It's a man's job to keep up with Michigan

In the passing of a decade, almost, Michigan, by a phenomenal growth, has leaped from comparative industrial obscurity to a commanding place among the commercial centers of the nation.

Hand in hand with this expansion, has grown the demand for telephone service in Michigan. Some idea of the problems confronting the Michigan State Telephone Company as the result of this advance in industry and population may be gained from consideration of these facts. In 1910 the state had a population of 2,810,000, served by 143,300 of our

In 1920, it is estimated from the available census returns, the population—is 3,210,000, a growth of approximately 400,000, and is served by 292,851 of our telephones, meaning one for each 11 persons.

Therefore, while the population has grown 14.2 per cent, the number of telephones has grown 164.3 per cent. The company has, in the face of war conditions, material and labor shortage and skyrocketing costs, more. than kept pace with Michigan's growth. It has been necessary, in order to meet the myriad problems confronting that been necessary, in solution meet the myriad problems componing the telephone service, for the company to make surveys and estimates, years in advance, of the volume and direction of population and industrial growth in order to intelligently build to meet it. All this company's resources and efforts have been used to meet Michigan's requirements, as

Had the 14.2 per cent increase in population been evenly distributed the problem would have been simplified, but this growth has been greater at some points than at others. There have been times, therefore, when the surveys did not compare with requirements and times when the engineer's

But the telephone people, facing these and many other obstacles, carried on and are still carrying on, determined that their future efforts shall exceed even those of the past.

They are anxious to have the people they serve know what they are doing to solve these problems and that despite all difficulties they are determined to make Michigan's telephone service the best obtainable anywhere.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases. Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be repared with even greater care than Baby's food. A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children 2 Don't be deceived. Make a mental note of this:-It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care.
