Influence of All Nations in Dress

The autumn days hold much of interest and charm for the woman of fashion, having in them all the fascination of the untraced and the excitement of discovering what is to be worn. With Indian summer hovering, writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Times, the shore and the mountain places lure society later each year, reluctant to leave the outdoor life for the exactions of life in town. Half the social world sailed this summer to the other side, creating for Paris and London a season more brilliant than any since the pre-war days.

Brown Kasha Cloth Dress With Tight Bodice, Choker Collar and Sable-Banded Full Skirt. Cape One of Latest Cut.

The Parisiennes, appear nowadays noticeably subdued in their attire beside the American visitors. The intimacy and acquaintance with the inner workings of the European fashion-making world, created by present-day travel, has given American women first-hand knowledge of foreign variations of afternoon wear. They find that the first styles, fashions in the past as it were, are designed to catch the fancy of tourists—a large number of whom take without question whatever bears the Paris label. These makes in gowns, wraps and millinery flood the market, and the merchants over here emulate their example.

Costume of Brown Kasha Cloth

An attractive cape is introduced in an engaging model. The costume is made of brown kasha cloth in a style that departs from the more conventional tunic. The bodice is tight, with a choker collar, and the full skirt is weighted with a band of Russian sable. One can almost see small Russian boots worn with this outfit. The robe of interest, as the French say, is stunning for afternoon wear. It is built of black, "Rauley" kasha, and the embroidery is done in vivid colors with much gold thread. The sleeve is one of the best among the late models, fairly wide, straight, and is caught into a band, snug at the hand.

Times Change Demand for Boots and Shoes

Changes in living conditions have wrought radical changes in the kind of shoes manufactured today, according to a New York manufacturer. "Thirty-five years ago when our people started business we made only boots, the high-topped, pull-strap boot of fiction," he said. "A few years ago began the kind that immigrants brought and wore—stiff, steel-like soled shoes—were our main sellers. These were the automobile, the mechanical ditch digger, and the host of inventions that lighten labor in city and on the farm. The result of this trend in our business is to lighten the shoe. Today the demand is for light, flexible, tough footwear. "Another effect of the times in shoe manufacture is to prolong the life of a pair of shoes. One doesn't have to think back far when pedestrianism was a sport; a diversion for Sunday afternoons and long summer nights. That wore down sole leather. Now we spend our leisure in automobiles and the shoe is spared.

was needed, makes it especially suitable for fall street wear. Made quite simply, in any of the new weathers, worn with a fur scarf, or trimmed with fur, its popularity is certain. Wide Latitude in Styles. A New York modiste is showing a charming gown in kasha cloth, cinnamon brown, fashioned in tiers, though straight in line; beltless, the waist forming an eton effect. This and each fall founce, of which there are three on the skirt, being edged with a narrow fringe of monkey fur in natural color. Obviously, there will be a wide latitude in styles, particularly in the all-around wool gown, for plain materials, untrimmed, are equally as good as those of bold plaid and those that are trimmed, some very elaborately. This diversity is evident in frocks for every possible occasion.

In the psychology of modern dress, it is usual to speak of the "influence" of this or that innovation. Modes swung so long in circles, never departing from the conventional, that latterly, having taken flight, they have gone far in the search for novelty. No gown is considered really swager unless it shows an "influence" or evidence of tradition.

It must be Chinese or Persian, or Egyptian or Russian, and the adaptation of type in line and color to up-to-date requirements is sometimes startling in the extreme. Designers have delved deep into the treasure houses of faraway countries and peoples for inspiration, and have taken their motifs from palace walls, from kings' robes, and even from ruins and tombs. In their endeavor to add significance to the dress of today.

Half a century ago, lace, embroidery, fringe and guipure were the trimmings at the command of the dressmaker. When needlework was introduced it was the fine, dainty work of the French and Italians or the more ornate of the Germans, stereotyped to the last degree. Any one in those days who elaborated her garments in any other manner was regarded as eccentric. Gradually, the needleworkers of other countries, notably Armenia, Russia, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Sweden, have found a market here for their handicraft.

This year there is a vital "feeling" for Russian. It was seen in the summer blouses and one-piece frocks and even more marked in the autumn styles. Something in Russian dress impresses with its definite character. It has a dash and go, a stateliness, an extravagance, as compelling as the music on the country, its Cossack horsemanship, its polkas and mazurkas; and the most enterprising importers are making a strong appeal with everything Russian.

