FARMERS ARE NOT BECOMING 'WAR RICH'

Despite any rumors to the contrary, Michigan farmers aren't getting rich as a result of wartime prices.

Here's the evidence, straight from the Michigan farm bureau. A survey of the bureau membership has disclosed that the gross income of farmers in 1943 averaged $4,995 with an average net income of only $1,422. Nationally, the net farm income of 1942 was $1,320. Half of the farm-operator families in 1942 were $1,200. Half of the farm-operator families in 1941 received less than $750 net cash income from all sources, including net proceeds from operation of the farm, payments from employment of the owner, pension and other income.

In fact, only in recent war-time years has the income of the American farmer approached prewar (1934-35) parity with other workers. For years the farmer has been using up accumulated reserves, now he must replace these at an inflated war time price—a source of further irritation to a man who has never known a eight-hour day, time-and-a-half additional compensation beyond 40 hours of double pay for overtime.

Because the farmer owns both the land and the tools with which he produces he is a capitalist and hence on the other side of the fence from the industrial laborer. The Michigan survey disclosed that the average Michigan farmer worked 13 1/2 hours every week during the summer season, and 8 1/2 hours on week-ends during the winter. Nearly 90 percent own their own homes; the average farm is 120 acres; the average family has lived on their own farm 41 1/2 years.

Here is a population group in Michigan, outnumbered by city dwellers nearly two to one, which is working long hours, under extreme handicaps due to lack of labor and limited machinery and still receiving only a modest earnings.

Is the present $50 million fund adequate to meet post-war needs of the State? Michigan's New York state legislature adjourned last week after tagging $80 million for the state's post-war needs.

It saved, totaled approximately $160 million, making a new total of more than $220 million.

The population of Michigan in 1943 was 2,526,106, of which 2,144,447 people lived in urban areas. New York state's population was 13,479,142, of which 11,162,885 were in cities. These figures are significant.

On the basis of New York's post-war fund and comparative populations, Michigan should increase its state post-war fund from $50 to $100 million.

The Michigan State legislature, entering its final weeks of deliberation at Lansing, has announced a decision soon on state aid for cities. Pending are bills to raise an additional $20,000,000 for cities, and to raise $10,000,000 more by apportioning the state's profit from sale of the state's oil, and an extra $3,000,000 by a new tax on cigarettes. The legislature is a direct outgrowth of the $100,000,000 for the coming fiscal year.

Mayor George Walsh of Grand Rapids has effected a bipartisan alignment in the House of Representatives, drawing lines between urban and rural legislators for a showdown.

The senate shelved a bill to hit the ceiling on the state corporation tax, now set at $50,000, and to lower the tax from $2.50 to $1.75 per $1,000 of capitalization. The measure would have reduced taxes of small corporations, but would have added $4,500,000 to the operating cost of 13 large corporations.

DOG QUARANTINE IS REALLY BE ENFORCED

The quarantine on all dogs in the county which was made effective March 23, because of the presence of several cases of rabies in the county, will be rigidly enforced, it is reported.

Last summer considerable numbers of farm animals were bitten and had to be destroyed and quite a number of people were bitten and forced to undergo treatment. In a sincere endeavor to prevent an outbreak of rabies, this quarantine has been enforced and every dog owner is asked to keep their dogs tied up in a penity of 100 days in a penalty of $100 fine or 30 days in jail.

DOG QUARANTINE IS REALLY BE ENFORCED

The collection of the 1945-46 Good Friday service for the American Bible Society amounted to $42,100. Anyone wishing to contribute who was unable to attend these services may do so through their own pastor.

SPELLING BEE AT SCHOOL LAST FRIDAY

On Thursday afternoon March 29, the annual school spelling bee sponsored by the Detroit News was held in the Civic auditorium.

Contestants were ten pupils from each of grades five, six, seven and eight who were chosen in preliminary contests three weeks previous.

Patricia Hansen, a seventh grader, spelled the bee when the runner-up, Linda Rock, a sixth grader, failed to spell correctly the word "unconscious". Shirley Bert, also a seventh grader, and the school champion for the past two years, spelled "unconscious" correctly.

