

JACKSON COUNTY

A new hotel is talked of for Jackson. Nathan S. Potter, veteran Jackson banker and head of the cement plant near Chelsea, died Friday, March 6, aged 72 years.

The fair grounds at Jackson are used for many purposes besides the fair and the officers think the city ought to pay more for maintenance. Judge Parkinson refused to discriminate in sentences for bootleggers Monday morning, and in spite of pleas for leniency, gave sentences from six months to one year in Jackson prison to Henry Hagan, Joe Leseno and Richard Richmond.

W. B. Greeley, United States forester, told a senate special committee on national forestry policy that three million acres of former timber lands in the lakes states should be purchased by the Federal government and reforested. Senator Couzens of Detroit, as member of a committee on reforestation, is studying the subject with the purpose of evolving a real Federal forestry policy. He has visited forests and lumber camps in the south and has discussed matters with lumbermen and others.

FARMS IN COUNTY ASSESSED TOO HIGH

That Is Opinion of the Washtenaw County Board of Supervisors.

After the county board of supervisors had elected a chairman a committee was appointed to make recommendations on the reduction of personal property assessments and a second committee on uniform reduction of real estate assessments throughout the townships.

Several supervisors related how many farms in their townships had sold during the past few years for less than their assessed valuation. Some declared that personal property and real estate combined did not bring the sum the farm land was assessed at.

HOME-MADE SWEETNESS

The Old Fashioned Sugar Bush a Thing of the Past.

We notice that some town residents have tapped their maple trees and are boiling the sap down for syrup and sugar. Children especially enjoy the fun of gathering the sap and watch their mother cook it on the kitchen range.

Perhaps some of the old timers still reading the Enterprise will remember how our former townsman and blacksmith, James Henderskott, used to gather sap from trees in the locality of the cement plant site and on the banks of the lower pond.

Sometimes a Sunday raid was made by village boys, which caused our worthy citizen considerable spitting and cussing, perhaps, of those "tarnal young rascals." The Norris farm, down the river, Embarrassed Bridegroom Probably Heard Something Later From the Gift of His Heart.

The groom was embarrassed; the bride was self-possessed. "If it were only over," he whispered, excitedly. "I know I'll do it wrong."

Suddenly there came to the ears of the groom the voice of the minister, saying "Kindly change places with the bride."

The groom tried to do so, but stepped on the toe of her shoe, and raising his arm, caught his cuff button in her veil. "Do be careful," she implored.

The minister began the ceremony. The groom grew more and more embarrassed and fumbled with the rose of the bride's bouquet. Then he put his hand into his pocket and pulling out his handkerchief excitedly mopped his brow.

"If any person knows any just reason," he said, "why these two should not be joined together, let him now speak or forever."

"I will!" shouted the groom—Phyllis adelpheia Ledger.

Had No Shoes Until He Was Thirteen. "I had neither a hat nor a pair of shoes until I was thirteen. When it was too cold in winter to go outdoors, I had to stay in the house. But my feet were so accustomed to the cold, never having had a covering, that they could endure a good deal of frost without great inconvenience," relates Hudson Maxim in American Magazine.

"Very well do I remember playing on the ice of a nearby stream with the boys of a neighbor who had shoes. They could run and slide on the ice, while I could not, because my bare feet would not slip. Happily, I thought of the expedient of coating the bottoms of my feet with snow by rubbing them in the snow or frost, when for a while I, too, could slide on my feet."

"At one time I went to school barefoot, a distance of two miles, for several weeks after the early snows came. I ran along through the snow as long as I could stand it, then I climbed up on a fence or a big boulder, and rubbed my feet and ankles to warm them—then, went on."

The Baffled Men. Millinery looks alike to mere man, especially when two hats of the same color and general contour are seen from the rear. The other day two couples, strangers, boarded a street car at the same corner, and while the sheiks paid the fare, the sheiks selected seats across the aisle from each other. Then Sheik No. 1 went to join his lady, and sat himself beside the hat he thought she wore. The face under the hat was looking out the window, and nothing was said for a moment. Then he felt a hand on his shoulder, and Sheik No. 2 said, "I guess you've got the wrong seat!" Sheik No. 1 and both sheiks blushed furiously, and the passengers roared.—Detroit News.

Reverses Sounds. A curious instrument has recently been invented capable of reversing the sounds of a word or a sentence. A steel piano wire, carried on two spools, passes between the poles of a small electromagnet, so connected with a telephone transmitter that spoken words are magnetically recorded on the moving wire and reproduced in a receiving instrument. When the motion of the wire is direct, the words are heard as in ordinary conversation, but if the motion is reversed, the sounds come to the ear in reverse order, like words spelled backwards.

