There is a peculiar quality in each human voice that is so individual that the very personality of the speaker is given out.

How often do your friends say to you, "Oh, I knew you by your voice?" For this reason long-distance telephone conversations have an emphatic value aside from the convenience of an immediate reply to questions and the opportunity for discussion.

Send your own voice over the Long Distance wire in all important transactions and it is as if you had been present yourself. This is the satisfying way—the modern way to transact your affairs.

The following information about different classifications of Long Distance calls will aid you in using the telephone most economically and efficiently
