The preparation for his department took many days. He read much books on flora and fauna. He bought some equipment. Knowing the financial ratio between the expense-pleasant of anticipation and realization, he did not buy a horse until he had a good one.

Disappointment turned into a picture at sight of the wild, barren, and desolate landscape.

In a Gambler's Market A clerk's error, adding three ciphers to a thousand-bushel selling order, caused wheat to fall 8 1/4 points on the Chicago Board of Trade last October.