Patricia will compete against the winners from the other schools in this district on April 20 for the district championship, and the chance to compete in the metropolitan bee in Detroit sometime in May. In case she is unable to compete her place will be taken by the runner-up, Linda Rock.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF MARRIAGE OF SGT. PAUL L. WIDMAYER

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Lillian Ewar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick of St. Paul, Minnesota, to Sgt. Paul L. Widmayer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Widmayer, of Manchester. They were married in a double ring ceremony in the Baptist Church parsonage by Dr. Powell at 7:30 p. m. on February 25.

The bride was attired in a white wedding suit with brown accessories, and a corsage of gardenias and red roses. They were attended by Sgt. and Mrs. Robert Broadwater of Tacoma, Washington. Mrs. Broadwater was attired in a tulle and tulle suit with brown accessories and a corsage of roses.

Following the ceremony a dinner was served, after which the couple left for a wedding trip to Minnesota and Michigan during his furlough.

Sgt. Widmayer is with the Engineers Construction Battalion at North Fort Lewis, Washington.

TOWNSHIP ELECTIONS WERE VERY QUIET AFFAIRS

Monday's biennial spring election proved to be a very quiet affair in nearby townships. In several of them there was but one ticket. Manchester township had but one ticket for the first time in years so a very small vote was cast, there being only 139 votes cast in Manchester, 99 of them being Republicans and 35 Democrats.

The ratio was about the same in other townships. The 15 mill amendment was voted down here by a 92 to 22 vote and the water levy amendment was turned down, 79 to 44.

Gen. Eisenhower Medal for Boy Scouts

As waste paper continues to be one of the nation's critical shortages, the War Production Board, through its chairman, has called upon the nation's 1,847,645 Boy Scouts, Boy Scouts and their leaders to collect 100,000 tons of waste paper during April.

Every member who collects 1,000 pounds of waste paper will receive the Boy Scout General Eisenhower Waste Paper Campaign Medal shown above. The medal, in bronze, is suspended from a white ribbon.

Every Cub Pack, Boy Scout Troop or Senior Scout Unit which collects waste paper equivalent to 100 pounds per Boy Scout member, will receive a genuine shell case trophy from a European battle field. The trophy will contain a printed citation by General Eisenhower.

Members having waste paper for sale should be glad to sell it to the Boy Scouts. The price is $1.00 per ton.

Water Winchell

New York Picture Postcards: Crowds rushing away from the main stem after curfew as if it were a pal who could no longer do any favors. . . . An all-night beaver's electric eye peering into the early dawn darkness—showing that one part of the town has insomnia. . . . A ballet of spring breezes dancing through the streets. . . . The parks trees sprouting tiny buds clenched like a baby's fist. . . . Types of sky-scrapers providing exclamation points for the city's exciting scene story. . . . Towel-carriers suffering from high-blond pressure, attempting to kill a headache with a handkerchief. . . . The sign in a bar: "Time Tells on a Man—Especially a Good Time." The tempo tempo Broadway friendship which can turn into the cold prose of empty evening. An interesting and disconcerting phenomenon. . . . Dawn coming out into the sky to put the stars to sleep.

Among the town's little heroes: Children defense workers who are still carrying on their duties. . . . Gigantic fingers of silence gripping the city at dawn. So quiet you can hear the click of traffic lights as they switch colors. The touching goodbyes between soldiers and their loved ones at depots. "I'll write you every day, honey." Sabbath morning church-bellequeness which seems to be the silence rather than break it. . . . A scoop of afternoon sun being served on a platter of whipped cream clouds. . . . Broadway's clinging all-night carterias—tipping coffee while nibbling on a side-dish of conversation. . . . Rockefeller Center gal guides who are more arresting than any of the nights they point out.

Regal Fifth Ave. showgirls crowned with laurels—inspiring tribute for the Queen of Big Town streets. . . . The hams who are walking around in their own personalities. . . . Garments arrayed on 10th Ave. clothes lines swaying in the same breeze humming by. . . . The sky soiled with glowing twilight, exhibiting a whimsical streak which brings out the smile in any body's spirit. . . . The exasperated conversations which cushion the velvet atmosphere of the sumptuous Music Hall lounge. A gray wild holding an tight to the stress of a charlie as it goes around her curves.