The coat dress, the tunic, or Russian blouse dress, has great possibilities. Fur-trimmed, it is effective for street wear. For the interior it is often heavily ornamented with Czech needlework, in colors that are invariably brilliant. Of many creations coming from the most notable houses in Paris some are unusually attractive. One model equally appropriate for street and indoor wear is made of dark blue Poirer twill, in two sections. On the princess slip of silk are built the narrow skirt and waistcoat. These are heavily faced with a hieroglyphic pattern in dull old gold and black braid, an inch and a quarter wide. This braid also trims the neck, sleeves, front and bottom of the tunic, which slips over, and which is very straight, altogether Russian in design. This new treatment by outlining the dress all around is accepted without a word of cutting the length of the figure unbecomingly.

Best for Light

To get the best lighting effects the ceilings and walls in a room should be as light in color as possible. The ceiling and wall surfaces are secondary sources of light; receiving and reflecting light from lamps.

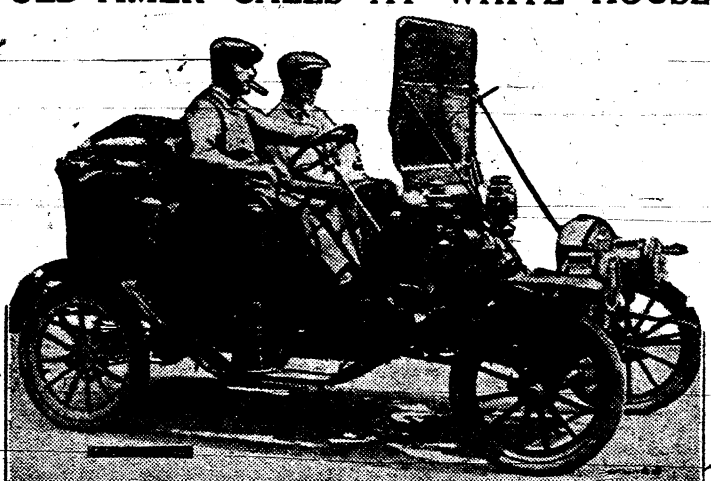

Satin Bridal Gown

Autumn brides are returning to pure, white satin for their wedding gowns, as contrasted with the cream and ivory tints fashionable in early summer. Many wedding gowns recently created are extensively embroidered with pearls and crystal beads.

Rage for Tanitels

We are all to be tanned as never before in our lives, if the designers have their way. They call it the "Chi" nose tone, but no Chinese ever tanned. These long-silk and meretric ornaments in such profusion as is indicated by the mode today.

OLD-TIMER CALLS AT WHITE HOUSE

A car of 1903 arrived at the White House the other day, after making the trip from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, the driver, A. Scherff, carrying a message from the mayor of Philadelphia to the President. Scherff has covered 16 states and hopes to make all the states before the first of the year, carrying messages from the different mayors and governors.

MOTOR TROUBLES DUE TO POOR OIL

"Medium" Lubricator Scorched Under Friction and Permitted Bearings to Go Dry.

(By ERWIN GREER, President Greer College of Automotive Engineering, Chicago.) Let's take a typical case of the pace that kills. Your Eighty-Eight rolls out of the salesroom on its first 2,000 miles. Of course you drive pretty slowly on the first five hundred or thousand miles, so as not to burn her up. You watch the oil gauge and when it slides down the scale you stop at an oil station. And here's where you get into trouble. "Medium or light oil" asks the oil man. "Medium," you say because "medium" sounds like a good average. And then whatever brand of oil that particular station has is poured into your crankcase.

LEGITIMATE USE OF CHAINS

Many Drivers Find Ways of Overdoing Things and Get in Habit of Driving Too Fast. Chains have their legitimate use, but as usual drivers find ways of overdoing it. The latest is the habit of driving too fast. Even the chain manufacturers don't advertise that their articles will guarantee motorists against accidents, but drivers seem to have a notion that the chains justify greater speed. As a matter of fact, the chains simply make the normal speed of the car for wet weather safe. If 15 to 20 miles an hour is the limit for wet weather driving the chains will make this speed practically safe.

