No horse, however sound, can stand such treatment long without injury. A good, vigorous stallion needs at least six miles' travel daily or its equivalent in work.

The amount of feed to be given depends upon the exercise given, the condition of the horse and his ability to make use of the feed he gets.

The Kansas experiment station suggests the following as good combinations:

1. Oats, timothy or prairie hay.

2. Oats four parts—corn six parts, in the condition of the feed hay.

No horse, however sound, can stand and stand such the feed out.

Better and Better

That is what our Readers and Subscribers are acknowledging by their increasing interest and patronage.

We Want You With Them

. Come in or send in your name and become a subscriber. We are boosting Manchester more than ever before, if that is possible.

If you owe the Enterprise anything, please pay NOW as we need the money to keep the type and presses work

Send in News Items

And induce others to send some. We want to hear from every neighborhood, every nook and corner of Southern Washtenaw.

Use Liner Ads

If you want to buy a chicken or a cow, an auto or a dog, try a "liner."

If you want to sell anything you will find a buyer through the Enterprise "liners."