Comely Travelers' Aid ladies who greet strangers with a bouquet of bright smiles. . . . The Hudson River light—a view that tattooed itself into your memory. . . . Sunrise tinting the sky with a Paradise glow as the world hands people its most priceless gift: A new day. . . . The theater's best-dressed man—the ticket collector—garbed in a tux. . . . A made of silk heralding the approach of first-class curtains down the aisle and leaving a trail of perfume. . . . The Empire State Building at noon—collaborated with sunshine. . . . Victorian canyons at dawn killed to the town when hush. . . . The smothering steam of roasting coffee tickling nostrils as you ride over the Bronx Bridge.

Mountains of clouds crowding over the city and making mammoth buildings insignificant. . . . Headlines on newspapers gleaming with bright war news which lights up the din. . . . The Flying Fortress whizzing over the Statue of Liberty and dipping its wings in a salute to the grand lady who carries a torch for Uncle Sam.

Train announcers' voices yawning out their remarks as if they wished they were elsewhere. . . . Workers guping a quick breakfast of orange juice, coffee and doughnuts—like bitter medicine they didn't want to taste. . . . Broadway's straining talk through their glasses as they stand on street corners tossing a precious minutes they can never hope to retrieve. . . . Movie stars pushing around town covetously by a fleet of press agents.

The slant penmanship of rain scribbling its unruly signature on window panes. . . . Dazzled sky-scrapers putting shadows on stills as they stand guard over the streets all through the night. . . . Cool, clear nights when you can even see baby stars staying out all night. . . . Agonized cries of fog-horns along the waterfront sandsparring the hush of the night. . . . The lady garbed in a flowing white gown who strolls along Sixth Ave. distributing religious pamphlets. A decade ago she was a well-known actress. . . . Mobs rushing to stores where ciggies are being sold as if it were a gold rush. . . . Feminine sinners chin deep in milk lolling in waxy eaters where they turn the private lives of friends inside out. . . . The backdroppers of cabbies helping their way through traffic. . . . Tablissetting orators in cafes trying to breathe the use of an open into a mould of dead words.

High Pressure Spray Forces Out, Kills Cattle Grubs

New Treatment Promises To Conquer Ranching Industry's Worst Pest

Cattle grubs, those ugly parasites that cause a loss of leather, meat and milk valued at 100 million dollars annually, can now be controlled by spraying. The insecticide, mixed with water, is blown into the hair on the backs of the infested animals. At a pressure of between 250 and 400 pounds the solution penetrates the holes that the grubs have burrowed in the skin. The grubs come out and die soon afterwards. A portable pumping unit provides the pressure for spraying the insecticide. At a recent demonstration on a ranch near Fresno, Calif., a group of agricultural experts and farm journal editors watched while a herd of Hereford cattle was treated with the spray. The animals were driven into a chute, and as each one passed the operator, he played the nozzle over its back, washing off dirt, grease and scabs as well as killing the grubs. The cattle grub and beef fly are different forms of the same insect. Starting in the spring, when it is in the fly form, the beef fly lays eggs on the head and belly hairs of the animals. These eggs hatch into maggots which work their way and through the hide and enter the muscle tissues. During the next nine months these maggots migrate through the internal organs of the cattle and come out along the back. Cysts are formed and the maggots then turn into grubs about an inch long. In the spring they work their way out of the holes in the hide and fall to the ground. Within a few weeks they turn into beetles and the yearly cycle repeats itself. The results are poor feeding and loss of weight as well as injury and miring down.

