Death Penalty Bill Killed.

The Pitkin death penalty bill received its final quietus when the house voted 55 to 42 to postpone it indefinitely. Following its original failure to summon the support of bl representatives the bill was tabled to allow time to rally more votes for it. Rep. Pitkin and other staunch advocates of the electric chair for murderers believed that by attaching a referendum clause to the bill and ordering it to a vote in November of next year, they could get the house to pass it. Brief Notes of Interest.

The senate, by unanimous has adopted the Bahorski bill that aims to suppress handbooks and betting on race horses. The bill would prohibit newspapers from printingodds paid on winning horses. The main argument over the bill was on the question of whether printing odds after a race was run was an aid to gambling. Tremendous pressure was brought, principally from Detroit, in favor of the bill. It is the culmination of a long fight in De troit over race betting in handbooks all the year round.

A departure from the usual grind of house and senate work was had recently when the two branches in joint session listened to a speech by Roy C. Haynes, federal prohibition enforcement director, on the workings of the prohibition law and later went in a body to Ann Arbor to pay a visit to the University—of Michigan. The needs of the institution were detailed to the lawmakers when they were on the ground.

Wool growers of the state have re newed their effort to get a "truth in fabric" law passed in Michigan. Rep. One or more oranges a day will keep the average individual in good health. Strained orange juice is an invatuable tonic, and may be given a three - months-old baby, if given be feedings. Orange juice is rich in vitamines, the growth-producing food principle. A delicious pie is prepared by filling baked shell with oranges cut in small pieces and mixed with sugar; cover with a meringue and brown quickly in a hot oven. Serve cold.

As a simple salad there is no more appetizing one than sliced oranges with a French dressing. Cover the fruit with boiling water and let stand ten minutes, then drain and cover with cold water ten minutes. The peel will then come off easily, leaving the fruit free from the white inner peel. Slice in rounds; arrange in overlapping slices on lettuce with French dressing. Use three tablespoonfuls of oil with one of lemon juice, salt and cayenne and a teaspoonful of powdered sugar Beat well with an egg-beater to blend the ingredients; chill and serve.

Nobody will refuse a dish of plain sliced oranges, sprinkled lightly with sugar; accompany with cake or cookies as a desseft.

How Milady Is to Dress Hair

acter of the dresses change, so do then the dress becomes something to the lines of the hair, writes a fashion supplement that idea. The plainest and authority in the New York Times. Unless a woman is decidedly individualistic in the way she dresses, she cannot afford to cling eternally to the old way of dressing her hair. If she does, she is all too apt to look strange and silly co-ordinated.

To many women it has never oc curred to look to the fixing of their hair as a part of their general dressing. One sees all too many examples of the person who has spent all sorts her dress is of care upon the way designed and made, upon the lines of rangement of her coiffure. Of course, as one passes out of girl nood it is no easy matter to keephair well dressed and in good condition. There seem to be too many times, when it chooses to lose its luster and take on that sad and dreoping look which is no help to any headdress. But, only be stated that there are ways and require a certain amount of time and energy spent upon the hair's care and preservation. Hair is something that will show one's every mood and feeling. A spell of worry will reflect ittil brown, then stirfin a locks and so will a spell of grip or a that manner of arrangement. tablespoonful of flour and state of constant headache. As the styles and the general char- | demands of the prevalent silhouette, most inconspicuous sort of frock will carry out the standard set by a wellarranged coiffure and give one the ap pearance of being dressed entirely up to the minute; whereas the most ex pensive and latest word in dress combined with straying and carelessly gathered together hair may create the appearance only of some wreck of fashion meaning nothing in particular.

One of the saddest days that enters a woman's life is that one when she reali: is that she can no longer afford stick it up with one pin. That idea is all very well for the young thing whose hair does exactly as she sug-

For the young things and those who have preserved their youth past all hopes (which is done these days most miraculously), the bob did service through many months and years. It was so satisfactory with those shorter and more informal frocks which were prevalent until about six months ago Then the longer, more dignified dres and coats began to appear and, try as we would, we could not persuade ourselves that the giddy little bob looked well with the newer styles. Then came the necessity of facing a rearrange-ment of shining locks. And women had grown to appreciate the comfort and the ease of the shorter hair as well as the becoming frame for the face and the informal setting for sports clothes. When they were out of doors, as so many American women are during the greater portion of their time, they did not have to bother with net and ties and strings to keep their coffures in place, but with the help of the permanent wave they were able to be as free with their heads as they were with their modern spirits. Now why let the hair grow and spoil all this blissful state of affairs?

At about this point clever hair dressers got to work to find a way of preserving the bob and still make the hair appear in harmony with the state of dressing that was fashionable. The most successful thing they have done is to curl the bob demurely downward and to wind about the head above the curls that surround the face a long luxuriant switch. This coiffure has all of the old-fashioned flavor which has been the keynote of the most modern dress-up dresses. It goes well with the full skirts of taffeta and the tight, demure little bodices. It is perfect with the wide lace berthas. It looks charming with a youthfully draped gown having a wide sash bow and plenty of fullness. In fact it is good with sports things, but the beauty the idea is that, once the switch is removed there remains a perfectly good "bob" that can be worn for a outdoor purposes and fit itself into any sort of hard wear where longer while this is not a dissertation on the any sort of hard wear where long way to take care of the hair, it can hair would be extremely botherson Word comes from Paris that when means of keeping the tresses in ex. the hair is bobbed it must be shingled cellent condition, though all of them and left quite extremely short. Hair of this character, in order to follow he dictates of the present fashion, should be parted and plainly dressed. There is an interesting colffure made from long black hair. The hair is parted in the middle all the way along the front and the back. Then the ends on either side are taken and wound round the head in a coronet line, letting the windings come close to the face to create there a mooth and soft line of regularly arranged locks.

Prof. R. C. Gowdy, professor of physics in the University of Cincinnati, claims his invention is the perfect automobile headlight. Nothing but a piece of window glass is necessary in connection with this new safe light, which eliminates all glare no matter how strong a bulb is used. It lights up the roadway brilliantly for more than 150 feet ahead. All this is accomplished by modifying the parabolic reflector so that the light is distributed properly at its first reflection by fluting the silvered reflector itself, making special dispersing lenses or levices unnecessary. As the new headlight has been pronounced legal everywhere, many auto makers are already making arrangements to use this simpl

Here Is a Delightful Comedy in the Form of a Serial Story Which We Feel Is a Real Kindness to Offer to Readers

The little English heroine is a trump. The young Yankee hero is a fit partner for her; and they do become partners in one of the funniest adventures you ever heard about thrilling, too! Innocently they get mixed up in a burglary which draws not only the local police of an English town, but the detective brains of the celebrated Scotland Yard on their trail. And the girl's father was a bishop; think of the disgrace if she were caught!

Not a crime story at all, but the story of two joyful cherubs who were suspected of a crime. There are motorcycle trips over a charming countryside; circumstances which cause the climbing of trellises and the invading of ancient castles in the dead of the night; hiding in caves; subterfuges of all sorts, and through it all is the rollicking spirit of youth just what its title implies—the joy of living. You will love sweet, audacious, nervy little Aimee, and you will have no less regard for dashing Billy, and even the Flying Sphin; the wonderful motorcycle which figured in their adventures, will get into your affections like a thing of life.

IT IS A NEW SERIAL STARTING IN THE ENTERPRISE SOON

ONION'S VALUE AS MEDICINE

For Many Ailments There Is Nothing That Will Get as Good Results in Short Time.

The sweet Italian or the Bermuda onlons are the ones to be eaten au naturel, their flavor being much more delicate than that of the common varieties. But onions are really sweeteners of the breath after the local effects have passed away, as they correct stomach disorders and carry off the accumulated poisons of the sys-They provide a blood purifier that all may freely use, and do perfect work in constipation troubles. As a vermifuge the onion cannot be surpassed, and, eaten raw, will often check a violent cold in the head. One small onion eaten every night before retiring is a well-known doctor's prescription for numerous affections of the head, and is highly recommended for sleeplessness; it acts on the nerves in a soothing way, without the injuri-ous effects of the drugs so often applied. The heart of an onion, heated and placed in the ear, will offen relleve the agony of earache, while the procured from sprinkling a sliced onion with sugar and baking in the oven will work wonders in a "croupy" child.
