NO. 17

At last President Wilson has asked congress to declare war with Austria because the war can be conducted successfully in no other way. He declares that war with Turkey and Bulgaria is not necessary now, but said: "We shall go wherever the necessities of this war carry us, but it seems to me we should go only where immediate and practical consideration lead us, and not heed any others."

TO THE MOTHER

By Edgar Rice Burroughs.

One Saturday afternoon a boy in uniform came up to Chicago from Camp Grant, on leave. It may be that he was your boy—I do not know. He was a stranger in Chicago. He went to a movie show and then he walked the streets searching for something, for anything to relieve the gnawing ache of the homesickness in his heart. He could not enter a saloon and to drink if he had so desired, for he was in uniform; but there were other, more alluring, deadlier forms of vice that were not denied him. They offered him human companionship and a substitute for love—however sordid and mercenary a substitute it might be.

He stood on a street corner and watched thousands pass, and never in all his life before had he felt so alone and lonely.

Then a woman accosted him. She was a handsome, well-dressed woman, and she eyed the boy a little, so that he shuffled his feet, and stammered, and blushed, but he went with her. They boarded a car together and went to her home. The boy thought it quite the most beautiful place he had ever seen. The woman called a young girl down from an upper floor. "This is my daughter," she said, as she introduced the boy, "and I want you to come in here now and meet my husband. Our only son is in France. There is nothing that we can do that we would not do for any boy who wears that uniform. The French mothers have been good to my boy, so, if for no other reason, I could not do less than be good to the boys of my own country."

They kept him for dinner that night, and all night and all day Sunday until his train left for Rockford. He went to the movies with them, and to church, and for an automobile ride, and now he goes there whenever he is on leave.

Suppose another sort of woman had accosted him?—and may be he was your boy. You can do the same for some other boy in uniform. You can open your home to him. You can save him for his country as surely as that other woman saved the boy in Chicago. And you can send him on to France with a realization, based on your actions rather than upon words, that all America honors "the sacred cloth" in which he marches forth to battle, and perhaps to die, for you and yours. The high regard and recognition with these boys will elevate you and your daughters as much as it will the boys, for while it keeps them from evil, it will inspire you with the high ideals which dominate the men of the National army.

"TEN DEMANDMENTS" OF BUSINESS

Up in Canada there is a successful business concern that expects, as most successful concerns do, that every employee shall do his full duty. To assist him in the task that concerns places conspicuously before him these "Ten Demandments":

1. Don't lie. It wastes my time and yours. I am sure to catch you in the end, and that is the wrong end.
2. Watch your work, not the clock. A long day's work makes a long day short; and a short day's work makes my face long.
3. Give me more than I expect and I will give you more than you expect. I can afford to increase your pay if you increase my profits.
4. You owe so much to yourself you cannot afford to owe anybody else. Keep out of debt or keep out of my shop.
5. Dishonesty is never an accident. Good men, like good women, never see temptation when they meet it.
6. Mind your own business, and in time you'll have a business of your own to mind.
7. Don't do anything here which hurts your self-respect. An employee who is willing to steal for me is willing to steal from me.
8. It is none of my business what you do at night. But if dissipation affects what you do the next day, and you do half as much as I demand, you'll last half as long as you hoped.
9. Don't tell me what I'd like to hear, but what I ought to hear. I don't want a valet to my vanity, but one for my dollars.
10. Don't kick if I kick. If you're worth while correcting you're worth while keeping. I don't waste time cutting specks out of rotten apples.

The Ruling Passion.

"I'm sorry, Rollo," said the young woman, gently, "but I fear that you must not hope. I am fond of you, but we can never marry. You see—"

"Yes, I see!" he interrupted bitterly. "You cannot marry me because I weigh 200 pounds. Nobody loves a fat man."

And with this quotation he strode forth into the night.

But there is always a Chapter II. Three weeks later our hero again stood in the presence of our heroine.

"I have come back to renew my suit," he said.

"But, Rollo, did I not tell you that it was hopeless?"

"Wait! Do not spurn me till you know all. I have been taking a gymnasium course. Today I am a bargain. I am reduced from 200 to 198!"

"Unable to withstand the great slash in values she fell into his arms.—Cleveland Leader.

AMERICA

My country! 'tis of thee, sweet land of liberty,
Of thee I sing:
Land where my fathers died, land of the pilgrims' pride!
From ev'ry mountain side let freedom ring!

My native country, thee, land of the noble free,
Thy name I love;
I love thy rocks and rills, thy woods and templed hills:
My heart with rapture thrills like that above.

Let music swell the breeze, and ring from all the trees
Sweet freedom's song:
Let mortal tongues awake; let all that breathe partake;
Let rocks their silence break, the sound prolong.

Our fathers' God! to Thee, author of liberty,
To Thee we sing:
Long may our land be bright with freedom's holy light;
Protect us by Thy might, Great God our King.

FOR THE POULTRY GROWER

Heavy Feeding in Winter.

Many reasons have been given for the scarcity of fresh eggs during the late fall and winter months. The regular poultryman gets a goodly number of eggs during all seasons of the year, and the writer is firm in the belief that few eggs are produced on the farms of the country during the cold months because the hens are underfed, says a contributor to a farm journal. The poultry raiser is prone to forget that his hens require more feed and better attention during the cold months than they do during warm weather. Even the hens that are penned the year around, require much more food in winter, because a large part of the food eaten must go to maintain bodily heat.