Capture of Cologne Revives Interest in Famed City's Past

The great Rhine valley, Cologne, captured by American forces in early March, has been famous for 2,000 years. Its aluminum and synthetic rubber factories have made it the target for devastating bomber raids in this war. Power plants and bridges have also been blasted, but the beautiful and immense cathedral has suffered little damage. Situated on the Rhine, about 70 miles upstream from the Netherlands frontier, Cologne sprawls over two banks of the river. The old town on the left, says the National Geographic society, is the right bank are the annexed suburbs of Deutz, Mülheim, Kalk, and Vingst, the air grounds, and several amusement parks. The countryside is now expanded. The city, fortified by the Rhine, was pulled down to make way for a new city. In some places the old dwellings soon spread in a so-called "ring street" boulevard paved on the curving line of the river. The "rings" expand into spaces laid out with flower beds and edged with trees. Another city, Cologne, is being built into museums. Fragments of Roman ruins remind citizens of their civic pride.

In the heyday of the Hanse towns, Cologne had a brisk trade in silk, spices and other products of eastern lands, goods transported over Alpine passes from the Mediterranean and loaded down the Rhine to be distributed throughout western Europe. When from up the river were transhipped at Cologne to seagoing vessels. So large was the export trade and consequent wealth of the city that Cologne merchants had their own docks in London, Weights and measures standards in Cologne were used in almost every place in Europe and from abroad. Like other Hanse towns, Cologne rapidly lost commercial leadership after the 16th century. New trade routes had opened; strong rivals sprang up. When the French took over the old free city in 1794 they found only 40,000 inhabitants, most of them destitute. Development of the Ruhr valley, steamships and railroads revived commerce, made Cologne once more a thriving export center.

Cologne's name dates from A. D. 50 when the Roman Emperor Claudius established a colony for war veterans, and called it Colonia Agrippina in honor of his wife. Her name was eventually dropped, the city's name becoming Cologne in French, Köln in German. From the end of the 15th century and old way, were found to retain the same material after it was covered with the molasses spray. It is a question of teaching old dogs new tricks. Scarce as feed, they'd better learn them, too.

"GAY GADGETS"

By NANCY PEPPER

Jitterbug Joolery

Definitely, there's a new trend in jewelry, not so many gadgets—but more silver stuff than you have arm space for. It's traditional to wear your silver on your left arm and your I.D. (identification) bracelets on your right arm. It's practically compulsory to wear short strings of graduated pearls with everything.

Lead Us Your Ears—We want to put those metal or plastic hoop earrings on them. And—how about the drop style earrings? It's a radical change from the better types that have been weighing you down.

Stinky!—and he's made out of fur. He holds a little flower in his paws and a fur tail curls up his back. You see him on sweat-soaked and laze eyes anywhere, too. He's a fad!

Stuffed Stunners—The newest in hair bars are leather hair bars, studded with colored stones to match your belts you've gone to look for them at your favorite high school shop.

Pop-Pop—Ask dad for his old watch. He'll want it on a piece of ribbon or on a chain and wear it on your waistline. It's the newest jewelry fad.

Follow The Fad-Regions

It's not always what you wear that counts, it's how you wear it. For instance, last year everybody wore a disc on one ear. This year it's sharper to wear your cardigan open down the front over a blouse with only the top buttons fastened. Would you like to be snooty? Read on, MacDuff.

Showering Soaps—Much never than velvet ribbon bands for your hair are printed scarfs, folded into a square and worn as a headband. Stick Suspenders—The way to make a plain blouse and skirt look like a dress is to add a pair of suspenders. The fad is for felt suspenders with your name embroidered on the top.

Hot Feet—Lots of girls are dying those heavy white sweat socks in bright colors to go with their sweaters. Also—lots of girls are wearing boys' argyle plaid socks—the brightest of the better.

Children at Home Aboard Coast Guard Transports

Troop transports now consider the nursery as a "mess." Thousands of refugees, repatriates and babies of U. S. servicemen are being brought to the United States aboard the U. S. coast-guard-manned troop transports, moving east from the Orient and west from Europe. Most of the children are bewildered but seem to receive reassurance from Red Cross workers and members of the ship's crew.

Navajo 'Dust Bowl' Brings Disaster to Indians

Economic disaster for 25,000 Indians is rapidly taking form in the rugged mesas of the Navajo country in Arizona and New Mexico. A million or more sheep are the direct cause of the potential blight. The real problem of the Indian Office is the overpopulation of Indians upon comparatively unproductive, deteriorated lands.