JACKSON BRANCH ENGINE BREAKS

Trains Are Delayed and Re-Routed Via Ypsilanti Branch—No One Injured by Break.

As the afternoon Grand Rapids-Toledo train was proceeding south through Bridgewater Friday, the engineer was aware that something was wrong with the locomotive and brought the train to a standstill 30 rods south of the McDougall crossing, between here and Clinton, when it was discovered that every spoke in the forward drive wheel was broken and a few were out of the opposite drive wheel, caused probably by being struck by a flying portion from the first.

AMERICA WILL RULE THE AIR

Howard E. Coffin, After Survey of Europe, Seems Sure of This.

The world is watching progress made in America, and especially in the Chicago-San Francisco air route, which has demonstrated that long-distance flights can be maintained on a regular schedule with a minimum of accidents, which is an important step toward educating the world to the practicability of flying.

SAY ROAD DON'T PAY

Is Saline to Be Ostracized by Removal of Interurban Tracks?

A report has come to us that the D. U. R. has petitioned the State Railroad Commission for permission to take up the tracks comprising the Saline division, claiming that the branch is not profitable. While we are not in a position to verify this statement it would seem that with the fairly good passenger traffic stimulated strongly by about 20 students from here and along the line who make daily trips, a heavy mail service, the milk producers' big production of freight, the regular freight business and four daily papers sending in bundles daily that 2 good revenue should be obtained, sufficient to satisfy the company. If necessary, we could dispense with two of the daily runs, the 10 o'clock in the forenoon and the 2 o'clock in the afternoon, they being the two that are a nuisance. But be it as it may, Saline people must realize that the D. U. R. has been and is a blessing to our village and community and its loss would mean much more than the simple comment it would make. Now is the important time for our business men to get together and not talk, but do something to keep Saline on the map as one of the best towns in Southern Michigan. Who will start the matter—don't wait, do it now!—Saline Observer.

SOME WISDOM IN LAZINESS

Reserving a Little Time for Thought Is by No Means the Worst of Human Attributes.

Writing for a current magazine of "The Wisdom of Laziness," Fred C. Kelly says: "Frank B. Gilbreth, the great industrial engineer and student of human motions, frequently makes moving pictures of expert workmen in various trades to determine how few different movements are needed in performing a piece of work."

"He finds that the best worker—that is, the one from whom others can learn the most, is invariably a lazy man, willing to work only just hard enough to hold his job. He is too lazy to waste a single motion that he can avoid."

"The more energetic man is far less efficient because he doesn't mind squandering his energy in unnecessary movements. At the end of the day he is fatigued out of all proportion to the work done."

"We often hear a man who makes a great commotion about his job spoken of approvingly as a hustler. But the average hustler never outgrows taking orders from some quiet fellow seated at a desk in the main office."

A radical reversion from the old gospel of the man who was "chain lightning" on his job. But now that Mr. Kelly reminds us, we did hear once on a time that chain lightning never strikes anything.

Prime Sport in Swordfishing. The barkentine Monitor recently arrived at Seattle from a cruise in the South seas, bringing the report that a swordfish, evidently mistaking the boat for a whale, attacked from underneath. It came up with such momentum that its sword was driven through a six-inch plank in the hull. When investigation was made to discover the cause of a leak, the fish's sword was found, minus the teeth, in the thick plank.

What is regarded as a prime summer sport is swordfishing along the northern sea coast of the United States. The swordfish is harpooned, the harpooner standing behind an iron protection as high as his waist. The swordfish preys on schools of spawning fishes. While frequently seen in the Pacific waters, it is a native of the North Atlantic, the Mediterranean sea and the vicinity of the Antilles. It becomes as large as a shark, and has a mackerel-shaped body.

The Dadaist. Miss Catherine Wendell of New York, who is to marry Lord Porchester, heir to the earl of Carnarvon, is as witty as she is beautiful. At a studio tea she said one day: "The new movements in painting—cubism and dadaism and so on—make it difficult for us amateurs to criticize discreetly."

"A very modern painter was about to show me a new painting. As he took the cloth from off the easel I clasped my hands and said: "Oh, how lovely!" "Wait a minute," said he. "It's upside down."

"Then he turned the painting round and I said: "Oh, now it's lovelier still!"

Ed. S. Carr of Michigan City, Ind., a brother of C. C. Carr of this village, writing to renew his subscription to the Enterprise, says the paper is alright and he is glad to get it. He adds that he is "pretty good for an 82-year-old kid."