For winter feeding, the only safe rule to follow is to feed the hens all they will eat. Many skimp their hens on feed during the cold months, believing that if they feed heavily, the hens will become too fat to lay. A hen gets too fat to lay not because she is fed too much, but because she is fed too heavily on fat-producing foods. Like cattle and hogs, hens require a certain amount of bulky foods, and unless these foods are fed, it will not be possible to get many eggs during the cold months.

One-half the food supplied the hens should be ground, in the form of either a wet or dry mash. The mash should be bulky—that is, it should occupy a relatively large bulk in proportion to its food constituents. One-half the mash should be composed of bulky foods, as bran and cut clover or cut alfalfa. The other half of the mash should be of such concentrated foods as middlings, corn bread and beef scraps. The bran and cut clover will in bulk, be fully three times greater than the other ingredients in the mash.

The feeding of green food, or the green food that fowls obtain on range will make the ration still more bulky, and hens can safely be fed all they will eat, when fed equal parts of a bulky mash and grains.

In cold weather feeding, animal food must be included in the ration if a good egg yield is expected. This may not be in the form of beef scrap or green cut bone. If a plentiful supply of skim or buttermilk is at hand, the beef scrap or bone may be dispensed with. The mash should be wet with water, and should be placed in vessels, so the hens can help themselves at will. One need not fear that the hens will overeat of the milk. Milk will not take the place of water, and where milk is kept before the hens in vessels all the time, water should also be supplied.

Winter time is lazy time in the poultry yard. The hen, whose living comes too easily, will likely hump herself up in the house and sleep the best part of the day away. This tendency should be combated. The hens should be made to exercise by feeding a large part of their grain ration in deep litter. Exercise and plenty of food are the best tonics for winter egg production.

JUST FOR FUN

You May Have Noticed.
"Women of foreign lands have some outlandish customs as regards dress."
"Not too outlandish for our girls to try out at least one season."

Known No More.

Bacon—I understand he is lost to the world.
Egges—Yes, you see he married a prominent lady and is always mentioned as her husband.

No Time to Hide.

Angry Woman—My husband attempted to strike me. I want to have him arrested.
Police Captain—All right. Where will we find him?
Angry Woman—In the Emergency hospital.

Sure Thing.

Mrs. Newpop—See how perfectly still the baby is. I wonder what he is thinking about?
Mr. Newpop—Probably what to cry about next.

Believes in Signs.

First Jeweler—Aren't you afraid to leave those diamonds in a front window at night?
Second Jeweler—Not with my schema. Just before I go home I put in a little sign on them reading, "Anything in This Window 10 Cents."

Two Types of Beauty.

"Who is the most fascinating figure in history?"
"It's a tossup between Cleopatra and Helen of Troy," said the man who admires the fair sex.
"Indeed?"
"Yes. It all depends on whether you are a fool about a blonde or a brunette."

FINE CELERY GROWN HERE

Manchester Men Were Pioneers in Celery Culture for the Trade.

Manchester enjoys an enviable reputation for the fine flavored, tender celery grown by our truck gardeners. Manchester was the first place in this vicinity where celery was grown for market, and many carloads have been shipped from here to various points in the United States, each year.

The first celery grown here was by Mat D. Blosser in 1870 in his own garden. The curious neighbors were given samples and soon there was a demand for it. He sowed the seeds in a hotbed and grew not only his own plants but sold thousands to other people. The late Dr. Hyndman at Norvell and men at Tecumseh were among his customers. Soon others engaged in the enterprise and they found a ready market for all the celery they could raise. Marsh land in the village was subdivided, drained and tilled for raising celery and it was proved to be excellent for the business, producing a superior article.

J. D. Gage was among those early in the business and he has been very successful. His son, Taylor Gage, succeeded him last year and he is experimenting with new varieties, especially winter varieties. A sample was left at the home of the editor and we must say that it was excellent in every way. Charles E. Lewis, Ed. Braun, Adam Houck, Higgins & Weindler and others have been more or less successful in the business here. Onions, cabbage, turnips, etc., are also raised in large quantities.

WANTS NEWS FROM HOME

Another Former Manchester Man Wants to Keep in Touch With Us.

Wichita, Kansas, Dec. 2, 1917.
Dear Mat: I've enclosed check for $1.50 for which please send me The Enterprise. I often long for news of the old town and the whereabouts of the boys and girls in our time.

Presuming that you "keep tab" on such matters, The Enterprise will bring me the desired information. I think it was in 1910 that I was with the homecomers and there had been an interval of 40 years since I had seen my former home town. It surely looked good. Its business center and residential district all showed prosperity.

Out here in Kansas at the present time our bumper wheat crop for 1918 looks like it might not quite materialize on account of lack of moisture. However what we fall short in wheat we can make up in oil. It is claimed by the wise ones that the oil fields of Kansas produce more oil than any others in this country. Oil has made many of our Wichitans wealthy and a few of them millionaires. People from all parts of the country flock here to get into the oil game. Hotels are full to overflowing and the only sure way of getting a room is to engage it ahead. Wichita is the oil refining, pipe line and railroad center of Kansas. In the manufacture of flour it's the Minneapolis of the state. It has many other large concerns, in all numbering 130.

With best regards and a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year,
James Goodyear.