HOW WE DID IN '44

MICHIGAN BELL REPORTS MORE BUSINESS—LESS PROFIT

With Michigan's mines and farms, factories and shipyards, delivering more and more war goods, the use of our services in 1944 was greater than ever. All essential telephone needs were met. We served more people than ever, and generally we served them well.

(COMPARISONS BELOW ARE FOR 1939, EUROPE'S FIRST WAR YEAR, AND 1944, OUR THIRD WAR YEAR)

WE GAVE PRETTY GOOD SERVICE
 Except that we could not install telephones for all who applied, we gave reasonably good service. Almost nine out of ten long distance connections were completed while customers remained on the line. Most telephones were trouble-free all year and 95% of all cases of trouble were fixed the day reported.

—AND WE SCRAPED THE BARREL TO SERVE AS MANY AS POSSIBLE
 In the 5 years since war broke out in Europe, we added as many telephones as in the previous 18 years. This used up virtually all our spare facilities. Because of war shortages, we could not begin to get all the things we needed. Old switchboards, instruments and wire were pressed back into use to provide service for as many as possible.

—BUT WE DIDN'T HAVE ENOUGH TO GO AROUND
 Despite our best efforts, 7 out of every 100 long distance calls were delayed in 1944 by shortage of lines. And at the end of the year, nearly 98,000 applications for service were held for facilities. All essential orders were filled promptly. The other orders we could fill were installed under a government priority plan, as present users gave up service. It takes more than telephones to remedy the situation. We need buildings, wire, cable, switchboards, and time to install them.

—SO WE'RE GOING TO DO SOMETHING ABOUT IT
 The only relief from our present situation is a general enlargement of our telephone system. Assuming good business conditions will prevail for several years following the reconstruction period, we foresee a construction program costing as much as $120,000,000 in the first five years after the war.
 Such a program would enable us to clear up our backlog of orders... to keep pace with increasing needs... to resume conversion of manually operated offices to dial operation... to resume the extension of rural service... and to reserve the people of Michigan the benefits of the latest technical developments in communication. This program will mean jobs for our returning veterans and for many others as well.

—AND WE'LL NEED MONEY FROM INVESTORS
 In obtaining the large amounts of money needed for expansion, we rely on the American Telephone and Telegraph Company to sell its securities to investors country-wide. Attractiveness of A. T. & T. securities depends on Bell System earnings, and in the public interest Michigan Bell must do its part to maintain satisfactory System earnings. Currently the System's earning rate is one-third lower than the average of other industries and Michigan Bell's is still less—about half that of other industries.
 The furnishing of good telephone service depends on earnings sufficient to pay a fair return on the money invested in the business. Any whitening of subsequent earnings would further weaken our ability to meet expected postwar needs of Michigan.

Bonds Over America

 IOWA'S FIRST CAPITOL
 Among the important shrines of American history are the buildings that reflect the Administration of the University of Iowa, Iowa State Capitol, constructed in 1860 at the first State Capitol. In 1857 the government moved to Des Moines and the building was turned over to the University. People on the home front buy War Bonds to equip service men who are guarding such institutions as this one in Iowa, which began with 75 students and now numbers 10,000.

 "No wonder you say it wouldn't be fair to take the privilege away from the other 95%, Judge. I agree with you."
 "I can't see it any other way, Clem. No more than I could see taking automobiles away from everybody because a few drive recklessly and have accidents. Or preventing the making or sale of cake or doughnuts because some folks eat too much and get indigestion."
 "In the case of spirit beverages, the answer is one of education and better control."
 "As a matter of fact, the responsible members of that industry are working constantly toward that end. They don't want folks to abuse the use of their product any more than we do."

GOD IS MY CO-PILOT

Col. Robert L. Scott

The story thus far: After graduation from West Point, Robert Scott was a wingman as Kelly Field and takes his combat wings. He has been an instructor for four years, when the war breaks out, and he is sent to the front for combat duty. He appears in several Generals and is finally given an opportunity to get into the front line. He flies a bomber into the front on several occasions. After a visit to Gen. Cresswell he gets a K-12 and is sent to the front. He is made CO of the 1st Fighter Group but this group is knocked down. He is sent to the front and is badly wounded and is sent to a new plane.