DEVICE TO AVOID SKIDDING

Simple and Inexpensive to Manufacture and Prevents Detachment of Chains. The Scientific American in illustrating and describing anti-skid device, the invention of C. F. A. Nuebling of Hewlett, L. L. N. Y., says: An object of the invention is to provide a construction in which accidental detachment of the cross chains

STEP ON STARTER IF CAUGHT

Few Motorists Realize What a Source of Emergency Power an Electric Starter Motor Can Be. Few motorists realize what a source of emergency power an electric starter motor can be. When caught on railroad tracks with a stalled motor the thing to do is to place the gears in "second" and step on the starter. The car will move off the tracks slowly but surely, and in half the time that would be required to crank the motor. Some starters make so much noise that a train couldn't be heard approaching while the motor is being cranked.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

CROSSING RAILROAD TRACKS

Speeding Up and Coasting is Dangerous Even if Clear-View is Had From Road. Crossing railroad tracks by speeding up and coasting is dangerous, even if a clear view of the track is had from the road. The crossing may be rougher than it looks, or there may be more of an upgrade than appears at first glance and the momentum of the car can be quickly dissipated.

It Would Be Handy

To solve the problem of starting off uphill, when two feet have to work clutch, brake and accelerator, it has been suggested that the emergency brake be combined with the gear-shift lever, so that by gripping the handle the car could be held in check until the clutch is engaged.

Inspection of Lights

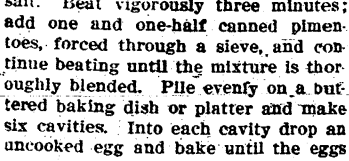

The lights of a car should be carefully inspected after an accident to see that they are properly focused and pointing directly.

The Kitchen Cabinet

Still one thing remains to furnish the House Beautiful without which guests and books and bowlers only emphasize the fact that the house is not a home. I mean the warm light in the rooms that comes from kind eyes, from quick, unconscious smiles, from gentleness in tones, from unpretentious caresses of manner, from habits of forgetfulness for one another—all that happy illuminating constant in the inside of a house, corresponds to morning sunlight outside falling on quiet dewy fields.—William Channing Gannett.

FOOD FOR THE FAMILY

A good dish which is sufficiently nourishing to serve for luncheon is: Baked Eggs.—To two cups of hot rice potatoes add two tablespoons of butter, one-third of a cupful of milk and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Beat vigorously three minutes; add one and one-half canned pineapples, forced through a sieve, and continue beating until the mixture is thoroughly blended. Pile evenly on a buttered baking dish or platter and make six cavities. Into each cavity drop an uncooked egg and bake until the eggs are set.

A delicious sauce to serve with boiled fish is: Shrimp Sauce.—Melt three tablespoons of butter and add three table-spoonsful of flour, mix well and pour in gradually, while stirring constantly, one and one-half cupfuls of boiling water. Bring to the boiling point and cook five minutes. Add three-quarters of a cupful of shrimps, cleaned and cut into small pieces, an egg, slightly beaten, salt and pepper to season. Pour around the well-drained fish. Garnish with lemon quarters.

Drop Cookies.—Cream one-quarter of a cupful each of butter and lard with one cupful of sugar; add one well beaten egg, five tablespoonsful of milk, one and three-quarter cupfuls of rolled oats that have been lightly browned in the oven and then put through the meat chopper, one and one-half cupfuls of flour sifted with one-half teaspoonful each of salt and soda, cloves and allspice and three-quarters of a teaspoonful of cinnamon; mix all together and add at the last one-half cupful each of nut meats and raisins. Drop from a teaspoon on a buttered sheet and bake.

How many million friends there are whose lot keeps them outside my path from day to day! But through the distance and the dark I smile, For I can love them, tho' I see them not.

GOOD THINGS WE ENJOY

This is the season when the garden is purple with the rich colors of the eggplant. Nicely cooked, this vegetable is most delicious. Baked Stuffed Eggplant.—Cut eggplant into quarters, lengthwise, removing the pulp close to the skin. Force the pulp through a meat chopper and drain; there should be two and two-thirds cupfuls of the pulp. To the pulp in a saucepan add one and one-half cupfuls of ham stock, bring to the boiling point and boil twenty minutes. Add three-fourths of a cupful of coarse dried bread crumbs, one-fourth of a cupful of melted butter, one teaspoonful of lemon juice, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one egg, slightly beaten; mix well and fill the shells with this mixture, sprinkle with buttered crumbs and bake.

Green Tomato Relish.—Take two quarts of green tomatoes, four quarts of chopped cabbage, one-half dozen onions, two small red peppers, one bunch of celery, one-half ounce of celery seed, two tablespoonsful of salt, one-half ounce of allspice and one-half ounce of mustard seed. Chop the vegetables very fine; add the other ingredients and cook twenty minutes, adding one-half ounce of tumeric at the last. Fill cans and seal.

Scalloped Macaroni With Onions.—Cook one cupful of macaroni broken into one-inch pieces in boiling salted water to cover. When the macaroni is soft and the pipes well rounded, drain. Peel twelve silver-skinned onions, prick them several times and cook in boiling salted water until tender. Put a layer of macaroni into a buttered baking dish, arrange over it half of the onions and sprinkle with a third of a cupful of grated cheese; pour over one-half cupful of rich white sauce, repeat and cover the top with buttered crumbs. Bake until thoroughly heated and the crumbs are brown.

Oyster Cocktail.—To eight small oysters add one tablespoonful of catsup, one-half tablespoonful of vinegar or lemon juice, two drops of tabasco, one teaspoonful of finely minced celery, one-half teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce and salt to taste. Chill thoroughly and serve in cocktail glasses or cups of green peppers served on a bed of crushed ice.

A pipe-smoker's challenge to other smokers

Is there a smoker in the audience who can answer this one?

Nearly every smoker is particular about the kind of tobacco that goes into his pipe. While he may smoke a pipeful from a friend's pouch for the sake of companionship, for day-in-and-day-out smoking he prefers his own brand.

And yet if you ask the average smoker what it is he likes about his tobacco, he may have difficulty in answering you immediately.

Mr. Joe Rivers, whose letter follows, is a confirmed Edgeworth smoker. In attempting to describe what he likes about Edgeworth, he coins the word "tasty-smellfulness." But as this does not entirely satisfy him, he puts the question up to other Edgeworth smokers.

Larus & Brother Company, Richmond, Va. Cleanliness.—Being a pipe smoker of no mean experience (having tried most pipes and pipe-tobacco) I've watched your smokers' letters in the magazine for some explanation of a taste that for me applies only to Edgeworth.

It is extremely difficult to describe this, because it seems to come as the smoke filters through the mouth and nostrils at the end of a draw from the pipe—a sort of combined "tasty-smellfulness" that most smokers like. "Why don't you get some of your smokers who can write to describe this?" Sincerely yours, (Signed) Joe Rivers

Probably there are any number of reasons why men smoke Edgeworth. One friend actually admitted he smoked it because his wife liked the shape of the Edgeworth glass jar to fit on her pantry shelf. However, the one outstanding feature of Edgeworth, as seen by most smokers, is its uniformity. Year after year, smokers can be sure of getting the same high-grade quality of tobacco.

There are no changes in the blend—no variations in the flavor or fragrance. It is always a good smoke. If you have not tried Edgeworth send your name and address to Larus & Brother Company, 78 South 21st Street, Richmond, Va. to mail to you some free samples, generous helpings of both Edgeworth Plug Slices and Ready-Rubbed. Then you can smoke a few pipefuls and see if Edgeworth agrees with your smoking temperament.

If you will also include the name and address of your regular tobacco dealer, your courtesy will be appreciated. To Retail Tobacco Merchants: If your jobber cannot supply you with Edgeworth, Larus & Brother Company will gladly send you prepaid by parcel post a one- or two-dozen carton of any size of Edgeworth Plug Slices or Ready-Rubbed for the same price you would pay the jobber.

In Columbus' Crew. The gift to England by the Spanish government of a model of the Santa Maria, in which Columbus discovered America, recalls the little-known fact that the vessel had an Englishman among her crew when she made her immortal voyage. In the list of the ship's company appears the entry "Tallarte de Lajes (Ingles)," and Sir Clements Markham suggests that Tallarte, being the Spanish form of Alard or Alard, the man was probably a connection of the famous seafaring family of Alard of Winchelsea, another member of which, Gervase Alard, became the first English admiral in 1308. An Irishman also was numbered among the crew, entered simply as "William of Galway."