WASHTENAW COUNTY

Frank Ticknor of Pittsfield was elected chairman of the board of supervisors.

Ypsilanti is breathing easier since it was announced at the Rotary club at Ypsilanti last week that Henry Ford would build a factory there.

The face of the clock in the court house tower, which was damaged by the high wind a few weeks ago, has been repaired and the hands again tell what is legal time in Washtenaw county.

LENAWEE COUNTY

Adrian people advanced their clocks one hour, to Eastern Standard time, Saturday night.

George Tripp, county commissioner of schools, will conduct a teachers' examination April 25, 27, and 28, and certificates of the first, second and third classes will be issued.

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Angel of Adrian have bought the Lakeview hotel at Coon's landing, Devil's lake and will make extensive repairs and improvements. E. A. Coon retains the grove and the dance pavilion.

Frank H. Dorr of Clinton died Sunday night of asthma. He was 60 years of age and is survived by his wife and three daughters. He was a brother of Wm. Dorr, who resides west of Clinton, in Franklin. The funeral was held Wednesday.

Tecumseh Lodge F. & A. M., will hold its annual past masters' meeting, Friday evening, the 13th. The third degree will be conferred by some of the old and popular masters and a good time will undoubtedly be enjoyed, by a large number of masons.

Chicken thieves have continued to raid the northern section of the county and got away with tough and tender fowls. Last Wednesday three men claiming Toledo, as their home, were captured at Onsted by a group of citizens and were placed in jail at Adrian on suspicion of being guilty. They waived examination when taken before Justice Bennett on Saturday.

HUMAN LIFE MERELY JEST

Mexican Authorities Place Rescue of Cattle Far Above the Salvation of the King of Animals.

In Mexico there is no law by which damages can be recovered for the loss of human life. But in the case of cattle it is different, remarks the Birmingham Age-Herald. The Mexican law takes cognizance of cattle. When they are lost their value can be recovered, a singular distinction in the statutes of our neighbor to the south, though that is due perhaps to the fact that the court dockets there would be too hopelessly crowded if lives of human beings could be sued over. This legal anomaly was brought out in an investigation just concluded at Mexicali, Lower California, as to the wreckage of the steamer Topolobampo in the Gulf of California last November, when about 100 human lives were lost.

If the cargo had been live stock instead of cotton pickers of the poorest Mexican class, the federal authorities ruled, there would have been damages. But with the only difference of opinion at the hearing being on the number of lives lost, a tragic tale of the sea was told. When the high tides in the Gulf of California fall abruptly, the Colorado river, forced back by the waters of the gulf sometimes for 40 miles, rushes down with immeasurable force, and ships that were, are not. That is what happened to the Topolobampo, with its 80 or 100 Mexicans unaccounted for on land or sea.

Saving Wild Life. Lovers of woodland life will be heartened to learn that efforts for the conservation of the bison, or buffalo, as we more commonly say in America, have succeeded to the extent that there are 3,000 more of the animals now than two decades ago. The fact is of chief significance as showing a way of preventing the extinction of valuable or interesting species of wild life. If the states, with the co-operation of their citizens, will do half as much for the preservation of birds and game as the national government has done for the bison during these last 20 years, a stupid and shameful chapter of our history will be rewritten in happier terms.—Atlanta Journal.

A few more pleasant days and a little more warmth and people will be driving toward the lakes.

Two weeks ago Fred Kuhl, Oscar Buss and Anton Feldkams took a number of tubercular cattle-reactors to the packing house at Detroit. The cattle had been inspected at home and were again inspected after slaughtering, by government agents. The above farmers remained to see the process and learn the results. They were shown how the disease affects the cows and were told that one was fit only for tannage. The owner will probably receive some compensation for it, so it will not be a total loss.

COLD LIGHT NOT UNUSUAL

Nature Has Produced It, but Scientists Admit It Has Been Beyond Their Powers.

Prof. E. Newton Harvey of Princeton, who published a book on cold light in 1920 and who is continuing his studies, is not yet ready to admit that science has made much progress in that direction, remarks the Indianapolis News. Science knows that some bacteria, insects and fish give off a light that has practically no heat. Getting enough of this material to determine its composition, and then to manufacture it is a dream of everyone connected with such investigations, but so far the experiments have not been successful. Fireflies, squids that generate a pale-blue light, and other creatures that are luminous at night are under examination. Professor Harvey went to Japan, where he studied fireflies by thousands. There he found a small crablike form, about one-eighth of an inch long, with a bi-valve shell something like a clam. This sea creature, called cyprindina, has a large gland near its mouth which serves as the generating station for a cold bluish light. Professor Harvey also found a luminous centipede, but most of his attention has been given to cyprindina, of which he brought home specimens to be used in further experiments. He crushed hundreds of dried cyprindinas in a mortar. When water was added a blue light was seen. Tests with a delicate thermometer showed a rise in temperature of less than one-thousandth of a degree. Here was a substance that gave light with practically no heat. As yet Professor Harvey has been unable to determine its chemical content. Other investigators also have failed to solve the problem. Discovery of a way to make cold light would have tremendous commercial possibilities.

SINGING AFFECTS THE INSANE

Tired Brains and Irritated Nerves Said to Be Soothed by Music and the Human Voice.

Experiments are being tried at the New York State Hospital for Insane on Ward's island with the human voice, and physicians and attendants say that there is evidence that tired brains are rested and irritated nerves soothed by song. Theories evolved from studying "reactions" of insane patients prove that vocal music has a more powerful influence over the average insane person than instrumental. A series of concerts is to be given at the hospital and results will be carefully watched to determine just what measure of relief is given. Music has never been used for this purpose in Germany with great success for many years and the alienists are able to say what kinds of music have the proper effect upon individual cases. The soprano voice is said to be most beneficial to cases of acute melancholia.

The tenor voice, high and clear, has the best effect on persons having softening of the brain, while the deep, rich tones of the baritone affect particularly paranoiacs. It is a mystery yet to be explained by science why a mind unbalanced is abnormally sensitive to musical vibrations. A professional pianist in Russia, trying piano solos on patients, found that "jazz" was positively harmful, while soft, soothing, restful music would quiet the most violent.

He Knew Him When

There is one Detroitter who had an opportunity to study at close range the new Japanese ambassador long before M. Hanhara thought he would represent his country in the United States. During the settling of the Russian-Japanese peace at Portsmouth, N. H., in 1905, Harry H. Cooper, of the Hotel Tuller, represented the Postal Telegraph company at the Kittery naval station. He had charge of all the Japanese official cable dispatches. M. Hanhara was the social and, virtually, the general secretary for the Japanese peace envoys.

When correspondents wanted to know anything, they went to M. Hanhara, who, with the suave characteristic of his race, did what he could. He and Mr. Cooper became good friends in the course of the negotiations.—Detroit News.

It Grew—All Right

Romance does have strange-starting grounds. For instance, a reporter for the News was walking through the station and saw a porter brushing some rice off the back of a young man, who in turn gave him a dollar for the favor. "See that rice," he said to the reporter, and then pointed to his bucket of dirty water. "It started right here in this old bucket a few weeks ago." Then he explained. He had been mopping the floor of the station when the young man stumbled against the bucket, spilled the water and ran into a strange girl. Acquaintanceship, love and the wedding followed. So satisfied with his bride was he that the young fellow wished to pay the porter who played a part in the romance.—Indianapolis News.

BRIDGEWATER

Rolland Servis of Ann Arbor visited his aunt, Miss Frances Saley, this week, it being vacation week.

Henry Palmer drove through Sharon last Monday on insurance business and his auto ran over a blue racer snake that was crawling across the road. Later, on returning, he saw the snake in the track and ran over him lengthwise, and that probably finished him. Things move a little earlier in the sand, even the farmers' plows.

COLOR FOR HOSPITAL WALLS

New York Institution Has Adopted New Idea Which Would Seem to Have Advantages.

The modern hospital has been made about as sanitary, cheerless and uncomfortable looking as it is possible to make it with the aid of white-calcedined ceilings, enameled walls, and white enameled iron furniture. In the new Fifth Avenue hospital all this is changed. The walls are delicately tinted in French gray, buff or tan, and the furniture is what we would find in a modern hotel. A great deal of the horror of a hospital is brought about by the idea of being wheeled into an immense operating room, with nothing but operating tables, knives and saws, which are not calculated to distract attention from their own ill and the patient usually remains in terror until the anesthetic has done its work; but at the Fifth Avenue hospital the patient is taken into an anesthetizing room which resembles a small parlor. It is attractively furnished, and even has a rug on the floor, and there are curtains at the windows. This new hospital has many interesting devices; for example, suites of offices are provided for physicians at the hospital, so that they can see their private patients just the same as they would in their own office, thus being able to keep in touch with the other patients in the hospital. This office enables the physician to take advantage of the diagnostic facilities of the hospital for their private patients.—Scientific American.