CHAPTER XXIII
It had been only recently, when he had been taken from his thirteen four-engine bombers on the way to the front, that he had been assigned to transports. The Japs must have known just how to get under his skin, but in the end I think the knowledge worked against them. Now he was getting back at them by having thousands of little leaflets printed in several languages, especially in Japanese. They read: "COMPLIMENTS OF THE OLD BROKEN-DOWN TRANS."
FOUR PILOT
He used to drop some of these on every bombing mission he led. He'd go out and the some to each bomb, put them in the bomb bay so that they fell out when the doors were opened, even throw them out over the Japanese-occupied cities that he blasted. I knew now that he was getting a new supply ready for Hongkong.

Towards the end of October came the word we had so long been waiting for: Victoria harbor was filled with Japanese shipping. In deepest secret we got ready to go. Our ships would leave from Kailash, but we would of course use the intermediate bases in the Kailash-Hongkong section, 500 miles to the East. Hongkong, you will recall, is about 200 miles Southeast of Kailash. It is protected by surrounding enemy fighter fields at Canton and Kowloon. Our objectives would be the shipping in the harbor, the shipping at the docks in Kowloon, and the ships at the drydocks in Hongkong.

Early on the morning of October 20 our twelve bombers took off from Kailash for Kowloon, via Kailash, Hill, Allison, Holloway and I led the fighters off. We were all to infiltrate into Kowloon, a few ships at a time, so as not to alert the coast of eastern China.

The first mission I had planned about this attack. I thought it would come any day, and because of the tension I couldn't sleep. When I learned that word hadn't come, I'd spend another sleepless night. I got the doctor to give me something to make me sleep and I had a headache the next day. I knew "my mind was up," as the British say—but why in hell didn't we go on and get the attack over with!

But now I was on the way. I could see the dark mouths of the P-47's all around, and the whole thing was easy—just what I had wanted all the time. We sat down at Kowloon at midnight intervals at eight o'clock. The bombers were soon in, and the Chinese were busy servicing the field full of ships. They were the happiest people I had ever seen. They'd point towards Japan and point down at their thumbs and say: "Soo-oo."

All of us were proud to be going. But as I looked at these seven P-47's securing the corridor, I could not help feeling apprehensive for that great country in the world that we were representing. Oh, God, if the day could stop some when we could go against this enemy with a thousand bombers, even a hundred bombers!

Maybe the small fighter force that we had made us lucky ones who were privileged to go receive all the more that we would make up in quality what we lacked in quantity. Personally I felt like a veteran football player who has been on the bench and has now been called into the big game. Nearly a year before, when Hongkong had fallen to the Japanese attacks from the sea, I had sworn that I would lead the fighters, that I would shoot down Japanese fighters in the raid, that I would be intercepted by a superior force of the enemy, but in less than three minutes after we had taken off, there would be only the ships of the U. S. Army Air Force over Victoria harbor.

God is My Co-Pilot

bomber formation again. I felt proud of the crews of those perfectly spaced ships. This really was like a football game; the bombers were spaced out, the ball was in the air, the peac-shooters ran the interference. I imagined General Haynes, down there in the lead bomber, grinning as he thought of dropping a few hundred more of his leading bombers to the Japs. "Compliments of the old broken-down transport pilot—along with at least sixty 500-pound bombs. Big 'Bitch' Morgan, the best bombardier in the Air Force, had probably worried his huge bulk through the tunnel into the nose of Haynes' bomber and was even now intensely interested in his pet bomb-sight.

Now I could even smell the freshness of the Pacific. The sky had never been so blue. The beauty of the day and the beauty of those weapons firing so smoothly under us made me forget the scratching of the oxygen mask on my nose, the burning neck, it was a joy to look back and see the six shark-mouths of the other bombers gaining at me. Some day, I thought, Jap mothers were going to fight their children referring to them and reminding the brats of Nippon that their fathers had more than sixty tons of bombs hanging from the sky.

