in years past, but the greatest feat in that line of which we have knowledge was when John Lockerby one night after supper swam the entire length of the lake and back. He was given five minutes in which to rest at the west end of the lake, but he took only 2½ minutes. James Moore paid Lockerby $10 on a wager.

Cedar hill has always been an attractive place for those in search of a distant view, and has always had many visitors, but never so many as this season, especially since the log stairway was built from the road just inside the park on north side. Now autos drive to the top from the south slope and there are more visitors than ever. Old Glory floats from a pole at the top and the state park board has arranged for someone to raise the flag each morning and lower it at night.

The most auspicious launching at the lake this year, took place at the Farm hotel beach last week when a raft for swimmers was slid into the water. Boats large and small have taken their first dip in Wamplers now and then this summer, but no event created as much stir as this. Geo. Stilwell of Detroit and Dick Kuhr of Orlando, Florida, like to dive deep down, so with the help of others, decided to build a raft to float in deeper water than the diving board on the beach. Poles and planks were procured and after about two days labor if was ready. This was no common event, so all guests and cottagers were notified and a big crowd came to the launching. His parents were pious people and carefully reared him according to Jew-ish standards. Most religious leaders spring out of such homes; for example, Moses, Samuel, Timothy. Stern principles of integrity were inculcated in him thus giving him strength of character to impress the world. He was strongly attached to the peculiarities of the Jewish religion. The heroes which molded his life were Joseph, Moses, David, Isaiah and such instead of Achilles, Hercules, etc. What a blessing today if the boys and girls were brought up under such influence.

Why He Called

It"Portland" Cement In 1824, an English mason wanted to produce a better cement than any then in use. To do this he burned finely ground clay and limestone together at a high heat. The hard balls [called clinker] that resulted were ground to a fine powder.

When a mixture of this dull gray powder with water had hardened, it was the color of a popular building stone quarried on the Isle of Portland off the coast of England. So this mason, Joseph Aspdin, called his discovery "portland" cement. That was less than one hundred years

Portland cement was not made in the United States until fifty years ago. The average annual production for the ten years following was only 36,000 sacks.

Last year the country used over 470,000. 000 sacks of portland cement. Capacity to manufacture was nearly 600,000,000

Cement cannot be made everywhere because raw materials of the necessary chemical composition are not found in sufficient quantities in every part of the country. But it is now manufactured in 27 states by 120 plants. There is at least one of these plants within shipping distance of any community in this country.

To provide a cement supply that would always be ample to meet demand has meant a good deal in costly experience to those who have invested in the cement industry. There have been large capital investments with low returns.

In the last twenty-five years, 328 cement plants have been built or have gone through some stage of construction or financing. 162 were completed and placed in operation.

Only 120 of these plants have survived the financial, operating and marketing risks of that period. Their capacity is nearly 30 per cent greater than the record year's demand.

These are a few important facts about ar industry that is still young. Advertisements to follow will give you more of these facts, and will tell something of the important place ce-ment occupies in the welfare of every individual

ANN ARBOR, MICH. NEW CHALLIES For Fall Frocks and Blouses

CHALLIE proves a favorite fabric for making fall dresses and blouses. It is woot, offering adequate warmth, and yet not too heavy for comfort. Very smart women's dresses may be made from challie and children's attire is always attractive when fashioned from challie. The new challies come in novelty patterns, some with a dark background and dots of bright color, others in figured patterns,

They are 27 inches wide and are moderately priced $1.19 and $1.35 a yard.
