the first half hour to prevent the raisins from set-tling. Turn on a serving dish and gar-nish with lemon slices or cubes of jelly, serve with hard sauce.

Beans Without Pork. Now that pork of all kinds is so ex-pensive try baking beans with olive oil or the still cheaper corn oil, called Ma-zola. To a pint of beans parboiled, add spoonful each of salt and mustard, an onion dropped in whole and buried in the beans, and two tablespoonfuls of molasses. Add boiling water and bake as usual, at least half a day.

Baked Pears

Fut pears, unpeeled but cored, into a baking pan, and sugar, butter, lemon juice or vinegar and baste while baking. Bake in an earthen dish in a slow oren for several hours. The syrup to serve with the pears will be rich and