As we got closer to the target, we split our formation. The fighters automatically. Tex Hill, Hampshire, Mission accomplished—now they had the drop on the opposite bank of the bombers. The country below had become lower in elevation than was green and still hilly. Over the radio, as we reached a

Then, as I glanced about, I saw them, although after a moment's climbing terribly steeply towards the bombers. I know now that they had gone from Kai Tak, and in less than four minutes; they had made the sixteen thousand feet in that short time. I felt my stomach drop as they lap, hit my knee, then drop to the metal floor of the fighter. I was humbling myself for the Japs, and I was trying to get a better view of the burning docks.

The men were all a-breast, combat fatigue and needed a rest. They were killed in action, and this meant alert without relief for twenty-one days. Many of their flying mates had been killed in action, and this meant alert without relief for twenty-one days. Many of their flying mates had been killed in action, and this meant alert without relief for twenty-one days.

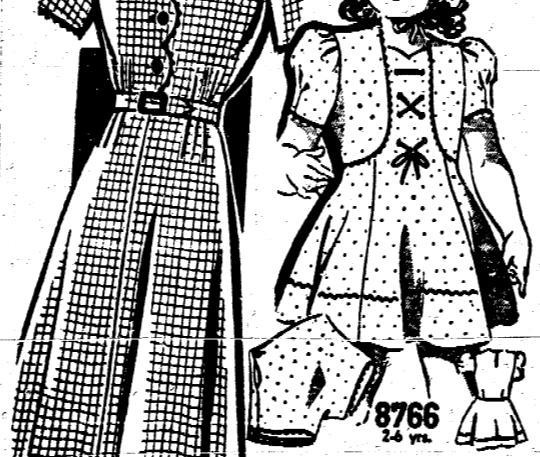

We were turning over Macao, where the Clippers used to land. To the South I could see another Jap base, Santa's Island. Now to the right was Hongkong Island, shaped like a kidney and mountainous, just about nine miles long and three or four miles across. I could make out the indentations of the romantic-sounding bays whose names I knew—Sandy, Telegraph, Kellet, and Repulse. There were points of land jutting towards the mainland—Quarry Point with its Naval Drydock, and Peak Tong Trail, the point over which we would fight our aerial battle. Reaching towards the island like a dagger was Kowloon peninsula, separated from it by the blue waters of Victoria harbor. Near the tip of the spit of land closest to Hongkong, I saw the large modern Pendennis Hotel. All of us in the ships of the U. S. Army Air Force officers' camp were with their work.

I crossed around and over General Haynes and his formation, watching valiantly. Far below I saw out on Kai Tak airfield, and knew that enemy ships were taking off to attack us. My throat felt dry and I had trouble swallowing. Our altitude kept increasing to 20,000 feet, while down below at seven-thousand we saw the mission bombers in their formation. Two Vees of three, and the last element a diamond of four. We passed one by the five-jet formation check-out that enabled me to compute our ground speed. To my surprise I could see the giant of the sun on the Pacific Ocean. As I saw the fighters that were to be coming. I saw the yellow bombs begin to fall in long strings, imposed on the dark green of the world below. They got smaller and smaller as the noses pointed slowly down. Remembering my movie camera, I tried to take pictures of the explosions. The bombs seemed to take years to fall, and I began to think they were all dud. The ack-ack burst closer as the Japs got the range while we went straight on. I know I was never more excited in all my life. I yelled, "Okay, Hirohito—we have lots more where those came from!" I kept looking behind and under us for the bombs to burst.

Easy to Make Your Upholstered Chairs

THIS pair of chairs, so much at home in a Victorian setting, would be just as appropriate in a modern room. They are comfortable too, and anyone who can nail together a box can make the wooden frame. Scrap or even old boxes will do, for this foundation part is entirely covered. With the frame finished, the lady with needle and thread and a few tacks will probably take over. The padding is easy—just cotton batting and covering materials is used. The seat and backrest are upholstered with a cotton filling or may be filled with feathers or kapoc. The rest is a simple covering job.

NOTE—Pattern No. 290 gives large diagrams for all parts of the chair frame with construction notes, padding and covering clearly illustrated. A bill of materials and covering materials is included. Total cost, Pattern No. 290, includes 15 cents with name and address direct to:
