OUR RETURNING SOLDIERS

They are coming home again, Those resourceful Yankee men, Heroes proven many times In afflicted foreign climes; Self-reliant, fearless, bold, Never did the world behold Such intrepid fortitude 'Gainst a tyrant's brutal brood.

They are coming home again, Better, stronger, braver men; Better fit for private life From their days of martial strife; Better posted, broader viewed; With a love of right imbued; Better fitted for our trust Since opposing wrongs unjust.

They are coming home again, Multitudes of fighting men; Coming eager for their share Of performance everywhere; Anxious for a chance to show Zeal like that which beat the foe; Thus enshrined in every heart, They will still do their full part.

FROM BATTLE FIELDS

Lieut. Lee Davison Writes to Mrs. Davison Some Experiences In Battle-Torn France.

Triscarrille, Meuse, France, March 17, 1919.
How are you tonight? I am O. K. This outfit has been very good to date. We had to be, we couldn't even get a drink. But now the soldiers are thinking out and we are able to get an occasional bottle of beer and once in a while a bottle of champagne and red and white wines.

Well, we were back at Verdun yesterday. We are now between Commercy and Bar-Le-Duc. We hit Lamigny first. The German lines lie just out of there a short way. We next hit them at St. Mihiel where the big battle took place, Sept. 12-18. We followed the lines from there to Verdun. And the towns along the line are laid low; all that remains of some are doors and windows. At Verdun I met all kinds of officers from Camp Lee; it was a fine reunion.

The city of Verdun is surrounded by a dozen or more forts, all on hills like Prospect hill. We left Verdun and went out to Dead Man's Hill, which was torn and blown to pieces till it looks more like a sand pile or rubbish pile. The soldiers all lived in dug-outs, some of which were 30 yards under ground. We went through one of three tunnels which was half a mile long. The U. S. boys caught and gassed 600 Germans in it. It must have been some job getting them out. All along its sides are rooms for men, and all through the trenches are graves where they buried French and Germans. When they were able they buried them outside the trenches, but when not able to do so they were buried in them. There is many a poor devil that never got buried at all. They are lying all over these hills—thousands of them. You can see where shells have landed beside graves and parts of bodies are sticking out. There are all kinds of shoes and boots with feet in them. Some of the trenches are so badly blown up that you can just trace them.

The day we were at Verdun, Lieut. Lee and myself went over the hill to see what the trenches looked like. Yesterday we found out we had been within easy firing range of the German trenches. I guess they took us for fools, so let us live. The next war will know more about such things.

Opening the polls at 7:30 a. m. and closing at 8 o'clock p. m., made a long day for the election board especially, as it took them until 3 o'clock a. m. Tuesday to count the entire vote.

An old fashioned thunder storm came this way Sunday evening and a goodly quantity of water was knocked out of the clouds. Grass and wheat look better for it.

L. Whitney Watkins, for member of the state board of agriculture, received...

Farms, factories, mines and furnaces must produce as well for peace as for war. Production is the key to prosperity.

There are two more little towns near by that are so badly blown that they have no name on the map. Hill 304 is right next to Dead Man's Hill and it is another "sight." When you see one, you see all.

We got back to Verdun and went through the underground city. Verdun has a large wall around it and the city is undermined. It is a system of underground tunnels used for many things. The city is 300 years old and would be a hard place to take. As you stand on top of the wall and look off toward the German lines, all you can see over those flats is shell holes. The city is blown to pieces. It stood steady shell fire for four years, so you perhaps can imagine how it looks. Most all of the population now is soldiers and I can't see where the civilians would live. The Y. M. C. A. has about all buildings not blown down.

Well, we got good news last night. We may be on our way home within a couple of months; that is, the men, and I'm in hopes the officers too.

JACKSON COUNTY

Returns from Jackson county spoke for good roads and a dry county by good majorities. Verily, the old county is redeeming herself. Grass Lake went Republican. County and state good roads were carried by big majorities. Sclaries lost by 188. Dry by 250 majority. Republicans captured most of the offices in Columbia township Monday. Ed. B. Parker is supervisor; Lena Wolf, clerk; Fred Ambler, treasurer; Frank Austin, highway commissioner; Joe North, justice. Good roads; county—yes 482; no 184; state—yes 430; no 230. Sclaries—yes, 204; no 146; no 554.

We heard a good many so-called Germans say during the war, that Germany would never relinquish those forts at Coblenz and other places that were built by Julius Caesar and had been under German control for many years. But it was the Yankee boys, Michigan boys too, who entered there and raised the stars and stripes over the ancient fortifications.

The Eastern Washtenaw Good Roads district work is to begin at once. The commissioners have met and approved contracts. The last two miles of the Whitmore lake road from Ann Arbor will be completed this season. Also one mile west of the city on Liberty street, one mile of Plymouth road from Broadway and one mile of the Superior road will be completed.

It is a peculiar state of affairs when people of California seek to sell a large tract of land to Japanese and then get frightened for fear the Japs will locate there. The California legislature cabled President Wilson, it is claimed, asking if it could legislate against the Japs or not.

Shrubs around the house and lawn should not be touched with shears or pruning knife until after they blossom. Taking away the dead wood and tips is all the spring trimming a shrub needs.

Germany Must Pay Up to the Last Farthing of Her Power—Lloyd George of Britain.

Paris.—The preliminary peace will be ready by Easter and the Germans will be asked to come and sign it at the end of April or the beginning of May, Premier Lloyd George of Great Britain declared in an interview with Stephane Lauzanne, editor of the Matin. In answer to a remark by M. Lauzanne that what troubled public opinion was not so much the delay, as the secrecy in which the peace negotiation were wrapped and the fear that there was some divergence of opinion, the British premier said: "I affirm absolutely that there is no divergence among the negotiators. They often are confronted with technical difficulties which can only be worked out by close study. Take the

Let's Go Over the Top Again!

IN FLANDERS FIELDS.
In Flanders Fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing,
Whispered to the soldier boys
In the dawn
"Short days ago
We lived, we loved, we sang;—and now we lie
In Flanders Fields."
THE ANSWER.
In Flanders Fields the poppies bloom
And flit in hues of brightest red;
While up above like eagles fly
The larks, still bravely singing,
Whisper to the earth whereon we lie
In Flanders Fields.
IN REQUIEM
In Flanders Fields the poppies bloom
Again in hues of brightest red;
Patriot's tribute to our honored dead
Whisper to the earth whereon we lie
In Flanders Fields.
And in the hearts of those
Who dearly freedom loved
These poppies bloom another flower—Our Love
That there shall flourish while life lasts.
Ere we, brave lads, and wait for us,
And as you wait we build within each home
A monument—of Gratitude:
And when again we clasp your hands
You shall be made to feel
Our hearts have always been with you
In Flanders Fields.

SMALL WOMEN AND LARGE GIRLS

Formerly Problems--But Not So Today

Mature women of small stature don't like to be sent to the girls' department to find clothes that will fit and then not be like what other women are wearing.

Large girls don't like to be aged prematurely into garments for mature women because their girls' stock has nothing like enough.

So here's a compromise gathering—youthful enough for the younger women, mature enough for the older and, as their figures run much alike, certainties of fit are assured.

Therefore, whoever you are, coats suited to your years, your figure, your spirits and your purse—and faultless in fashion, fabric and finish—await your interested call.
